

Day of Considerable Activity Is Planned for Patagonia's 4th

The program for the big Fourth of July celebration in Patagonia is nearing completion, and as the details are being worked out a day of great interest and enjoyment is assured. It has now been decided to start the ball rolling in the morning of the Fourth with the miners' drilling contest. This event is scheduled to start at 10 o'clock promptly and will be held at the ore dump in Patagonia. It promises to be as interesting as any event of the day, as there are quite a number of expert drillers working in the Patagonia country, and to see which of the two men teams can put down the deepest hole in a boulder of solid granite in the time limit (probably 15 minutes for each team), will be well worth watching.

At 11:30 the crowd will go to the beautiful Ash Grove, just below town, the pride of Patagonia, where the "eats" will be served. Four big fat beaves will be barbecued, and with lunch baskets brought by people in attendance, something extra good in the way of dinner is expected. It is not a requirement that any one bring lunch; those who fall to do so will be just as welcome as those who do, and for that matter four big fat yearlings nicely barbecued should be enough to furnish a good meal for the many hundreds of people who will be here on that day. But always on occasions of this kind, the good housewife will bring a well filled lunch basket, as an added attraction, and many nice family lunches will be served at grove, augmented by the barbecued meat.

With the miners drilling and the cowboys pulling off their strenuous stunts, the day is to be one of great activity. However, even at that, arrangements have been made for one speech. The miners and cowboys thought the day would not be appropriately observed unless an orator was given the privilege of making the eagle scream. He is expected to do this in a reasonable length of time, however, and not harangue the audience to the extent of interfering with more interesting events. The name of the spellbinder will be announced next week.

After the big feed and the Fourth of July oration, the crowd will come back to Patagonia, and the big show will start on the flat at the western end of town. The goat roping contest will be the first event, which is expected to start about 1:30. Then will follow the broncho busting, the races, etc.

Herbert McCutchan is working on the committee for the miners; Henry (Rastus) Karns is looking after the cowboys' part of the program. They are two of the best men in the county at their respective callings. Patagonia has lots of expert miners and cowboys. Therefore the day's program will be worth coming miles to see. At night a big dance will be held in the Patagonia opera house. Come early, stay late, and don't miss any of the events.

Mrs. Stewart, mother-in-law of R. N. Keaton, who had been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Keaton in San Rafael, left early this week for her home in Globe.

Sweet Bye and Bye Opens Up a Breast of Ore 30 ft. Wide

Work at the Sweet Bye and Bye group of claims, near Rosemount, in the Helvetia district, about 20 miles from Patagonia, in the southern part of Pima county, is making a remarkable showing. By sinking a few feet on the ledge, a breast of ore has been exposed for fully 30 feet, and is easily traceable on the surface for a distance of several hundred feet. By means of quarrying process the ore is being extracted and shipped to the station at Vail. The new work is on the Tiger claim at the extreme end of the Sweet Bye and Bye group, and not from any of the old workings. Some of the ore runs as high as 17 per cent copper, but an average will be much lower. The significance of the strike lies in the apparently great quantity of ore rather than in its high percentage of values.

The Sweet Bye and Bye was bonded recently to C. B. Farmer and associates and at the time it was rumored they were representatives of one of the big mining companies of Arizona. This has not been confirmed, but the erection of a commissary, new houses for employes, the building of a good wagon road to the mine, and other improvements show that Mr. Farmer is accustomed to mining on a big scale, whether he represents any of the big companies on the present deal or not.

One feature of the work at the Sweet Bye and Bye, which has exposed the big breast of ore, is of interest, in that it also goes to prove up the property of the Lewishons, well known New York capitalists who hold adjoining ground. The Lewishons have held a large number of claims in this district, acquired from the old Rosemont Mining and Milling company, but have made no effort for the past several years to do any development. It is hoped the work on the Tiger claim of the Sweet Bye and Bye may induce the rich New Yorkers to do some development on their extensive holdings.

HERE NEXT TUESDAY

Dr. Schell, the well known optician and optometrist of Tucson, will be at the Commercial hotel in Patagonia next Tuesday, June 27, and will remain one day only. If your eyes need attention call on him for expert service. Money back if not satisfied in 30 days' trial. Advertisement.

Roofing is being put on the Washington Trading Co. warehouse this week, under the supervision of Boss Carpenter Ed Hainline.

CONCENTRATES

H. F. Lee left Wednesday morning for El Paso on a mining deal.

Gus Yarik, the mining man, was in Benson few days last week on business.

T. N. Stevens, a civil engineer and U. S. mineral surveyor, of Tucson, was in the Patagonia district Monday.

Ore is being brought to this station from the property of Geo. F. Welland in Jefferson Camp, Harshaw district, this week, for shipment to the smelter.

Franklin W. Smith came in from Bisbee Tuesday evening, to inspect work going on at the Coronation group, near the Three R, in which he is interested.

Matt Quenner, famous as the inventor of the machine for washing gold which bears his name, has leased some placer ground from Col. R. R. Richardson in the Greaterville district, and will start operations at once.

Al Schaffenberg, familiarly known as "Dutch," formerly a well known character in mining circles in the Patagonia country, has returned to the district after an absence of two years in other camps of the state.

C. N. Schaeffer, who has been employed at different stores in Patagonia the past several months, and who has been interested in mining in this district, has gone to the northern part of the state on a business trip.

Judge Orton Phelps was down from the Mowry Tuesday. He reports that the engineer who was sent to make examination of the old Mowry has been called away to make examination of another property, but is expected to return within a few days.

Ore from the Royal Blue, in the Alto district, is being brought in this week, preparatory to shipment to the smelter. Messrs. Sennett and Greene had a little hard luck in freighting the ore into Patagonia, their wagons breaking down, causing a slight delay. A carload shipment will go to the smelter from this splendid property within a few days.

The Hardsbell mine, recently secured from R. E. Richardson by Geo. B. Hosier of Douglas on a bond and lease proposition, has been incorporated. The articles of incorporation, published in a Cochise county newspaper, give the capitalization as $1,000,000, or 1,000,000 shares at par value of $1 each. The officers are Geo. B. Hosier, president; H. W. Reed, vice-president; E. A. Hosier of Kansas City, secretary, and E. I. Agnew treasurer. The incorporators are all Douglas men with the exception of the secretary.

In the past, owners of properties containing a mixture of vanadinite and wulfenite and crocoite, have had a great deal of trouble marketing the same, owing to the inability to separate the vanadium and molybdenum content. Either was undesirable in the other. It is now possible, however, to separate these minerals, and more money is being paid for low grade ore than was formerly paid for clean high grade concentrates. Moreover, gold and lead are also paid for, which was ignored formerly. There are a great many deposits in the State of Arizona of ores of this type whose owners have been unable to market them. If these owners will communicate with Professor Charles F. Willis, Director of the State Bureau of Mines, Tucson, they will be advised where such ores may be sold.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Sherman Rhinehart, the Duquesne cattleman, was in town Monday.

J. E. Hopkins went to Nogales Monday afternoon, being summoned as a juror.

Al Turner was down from the Babacomarias a few days the early part of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. B. Hosier went to Douglas Saturday evening, for a short business trip.

Miss Pearl Grissom of Pantano is visiting with relatives and friends in Patagonia this week.

Mrs. J. L. Young and daughter of Greaterville have been visiting friends and relatives in Patagonia this week.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Pattison and sons, Arthur and Ralph, left Monday for a vacation of several weeks at Redondo Beach, California.

Geo. H. Francis, the postmaster, has secured a commission as notary public, and is now putting his official seal on legal documents.

Need Glasses? See Dr. Schell, the optometrist of Tucson, at the Commercial hotel on his regular visit next Tuesday, the 27th. One day only.—Adv.

M. L. Wright of Douglas came over Monday and will be in the district several days, visiting at the home of Paul McIntyre, an oldtime chum.

Henry Woods was thrown from his horse one day this week, while working in the northern part of the county. His injuries are not thought to be serious.

Herbert McCutchan has purchased lumber for the erection of a house on his lot recently purchased on Duquesne avenue, adjoining the E. H. Evans home.

Capt. Cady, veteran Indian fighter and pioneer of this part of the state, has been away for the past several days, in the interest of his book, "Arizona's Yesterday."

A barn belonging to O. F. Ashburn, this side of the Monkey Spring ranch, containing about 100 tons of hay, was burned Tuesday night. The cause of the fire is not known.

Jeff Rountree has moved his well-digging outfit to the north, after putting down two more holes at the pumping plant of the Patagonia Farm tract, just east of town. This tract now has a sufficient supply of water to meet almost any emergency.

Despite Wars and Rumors of War, Copper Hold Firm

Copper is quiet and the market has the appearance of being weak; but there are many reasons for the belief that the position of the metal really is extremely strong. Lake and electrolytic are being sold by brokers at 27½ to 28 cents a pound for the account of consumers who over-bought some months ago. The leading producers and selling agencies continue to ask 29 cents and they are not making any effort to sell or to find a market. Electrolytic is selling in London at the equivalent of 30 cents a pound. The export movement is heavy, having averaged 2,403,520 pounds a day so far in June. It is reported on what appears to be good authority that European governments and consumers are making inquiries for approximately 200,000,000 pounds of copper, says Walker's Copper Letter in the Boston Commercial.

The leading producers are believed to have sold between 80 and 90 per cent of their 1916 production and also a considerable tonnage for delivery during the first quarter of 1917. There is every reason to assume, therefore, that they will refrain from offering down prices.

It is now probable that a further big buying movement will develop in the very near future. If it is limited to purchases for 1917 delivery there may be a slight shading of prices; but if a considerable tonnage is demanded for nearby delivery prices surely will advance. While there is some cash copper available the aggregate amount is small and it is doubtful if any considerable tonnage could be obtained for earlier delivery than the last quarter of this year.

Starr K. Williams, the Bisbee attorney, was in Patagonia the latter part of last week, securing evidence in the case of the State vs. Jack Fall, charged with the murder of Tom Castleberry in the blacksmith shop in Patagonia a few months ago. The trial of Fall, now confined in jail in Nogales, is expected to come up in the Superior court within a few days, unless Mr. Williams, who has recently been called into the case to defend Fall, secures a postponement.

Eastern Capital to Develop the Rupert Group, Near Town

The Rupert group of claims, consisting of five claims, a few miles north of Patagonia, and just below the old Mansfield camp, were bonded this week by Messrs. Kennedy, Hausman and Scheeler, Chicago capitalists. A few weeks ago the Rupert was visited by Mr. Kennedy, connected with the department of mining of the University of Wisconsin, and upon his recommendation the deal was made. Mr. Kennedy is also financially interested in the proposition.

The Rupert is owned by F. P. O'Neill and is regarded as a very fine property. Considerable commercial ore is in sight and on the old dumps of the property. In the past several thousand dollars worth of high-grade lead-silver ore have been shipped from this group.

The new owners have a mill on a property in New Mexico which they intend to ship to Patagonia about the first of July and put up on the Rupert. A shipment of mining machinery will also be sent from Chicago to reach here some time about the first of July, and development of the Rupert will commence on an extensive and thorough plan.

The Patagonia Garage, under the management of Ray Blabon (Buck Nix), is the latest business venture in Patagonia. The building of Chris Wilson adjoining the blacksmith shop has been rented, this building having been originally constructed for a garage. Special attention will be given to repair work on automobiles, and also work on any kind of gas engines. Buck Nix is one of the best automobile mechanics in the country. His friends say if he can fix things as well when working in a well equipped shop, where he has all the necessary tools, as he can when on the road without any tools he will be a world-beater. Recently Buck had a party of mining men in the Santa Rita when a tire on the "fiver" he was driving came off and for several yards the machine ran on the rim, breaking over half the spokes completely off. It looked like a long hike back to town. But without any tools other than a hammer and a piece of baling wire, Buck fixed the wreck in a few minutes and came sailing into town as happy and serene as though nothing unusual had happened.

J. E. Hopkins is selling a new patent portable bath outfit, and it is one of the best contrivances for the purpose ever shown in this county. It practically does away with the trouble and inconvenience of bath tub bathing, and requires very little water. The low price of the apparatus and its great usefulness should enable Mr. Hopkins to place one in every home in this vicinity.

PRANK PLAYED BY HURRICANE

New Orleans Clothier's Stock Was Swept Out of His Store into the Street.

Although the angry wind carried through space a veritable fusillade of bricks, slates and bits of broken glass, a fringe of venturesome men stood within the scant protection afforded by the sheds on the river side of St. Charles street and with necks at a dangerous angle gazed up at the great tall chimney on the lower side of the Masonic temple during the hurricane the other afternoon.

It seemed swaying to and fro as though to the accompaniment of the wind's melancholy hum, and such cries as "It's going to fall now!" and "Get ready to dodge the bricks!" went up from the expectant crowd.

The batteries of the storm god trained their envious guns on the entire exposed front of the stately temple. Splendid windows of ancient pattern yielded their fancy glass as tribute to the gale.

The swaying chimney was about to give up its fight for existence. The watching crowds saw it bend, straighten, bend again and then fall with a resounding crash on the roof of the building occupied by a clothing store next door to the temple.

The avalanche of bricks tore a great hole through the skylight and clattered down into the store. And then the opening, forming sort of a funnel, let in the mad wind from above and there appeared catapulting through the front door shirts, coats, trousers and all sorts of articles of men's attire.

The wind for a moment showed a festive mood and picked up the clothier's stock, whirled it up and down St. Charles street, dragged it over the slippery asphalt, and deposited most of it on the shaking roofs of neighboring buildings.

The windows in all the buildings along St. Charles street were shattered by the wind and the skyscrapers in the side streets were considerably damaged.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

DIFFER IN SLIGHT DEGREE

Words "Possession" and "Obsession" Really Have Very Much the Same Meaning, According to Authority.

Possession and obsession are etymologically related, but usage has given them slightly different meanings. Both are from the Latin, and the second syllable of both, sess, is from sedere, to sit; therefore a session is a sitting; but possession is to sit before or near a thing as owning it, and obsession is to be sat upon by it. This is not very illuminating, but it serves to mark different shades of meaning. Yet the two words are so nearly synonymous that both have been used to describe the persecution of a human body by an evil spirit, though possession means operating from within and obsession from without. The Bible speaks of those who were possessed with devils, and the Oxford dictionary gives one of the definitions of obsession as "the hostile action of the devil, or an evil spirit besetting anyone; actuation by the devil or an evil spirit from without." But while the authorities recognize a technical difference between possession and obsession as relating to the devil's operations from within or from the outside, they do not differentiate the moral results of the cases. Etymologically speaking, there is a shade of difference between the two words, but the etymological difference is only skin deep, while, morally speaking there is little or no difference between being operated by the devil from within or worked by him from the outside. In quoting some examples of the use of obsession as relating to evil spirits, the Oxford dictionary remarks that, "These cases belong rather to obsession than possession, the spirits not actually inhabiting the bodies, but hanging or hovering about them." Leaving the devil out of the case entirely and coming to ordinary affairs it may be said that while obsession and possession are different in some meanings they are synonymous in others.

GOOD OLD-FASHIONED DISH

Colorado Authority Tells of Preparation Long in Use Among the "Pennsylvania Dutch."

Since the season for farm butchering is at hand I am reminded of an old-fashioned recipe for "Pon House" which has long been used among the "Pennsylvania Dutch." It is as follows:

"All meat not used for sausage, hams, shoulders and side meat should be reserved to be used for 'pudding meat.' This includes the head, with tongue, heart, liver, and all clean skins after the lard has been stripped from them. To all this add water and cook slowly until very well done, so bones will easily separate from the meat. Chop the largest pieces of meat, add water and thicken with cornmeal and buckwheat flour, about half as much buckwheat as cornmeal. Cook slowly, being careful that the mixture does not stick. When about done add salt, pepper and sage to taste, pour into dripping pans; when cold slice it as cold meat or fry it like mush.—Miriam M. Haynes, Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colo.

POTATOES' IN NEW FASHION

Special Way of Serving Them Has Caught the Fancy of the People of San Francisco.

At one of the most popular restaurants in San Francisco, delicious potatoes are cooked in the manner described below. Though prepared there in a chafing dish, they may be cooked equally well at home in an ordinary skillet. Bake as many potatoes as are required for a meal, and as soon as they are mealy scoop out the inside. Do not mash, but put in a pan in which is melted butter, at least a tablespoonful for each potato, and as much more as your conscience will allow. Stir the potatoes until thoroughly mixed with the butter, and add enough paprika to make the mixture pink, or the color of rutabagas, and also add a tablespoonful of very fine chopped chives and one of minced parsley. If chives are not to be had, use onions. These are especially good with beefsteak or chops.—Good housekeeping.

Chicken and Rice.

Onion with chicken and rice is an unusual combination, and unusually good as well. This is a recipe from an Italian friend, but it should be immediately Americanized by adoption: "To serve six people have two moderate-sized onions to a person. Use one cupful of rice washed thoroughly, one cupful of chicken meat, dried fine, three cupfuls of chicken stock and two cupfuls of water. Use for this an earthen baking dish, somewhat flat. Put the onions in first, then the rice and chopped chicken, pouring the stock water over last. Salt and pepper and dot liberally with butter. Place in a moderate oven and cover. Cook for at least an hour, then uncover the baking dish, and add a cupful of rich cream. Increase the heat of the oven and cook about twenty minutes longer. This combination should also be served in the dish in which it is cooked."

Chicken Rolls.

Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, blend in three tablespoonfuls of flour and add gradually one and one-half cupfuls of chicken stock; season to taste with pepper, salt and celery salt; stir until smooth and thick, and add one and one-half cupfuls of chopped chicken. Remove the soft crumbs from crisp rolls, fill with the prepared chicken, place in the oven until hot and serve.

To Wash and Clean Tin.

Wash the tin well in hot, soapy water and also add some soda and dry well while quite hot. Clean the inside of the tin pan or saucepan with lemon juice, if necessary. Clean the outside which whitening mixed to a paste with a little water. Let the paste dry thoroughly, then polish first with a soft duster and then with a leather.

Cranberry Turnovers.

Make a rich pie crust, roll out thin cut in squares or rounds, put about ten cranberries, two teaspoonfuls sugar and a small piece of butter on each, then turn half over and press edges together, or gather all at top and press together. These are deliciously juicy.

To Deodorize Pans.

After cooking onions, cabbage or fish, try this plan: Wash and dry the pan, then place a piece of thick, brown paper on the stove, set fire to it and turn the saucepan over the blaze. After a few minutes remove it and the odor will not be noticed.

Apple Pudding.

One pint flour, one teaspoonful cream of tartar, one-half teaspoonful soda, two tablespoonfuls sugar, one egg, two tablespoonfuls butter, milk enough to roll, about one-half cupful. Roll and spread with chopped apple.

If the Oven Was Too Hot.

When loaves are baked in too hot an oven and the outside crust gets too brown, do not attempt to cut it off, but as soon as the bread is cold rub it over with a coarse tin grater and remove all the dark-brown crust.

Thick White Sauce.

Two tablespoonfuls butter, three tablespoonfuls flour, one cupful milk, one-fourth teaspoonful salt, few grains of pepper.

SYNOPSIS.

Cazalet, on the steamer Kaiser Fritz, homeward from Australia, cries out in his sleep that Henry Craven, who ten years before had ruined his father and himself, is dead, and finds that Hilton Toye, who shares the stateroom with him, knows Craven and also Blanche Macnair, a former neighbor and playmate. When the daily papers come aboard at Southampton Toye reads that Craven has been murdered and calls Cazalet's dream second sight. He thinks of doing a little amateur detective work on the case himself. In the train to town they discuss the murder, which was committed at Cazalet's old home. Toye hears from Cazalet that Scruton, who had been Cazalet's friend and the scapegoat for Craven's dishonesty, has been released from prison. Cazalet goes down the river and meets Blanche. Toye also comes to see her and tells Cazalet that Scruton has been arrested, but as he doesn't believe the old clerk is guilty he is going to ferret out the murderer. Cazalet and Blanche go to Cazalet's old home and meet Mr. Drinkwater of Scotland Yard. Cazalet goes with Drinkwater to the library where the murder was committed, shows him a secret passage he knew as a boy, and leads the way through it. He then tells Toye that Cazalet about the murder, suggests fingerprints on the weapon found in the secret passage as a means of trapping the murderer and succeeds in securing a print of Cazalet's hand.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued.

Cazalet excused himself with decision. He had a full morning in front of him. He was going to see Miss Macnair's brother, son of the late head of his father's old firm of solicitors, and now one of the partners, to get them either to take up Scruton's case themselves, or else to recommend a firm perhaps more accustomed to criminal practice. Cazalet was always apt to be elaborate in the first person singular, either in the past or in the future tense; but he was more so than usual in explaining his considered intentions in this matter that lay so very near his heart.

"Going to see Scruton, too?" said Toye.

"Not necessarily," was the short reply. But it also was elaborated by Cazalet on a moment's consideration. The fact was that he wanted first to know if it were not possible, by the intervention of a really influential lawyer, to obtain the prisoner's immediate release, at any rate on bail. If possible, he might hesitate to force himself on Scruton in the prison, but he would see.

"It's a perfect scandal that he should be there at all," said Cazalet, as he rose first and ushered Toye out into the lounge. "Only think: our old gardener saw him run out of the drive at half past seven, when the gong went, when the real murderer must have been shivering in the Michael-Angelo cupboard, wondering how the devil he was ever going to get out again."

"Then you think old man Craven—begging his poor pardon—was getting out some cigars when the man, whoever he was, came in and knocked him on the head?"

Cazalet nodded vigorously. "That's the likeliest thing of all!" he cried. "Then the gong went—there may even have come a knock at the door—and there was that cupboard standing open at his elbow."

"With a hole in the floor that might have been made for him?"

"As it happens, yes; he'd search every inch like a rat in a trap, you see; and there it was as I'd left it twenty years before."

"Well, it's a wonderful yarn!" exclaimed Hilton Toye, and he lighted the cigar that Cazalet had given him.

"I think it may be thought one if the police ever own how they made their find," agreed Cazalet, laughing and looking at his watch. Toye had never heard him laugh so often. "By the way, Drinkwater doesn't want any of all this to come out until he's dragged his man before the beak again."

"Which you mean to prevent?"

"If only I can! I more or less promised not to talk, however, and I'm sure you won't. You knew so much already, you may just as well know the rest this week as well as next, if you don't mind keeping it to yourself."

Nobody could have minded this particular embargo less than Hilton Toye. He saw Cazalet off with a smile that was as yet merely puzzled, and not unfriendly until he had time to recall Miss Blanche's part in the strange affair of the previous afternoon.

Say, weren't they rather intimate, those two, even if they had known each other all their lives? He had it from Blanche (with her second refusal) that she was not, and never had been, engaged. And a fellow who only wrote to her once in a year—still, they must have been darned intimate, and this funny affair would bring them together again quicker than anything.

Say, what a funny affair it was when you came to think of it! Funny all through, it now struck Toye; beginning on board ship with that dream of Cazalet's about the murdered man, leading to all that talk of the old grievance against him, and culminating in his actually finding the implements of the crime in his inspired efforts to save the man of whose innocence he was so positive. Say, if that Cazalet had not been on his way home from Australia at the time!

Like many deliberate speakers, Toye thought like lightning, and had reached this point before he was a hundred yards from the hotel; then he thought of something else, and retraced his steps. He retraced them even to the table at which he had sat with Cazalet not very many minutes ago; the waiter was only now beginning to clear away.

"Say, waiter, what have you done with the menu that was in that toast-rack? There was something on it that we rather wanted to keep."

"I thought there was, sir," said the English waiter at that admirable hotel. Toye, however, prepared to talk to him like an American uncle of Dutch extraction.

"You thought that, and you took it away?"

"Not at all, sir. I 'appened to observe the other gentleman put the menu in his pocket, behind your back as you were getting up, because I passed a remark about it to the head waiter at the time!"

CHAPTER IX.

Fair Warning.

It was much more than a map of the metropolis that Toye carried in his able head. He knew the right places for the right things. He gazed critically at his boots. He was not so dead sure that he had struck the only man for boots. There had been a young fellow aboard the Kaiser Fritz, quite a little bit of a military blood, who had come ashore in a pair of cloth tops that had rather unsettled Mr. Toye's mind just on that one point.

Captain Aylmer had said he would like to have Toye see his club any time he was passing and cared to look in for lunch. He had said so as though he would like it a great deal, and suddenly Toye had a mind to take him at his word right now. The idea began with those boots with cloth tops, but that was not all there was to it; there was something else that had been at the back of Toye's mind all morning, and now took charge in front.

Aylmer had talked some about a job in the war office that enabled him to lunch daily at the Rag; but what his job had been aboard a German steamer Toye did not know and was not the man to inquire. It was no business of his, anyway. Reference to a card, traded for his own in Southampton Water, and duly filed in his cigarette-case, reminded him of the Rag's proper style and title. And there he was eventually entertained to a sound, workmanlike, rather expeditious meal.

"Say, did you see the cemetery at Genoa?" suddenly inquired the visitor to their way back through the hall. A martial bust had been admired extravagantly before the question.

"Never want to see it again, or Genoa either," said Captain Aylmer. "The smoking-room's this way."

"Did you say you were there two days?" Toye was cutting his cigar as though it were a corn.

"Two whole days, and we'd had a night in the Bay of Naples just before."

"Is that so? I only came aboard at Genoa. I guess I was wise," added Toye, as though he was thinking of something else. There was no sort of feeling in his voice, but he was sucking his left thumb.

"I say, you've cut yourself!"

"I guess it's nothing. Knife too sharp; please don't worry, Captain Aylmer. I was going to say I only got on at Genoa, and they couldn't give me a room to myself. I had to go in with Cazalet; that's how I saw so much of him."

It was Toye's third and separate independent attempt to introduce the name and fame of Cazalet as a natural topic of conversation. Twice his host had listened with adamant politeness; this time he was enjoying quite the second-best liqueur brandy to be had at the Rag; and he leaned back in his chair.

"You were rather impressed with him, weren't you?" said Captain Aylmer. "Well, frankly, I wasn't, but it may have been my fault."

"I was only going to ask you one thing about Mr. Cazalet," Toye said, "and I guess I've a reason for asking, though there's no time to state it now. What did you think of him, Captain Aylmer, on the whole?"

"Ah, there you have me. 'On the whole' is just the difficulty," said Aylmer, answering the straight question readily enough. "I thought he was a very good chap as far as Naples, but after Genoa he was another being. I've sometimes wondered what happened in his three or four days ashore."

"Three or four, did you say?"

And at the last moment Toye would have played Wedding Guest to Aylmer's Ancient Mariner.

"Yes; you see, he knew these German boats waste a couple of days at Genoa, so he landed at Naples and did his Italy overland. Rather a good idea, I thought, especially as he said he had friends in Rome; but we never heard of 'em beforehand, and I should have let the whole thing strike me a bit sooner if I'd been Cazalet. Soon enough to take a hand-bag and a toothbrush, eh? And I don't think I should have run it quite so fine at Genoa, either. But there are rum birds in this world, and always will be!"

Toye felt one himself as he picked his way through St. James' square. If it had not been just after lunch, he would have gone straight and had a cocktail, for of course he knew the only place for them. What he did was to slue round out of the square, and to obtain for the asking, at another old haunt, on Cockspur street, the latest little time-table of continental trains. This he carried, not on foot but in a taxi, to the Savoy Hotel, where it kept him busy in his own room for the best part of another hour. But by that time Hilton Toye looked more than an hour older than on sitting down at his writing-table with pencil, paper and the little book of trains; he looked horr— he looked distressed, and yet he looked crafty, determined and immensely alive. He proceeded, however, to take some of the life out of himself, and to add still more to his apparent age, by repairing for more inward light to a Turkish bath.

Now the only Turkish bath, according to Hilton Toye's somewhat exclusive code, was not even a hundred yards from Cazalet's hotel; and there the visitor of the morning again presented himself before the afternoon; now merely a little worn, as a man will look after losing a stone an hour on a warm afternoon, and a bit blue again about the chin, which of course looked a little deeper and stronger on that account.

Cazalet was not in; his friend would wait, and in fact waited over an hour in the little lounge. An evening paper was offered to him; he took it listlessly, scarcely looked at it at first, then tore it in his anxiety to find something he had quite forgotten—from the newspaper end. But he was waiting as stoically as before when Cazalet arrived in tremendous spirits.

"Stop and dine!" he cried out at once.

"Sorry I can't; got to go and see somebody," said Hilton Toye.

"Then you must have a drink."

"No, I thank you," said Toye, with the decisive courtesy of a total abstainer.

"You look as if you wanted one; you don't look a bit fit," said Cazalet, most kindly.

"Nor am I, sir!" exclaimed Toye. "I guess London's no place for me in the fall. Just as well, too, I judge, since I've got to light out again straight away."

"You haven't!"

"Yes, sir, this very night. That's the worst of a business that takes you to all the capitals of Europe in turn. It takes you so long to fit around that you never know when you've got to start in again."

"Which capital is it this time?" said Cazalet. His exuberant geniality had been dashed very visibly for the moment. But already his high spirits were reasserting themselves; indeed, a cynic with an ear might have caught the note of sudden consolation in the question that Cazalet asked so briskly.

"Got to go down to Rome," said Toye, watching the effect of his words.

"But you've just come back from there!" Cazalet looked no worse than puzzled.

"No, sir, I missed Rome out; that was my mistake, and here's this situation been developing behind my back."

"What situation?"

"Oh, why, it wouldn't interest you! But I've got to go down to Rome, whether I like it or not, and I don't like it any, because I don't have any friends there. And that's what I'm doing right here. I was wondering if you'd do something for me, Cazalet!"

"If I can," said Cazalet, "with pleasure." But his smiles were gone.

"I was wondering if you'd give me an introduction to those friends of yours in Rome!"

There was a little pause, and Cazalet's tongue just showed between his lips, moistening them. It was at that moment the only touch of color in his face.

"Did I tell you I'd any friends there?"

The sound of his voice was perhaps less hoarse than puzzled. Toye made himself chuckle as he sat looking up out of somber eyes.

"Well, if you didn't," said he. "I guess I must have dreamed it."

MAKE CARVING EASY

Devices That Will Be Welcomed by Many.

Inventor, It Would Seem, Has Introduced Something That Should Prove to Be a Boon to Suffering Humanity.

The jocular remarks of Mark Twain and other humorists about the difficulties and embarrassments of the man with the carving implements presiding over the roast of meat or fowl will no longer apply when the dining tables are all supplied with the meat holder which has recently been patented by a Denver man.

Mark Twain said in one of his stories that he always refused to carve except in dining rooms where the wall paper matched the color of the gravy, so that any unfortunate mishaps might not do any serious damage to the mural decoration. To one who has carved, it does seem that the usual plate on which the roast is placed for the cutting operation is inadequate and invites disaster, for a little slip of the meat will be the means of projecting a stream of the gravy over some unfortunate person seated around the board.

Two metal members with prongs on their inside are made to surround and secure the meat by bringing their two free ends together, at which point they are clamped. The other ends are secured in a ball and socket joint by means of which it is possible to turn the roast over.

Baby Monoplane.

What is undoubtedly the smallest successful monoplane in the world has recently been constructed by a Californian. In addition to this distinction the machine is almost as unusual in design as it is in size, for it is driven tail first by an ordinary seven horsepower, twin-cylinder motorcycle engine. It weighs, complete with its gasoline tank filled, only 238 pounds, has a wing spread of 18 feet, an overall length of 16 feet, and a supporting area of about 90 square feet. The motor drives a 4 1/2-foot propeller at about 1,400 revolutions a minute, giving the craft a speed of nearly 60 miles an hour. The power plant is placed at the extreme rear of the machine, so that its weight is balanced by that of the pilot who rides several feet ahead of it. The machine has been driven a number of times, and during these flights has remained in the air for 15 minutes to half an hour.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Wrong Stocking Stolen.

On one of the coldest nights this winter Mrs. Annie Diets of 115 Mechanics street prudently wore woolen sleeping hose when she went to bed. Testifying in court against Michael Arenewich, who was held in $500 bail on the charge of burglary and attempted theft from person, Mrs. Diets said: "As I was placing a roll of $400 in my stocking I heard a slight noise, and looking out thought I saw this man stepping back from my bedroom window. The next I knew I was awakened by feeling one of my stockings being pulled off. Before I could turn on a light the intruder jumped through the window and disappeared with my left stocking."

The chief reason why Arenewich was charged merely with attempted theft was that Mrs. Diets put the money in her right stocking.—Hartford (Conn.) Dispatch to New York World.

The Man With No Initials.

Playgoers everywhere will regret to hear that that fine actor, Mr. Charles Hawtree, has had heavy financial losses owing to the war.

Mr. Hawtree can be as humorous off the stage as he is on it. On one occasion he was talking to a friend about peculiar names and initials.

"By the way," he said, "I have a friend who is in a most unfortunate position. He actually has no initials."

"No initials?" exclaimed his friend in amazement. "Why, how can that be? Hasn't he got any name?"

"Oh, yes," answered Mr. Hawtree, with a twinkle in his eye. "But you see, each of his names begins with an aspirate and, being cockney, he always drops his h's."—Redman's.

May Be Valuable Find.

Workmen digging in the bay of Guanabara, at Rio de Janeiro, recently brought up a quantity of pure phosphorus. Acting on the belief that a deposit of value had been tapped, the government was advised of the discovery and it has ordered an investigation to determine the probable size and value of the body of mineral.

We know that our soldiers have been allowed to do away with their facial hair. It has been shown that the soldiers of Napoleon remained freely beardless and that the absence of hair beneath the nose accorded with the views of hygienists. The opinion, combated by the mustache school, has just surrendered. An official circular recalls to the soldiers of France that the wearing of the mustache is military, that the razor is not so and that the entire army should hereafter avoid showing the upper lip. Thus, the mustache has triumphed after having been discussed, derided and almost proscribed.—Le Cri de Paris.

New Castle, Ind.—"From the time I was eleven years old until I was seventeen I suffered each month so I had to be in bed. I had headache, backache and such pains I would cramp double every month. I did not know what it was to be easy a minute. My health was all run down and the doctors did not do me any good. A neighbor told my mother about Lydia E. Honor Japanese Explorer.
The Japanese people are paying honor to a famous Japanese explorer, the Rev. Ekai Kawaguchi, who has just returned from a successful religious mission to the innermost regions of Tibet. Almost a score of years ago Doctor Kawaguchi conceived the project of recovering to the world the hidden scripts of pristine Buddhism from the land of the Lamas, away in the alcoves of the world's roof. He penetrated Tibet, but had to come home abandoning the object of his exploration. Later, after a long study of the Tibetan language, he made his way through mountain and forest and overcoming many hardships finally succeeded in entering Tibet three years after his departure from Japan. His wanderings in the interior were mostly in the disguise of a traveling physician. After studying the Tibetan religion and conditions for ten years he was given copies of the Sanskrit Buddhist scriptures and returned to Japan.

Knitting Under Difficulties.
Miss Lilia Trotter of the Algiers Mission band writes that the native classes that used to work on native embroidery and lace at the different stations of the mission in North Africa have now, in view of the European war, resolved themselves into more immediately useful knitting classes for the Red Cross.

"The children took vigorously to the new craft, even though knitting needles had to be long nails or umbrella ribs. Yarn proved as scarce as needles, so we started spinning it from sheep fleeces, thus giving employment to the older women for whom times were hard."

Now We Have It.
The earth passed between the planet Saturn and the sun January 4. It passed between Neptune and the sun January 7. There being no planets in position to force the earth out from the sun and cause cold weather after February 16 these three planets will repel the earth toward the sun, or rather against the sun's repulsion, from February 16 to April 26, which will cause spring to begin practically about February 16, and will cause warmer and drier weather than usual from February 16 to April 26, 1916.

During that warm period the principal cool changes of weather will occur just after the moon or any planets pass between the earth and other planets or visible stars near the eclipse. When precipitation occurs it will be near the dates of these planetary, lunar and stellar conjunctions.—D. N. Grover, in Baltimore Sun.

Race of Woman Warriors.
The word Amazon is Greek and was used thousands of years before America was discovered. According to tradition, it was applied to a race of female warriors who had the form but hardly any of the attributes of women. In order that they might hurl a javelin or aim an arrow more effectively, the right breast was removed to give greater freedom to the arm; hence the name Amazon from a-mazos, without breasts. In works of art, sculpture and painting, the Amazons were represented with the right side, the place of the removed breast, covered. The Amazon river in Brazil was so called by the Spanish explorer who discovered it because he said he encountered fighting women there.

RUSSIA'S BLACK SEA PORT

LOOKING OVER THE HARBOR OF ODESSA

ODESSA, Russia's first naval base on the Black sea and the starting point for over-the-water attacks on Bulgaria, European Turkey and Asia Minor, is the most imposing milestone on the Muscovite's shortening road to Constantinople and the warm waters of the Mediterranean, says a bulletin of the National Geographic society. The great and flourishing port is one of the youngest cities of the East, for it was founded by Catherine II after her war of conquest against the Turk had ended in the treaty of Jasny in 1791, and its foundation was largely due to the desire to have a strong city just as near to Constantinople as possible, as a well-equipped point of departure for Slav armies of future generations.

It is said that the Russian is the dreamiest and the longest-memoried of all the races of Europe, and it has been on its way toward the world-city on the Bosphorus, where its national faith was cradled, ever since Arab invaders broke the communication between Santa Sophia and the Russian church in the ninth century.

The only un-American thing about Odessa, Mark Twain said, are the cut of its droshkies and the stupendous girth of their drivers. The city is modern, new, and more European or American than any other city in the czar's empire, with the exception of Petrograd.

Becomes Great City in a Century.
Odessa has only recently passed its one hundredth year, yet, at the outbreak of the war, it was ranked by but three other cities in the empire for size and commercial importance—Petrograd, Moscow and Warsaw. A few huts of mud and reeds and a Turkish fort were all that marked the site, when Catherine the Great commanded a city here. In 1802, eight years after its foundation, it numbered 9,000 Greeks, Italians, Russians and Albanians. It enjoyed, however, unusual imperial patronage for strategical reasons; even the Emperor Paul, who delighted to make vain all that owed its title to his mother, continued to favor the young town. A statue of Catherine, represented trampling the Turkish flag under foot, stands on one of the finest squares. Today the city, wealthy, and important among world ports, houses more than half a million people.

THE HANDSOME OPERA HOUSE

First Guide to Beauty.
By singing, and by singing only, a little child of five may come in contact with a pure and perfect form of beauty. Not only that, but the child can reproduce this beauty entirely unaided, and in the process of doing so its whole being—body, mind, heart, and soul—is engaged. The song, for the moment, is the child. There is no possible realization of the little personality comparable to this. Here, in sounds, is that correlation of impulses in which the stars move; here is the world of order and beauty in miniature; here is a microcosm of life; here is a tallman against the cold unmeaning facts which are driven into children's brains to jostle one another in unfriendly companionship. Through this they can feel a beauty and order and sequence which their minds are incapable of grasping. The joy which a child gets in reproducing beautiful melodies is like no other experience in life.—Thomas Whitney Surette, in the Atlantic.

A Disappointment.
"I understand you have quit making speeches on preparedness."
"Yes," replied the more or less public-spirited citizen. "I became discouraged."

"Why so?"
"I discovered that the chautauqua managers were not prepared to pay me for my trouble."

'Twould Save Time.
"What have you there?"
"Some garden seed."
"Thinking of starting a garden?"
"I was just debating the matter. I don't know whether to feed the seed to my neighbor's chickens or put the pesky fowls to the trouble of scratching them up."

If you Suffer from Backache, Lumbago, Kidneys or Rheumatism, Take Hot Water and "ANURIC."

American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out. They weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead, when your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night, when you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your druggist—"ANURIC." Because of uric acid in over-abundance in the system, back-

Heredity and Eugenics.
Only a misguided enthusiast, says the Journal of the American Medical Association would venture to make great claims at the present time for the possible future usefulness of applied eugenics. The doctrines of heredity on which the new postulates are based must first be subjected to critical investigation. The limitations of the practical aspects of eugenics must be clearly formulated and emphasized. It is well enough to maintain in a general way that vitality is partly inherited and partly acquired, and that "a sound physical and mental inheritance is a greater asset than the inheritance of extraneous advantages like wealth." Many individuals, however, have assumed that the new science is primarily intended to foster a scheme of general governmental interference with marriage. As a matter of fact, the most earnest students of the subject have at best hoped to promote the gradual establishment of standards in public opinion.

What the Duke Said.
The duke of Wellington, of course, never said "Up, guards, and at 'em!" at Waterloo, but it is generally known how near he came to saying it? Sir Herbert Maxwell, in his biography of the duke, points out what is the probable origin of the pleasing legend. Late on the afternoon of that memorable June 18 the First and Second Battalions of the Third Chasseurs were foremost in the attack on Mont Saint Jean. They had reached a crossroad, unaware that the British troops were lying behind the wayside banks, according to orders, to remain prone when under fire, but not actually engaged. Then, at the proper moment, Wellington's voice was heard, "clear above the storm." "Stand up, guards!" It was Maitland's brigade of Guards that thus "stood up," and, with a victorious rush, swept the chasseur out of the combat.—Manchester Guardian.

In return for these facilities bonds will carry no interest for the first six months.

Hugh Baker, who has been running a hoist at the Three R. mine for the past several weeks, left Tuesday morning for a hurried trip back to the old home in Kansas. He expects to be gone only a few days.

The moving picture show Sunday will consist of five excellent films, as follows: "The Masked Substitute," in two reels; "When the Call Came," also in two reels, and a comedy, "Uncle's New Blazer."

E. P. Cook, who was unfortunate in getting his arm broken a few days ago while working on the gasoline engine at the Patagonia Farm tract, is now getting along nicely, the injured arm being almost well.

John P. B. Schultz has purchased the Smokehouse restaurant from R. T. Stump, and assumed the management this week. Mr. Schultz will be assisted in the restaurant by Mrs. Schultz, who is a splendid cook, and their success in the venture is assured.

A shower party was given by the young people of Patagonia Monday night to Mr. and Mrs. Miles Perry, who were married a few weeks ago. The party was given at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Ashburn, parents of the young groom.

FOR SHERIFF

I hereby announce my candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff of Santa Cruz county, subject to the will of the voters in the primary election, September 12, 1916.

R. R. EARHART.

Personal Use

The First consignment of the "personal use" stuff has been received in Patagonia this week from a wholesale liquor house in Kansas City. For 18 months Arizona had been legally "dry," but a recent decision of the Supreme court ruled that the prohibition amendment to the state constitution adopted at the election in November, 1914, did not prevent the purchase of liquors for personal use. Railroads then refused to carry intoxicants to the state, until mandamus by the Kansas City firm.

Those who believe the prohibitory law was a curtailment of personal liberty are jubilant over the decision of the Federal court which permits the shipment of liquor to the state, while the prohibitionists naturally are not so elated. It is claimed by many that the new ruling will virtually do away with bootlegging, which had reached a flourishing condition throughout the state, by the very simple method of eliminating the profit in the liquor traffic. But prohibitionists generally fail to see any good in the turn of affairs, and are circulating an initiative petition to be submitted at the coming election, making it a felony to have liquor in one's possession.

Wind still continues blowing from the direct west. Oldtimers say this is not an indication of rain, and furthermore that no rain may be expected until the wind subsides, or until it changes its present direction. But at that, the longer one lives in this country the less one knows about the climate.

When vacation time arrives, the big question is "Where shall we go?" To those who turn toward the Coast, seeking the joys of the sea and surf, a little suggestion here may not be out of place, and that is in regard to Redondo Beach, California.

Situated close to Los Angeles, Redondo Beach presents every facility to assure one a delightful vacation. We might mention in particular, the high Bathing Plunge, that is one of Redondo Beach's particular attractions. The popularity of Redondo Beach as the ideal place to spend the summer is constantly growing. This year with the completion of the New Pier, this resort will be more popular than ever. Band concerts every afternoon and evening add to the delight of the place. The huge dancing pavilion, with its splendid orchestra and dancing every afternoon and evening always attracts the young folks, while the reputation of Redondo Beach as a Mecca for fishermen has always been envied.

This year's vacation will be well spent if you make Redondo Beach your destination. Every thing is there that can contribute to your pleasure and amusement. "You'll like Redondo Beach".

The dance at Sonoita last Saturday evening, the first to be given for the benefit of the Fair Association, was a very fine affair, over 200 people, being in attendance. Many machines from Nogales and Patagonia went up.

Theron Richardson and Grover Martell, of the First National Bank Nogales, were in town last Saturday evening, returning to their homes at Nogales from an automobile trip to Tucson, Bisbee and the new camp of Ajo.

The A. S. Henderson store has received a supply of patented cooking appliances which should save the housewives much work. It is a canned heat proposition, the fire being supplied from a tin burner, thus saving fuel and much hard work over a cook stove these hot days.

B. Greene, engaged in freighting ore from the Royal Blue mine at Alto to this station, left Wednesday morning for the Southern part of Texas to visit a few days with home folks. On his return he expects to bring another son with him to his new home in Patagonia.

Paul McIntyre has changed the Patagonia-Duquesne route by having a relay meet the stage at Mowry and carry the mail over to the San Rafael valley. This automobile stage now goes direct to Parker Canyon by way of Mowry, Harshaw and Duquesne, returning the same route. By the change Mr. McIntyre is enabled to accommodate passengers to the mining camps, of which he carries a great many, and every week the number is increasing.

FOR SALE—Hudson 50-hp. motor car. Newly overhauled and in first class shape. Will do to remodel for ore truck, at present is cut to racing model. First reasonable offer takes it, and it will be the best bargain ever bought. Write or see H. W. Landsey at Santa Cruz Valley Bank & Trust Co., Nogales, Ariz.
