

Ore From Lost Vein of Old Frenchman

Jerry Sheehy was in from the Red Rock district one day this week with some very high-grade silver ore, which is believed to have come from the lost vein of the Old Frenchman's mine, about which many stories of fabulous richness have been woven. In early days a party of Frenchmen had a silver producer in the Red Rock district, about ten miles from where Patagonia is now located, from which ore was packed to Tucson and even as far as El Paso for treatment. It was noted for its extremely rich ore, said to contain great quantities of native silver.

Considerable work had been done at the Old Frenchman's mine, and it was easy enough to find where the alleged high-grade had originally come from, as even the old dump showed silver ore, but the old shafts and tunnels had long since caved in and it was impossible to locate the ore veins. Mr. Sheehy has been prospecting for a long time on this ground, trying to locate the lost vein of the Old Frenchman. It is said that he now has two headings of drifts in the pay streak, and from the ore exhibited, it appears to be very high in silver.

A party of five wires from Nogales were in Patagonia Monday, shaking hands with friends and forming new acquaintances. In the automobile were: W. H. Land, manager of the Santa Cruz Valley Bank & Trust company; G. P. Halls, of the Owl Drug Store; R. W. Ogle, of the First National bank, and H. W. Lindsey.

Dr. T. B. Pitts has been appointed associate county physician and will work with Dr. Chenoweth, county health officer, in looking after local health conditions and taking care of indigents in the Patagonia country. He has also been appointed local registrar, to keep tab of the births and deaths in this community.

H. R. Sprung, a Sonoita dry farmer, was in town a few days this week. He says farmers in his vicinity are looking forward to a prosperous season, owing to the heavy winter snows. Mr. Sprung brought to the Patagonia stores a quantity of eggs, for which he finds a good market here at almost all times.

Judge M. Marsteller of Nogales was in Patagonia early this week, looking over mining property he owns in the Mowry country. The judge was returning from a visit to the place of "Uncle Tom" Wills in the Huachuacas, several miles above Canille. From this property samples of ore were brought back to be assayed. It is believed the ore may contain tungsten.

CONCENTRATES

Good looking silver rock was brought in from the San Diego claims owned by A. S. Henderson in the Temporal this week.

Colin Timmons, a mining engineer of considerable reputation in the Southwest, was examining properties in the Patagonia country early this week.

J. A. O'Toole brought down some nice specimens of silver ore from his claims, the Henry Ford group, in Alum Gulch this week. The Henry Ford group joins the World's Fair, therefore good silver ore may be expected from it.

A. M. Gillespie, a mining promoter just returned from Nicaragua by way of Mexico City, is in Patagonia looking over the field. He likes this district, as far as he has seen, and hopes to be able to secure a meritorious proposition to put before Eastern brokers.

G. C. Bible, who has been prospecting in the Patagonia country with Jack Laseter (San Simon Jack), has deeded his interest in claims which they own in the Red Rock district to other parties, and left for a three years' stay in South America, according to a letter received from him a few days ago.

The Burro mine, in the Tyndall district, east of Alto, owned by E. E. Bethell of Patagonia, was bonded by J. E. Masters of Tucson this week. The Burro is the east extension of the Alto mine, and has a good showing of galena ore, also some copper. Work is to be started at once by the new owner.

Charley Jones and Maurice Denn, two well known operators from the Bisbee district, were in Patagonia this week, looking over claims they own in this field. Mr. Denn is interested in copper property in the Red Rock district, near Patagonia. He is the original owner of the Denn, a Bisbee mine the stock of which is now selling at $15 a share.

H. W. Larrison leased 150 acres of placer ground from R. R. Richardson in the Greaterville district this week, and will start work at once. Mr. Larrison has the latest improved dredger, one that will work with the minimum of water, being so arranged that it practically carries its own reservoir, to the extent of using the same water over and over again. From this machine great results are expected in the placer country at Greaterville.

Advices Farmers to Raise Vegetables

A. L. Paschall, farm advisor for Cochise and Santa Cruz counties, has been urging the importance of every farmer raising a home vegetable garden and the production of other home supplies. He has found that the farmers in his territory do not produce one-fourth of the home supplies which they can economically do. If the farmers will not supply their own tables with food, which, he says, they can do for the entire year, it is improbable that they will be able to make a profit supplying other people's tables. H. A. Kimmel, principal of the Robinson school, who has an acre of ground adjoining the school grounds, stated that he would be glad to give the use of this ground for a school garden and encourage school garden work in his school.

Seed for Sale.

Road Improvement

Supervisors Gatlin and Parker and County Engineer Larrimore returned to Patagonia Wednesday from an inspection of the roads in this part of the county. They now have crews repairing the Duquesne, the Mansfield and the Alto roads, over which ore is hauled to Patagonia. This work is in advance of the general road improvement, which will begin as soon as the money from the sale of the road bonds is available, which will be within a short time.

Phil H. Cornick, who has been in the hills with Ed Bohlinger for the past few weeks, went down to Hermosillo, where he formerly lived for a few years, this week. He expects to return to Patagonia within a few days.

Harry, the Jap, who has been conducting the dining room at the Patagonia hotel, this week leased the bakery from G. Urquides, who will locate in the new camp of Ajo.

Painting Portrait

Mrs. Geo. H. Francis has just finished painting the portrait of Miss Lucretia del Valle, the accomplished young actress of California, who is visiting at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Northcraft, in Patagonia. Those who have seen it pronounce it an excellent likeness of the young lady. Mrs. Francis is quite talented with the brush, and has painted many portraits. Her works of Patagonia scenes, or more correctly, of mountain scenes near Patagonia, are especially good and in demand.

Joe Quiroga is building an addition to his house, which will be for rent when completed.

Bureau of Mines Issues New Bulletins

Three new bulletins have been issued by the Arizona State Bureau of Mines on the following subjects: Tungsten, magnesite and mercury.

Tungsten is found in many places in the State of Arizona, and has become of great economic importance. While ordinarily mistaken for iron in the field, it is readily tested, such tests being described in full in the bulletin.

Magnesite is not found as yet in commercial quantities in Arizona, although samples have been sent in to the State Bureau of Mines which indicate good deposits.

Arizona has great possibilities in mercury, it having been found in commercial quantities in several parts of the State. The high price of mercury at the present time, due to its use in the manufacture of explosives, has so stimulated the prospecting for it that the bulletin on mercury comes as a timely one.

Any or all of these bulletins may be secured by writing to Charles F. Willis, director Arizona State Bureau of Mines, Tucson, Arizona.

School Inspection

Mrs. Josephine Saxon, county superintendent of schools, was in town Wednesday, returning to the county seat after an inspection of schools at San Rafael, Lochiel, Washington, Mowry and Harshaw. Two teachers are employed this year at the Washington Camp school, owing to the activity of the big Duquesne mine. Mrs. Saxon reported all the schools in fine condition and was well pleased over the inspection.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Lane, of New Mexico, who have taken up a homestead in the Parker Canyon country, arrived in Patagonia Wednesday night, going out Thursday morning on the automobile mail stage.

I have a copper showing that I will lease or bond to a party that is willing to develop a concentrating ore. I expect some shipping ore also, and there is such ore in sight.—JOSIAH BOND, Alto, Ariz.—Adv.

Looking for Land

Miss C. Adams of Los Angeles was in town Tuesday, after a trip from Fairbank to Huachuca and through the Elgin Sonoita country. She is out from Los Angeles in search of a homestead. After making a short inspection of available homesteads in this county she is undecided whether to file upon government land or return to the coast and buy a small tract of improved property.

Herb McCutchan and Lou Stevens were in Nogales one day this week, going down in the latter's machine. They had a little trouble with the car on the return trip, which Herb attributes to his "jinx." He says there are only two things he doesn't know something about—women and gasoline.

R. N. Keaton, a San Rafael valley farmer, accompanied by Mrs. Keaton and little son, were in Patagonia Monday on a shopping trip.

Mrs. Anna H. Fortune has been appointed by the school trustees to take the census of children of school age, and will enter upon the duties within a few days.

Miss Ruth Parker, who had been ill at her home in Parker Canyon, is now reported to be convalescent. Dr. Pitts of Patagonia was the attending physician.

A grand gala day is being advertised in Nogales for Washington's birthday celebration on next Tuesday. Military drills and sports will be given. Many from this part of the county will attend.

Ben Powell went out to the Alto-Salero road Sunday with a camping outfit and teams to help repair the road, in order that freight teams may begin hauling ore from that vicinity to the station at Patagonia for shipment.

Calumet & Arizona Had Great Faith

The Calumet & Arizona Mining Co., of the Warren district, has on several occasions demonstrated the courage of its own convictions and backed it up with large sums of money, and have made good on every occasion, although many times the chances taken were the subject of much ridicule, says a press letter from the Arizona State Bureau of Mines.

It required a great deal of determination to proceed against the firm conviction of almost everyone in that district that the ore bodies would not extend to the south. The sinking of the Briggs shaft looked like a wild guess, and the company went 1300 feet before a pound of ore was struck, but at that depth they struck it and from there down large ore bodies were opened up.

The junction shaft looked like another joke to the pessimists of the Warren district, but between the 1200 and 1300 levels, the ore bodies have netted over 700,000 tons of ore, averaging 8 to 9 per cent copper and $3 in gold and silver.

No other mining company of proportionate capitalization can show equal profits over a similar period of years. The C. & A. are producing copper for a little over 7 cents per pound, cheaper than any copper company in the United States. Almost 2000 men are carried on the mine payroll and 650 on the smelter payroll, and about $300,000 per month is distributed as wages. The Calumet & Arizona Co. has more than won its bet with the public, for since 1902 it has paid almost $20,000,000 in dividends and it is still in an unscratched form.

SYNOPSIS

Le Comte de Sabron, captain of French cavalry, takes to his quarters to raise by hand a motherless Irish terrier pup, and names it Pitchoune.

She had done this for several days, but now she was restless. Sabron was not in Algiers. No news had been brought of him.

They were surrounded by fashionable life. As soon as their arrival had been made known there had been a flutter of cards and a passing of carriages and automobiles.

"Do you think so, Mademoiselle? Why?" "She has character as well as perfect lines. Her eyes look as though they could weep and laugh.

"Go on, you amuse me." "And her hands look as though they could caress and comfort. I like her awfully. I wish she were my friend."

"Really! She is too indulgent." "Don't be worldly," said Miss Redmond gravely, "be human. I like you best so. Don't you agree with me?"

"Madame de la Maine is a very charming woman," said the young man, and the girl saw a change come over his features.

"Excelsency," he said in broken French, "my name is Hammet Abou. I was the ordonnance of Monsieur le Capitaine de Sabron."

"What!" exclaimed Tremont, "what did you say?" "Ask him to come up here," said Julia Redmond, "or, no—let us go down to the garden."

"No, no, I need nothing." She had hurried before him down the little stairs leading into the garden from the balcony, and she had begun to speak to the native before Tremont appeared.

"I am a very poor man, Excelsency," he said in a mellifluous tone, "and very sick." "Have you any money, Monsieur?"

"You are very frank," said Tremont brutally. "Why do you come here at any rate?" "Hush," said Julia Redmond imploringly. "Do not anger him, Monsieur, he may have news."

"I have seen the excelsency and her grandmother," said the native, "many times going into the garrison."

and went along the dried river bank to look for Monsieur le Capitaine and I found this in the sands.

"The dog!" Tremont shook him again. "Not yet." And he said to the man: "If this is all you have to tell me I will give you one hundred francs for this parcel."

"You beat," he muttered, and pushed him back. "If you have anything to say, say it."

"Excelsency," he said swiftly in his halting French, "I love Monsieur le Capitaine. He was so kind and such a brave soldier."

"It was like this," he said; "I think he drew himself up the bank. I followed the track of his blood. I was too weak to go any farther, Excelsency."

"By caravan, like a merchant, secretly. I would find him."

CHAPTER XVIII. Two Lovely Women.

There was music at the Villa des Bougainvillies. Miss Redmond sang; not "Good-night, God Keep You Safe," but other things.

ADDING TO INCOME

Wife Can Do It by Capitalizing Her Time.

Not by Any Means Necessary That She Should Go Out to Work in Order to Save Money for Her Husband.

Here is a contributor's idea of one of the many ways in which a wife can help increase the family's budget:

"The dress you wear cost—$6.98? And cheap at that, no doubt, you think. Yet you could have bought better material for $2.

"Indeed I would!" responded the girl fervently. "I wish I could make some money to help my husband!"

"A penny saved is a penny earned, my dear! If you have contracted the habit of sitting on the veranda and thinking of the things you would buy if you had the money it may be a little hard to devote yourself to a sewing machine and working out a paper pattern.

"The frivolous one became all attention. I just thought I could buy the dress for less than I could buy the material and have it made," she explained.

"A specious argument, my dear. Of course you could. But you could not buy it for what you could make it yourself. You are young. Help your husband to make and save his money now. Do some real work and credit yourself with it and see how the family budget is helped."—American Magazine.

Reading One's Own Books.

Cultivated men and women have all ways counted good books among their most valued possessions, and one cannot believe that this taste can be sacrificed without definite loss to our civilization. The spoken word can never supplant the written word; and, in fact, the present tendency is all toward substituting print for speech. Nor can reading in public places take the place of reading one's own books in the quiet of one's home. Books that are owned wait patiently on the reader's leisure; and to have just the book one wants, when one wants it, is and must remain one of the supreme luxuries of a cultivated life.

Books, too, when personally owned, gather around themselves a wealth of personal associations. The very binding, paper and title-page recall the conditions under which the book came into our possession. As we open its pages we remember the last time we read it, the place and circumstances, and the people with whom we discussed it. Books have personality; and they must always remain the warm friends of their possessors.—Atlantic Monthly.

TERM OF MUCH SIGNIFICANCE

Phrase "South of Panama" Means Much More Than Merely a Geographical Location.

"South of Panama" is a phrase which has a mighty significance. It means not merely geographical location. It signifies vast virgin areas of lowland and upland contrasted with fabled valleys and lofty plateaus populated and cultivated through centuries.

It means barren and burned mountains and dreary deserts mingled with forested and watered slopes, grassy llanos and pampas and flowering savannas.

It means the mixing of almost forgotten aboriginal races and surviving Indian types with the intellectual and refined descendants of early Spaniards and Portuguese and the later sprinkling of adventuresome Germans, Italians, English and Americans.

It means an ancient civilization, fascinating Incan ruins, old-fashioned Moorish and Spanish architecture in the sleeping cities and towns with strange peoples and conditions harking back to far centuries, hard by a new civilization, modern skyscrapers and boulevards in growing commercial entrepôts and ambitious capitals with progressive peoples and conditions which rival the best that the old East and the new West of North America can show.

Education City Girls Miss.

City girls of any class rarely if ever have any domestic education or training, unless they get it in their schools. They are taught the boundaries of the United States and the source of the Nile; they learn that if you buy products at a certain price and sell at a higher you make money, but what to do with the money when you make it no one discusses. It is all making money or things, never the right use of money or things, that is impressed upon boys and girls from their primary class on to the bitter end. The children of well-to-do families in smaller places have opportunities for education in the real things of life which these others often lack, but since our grandmother's day education and training in home affairs within the home walls has been neglected to a dangerous degree.—Woman's World.

CONSUMPTION TAKES 350 PEOPLE DAILY

Over 350 people succumb to consumption every day in the United States. Science proves that the germs only thrive when the system is weakened from colds or sickness, overwork, confining duties or when general weakness exists.

The cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion warms the body by enriching the blood; it peculiarly strengthens the lungs and throat, while it rebuilds the resistive forces of the body to avoid colds and prevent consumption.

If you work indoors, tire easily, feel languid or nervous, Scott's Emulsion is the most strengthening food-medicine known. It is totally free from alcohol or any stupefying drug. Avoid substitutes. 14-43 Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

ALWAYS ON BRINK OF DEATH

Workers in High Explosives Realize What May Be the Result of a Moment's Carelessness.

Explosives are solids which, under certain conditions, suddenly change into heated gas occupying many times the original space of the solids. Ordinary gunpowder, when fired, turns into gas, of which the volume is 4,000 times as great as that of the powder. No wonder the bullet in front of it leaves the muzzle of the rifle in a hurry.

Today there are scores, even hundreds, of different sorts of explosives known to science. Some, such as lyddite, require a very considerable shock to explode them. Others, such as nitroglycerin, are fearfully dangerous to handle, for a few extra degrees of warmth or a very slight jar is sufficient to turn them instantly into gas.

Of the latter type there is nothing quite so unstable as iodide of nitrogen. It has to be made in alcohol. When allowed to dry it appears as a brown powder, and so unstable is this powder that a touch with a feather will set it off. The experiment has been tried of leaving a few grains upon a table mixed with a few grains of sugar. The first blue bottle that flew on the table and began to crawl among the grains caused an explosion.

The mere jarring of the air by a loud shout or a heavy footstep is sufficient to detonate iodide of nitrogen, and it need hardly be added that no one in his senses would attempt to make this terrible stuff. To do so in any quantity would be equivalent to committing suicide.

Nitroglycerin is not so dangerous as this iodide, but at a temperature of only 100 degrees—that is, very little more than the warmth of the human body—it begins to decompose.

Tons of nitroglycerin are turned out every day, for it is the explosive from which gun cotton is made. But all the mixing vats are artificially cooled by coils of cold-water pipes.

FAMOUS OLD FRIGATE

CONSTITUTION THE PRIDE OF THE AMERICAN NAVY.

Launched in October, 1797, "Old Ironsides" Figured With Glory in the Early Struggles Attending the Republic's Birth.

The most famous vessel in the history of the United States navy is the Constitution, popularly called "Old Ironsides," and originally a 44-gun frigate. She was launched October 21, 1797, at Boston, but was not completed until the following year, when she put to sea under command of Captain Nicholson for service against the French in the West Indies.

During the war with Tripoli, 1801-05, the Constitution was Prober's flagship, and in 1805 took part in three of the five bombardments of the port of Tripoli. In July, 1812, under command of Isaac Hull, she escaped from a British squadron off the New Jersey coast after a spirited chase of three days. On August 19, off Cape Race, she fought her famous battle with the Guerriere, a somewhat weaker English frigate, commanded by Captain Boscawen, which she left a total wreck after an engagement of 30 minutes, the English losing 79 of their crew and the Americans 14. On December 29, under command of Captain Bainbridge, the Constitution captured off Bahia, Brazil, the Java (38 guns; Captain Lambert), after an engagement lasting two hours, in which the British lost 300 killed and wounded and the Americans 34.

On February 14, 1814, under Captain Stewart, the Constitution captured the Picton, 16 guns and a convoy, in the West Indies. On February 20, 1814, she took the Cyane, 34 guns, and the Levant, 18 guns; after a fierce engagement, remarkable for the seamanship of the Americans and the gallantry of the English, between the Madeira islands and the Gibraltar. The English lost 19 killed and 42 wounded out of 320, and the Americans 6 killed and 9 wounded out of 451. Soon afterward the Constitution was pursued by a strong British squadron, which recaptured the Levant.

Between 1828 and 1830 the Constitution was reported unseaworthy and ordered to be dismantled, but was returned in deference to the popular sentiment aroused by Holmes' poem, "Old Ironsides," and in 1833 was rebuilt. In 1855 she was laid up at the Portsmouth navy yard, but used at times as a training ship. In 1877 she was again partially rebuilt, and the next year crossed the Atlantic for the last time. In 1897 she was roofed in at the Boston navy yard and has since been used mainly as a barracks ship.

Anatomical Test.

In recent years many anatomists have given much attention to solving the problem of reproducing from the skulls the faces of ancient peoples. According to Nature, Prof. C. W. M. Poynter of the University of Nebraska some time ago gave three skulls to a sculptor, with the request that he reconstruct the fleshy parts of the face and head according to the data published by Professor von Egginger of the University of Jena. Professor Poynter did not tell the artist that the three skulls were all of natives of North America. As a matter of fact one, possibly of the Pleistocene age, was found by Mr. Robert F. Gilder in a mound of river loam in Nebraska; one belonged to an Indian of pre-Columbian date; and one was that of a modern Indian. The photographs of the artist's work show in all three cases the characteristic face of the American Indian. Whatever the age of the Nebraska skull may prove to be, its owner was undoubtedly a man of the Indian type.

For Scientific Research.

The British board of education has published particulars of a scheme for a permanent official organization of scientific and industrial research. It is proposed to form a committee of the privy council to be responsible for the expenditure of any new moneys provided by parliament for scientific and industrial research, and a small advisory council, responsible to the above-mentioned committee, and composed mainly of eminent scientific men and men actually engaged in industries dependent upon scientific research. The first members of the advisory council will be: Lord Rayleigh, G. T. Bellby, W. Duddell, Prof. B. Hopkinson, Prof. J. A. McClelland, Prof. R. Meldola, R. Threlfall, with Sir William S. McCormick as administrative chairman.

Trench Routine.

Writing from a hospital in England, where he was sent after a severe engagement near Ypres, a Canadian says that, "owing to the strain of living in these trenches, the usual routine is as follows for any battalion: Four days in the firing line, four days in reserve, four days in the firing line again, four days in reserve, and then 16 days behind in order to rest." This is a most definite proof of the tremendous strain troops must undergo in modern warfare, when even after this steady regime of relaxation cases of shattered nerves are common in army hospitals.

"The drumstick problem has always been serious with us," said Mrs. McGurn. "There are four of us, and all want 'one of the legs, please.' There will be enough to go around if this chick lives, and it apparently is as strong as any of the hatch."

She told a reporter that, in the last two months, her husband had kissed her but once, and that this lone salute was bestowed, not upon her lips, true lover fashion, but in a half-hearted way on her cheek.

She said she did not wish to be divorced, and would be glad to resume her place as mistress of the manse, if her husband would only give her a little affection.

How to avoid Operations

These Three Women Tell How They Escaped the Dreadful Ordeal of Surgical Operations.

Hospitals are great and necessary institutions, but they should be the last resort for women who suffer with ills peculiar to their sex. Many letters on file in the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., prove that a great number of women after they have been recommended to submit to an operation have been made well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Here are three such letters. All sick women should read them.

Marinette, Wis.—"I went to the doctor and he told me I must have an operation for a female trouble, and I hated to have it done as I had been married only a short time. I would have terrible pains and my hands and feet were cold all the time. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and was cured, and I feel better in every way. I give you permission to publish my name because I am so thankful that I feel well again."—Mrs. FRED BENKE, Marinette, Wis.

Detroit, Mich.—"When I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was so run down with female troubles that I could not do anything, and our doctor said I would have to undergo an operation. I could hardly walk without help so when I read about the Vegetable Compound and what it had done for others I thought I would try it. I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and used them according to directions. They helped me and today I am able to do all my work and I am well."—Mrs. THOS. DWYER, 959 Milwaukee Ave., East, Detroit, Mich.

Bellevue, Pa.—"I suffered more than tongue can tell with terrible bearing down pains and inflammation. I tried several doctors and they all told me the same story, that I never could get well without an operation and I just dreaded the thought of that. I also tried a good many other medicines that were recommended to me and none of them helped me until a friend advised me to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. The first bottle helped, I kept taking it and now I don't know what it is to be sick any more and I am picking up in weight. I am 29 years old and weigh 145 pounds. It will be the greatest pleasure to me if I can have the opportunity to recommend it to any other suffering woman."—Miss IRENE FROELICHER, 1923 Manhattan St., North Side, Bellevue, Pa.

If you would like special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

The Booze Question

The Supreme court of the State of Arizona rendered a decision early this week that liquor could be brought into the State for personal use. The old battle between the "drys" and "wets" will now be fought over again. The prohibition question causes a lot of bitter argument and some hard feeling.

There seems to be a wide divergence of opinion, even among the prohibitionists, as to the effect of the decision. It is contended by the more radical element of the prohibitionists that the decision virtually lets down the the bars to bootlegging, and a law may be advocated by this faction making the mere possession of liquor a felony. On the other hand, some of the prohibition leaders claim that the "personal use" decision will abolish bootlegging by the simple method of eliminating the present enormous profits from that nefarious occupation. It is further argued by this class of prohibitionists that the ruling of the State's highest tribunal permitting liquor to be shipped into the State for personal use is in reality a positive guarantee that the saloon is forever barred from the State; that there is now no fear of a reversal in any future election and the State again going "wet."

Some opinions on the very important ruling are interesting. Thos. K. Marshall, a member of the executive committee of the Arizona Temperance Federation, is quoted as follows:

"The people of the State and particularly the merchants, who have profited from prohibition, will be ready in nine months to vote for an initiated law prohibiting the receiving of liquor from another state for any purpose. The personal use decision means that we will not have prohibition at all, but restricted use. It will necessitate the adoption of many laws defining personal use such as they have in Kansas and a small army of officers to enforce them. In the year's time that the prohibition law has been enforced the people have gotten out of the habit of drinking liquor, and it will take some time before they can get back into the habit, and the remedy can be applied by the people at the polls before very serious damage is done."

In regard to the serving of liquor in clubs, a Tucson attorney is quoted as follows:

"It is a law that what business a man can transact for himself, he can also transact through an agent if he so desires. A slip of paper granting power of attorney to the steward of a bona fide club to purchase a specified amount of liquor for one would be a legal proceeding, and I believe the courts will hold it so."

Not much rejoicing is evident over the decision among the saloon element of the State, which seemed to favor the drastic prohibition law, probably in the belief that at the coming election there would be enough sufferers from the enforced abstinence to carry the State into the "wet" column.

One of the fundamental issues of the controversy which the Supreme court was asked to decide, it was contended by the "wets," was whether or not it would be unlawful for a man to take a drink, under the existing prohibition law of the State. The ruling of the court did not so restrict a man's personal rights. While the decision itself may not forever settle the mooted question whether one shall or shall not take "a little shot in the heel," it should afford some relief to those persons who are suffering from a long-continued and ever-increasing thirst.
