Campbell May Be Seated as Governor and Contest Follow

A late dispatch from Phoenix says: The gubernatorial contest has been temporarily abandoned in a struggle between Governor Hunt and Thomas E. Campbell for the possession of the office of governor on January 1, the contest to be determined later. The only action taken with reference to the contest was an application in supreme court by Eugene S. Ives, counsel for Governor, for a writ of prohibition restraining Judge Stanford, of the superior court, from interfering with the inspection of the ballots. The court made no order and the application was then withdrawn.

In the superior court, Mr. Ives asked for an injunction restraining the secraary of state from issuing a certificate of election to Mr. Campbell. A demurrer was sustained and an appeal pended during the year 1915 the sum of Six Hundred Dollars ($600.00) in labor and improvements upon the following lode mining claims, situated in the Wrightson mining district, in Santa Cruz county, Arizona, to-wit: The Dixie No. 1, Dixie No. 2, Dixie No. 3, Dixie No. 4, Dixie No. 5, Dixie No. 6, the notices of location of which are recorded in the office of the Recorder of said Santa Cruz county. Arizona, in the sum of the supreme court which set matter for hearing on December 28. The court, however, intimated that the demurrer would be sustained and said further that in its opinion, it was the duty of the secretary of state to make an official declaration of the returns and that on such as was at once taken to the supreme ation of the returns and that on such a declaration Mr. Campbell would be entitled to his seat on the first Monday of January. [The contest will be on in earnest after the 28th-Ed.]

The old Mowry mine is to be started up sometime about the first of the new year, according to Wm. J. Mitchell, general superintendent and chief engineer of the Standard Metals company. a recently organized company for the development of several good properties in Santa Cruz county. Mr. Mitchell left Patagonia this week for the coast, and before leaving announced all plans had been completed for the re-working of the famous old property. RECOGNIZE VALUE OF SALT.

Scientists Now Are Practically Unanimous in Their Appreciation of the Humble Mineral.

The preservative, the cleansing and the soothing effects of salt have been known for ages. To this extent, and with some recognition of existing practices, the use of saline solutions in British military hospitals, noted in a cable despatch, is not new. The interesting points are in the evolution of salt to the position of a sole healing agent, and in the method of application by a constant stream which, in a single flowing, washes the wound, guards it from infection and contributes healing power.

An ancient and common household article thus supplants, after the initial disinfecting, the highly scientific, antiseptic appliances of the day.

This elaboration of an old remedy recalls to mind the medical stir which followed in 1901 the publication from the University of Chicago, by Dr. Jacques Loeb and Prof. D. J. Lingle, of the theory that a solution of common salt in the blood, neutralized by calcium and possibly potassium salt solutions, was the cause of the rhythmic beating of the heart. All doctors had known of saline injections to stimulate the heart. Those who hesitated over the new proposttion admitted the physiological importance of salt and its ability, after hemorrhage, to supply the deficiency in circulation until new blood Inland people of old esteemed saline springs as gifts of the gods. Chips of salt were anciently used as money, and the mineral stood, as many passages in the Bible testify. for high religious symbolisms. The sharing of salt represented in other days a sacred pledge of friendship. A precious and essential quantity in our daily living, though but casually regarded on the grocer's bill for supplies, sait may yet be revealed in a more intimate relation to life itself than daring scientists have guessed.

Wartime "Kid."

"Kids!" Another word consecrated by usage and recognized by lexicographers. The term embraces all the lads and lassies, urchins, hobbledehoys, chits and little ones, but somehow it means more than all these, writes Maurice Donnay in Cartoons

In 1870 I, too, was a kid. How did I look upon the war? What memories do I retain of it? I was a 9 year old, and went to school at the Vanves lyceum, which was then the "Lycee du Prince Imperial." It was in July, and the war had just been declared. As it happened, Father Michaut held his class in history on this historic, day, and not because of this, but simply because we had arrived at Charles VII, he related to us the glorious adventure of Joan of Arc.

Among us was one pupil who remained listless. Questioned, he refused to answer, and our venerable professor was hurt. I still remember his reproachful tones.

"No, I shall not punish you," he said. "One does not punish young Frenchmen who are not interested in Joan of Arc. Rather one pities

We didn't understand very well why Father Michaut had suddenly become so grave and reproachful, but we felt that there was a depth of meaning in his words. This meaning we realized better later on.

CAUSED DEMAND FOR HATS

How Boer Trader Introduced Fash-Ion Among South African Natives, and Made Money.

It is said that one De Villiers, a' Boer, was the man to introduce hats among the South African natives, and that profit, not philanthropy, was his

It appears that, chancing to come across a consignment of damaged hats in Port Elizabeth, which were offered for a mere song, De Villiers bought the whole lot, packed them away in his wagon and started for Kaffirland. When he reached Tembuland he unloaded his stock, opened his kegs of liquor, without which no trade was made at that time, and began business. But he found his venture likely to prove an unprofitable one. The natives did not want hats; they wanted blankets and beads and looking glasses, and, above all, liquor, but they looked askance at hats. Then a bright idea came to De Villiers. He wanted to introduce those hats. His simple expedient was to refuse to sell anything to a Kaffir unless he bought a hat also. The Kaffirs wanted his goods, so they bought the hats.

When a Kaffir buys anything he feels bound to make use of it. The natives, therefore, donned their headgenr and returned to their kraals. Now appeared the brilliancy of the trader's idea. Fashion rules the world. It is as strong in Africa as in America, and when those who stayed at home saw the travelers return in all the glory of this strange covering they felt behindhand and oldfashioned. Their desire to possess the latest thing in hats became intense, They paid De Villiers a visit, and his stock no longer hung heavy on his hands. The hats were soon sold.

PITTSBURGH ON EDGE OF ASIA

In Baku Persian and Tartar Millionaires Ride in Jeweled Cars.

I'm afraid that I shall have to tell my great-grandchildren that the Casplan is very little to look at, at least from Baku, writes H. G. Dwight in the Century. It has no color and it smells outrageously of kerosene.

Baku, however, is something to look at. (Baku is the Russian trans-Caucaslan seaport on the Casplan sea.) It is a kind of Pittsburgh dipped in Asia, and it tickled me beyond measure. Not so long ago it was a wretched fishing village inhabited chiefly by Persians and Tartars, who were too stupid to sell their land to prowling oil prospectors. So those same Persians and Tartars now roll in gold. And they don't know what on earth to do with it. The consequence is that nobody but a millionaire can afford to live in Baku.

But what a fantastic hodgepodge of civilization and barbarism! What What costumes! What morlined, emblazoned, gilded, jeweled, skithering there on the edge of Asia! It's too good to be true, but I shan't tell you about it. What I want to tell you about is a park the Russians have made there on the shore of their Casplan. They always do those things well, you know. No green thing will grow for miles around Baku, but those Russians have coaxed a few trees to sprout in tubs in that tidy little park, and bands far better than I ever heard in Central park play you Tschaikowsky and Rimsky-Korsakof, not to say Wagner and Verdi and Bizet. And you should see the extraordinary crowds tion- projects, has turned many also. The domestic science department that listen-the Russians, the Persians, the Armenians, the Georgians, the Lesghians, the Tartars, the wild, the swarthy, the flery, the rainbow colored! My son, when in doubt, go to the conditions established by nature.

War Prices in Paris.

One hears a great deal about the rising cost of living in Germany, resulting from the British blockade, but comparatively little about the privations of the allies. The following letter from an American engineer in Paris tells something of the hardships of the City of Light:

"Cold boiled ham costs ninety-five cents a pound and each thin slice comes to ten cents. Butter is uneatable at less than sixty-four cents a power in the five towns located in the pound, and everything is in proportion. Gasoline is twenty cents a quart, Alcohol is out of the question, as it is now forty-eight cents a quart as compared to fourteen before the war. Sugar is fourteen cents a pound.

"I believe the war won't be over before next year, so we settle down to it as a fact to be borne. It hits everyone except a few. I am comfortable, have enough to eat and a good bed, but living in 'juste' (narrow); I just about come out even."-Wall Street Journal.

Pink for a Baby Girl.

Why pink for a baby girl and blue for the boy? The reason for the distinction is not very clear. We are told that in Russia and in America blue is used in the preparation of the outfit for a baby if the parents desire a boy and pink if the preference is for a girl, and then the old stork brings just whichever one he pleases regardless of the color scheme; so the wise mother uses both pink and blue in her layette. A Russian malden not only wears pink in her girlhood, but adorns her wedding trousseau plentifully with

Miniature Electrical World Replaces Big Desert Waste

Above-Dam and power house on Snake river, Idaho, that impounds water enough to grow luxuriant crops on 120,000 acres formerly barren land, and uses the rest to light and heat the houses and perform many of the daily functions in five towns and upon several thousand farms.

Below-Class in domestic science at the Rupert Electric high school, where electricity is used not only for cooking, but also for heating and ven-stretches of desert into blooming gardens but there is one project that for the use of the individual students, stands out particularly as an example of what man can do toward altering baking and cooking on a larger scale,

Along the Snake river in Southwest Idaho there is a stretch of territory 40 miles in length which was once a barren desert, but is now dotted with green farms and prosperous, bustling towns. This metamorphosis has been Minidoka dam on Snake river, but it is not merely the transformation that has been wrought in the appearance of the country by the miracle of irrigation that is of chief interest. The Minidoka project has an attraction all its own because of the varieties of public service which the water impounded behind the dam renders,

Here is to be found a miniature electrical world. Electricity, generated at minimum expense by water power and sold by the government at cost, is used almost exclusively for light, heat and district and also upon the several thousand farms scattered throughout the project. It operates a large grain elevator, a sugar refinery and an alfalfa meal mill. It heats and ventilates schools, churches and a 50-room hotel. It heats and lights the farmers' houses and furnishes power for the farm ma-

A portion of the water impounded by the dam enters canals and is distributed by the gravity system over 71,000 acres. Half of the water, in passing over the dam creates 10,000 horse power which lifts the remaining part of the first half of the water to higher beuches of land that otherwise would still be barren. Thus more than 120,000 acres in all have water.

After lifting water for the extra 14,000 acres, there remains power sufficient to provide nearly all the essentials and many of the luxuries of life. By law the United States reclamation service is required to supply water and power, when power is available, at cost. Hence the charges are low. For light, the average farmer's bill runs to about $1.25 a month. For light, ironing, washing, vacuum cleaners and cooking, the cost in the average household is $3.00 a month. In winter, adequate power for heating a 5, 6 or 7-room house is obtained at from $6 to $8 a month. Soft coal costs $8 a ton on the project and as considerably more than one ton a month is needed for continuous heating and for cooking, the actual money saving is towns, 75 per cent of the buildings and homes, large and small, are heated by electricity. Last year Rupert completed a high school housing 600 pupils which is ventilated and heated throughout by electric power from the government plant. Burley has now invested $80,000 in a concrete school building, also to be heated and ventilated by electricity, which will house 2,000 pupils.

In the Rupert school, fresh air is drawn from the roof at the rate of 50,-000 cubic feet a minute. It passes United States says Uncle Sam. through electric coils which heat it to 50 degrees Fahrenheit. Next it is washed and humified and then reaches a large motor-driven blower. This forces the air into two chambers, in the one of which a portion is raised to and the value of the products inabout 100 degrees and in the other of which cool air is retained. Separate $30,067,334, or 21.2 per cent. ducts carry the air from the two chambers to each room in the building. The ducts are connected and there are connections controlled by dampers, so that the temperature in each room is maintained at 68 degrees.

Senators' Manager Maintains That Tommy Tucker Was Maddest Man He Ever Saw on Ball Field.

"It has been my luck," says Clark Griffith, "to see a large number of peeved and angry people in this old game of baseball, particularly gentlemen against whom I have been lucky enough to do some successful pitching.

"I still think, however, that the maddest man I ever did behold was that grand old Monolith of the old Boston team-Mr. Thomas Tucker. The occasion on which I beheld the fury of this famous warrior is still green in my memory, and can never forsake me. "Old Tommy Tucker was pretty near-him were more precious than rubles and diamonds when we bumped together one summer afternoon. It was a big game, a most important game, and I really had to win it. I loved Tom Tucker very much, but I loved my salary more.

"The battle was a how one, running along on pretty even terms till near the close, when we managed to get a couple on the bases and good old Uncle Anson did the rest with one of those murderous hits that they don't make now, the old man not being there to soak them. That Boston bunch was never whipped till the last man was counted out, and they went after me strong in the death rally. First thing I knew they had the cushlons populous, two down, and old Tom Tucker standing firmly at the plate. I worked him into biting at two wide ones, then fed him two more, which he refused to reach after. It was coming down to cases and no mistake.

"Just at this juncture I happened to remember a trick of indoor baseball-the enormous upshoot which is put on an indoor ball by swinging it, underhand, with the knuckles uppermost and the ball rolling off the palm. It causes a huge upshoot ball, but is not practicable for outdoor ball because, at the greater pitching distance, the ball would lose all its speed long before it reached the platter.

"I decided to throw that ball just as desperate experiment, and I threw it. The globule sauntered along, way low, below Tom's kneeline, and he stood scoffing at it. Then, just as the ball came parallel with him, it leaped and whirled over the plate, while the umpire yelled 'Strike three!'

"Old Tom Tucker laid down his bat and started toward me, with evidence of much excitement on his face, but I was already on my way, and was going fast. That night he came to the hotel looking for me and publicly announced that he intended to slay me on sight, but I wasn't in and he never got his hands upon me."

WAS PLAYING SAFE

REASON FOR MR. GUNNEY'S VISIT TO OLD FRIEND.

Horrible Threat as Culmination of Real Tale of Woe Caused Him to Make Himself Scarce

"for a Spell."

Caleb Peaslee was sprouting seed potatoes when Obed Gunney, his usually placid face wearing a hunted look, sank upon the bench beside him and began sprouting mechanically without a word. After a moment Caleb spoke. "Wal," he observed, "out with it! What's pesterin' you now?"

Mr. Gunney spent some time in proound thought before he replied. "I d'know," he said at length, "which could be reckoned the most whiffleminded-a hen or a duck or womenfolks. Prob'bly there ain't any gre't diff'rence.

Mr. Penslee grinned and Obed took n little heart.

"F'r three weeks," he went on, "my wife's been tryin' to brenk a hen and a duck fr'm settin'. She wore her patience bout out, and she wore the hen and the duck down so they didn't enjoy livin'. She hung 'em up by the inig and left 'em squallin', so I was worrled that the Cruel Society Animals would get after her, and she put thistles in their nests, and throwed water on 'em-she tried 'bout every way she ever heard of, and never budged either

"Now, my wife is what I might call notional—that is," he went on hastily, I might call her so to you, but I wouldn't want it to get to her ears. You won't let on that I said that-will you. Kellup?

"Wal, when she didn't want them fowls to set, she didn't want 'em to, and there wa'n't any whoa to her. But ufter she'd gin about three weeks to the job, without any success whatever, she flopped over and made up her mind she'd set 'em.

"She didn't have any duck's eggs that she wanted to set, so she decided to drive over to Dedham Mills and get some from a woman she knew over there, and while she was gone she wanted me to mend up the coops where the hen and the duck was settin'.

"I took the hen fust, and so's she couldn't get out while I was workin' on the coop, I slid the door shut before I started in to hammer. Then I fitted on a strip of board over a crack and pailed it on, and the fust lick I fetched at a nail, the hen sot up a cacklin' that you could hear all over the place. I jest kep' right on hammerin' and let her squall. "She was still carryin' on at the top of her voice when I finished up with her coop, and she didn't stop, either. And when I got to work on the duck's coop she added what she could to thu gen'ral uprour. "I fin'ly got 'em boarded in tight, but they kep' up such a racket that I begun to be scared I'd done 'em some injury; so I kicked open the door of the hen's coop, and she come through it like an arrow, with no two feathers p'intin' the same way and her eyes as big as cranberries, and put off down to'rds the brook.

"After I'd watched her out of sight I went over to the duck's coop and kicked open the door, and, Kellup, b'lleve it or not, that duck stood up on her hind legs and fit me like a man. and I had to fend her off pretty spry to keep from gettin' nipped.

"When my wife got home, she started to set them eggs she'd been after, and when she got to the coops and found 'em empty, and when she found out how I'd managed to break up them two fowls from settin', after she'd got her mind all shifted over to agree with 'em, she said—well," Obed spoke dejectedly, "on the whole, I guess I won't go into what she said.

"But when she got to makin' threats," he asserted firmly, "I thought 'twas no more'n good judgment for me to come over here a spell."

"What did she threaten?" demanded Mr. Peaslee promptly, and Obed permitted himself another feeble grin.

"Only that she'd a good mind to shet me up in one of them coops and put both settin's of eggs under me and make me set on 'em till I hatched 'em out," he explained sheepishly, "and she was so mad that I didn't know but she'd try it. Now that I'm here, and safe, le's you and me visit a spell and be comf'table."-Youth's Companion.

CALOMEL TODAY, SICK TOMMOROW

Dose of nasty calomel makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, p'easant and safe to give to children; they like it.—(Advt.)

BATTLES IN PEAKS

ALPS COULD TELL STORY THAT WOULD THRILL

Mountain Ranges the Scene of Many Historic Encounters-Passes Traversed by Soldiers Thousands of Years Ago.

If the rugged peaks of the Alps could tell their story, there would be many a thrilling and warlike incident to relate; but none so strange as the ones enacted between the Austrians and the Italians in these mountainous regions. The Italians are absolutely at home in the mountains, and the Austrians are using every invention of science to counteract this advantage. All the parapets on the steep roads where summer tourists were wont to motor, have been demolished, and beautiful pine forests have been swept away, so that nothing shall obstruct the artillery. Large areas have been mined, and by pressing a button the Austrians can hurl an avalanche of rocks and bowlders on to the heads of the advancing Italians or blow up the roads beneath their feet.

From the Cottian chain, marking the boundary of France in the west, to the Carnic and Julian Alps, north and east of the Adriatic in Austria, there are generally a thousand passes and routes of more or less note, nearly all traversed by practicable roads, and some shortened by railroad tunnels. Over these roads armies marched to battle over two thousand years ago. Mont Cenis pass may have been Hannibal's route when, in the year 218 B. C., the Carthaginian conqueror invaded Italy with a large army, half of which he lost amidst the Alpine snows.

The conquest of some Alpine tribes by Augustus; the desultory warfare of Teutonic and Frankish hordes in the fifth and sixth centuries, and the increasing sanguinary strife of Swiss 'confederates" and Austrian oppressors, which lasted from the breaking up of the Carolingian empire, in the tenth and eleventh centuries, until the crystallization of the Helvetic republic by Napoleon Bonaparte's act of mediaation in 1803-all these fill the chronicles and make nearly every practicable foot of Swiss territory heroic ground.

When Napoleon entered Italy he crossed the Alps with an army of 30,000 by the Great St. Bernard pass, May 15-21, 1800. Later he constructed the great military road over the Simplon pass, from Brieg, in Switzerland, to Domodossola, in Italy, and thence to Milan.

Man Must Labor and Love His Work to Be Healthy and Happy

By DR. SAMUEL G. DIXON, Commissioner of Health of Pennsylvania

Man was intended to labor by the Allwise Creator. Our mental and physical make-up is such that occupation is essential to continued well-

From the hunter, the fisherman and the rude agriculturist, man has evolved a complicated civilization. There are thousands of occupations today in place of the few primitive ones, but still the majority of these center about the fulfilling of the primary necessities, feeding and clothing

It has become impossible for the laborer to work under the conditions which originally obtained. Besides the fields and forests, we have mine, mill and mart.

Man has progressed mentally to a remarkable degree, but we cannot say that of his physical development. However, his requirements are much the same as those of our remote ancestors. Sunlight, fresh air, pure water and physical exercise are absolutely essential to the maintenance of health.

If the conditions under which men and women labor do not make this possible, they are detrimental to the individual and to society at large, for upon the health of its people depends the ultimate future of any nation. No machinery can entirely replace the sinews of labor.

To be healthy and happy, one must love his work.

Good Cheer, Order, Beauty Prevailed in Home of the Southern Woman Long Ago

In her social progresses she rode in a velvet-lined coach drawn by four or six horses-not one too many for the mud holes to be pulled through in those brave times, writes Octavia Zollicoffer Bond in Southern Woman, Her negro coachman, in cloth coat and brass buttons, who could be trusted to drive her a hundred miles in safety, skillfully handled the lines, while liverled footmen swung jauntily to the carriage straps behind, ready to spring to the ground, open the door and let down the folding steps at the will of the mistress. As to her wholesome life at home, Thomas Nelson Page has covered the case in asserting that "the system of living in the South made the domestic virtues as common as light and air." Housewifely thrift and executive ability of a high order made the home of the Southern woman who was true to the type an Eden for all who partook of her hospitality. Good cheer, order and beauty prevailed from the entrance hall, impressive with its array of ancestral portraits, to the clean and ample kitchen and servants' quarters, The well-filled smokehouse, the poultry yard astir with fowls, the pantry supply of jelly, pickle, cordial, "bounce" and preserves, the cellar stocked with the choicest vintages of the old world, and the garden growing with every herb, vegetable and flower known to the new, were results of the industry of the lady bountiful of ye olden time. And, withal, the "swept and garnished" guest rooms, as rarely unoccupied as vacuums occur in nature, were dainty with lavender scented linens, waxed floors and polished

Popular Idea Called Myth.

The popular notion that stars can be seen in daylight from the bottom of a deep well, mine shaft or chimney, believed to have been first held by Aristotle, is declared to be a myth by a writer in the Journal of the British Astronomical Association. The glare of the atmosphere illuminated by the sun's rays renders the stars invisible in the daytime and there is no reason why this glare should be sensibly diminished by a well, mine shaft or chimney, he says. Stars and planets can be seen to some extent through a telescope in the daylight. In general the latter are much less visible then than the former. Venus and Mercury, however, are better observed in daylight than in darkness. Red and yellow stars are seen much more easily in day-

Tortoise Shell

Now that tortoise shell has once more come into public favor it is well to know a way in which to clean and polish it. When tortolse shell loses its luster from wear the polished surface may be restored to its original condition by carefully rubbing it with powdered rottenstone and oil. The rottenstone should be very carefully sifted through the finest muslin. When all scratches on the surface of the tortoise shell are thus removed, a brilliant polish may be given it by applying gentle friction with a piece of soft leather to which some jeweler's rouge has been applied. *************

The Silver Lining. Not long ago a clergyman, in the ourse of ministrations among the poor of a large town, called on an old lady who had been bedridden for some

"Well, Mrs. Davies," he said, "and ow are you today?"

"Oh, I'm pretty well, thank you," as the cheerful answer.

"Ah, that's right," responded the dergyman, sympathetically. "I hardly expected to find you to be in such good spirits, considering your affliction. I as afraid I should find you downhearted."

"No, no, sir!" she cried, interrupting him. "No, no, indeed, sir. T've much to be thankful for, I have. Why, only the other night, when that house just opposite was on fire, I couldn't help thinking of all the poor people crushing each other in the street, and many of them not getting a sight of the fire at all, while here was I, all nice and comfortable in bed, and I could see it beautifully through my window without even turning over! Oh, no, I've a lot to be thankful for."

The Indian bill, the first appropriation measure reported to the House, has passed that body in record time, The bill carries appropriations amounting to $10,670,000, of which over a million dollars is to be expended in Arizona. Congressman Hayden was successful in his effort to secure an appropriation of $100,000 to complete the diversion dam above Florence and also obtained $75,000 to commence the construction of the main canal which will carry water from this dam to the lands belonging to Indians and white men in Pinal county. His request for $125,000 to complete another diversion dam near Sacaton was likewise granted. $98,000 was also appropriated for other Indian irrigation enterprises in Arizona.

Sheriff A. W. Forbes of Pima county issued an appeal Monday night for assistance of Americans at Ajo, the new mining camp west of Tueson. Villa supporters were reported to be recruiting a force along the border near Ajo to join the Sonora movement. Gen. Thos. F. Davis, commander of the Arizona district, stationed at Douglas, said he knew of no rumors of a raid on Ajo other than what he had read in the newspapers. No official report of any contemplated raid across the line or request for troops had been made to him, he declared. If any troops are sent to Alo or to points between that city and the border, they will be ordered out by Gen. Plummer, commander at Nogales, according to Gen. Davis. "I believe the citizens of Ajo are alarmed without cause," said Gen. Davis. "They have encouraged Mexican laborers to come to Ajo and are probably uneasy because there are so many of them in that vicinity. We have not heard of anything that would indicate that Villistas are organizing to raid the town, but if there ever is any real cause for worry the citizens may rest assured that they will be protected."
