Farmers Should Do Best to Economize and Produce Food

Labor is scarce. Millions of workers have been turned from one branch of labor into soldiers and sailors. Millions of men have been lifted out of their peace-time positions and are making munitions of war.

Next to building ships to carry the men and supplies scross the Atlantic is the necessity for raising more food. To raise more food there must be more labor on the farms. Parmers above all persons realize the necessity for this labest if their crops are to be taken care of. Farmers, therefore, ought to be one class which is particularly interested in reducing the competition of labor in the production of unnecessary things.

It follows that farmers should be unanimous in the support of the War Savings and Thrift ctamp movement. If the farmers will buy the non-essentials, they will be working to their own desire and will be releasing labor which can be put to work to assist them in harvesting their crops, supplying the nation with food and making money for themselves.

To Train Soldiers at Arizona's University

Two kundred soldiers of the national army will be given an eight weeks' course in trade and technical instruction at the University of Arizona this summer, it was announced by President R. The Mexican government has made arrangements to subsidize settlers and manufacturing enterprises in the Yaqui vailey to the extent of $50,000 monthly in order to build up that very rich section. The colonization of that part of Senora has been tried in former times, but the raids of the Yaqui Indians have made the attempts quite hazardous.

While attending the dance, last 8st urday night, at Sonoita, Judge W. A. O'Conner and Fred Noon of Nogales lost mounted tires from their automohiles, which were left standing near the dance hall. William Stevens and three soldiers were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Henry Woods for the theft, and they were taken to the county jail. Stevens is in the county's care, while the soldiers were turned over to Colonel Frier.

It had been the credulous man's busy day, Furthermore, his stenographer was out with smallpox, and the credulous man's own vaccination was just beginning to "take," So when two handsomely gowned women boarded the car near Tenth and Baltimore, the eredulous man resolved for once to renounce chivalry and keep his seat. For some reason, however-perhaps with that womanly intuition we hear so much about-the two women chose the back of the credulous man's sent to cling to, and there to carry on their lamentations against selfish masculinity. "I never put in such a day before in my life," sighed the first. "Nor I," agreed the other, "Such a crowd of wild, wrangling women I never saw." It was too much for the credulous man, whose particular weakness is for the poor tired creatures who serve the bargain hounds. "Won't you take my seat?" he said, rising wearily and making way for his sentmate, forced to do likewise. "Thanks," said the women, shortly. "CARDIFF GIANT" PURE FAKE

Andrew D. White gives some of the particulars of the "Cardiff Giant" In book entitled "The True Story of n Remarkable Deception." The Cardiff. giant was the huge stone image of a men which Parmer Newell of Cardiff. N. Y., claimed to have unearthed while digging a well in the autumn of 1809, After it had been sold to a joint-stock supuny formed to exploit the wonder for show purposes, Barnum tried to buy it for his own museum, but his offer was declined. The showman then had an imitation made, with the result that two Cardiff giants were on exhibitien at the same time, the duplicate being shown to the public as "the only and original," Doctor White attributes the exposure of the fake to Professor ireh of Yale; in another account it was Dr. John V. Boynton of Syrncuse, N. Y., who laid bare the fraud. The original Cardiff giant was curved or chiseled out of a gypsum block in a stoneyard in Chicago and was travaported thence by rall and wagon to Cardiff, According to Doctor White, scientists as well as clergymen were much impressed with the colossal fige. An Alaskan Love Story

By WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE

ELLIOT FINDS HIMSELF IN A SERIOUS PREDICAMENT AS RESULT OF A REMARKABLE CHAIN OF CIRCUMSTANCES.

Synopsis-As a representative of the government Gordon Elliot is on his way to Alaska to investigate coal claims. On the boat he meets and becomes interested in a fellow passenger whom he learns is Sheba O'Nefil, also "going in." Colby Macdonald, active head of the landgrabbing syndicate under investigation, comes aboard. Elliot and Mac-donald become in a measure friendly. Landing at Kusiak, Elliot finds that old friends of his, Mr. and Mrs. Paget, are the people whom Sheba has come to visit. Mrs. Paget is Sheba's cousin. At dinner Elliot reveals to Macdonald the object of his coming to Alaska. The two men, naturally antagonistic, now also become rivals for the band of Sheba. Macdonald, foreseeing failure of his financial plans if Elliot learns the facts, sends Selfridge, his right-hand man, to Kamatiah to arrange mas ters so that Elliot will be deceived as to the true situation. Elliot also leaves for Kamatlah and, wandering from the trail, believes that he faces death. Selfridge, on his arrival at Kamatlah, has his agents abduct Gideon Holt, old-time miner, who knows too much about Macdonald's activities. Elliot wanders into the camp where Eolt is held a prisoner. The two men overpowering the kidnapers, return to Kamatlah, where Eillot learns the truth about the com land deals. On the way back to Kusiak, Elliott meets a squaw, Meteetse, with her child who, Elliot learns, is Macdonald's son. Soon after his return, Elliot learns that Macdonald and Sheba have become engaged. Genevieve Mailory, a dashing widow, who is determined to win Macdonald, causes Meteetse, with her child, to visit Sheba and tell her story. She dismisses Macdonald, who blames Elliot for Meteetse's visit. Macdonald sends word to Elliot that he will kill him if he does not

His companien flashed a look of warning at him and explained that they were going down the river to look for work outside of the district.

Suddenly Trelawney broke loose and began to curse Macdonald with a bitterness that surprised the government agent. What struck him most, though, was the obvious anxiety of Northrup to quiet his partner and to gloss over what he had said.

Elliot bought an automatic revolver next morning and a box of cartridges. He was not looking for trouble, but he intended to be prepared for it when trouble came looking for him. In the afternoon he walked out of town and practiced shooting at tin cans for half an hour. On his way back he met Peter Paget.

The engineer came straight to the subject in his mind.

Selfridge came to see me last night. He told me about the trouble between you and Macdonald. Gordon. You must teave town till he cools down. Mac-

"In he? There'll be no trouble of my making. But if he starts any I'll be there. Macdonald doesn't own the earth, you know. I've been sent up here by Uncle Sam on business, and you can bet your last dollar I'll stay on the job till I'm through."

"Of course you've got to finish your lob. But it doesn't all have to be done right here. Just for a week or two-"

if he should kill me, his last chance for getting the Macdonald claims patented would be gone. The public would raise such a howl that the administration would have to throw your friend and the Guttenchilds overboard to save itself. I know that—and Macdonald knows it. So he stands to lose either way."

Paget knew this was true. But he could not drop the subject without one more appeal.

"He's not sore at you about the claims. You know that. It's because you brought the squaw up the river to see Sheba."

"I didn't bring ber-hadn't a thing to do with that. I don't know who brought her, though I could give a good

A gleam of hope showed in the eye

"Who do you think brought her?" "I'm not thinking on that subject out loud."

"But if you could show Mac-" "That's up to you. I'll not lift a finger. I didn't start this war and I'm not making any peace overtures." "You're as obstinate as the devil," smiled Peter, but in his heart he admired the dourness of his friend. The engineer went to Macdonald and gave a deleted version of his talk with Elliot. The Scotsman listened, a bitter, incredulous smile on his face.

"Says he didn't bring her. does he? Tell him from me that he lies. Your wife let out to me by accident that he threatened to bring her. Meteetse and he came up on the boat together. He was with her at your house when she told her story. He's trying to save his hide. No chance."

"Elliot isn't a liar. When he says be didn't bring the woman, that satisfies me. I know he didn't do it," insisted Paget stiffiy.

"Different here. Who else had any interest in bringing her except him? Nobody. Use your brains, Peter, He takes the first boat down the river. He comes back on the next one. She comes back, too. They couldn't figure I'd be at your house when they tre on the subject. If I drop showed up there to tell the story.

That's where Mr. Elliot slipped up." Peter was of different stuff from Selfridge. He had something to say. So he said it.

"Times have changed, Mac. You can't shoot down this fellow without making all kinds of trouble. First thing, we'd lose our claims. 'The administration would drop you like a bot potato if you did a thing like that. Sheba would never speak to you again. Your friends would know in their hearts it was murder. You can't do it."

Macdonald's law clamped. "Then let him get out. That's my last word

CHAPTER XIV.

Ambushed. Colby Macdonald, in miner's boots and corduroy working suit, stood heside his horse with one arm thrown carelessly across its rump. He was about to start for Seven Mile Creek camp with $2,700 in the saddlebags to pay the men there.

Diane was talking with him. "She's young and fine and spirited. Of course it was a great shock to her. She had been idealizing you. But I think she is beginning to understand things better. At any rate, she does not hate you any more. Give the girl time,"

"You think she will-be reasonable?" "I don't know. But I'm sure of one thing. She'll not be reasonable, as you call it, unless you are reasonable." "You mean-Elllot?"

"Yes. She likes him very much. Do came he urged Sheba not to listen to her story?"

"Sounds likely-after he had spent his good money bringing her here," sneered the mine owner. "He didn't. Gordon is a splendid fellow. He wouldn't lie," answered Diane hotly. "And one thing is sure-if you lay a finger on him for this, it will be fatal with Sheba. She will be through with you."

Macdonald had thought of this before. It had been coming to him from several different angles that he could not afford to gratify his desire to wipe this meddlesome young official from his path. He made a slow, sulky promise.

"All right. I'll let him alone. Peter

The horse splashed through the ford and took the little rise beyond with a rush. Just before reaching the brow of the hill, the animal stumbled and fell. As its rider went headlong, he caught a glimpse of a cord drawn taut across the path.

Macdonald, shaken by the fall, began the bilberry bushes two stooping fig-

Though his mind was not clear, his body answered automatically the in-stinct that told him to close with his assailants. He lurched forward and gripped one, wrestling with him for the revolver. Vaguely he knew by the sharp, jagged shoots of pain that the second man was beating his head with a club. The warm blood dripped through his hair and blinded his eyes. Duzed and shaken, he yet managed to get the revolver from the man who had it. But it was his last effort. He was forehead brought him unconscious to ground bleeding from a dozen wounds.

On his way back to Seven Mile Creek camp Gordon Elliot rode down to the ford. In the dusk he was almost upon them before the robbers heard him. For a moment the two men stood gazing at him and he at the tragedy before him. One of the men moved toward his horse.

"Stop there!" ordered Gordon sharply, and reached for his revolver.

The man-it was the miner Northrup-jumped for Elliot and the field agent fired. Another moment and he was being dragged from the suddle. What happened next was never clear to him. He knew that both of the bandits closed in on him and that he was fighting desperately against odds. The revolver had been knocked from his hand and he fought with bare fists just as they did.

They quartered over the ground, for Gordon would not let either of them get behind him. They were larger than he, heavy, muscle-bound giants of great strength, but he was far more active on his feet. He jabbed and sidestepped and retreated. More than once their heavy blows crashed on his face. His eyes dared not wander from them for an instant, but he was working toward a definite plan. As he moved his feet were searching for the automatic he had dropped.

One of his feet, dragging over the ground, came into contact with the steel. With a swift side kick Gordon flung the weapon a dezen feet to the you know that when the Indian woman left. Presently, watching his chance, he made a dive for it.

Trelawney, followed by Northrup, turned and ran. One of them caught Macdonald's borse by the bridle. He swung to the saddle and the other man clambered on behind. There was a clatter of hoofs and they were gone.

Enliot stooped over the battered body that lay huddled at the edge of the water. So badly had the face been beaten and hammered that it was not until he had washed the blood from the wounds that Gordon recognized Macdonald.

Opening the coat of the insensible man, Gordon put his hand against the heart. He could not be sure whether he feit it benting or whether the throbbing came from the pulses in his finger tips. As well as he could he bound up Swinging to the saddle, he spurred the wounds with handkerchiefs and

Gordon hoisted Macdonald across the saddle and led the horse through the ford. He walked beside the animal to town, and never had two miles seemed to him so far. With one hand he steadled the helpless body that lay like a sack of flour balanced in the trough of the saddle.

Kusiak at last lay below him, and when he descended the hill to the suburbs almost the first house was the one where the Pagets lived.

Elliot threw the body across his shoulder and walked up the walk to with his foot. Sheba answered the edly, so that he was at the lower ford knock, and at sight of what he carried the color faded from her face. "Macdonald has been hurt-badly," he explained quickly.

"This way," the girl cried, and led him to her own room.

"Get Diane-and a doctor," ordered Gordon after he had laid the unconscious man on the white sheet.

While he and Diane undressed the mine owner Shebn got a doctor on the telephone. The wounded man opened his eyes after a long time, but there alowly to rise. From the shadows of was in them the glaze of delirium. He recognized none of them. All night he raved, and his delirious talk went back to the wild scenes of his earlier life. Sometimes he swore savagely; again he made quiet, deadly threats; but always his talk was crisp and clean and vigorous. Nothing foul or slimy came to the surface in those hours of unconscious babbling.

The doctor would make no promises. "He's a mighty sick man. The cuts are deep, and the hammering must have jarred his brain terribly. If it was anybody but Macdonald, I wouldn't give him a chance," he told Diane when he left in the morning to get breakfast. "But Macdonald has tremendous vitality. Of course if he lives it will be because Mr. Elliot brought him in so soon."

Gordon walked with the doctor as far as the hotel. A brown, thin, leathery man undraped himself from a chair in the lobby when Elllot opened the door. He was officially known as the chief of police of Kusiak. Incidentally he constituted the whole police force. Generally he was referred to as Gopher Jones on account of his habit of spasmodic prospecting. "I got to put you under arrest, Mr.

Elliot," he explained. "What for? demanded Gordon, sur-

The field agent was startled. "You renn-Macdonald?"

The brown man chewed his quid stendily. "You done guessed it." "That's absurd, you know. evidence have you got?"

"First off, you'd had trouble with him. It was common talk that when you and Mac met, guns were going to pop. You bought an automatic revolver two days ago. You was seen practicing with it."

"He had threatened me," "You want to be careful what you say, Mr. Elliot. It will be used against you." Gopher shot a squirt of tobacco unerringly at the open door of the stove, "You was seen talking with Trelawney and Northrup. Money passed from you to them."

Gopher chewed his cud impassively. Sure I can, and I been earning mine. By the way, how come you to be beat up so bad, Mr. Elliot?"

"I had a fight with the robbers, "Sure it wasn't with the robbed? That split lip of yours looks to me plumb like Mac's John Hancock," Elliot flushed angrily. "Of course if you intend to believe me guilty-"Now, there ain't no manner o' use in gettin' het up, young fellow. Mebbe you did it; mebbe you didn't. Anyhow, you'll gimme that gat you been toting these last few days."

Gordon's hand moved toward his hip. Then he remembered, "I haven't it. I left it-"

"You left it at the ford-with one shell empty. That's where you left it," Interrupted the officer. "Yes. I fired at Northrup as ous, but as he paced up and down the narrow beat beside the bed his anger gave way to anxiety. Surely the Pagets could not believe he had done such a thing. And Sheba-would she accept as true this weight of circumstantial evidence that was piling up guinst him?

It could all be explained so easily. and yet-the facts fitted like links of a chain to condemn him. He went over them one by one. The babbling tongue of Selfridge that had made common gossip of the impending tragedy in which he and Macdonald were the principals-his purchase of the automatic-his public meeting with two known enemies of the Scotsman, during which he had been seen to give them money-his target practice with the new revolver-the unhappy chance that had taken him out to Seven-Mile Creek Camp the very day of the robbery-his casual questions of the miners-even the finding of the body by him. All of these dove-talled with the hypothesis that his partners in crime were to escape and bear the blame, while he was to bring the body back to town and assume innocence.

Paget was admitted to his cell later in the morning by Gopher Jones. He shook hands with the prisoner. Jones retired.

"Tough luck, Gordon," the engineer snid.

"What does Shebn think?" "We haven't told her you have been arrested. I heard it only a little while "And Diane?"

"Yes, she knows." "Well?" demanded Gordon brusque

Peter looked at him in questioning surprise. "Well, what?" He caught the meaning of his friend. "Try not to be an ass, Gordon. Of course she knows the charge is ridiculous."

The chip dropped from the young nan's shoulder, "Good old Diane, I might have known," he said with a new cheerfulness,

"I think you might have," agreed Peter dryly. "By the way, have you had any breakfast?" "No. I'm hungry, come to think of fever of the patient was subsiding. He slept a good deal, and in the intervals between had been once or twice quite rational.

The thoughts of the cousins drew their steps toward the Jall. Sheba looked at Diane. "Will they let us pass, do you think?" "Perhaps. We can try."

Gopher Jones was not proof against the brisk confidence with which Mrs. Paget demanded admittance, The prisoner was sitting on the bed.

His heart jumped with gladness when he looked up. Diane shook hands cheerfully, "How is the criminal?"

"Better for bearing your kind voice," he answered. His eyes strayed to the ebon-haired girl in the background. They met a troubled smile, grave and sweet, "Awfully good of you to come to see me," he told Shebs gratefully.

"How is Macdonald?" "Better, we hope. He knew Diane this afternoon."

"We haven't talked to Mr. Macdon-Elliot was locked up in the flimsy ald yet about the attack on him," Di-recognized the men. There are many footprints at the ford, showing how they moved over the ground as they fought. So he could not have been unconscious from the first blow."

"Unless they were masked be must have known them. It was light Gopher stuck his head in at the door, You'll have to go, ladies. 'Time's up." When Shebn bade the prisoner goodby it was with a phrase of the old Irish vernacular, "God save you kindly."

He knew the peasant's answer to the wish and gave it. "And you, too,"

The girl left the prison with a mist in her eyes. Her cousts tooked at her with a queer, ironic little smile of affection. To be in trouble was a sure passport to the sympathy of Shebs. Now both her lovers were in a sad way. Diane wondered which of them would gain most from this new twist of fate.

Selfridge had been shocked at the sight of Macdonald. The terrible beating and the loss of blood had supped all the splendld, vital strength of the Scotsman. His bettered head was swathed in bandages, but the white face was bruised and disfigured. The wounded man was weak as a kitten; only the stendy eyes told that be was still strong and unconquered.

"I want to talk business for a minute, Miss Sedgwick. Will you please step out?" said Macdonald to his

She healtated, "The doctor says-"

"Do az I say, please." The nurse left them alone. Wally told the story of the evidence against Elliot in four sentences. His chief caught the point at once.

After Selfridge had gone, the wounded man lay silent thinking out his program. Not for a moment did he doubt that he was going to live, and his brain was already busy planning for the future. He knew now that in the viclence of his noger against Elliot be had made a mistake. To have killed They stole a packhorse from Kamatlah coal claims, would have with Shelm. Fate had been kind to him. He had been in the wrong and it had put him in the right. By the same cut of the cards young Elliot had been thrust down from an impregnable position to one in which he was a discredited suspect. With all this evidence to show that he had conspired against Macdonald, his report to the department would be labor lost.

Diane came into the sickroom stripping her gloves after the walk. Macdouald smiled feebly at her and fired the first shot of his campaign to defeat the enemy. "Has Elliott been captured yet?" he asked weakly. The keen eyes of his hartess fastened upon him. "Captured! What do you mean? It was Gordon Elliot that brought you in and saved your

"Brought me from where?"

"From where he found you unconscious-at the ford."

The young woman stood with her gloves crushed tight in both hands. It was her nature to be always a partion. Without any reserve she was for Gordon in this new fight upon him. What had Wally Selfridge been saying to Macdonald? Did the mine owner mean to suggest that he had identified Elliof as one of his assailants? The thing was preposterous.

And yet-that was plainly what he had meant to imply. If he told such a story, things would go hard with Gopdon. In court it would clinch the case against him by supplying the one missing link in the chain of circumstantial with himself was that he had dropped a bint into the ear of the wounded man not to clear Elliot of complicity in the attack upon him. The news that the special investigator had been arrested for robbery and attempted murder, flashed all over the United States, would go far to neutralize any report he might make against the vaidity of the Macdonald claims. If to this could be added later reports of no indictment, a trial, and possibly s conviction, it would not matter two straws what Elliot said in his official statement to the land office.

Elliot breaks out of Jall long enough to frustrate a plot englneered by Wally Selfridge. Then he gets in Jali again. The story of this exciting splaces is told in the next Installment.

NO LIMIT SET ON U. S. ARMY, SAYS THE PRESIDENT

Wilson Opens Red Cross Campaign With Speech at New York.

DVER 5,000,000 MEN WILL GO TO FRONT, IF NECESSARY

Declares America Will Not Be Diverted From its Purpose of Winning the War by Insincere Approaches on the Subject of Peace-Urges All to Contribute Generously Towards $100,-000,000 Red Cross Fund-Condemns Those Who Attempt to Make Profit Out of the War.

New York, May 20 .- President Wilson, opening the $100,000,000 Red Cross drive at a rally in the Metropolitan opera house Saturday night, declared for an unlimited army, greater than 5,000,000, if necessary. In the afternoon he marched in a parade of 75,000 Red Cross workers, and as he walked down Fifth avenue he received the greatest reception ever accorded a president of the United States. At the opera house he was repeatedly cheered.

"I have heard gentlemen recently say," said he, "that we must get 5,-000,000 men ready. Why limit it to 5,000,000? I have asked congress to name no limit, because congress intends, I am sure, as we ill intend, that every ship that can carry men or supplies shall go laden upon every voyage with every man and every supply she can carry.'

The United States, the president declared, will not be diverted from its purpose of winning the war by insincere approaches on the subject of peace.

Dwelling on the duty of Americans to give to the Red Cross, the president declared no man could afford to make money out of the war.

The audience was composed of distinguished men and women, most of whom have been leaders in the work of the Red Cross.

Text of President's Speech. The president's speech in full fol-

"Mr. Chairman and Fellow Countrymen-I should be very sorry to think that Mr. Davison in any degree curtailed his exceedingly interesting speech for fear that he was postponing mine, because I am sure you listened with the same intense and intimate interest with which I listened to the extraordinarily vivid account he gave of the things which he had realized because he had come in contact with them on the other side of the waters.

"We compass them with our imagination; he compassed them in his personal experience. And I am not come here tonight to review for you the work of the Red Cross.

"I am not competent to do so because I have not had the time or the opportunity to follow it in detail.

"I have come here simply to say a few words to you as to what it all seems to me to mean, and it means a great deal.

Won't Limit Army to 5,000,000.

"There are two duties with which we are face to face. The first duty is to win the war. And the second duty, that goes hand-in-hand with it, is to win it greatly and worthily, showing the real quality of our power not only but the real quality of our purpose and of ourselves.

"Of course, the first duty, the duty that we must keep in the foreground of our thought until it is accomplished, is to win the war.

"I have heard gentlemen recently say that we must get 5,000,000 men ready. Why limit it to 5,000,000? "I have asked the congress of the United States to name no limit because the congress intends, I am sure, as we all intend, that every ship that can carry men or supplies shall go laden upon every voyage with every man and every supply she can carry.

Peace Offers Insincere. "And we are not to be diverted from the grim purpose of winning the war by any insincers approaches upon the subject of peace. I can say with a clear conscience that I have tested those intimations and have found them Insincere. "I now recognize them for what they are-an opportunity to have a free hand, particularly in the East, to carry out purposes of conquest and exploitation.

"Every proposal with regard to accommodation in the West involves a reservation with regard to the East. Now, so far as I am concerned, I intend to stand by Russia as well as

Frace." [A voice from the audience interrupted with: "God bless you."] "The helpless and the friendless are the very ones that need friends and succor, and if any man in Germany thinks we are going to sacrifice anyhody for our sake, I tell him new they are mistaken.

"For the glory of this war, my fellow citizens, insofur as we are concerned, is that it is, perhaps for the first time in history, an unselfish war. "I could not be proud to fight for a selfish purpose, but I can be proud to fight for mankind.

"If they wish peace lef them come forward through accredited representatives and lay their terms on the table. We have laid ours, and they know what they are.

"But behind all this grim purpose. my friends, lies the opportunity to demonstrate not only force, which will be demonstrated to the utmost, but the opportunity to demonstrate character, and it is that opportunity that we have most conspicuously in the work of the Red Cross. "Not that our men in arms do not represent our character, for they do. and it is a character which those who see and realize appreciate and admire; but their duty is the duty of force. The duty of the Red Cross is the duty of mercy and succor and friendship.

War Uniting the World. "Have you formed a picture in your imagination of what this war is doing

for us and for the world? "In my own mind I am convinced that not a hundred years of peace could have knitted this nation together as this single year of war has knitted It together; and better even than that, if possible, it is knitting the world together.

"Look at the picture. In the center of the scene, four nations engaged against the world, and at every point of vantage, showing that they are seeking selfish aggrandizement; and, against them, twenty-three governments representing the greater part of the population of the world, drawn together Into a new sense of community of interest, a new sense of community of purpose, a new sense of unity of Hife.

"The secretary of war told me an interesting incident the other day. He said when he was in Italy a member of the Italian government was explaining to him the many reasons why Italy felt near to the United States.

Heart of U. S. in Italy. "If you want to try an interesting experiment go up to any one of these troop trains and ask in English how many of them have been in Amtrica, and see what bappens,' "He tried the experiment. He went up to a troop train and he said: 'How many of you boys have been in America?' and he said it seemed to him as if half of them sprang up: 'Me from San Francisco; me from New York: nll over."

"There was part of the heart of America in the Italian army. People that had been knitted to us by association, who knew us, who had lived amongst us, who had worked shoulder to shoulder with us, and now friends of America, were fighting for their native Itnly.

Assails War Profiteers.

"Friendship is the only cement that will ever hold the world together. And this intimate contact of the Red Cross with the people who are suffering the terrors and deprivations of this war is going to be one of the greatest instrumentalities of friendship that the world ever knew, and the center of the heart of it all, if we sustain it properly, will be this land that we so dearly

"My friends, a great day of duty has come, and duty finds a man's soul as no kind of work can ever find it.

"May I say this? The duty that faces us all now is to serve one another, and no man can afford to make a fortune out of this war.

"There are men amongst us who have forgotten that, if they ever saw it. Some of you are old enough-I am old enough-to remember men who made fortunes out of the Civil war, and you know how they were regarded by their fellow citizens. That was a war to save one country-this is a war to save the world."

Better to Give Than Lend.

"And your relation to the Red Cross is one of the relations which will re-Heve you of the stigma. You can't give anything to the government of the United States; It won't accept it. There is a law of congress against accepting even services without pay. "The only thing that the government will accept is a loan, and duties performed; but it is a great deal better to give than to lend or to pay and your great channel for giving is the American Red Cross.

"Down in your hearts you can't take very much satisfaction, in the last analysis, in lending money to the government of the United States, because the interest which you draw will burn your pockets; it is a commercial transaction, and some men have even dared to cavil at the rate of interest, not knowing the incidental commentary that constitutes upon their attitude.

"But when you give, something of your heart, something of your soul, something of yourself goes with the gift, particularly when it is given in such form that it never can come back | the women of the Red Cross filed past.

by way of direct benefit to yourself. You know there is the old cynical definition of gratitude, as 'the lively expectation of favors to come."

Make World Fitter Place to Live. "Well, there is no expectation of favors to come in this kind of giving. These things are bestowed in order der that the world may be a fitter place to live in; that men may be succured; that homes may be restored; that suffering may be relieved; that the face of the earth may have the blight of destruction taken away from it, and that wherever force goes there shall go mercy and helpfulness. "And when you give, give absolutely all that you can spare, and don't consider yourself liberal in the giving. If you give with self-adulation, you are not giving at all, you are giving to your own vanity; but if you give until it hurts, then your heart blood goes into it.

"And think what we have here. We is merely a branch of a great international organization, which is not only recognized by the statutes of each of the civilized governments of the world, but it is recognized by international agreement and treaty as the reconized and accepted instrument of mercy and

"And one of the deepest stains that rests upon the reputation of the German army is that they have not respected the Red Cross,

Cross Emblem of Christianity.

That goes to the root of the matter. They have not respected the instrumentality they themselves participated in setting up as the thing which no man was to touch, because it was the expression of common humanity.

"We are members, by being members SO EASY! CORNS of the American Red Cross, of a great fraternity and comradeship which extends all over the world, and this cross which these ladies bore today is an emblem of Christianity luself.

"It fills my imagination, ladles and gentlemen, to think of the women all over this country who are busy tonight and are busy every night and every day doing the work of the Red Cross; busy with a great engerness to find out the most serviceable thing to do: busy with a forgetfulness of all the old frivollides of their social relationships, ready to curtail the duties of the household in order that they may contribute to this common work that all their bearts are engaged in, and in doing which their hearts become acquainted with each other.

Drawn Into Great Family.

"When you think of this you realize how the people of the United States are being drawn together into a great intimate family, whose heart is being used for the service of the soldiers not only, but the service of civilians where they suffer and are lost in a maze of distress and distractions.

"And you have, then, this noble pleture of justice and mercy as the two servants of Hberty. For only where men are free do they think the thoughts of comundership; only where they are free do they think the thoughts of sympathy; only where they are free are they mutually helpful; only where they are free do they realize their dependence upon one another, and their comradeship in a common interest and common neces

"I beard a story told the other day that was ridiculous, but it is worth repenting because it contains the germ of truth. An Indian was enlisted in the on a furlough. He was asked what he thought of it. He said: 'No much good; too much salute; not much shoot.' Then he was asked: 'Are you going back? 'Yes'

"'Well, do you know what you are fighting for? 'Yes, me know; fight to make whole damn world Democratic

"He had evidently misunderstood

some innocent sentence of my own. "But, after all, aithough there is no party purpose in it, he got it right as far as the word 'party;' to make the whole word democratic in the sense of community of interest and of purpose, and if you ladies and gentlemen could rend some of the touching dispatches which come through official channels, for even through official channels there come voices of humanity that are infinitely pathetic; if you could catch some of those voices that speak the utter longing of oppressed and helpiess peoples all over the world to hear something like the 'Battle Hymn of the Republic,' to hear the feet of the great hosts of liberty going to set them free, to set their minds free, set their lives free, set their children free, you would know what comes into the heart of those who are trying to contribute all the brains and power they have to this great enterprise of liberty.

"I summon you to the comradeship. I summon you to say how much and how sincerely and how unanimously you sustain the heart of the world."

HOARDER REFUSED LICENSE.

The United States Food Administration has refused to issue a license to Joseph Schweriner, of Willcox, Ariz., added to its history, says the Popular following a hearing on the charge of hoarding flour and violations of the fore Christmas, Captain Octavius "fifty-fifty" rule. He was found to be holding 60,000 pounds of wheat flour. Schwertner has agreed to dispose of all of his stocks of licensed commodities within a month and to turn over voluntarily to the Government the 60,-600 pounds of flour as well as 23 sacks of cane sugar which he had in stock.

DO NOT WASTE MILK.

As a matter of conservation and to encourage the dairy industry of Arizona the Food Administration is encouraging the use of milk as a substantial article of diet.

There is an abundance of milk at this season of the year, it is pointed out, and not a drop of it should be wasted. It should be made into cottage cheese. Cottage cheese is as much a food as beeisteak and is not merely a relish. Here is one way to make it:

Heat one quart of sour milk to 100 degrees, (luke warm) and turn into a strainer lined with cheesecloth. Pour over one quart hot water, and as soon as water has drained through, pour over another quart, then repeat. Gather cheesecloth around curd to form bag, and let hang until curd is free from whey. Moisten with melted butter and heavy cream, and salt to suit taste. Shape into small balls.

light, which stands on a reef off Boston harbor, has another thrilling story Mechanics magazine. Three days be-Reamey, the keeper, approached the tower in his motorboat, which was londed with provisions and fuel obtained on the maintand. As the craft drew up, it was overturned by the waves that were breaking over the base of the structure, leaving the captain battling alone in a tossing maeistrom of ley water. The assistant keeper was lowered on a rope from the door fifty feet above. He managed to seize the drowning man before it was too late and both men were pulled from the water by their companions to the doorway high in the tower,

Great Apple Industry.

The apple industry in the United States today represents a supendons commercial achievement. It had grown to 60,000,000 barrels in 1916; it dropped to 28,000,000 in 1911, and went up again to 40,000,000 barrels in 1912. From this date forward there is minual increase in the production, for the great cities of the world are crying for apples, and people everywhere are just beginning to apprehend the actual value of this delicate fruit. We are turning backward to our heritage, for in the days of our greatgrandfathers the common adage was: "An apple a day will keep the doctor nway." Fruit as a part of the diet represents a most health-giving element.-Christian Herald.

EAT ICE CREAM SAYS FOOD HEAD

DRINK MORE MILK, EAT MORE CHEESE, ADVICE TO ARI-ZONA FOLK

DAIRY INDUSTRY AT STAKE

TABOO PLACED ON SOFT DRINK AND SHERBET; USE OF SUGAR CURTAILED

milk, eat more cheese. Eat less candy, rooms to women thrilled by bridge or drink less soft drinks and eat less sherbet. These suggestions constitute windows and taken home in a paper the latest hot weather advice to the residents of Arizona from the federa! food administrator for this state.

state must be preserved at all costs, and the consumption of augar must be materially decreased.

All makers of ice cream, soda water and fountain syrups are now required right. to procure sugar certificates. Realizing that ice cream is a food rather than a luxury, especially in the summer months in Arigona, the Food Administration is granting a full allowance of sugar for this purpose. For all other manufacturing purposes the to do, supply is being materially decreased, and new enterprises are being discour-

There is a real shortage of sugar in Arizona, and while it is desirous to give the housewife all the sugar necessary for home canning purposes the public is urged to cut down on the use of soda water and confectionery until the supply is more abundant.

On the other hand the Food Admin-Istration advocates the fuller use of milk and other dairy products as a food, and especially in homes where there are children. Most persons look upon milk as a beverage, overlooking the fact that it is in reality a food. In spite of the fact that it is seveneighths water, the other eighth made up of solids contains all the necessar; elements of food. It has sugar and fats, which provide energy for the body, mineral salts, which keep the body in good condition and protein, which is so essential in building up the tissues.

PHOENIX RETAILERS BOOST RATION PLAN WITH FLOUR CARDS

Retail grocers of Phoenix and all other towns in the Salt River valley are trying out an interesting experiment in the matter of establishing voluntarily a ration card asstem for the purpose of making effective the sixpound-per-person-per-month allowance of wheat, which is urged by the Food Administration.

Thus far the av success, and there is every reason to believe that it will work out effectivey on a permanent basis until such time as it is no longer necessary to save wheat, Advantages claimed for this system are that it places all consumers on an equal basis, that it effects a material rather than a theoretical saving, and that it simplifies the work of the dealar in keeping track of sales of flour and bread. The consumer is permitted to buy his flour and other wheat products at the grocery and his bread of a baker if he desires. He can change from one dealer to another at any time, though he is permitted to buy of only one dealer at a time. Central learing houses are established and a ecretary placed in charge to issue cards and keep a check on the cards, iuplicate copies of which are forwardd to him each day.

The merchants of Globe and Mlami have adopted the system and those of Cochise county are planning to do so, is soon as the cards can be supplied. Phrough voluntary adoption by dealers' associations, it is believed that the system will be made state-wide.

LOWER PRICES FOR FLOUR SUBSTITUTES IS NOW DEMANDED

There are strong indications that he price of corn meal and other substitutes for wheat flour will be reduced within the next few weeks. The Food Administration at Washington has sent out a warning to all millers of substitute grains and to wholesale and retail dealers in these products, callng their attention to the fact that at the present prices paid for corn and cats, cornmeal and oatmeal should be selling at least 20 per cent below the price of wheat flour, and that corn and barley flour should be selling at east ten per cent below wheat flour. The high levels ruling in grains as s result of car shortages and stormy weather last winter have now fallen materially with greater freedom of ransportation and the stocks accumulated by manufacturers and traders at he prices ruling then should have been generally liquidated by this time, t is held. Investigations will be made in all cases where the dealer is beleved to be charging more than a fair wofit on substitutes.

NASTE OF SUGAR AND WHEAT

Writer Thinks This Is Time to "Cut Out" Serving Refreshments at Social Functions.

By BETTY TANSEY of The Vigilantes.
I do not believe that Sugar and wheat are used to any better purpose in providing "refreshments" for social functions than they would be in ordinary meals for families.

I do not think that ice cream is less, likely to deplete our resources in a way unfair to our soldiers and our alfies when served by charming girls to their mammas and the mammas of other charming girls than if purchased nt the sordid marts of the ice cream trade, retail,

Little cakes with pink icing on them appear to me to be as free from all patriotic traits or even from a natural tendency of the human race to seif-Eat more ice cream, drink more preservation when served in drawing books as when noted through shop

You may if you desire give a little dinner to friends without in any way abusing the rights of others to food or There is a double reason for the sug- infringing upon the requests of our gestion. The dairy industry of the government for conservation of resources. This is the way the people of the British tales have kept up a tiny bit of social life. But "refreshments" in the middle of the afternoon to n lot of well-fed women! It is not

> Months ago it was announced that certain organizations of women had agreed to refrain from serving any foods at their meetings. This was heralded as being patriotic. It was plain, self-preservative common sense of course. But it was the right thing

Yet our club women, women many of them affiliated with organizations which stand for intelligence and the better things of life, seem in many instances not to have followed this course but to be pursuing the even tenor of their ways before the war, not for a few of them once in a while but for all of them every week.

We object to patronizing hotels and restaurants at which the food regulations are ignored, and rightly so. How about the social functions at which "refreshments were served"?

Rich food in the middle of the afternoon for a group of already well-fed women! Their very food cards ought to climb down out of their windows in shame at such inconsistency.

Russian Iron Ore.

Iron ore is found in many parts of Russia, although it is mined in but few localities. In the Ural range there are whole mountains of rich ore, containing from 50 to 70 per cent of iron. Among these ore mountains are Ringodat, Magnitnaya and Vysokaya. Despite its apparent accessibility, iron ore in this vicinity is not mined very extensively. The Ural deposits yielded, in 1913, 1.832,000 tons of iron ore, out of the total 9,692,300 for the whole of Russin.

Besides these, silver, copper, lead, zinc ores are extant in various parts of Russia, and these deposits are probably sufficient to supply her needs; however, the development of the mining industry is insufficient as yet to make the yield meet the demand. She is compelled to import large quantities of the ores needed in her metallurgy, while her own wealth is lying dormant

Honoring Bishop Brewer

A touching incident with reference to the death of the late Bishop Brewer recently came to light through an American missionary located in a remote mountain district of Montana. When the belated news of the death of Bishop Brewer came to a certain woman in this isolated settlement, she hoisted an American flag at half-mast over a little schoolhouse some distance away in token of his death. The woman did not belong to the church, but she had known and respected the bishop for many years, and it had been her cuntom through all the years to travel many miles to the nearest mission point to attend the services when the bishop made his visitations each year. Without respect to custom she kept this fing there for over a month, and not until the visit of the missionary was the significance explained and the story related.

Another Use for Cement. Through the shortage of structural steel, roof trusses of timber incased in cement have been used for buildings of a Texas oil refinery. After putting la place, the trusses were wrapped with a layer of light waterproof building paper, and sheets of expanded metal, with half-inch diamond mesh, were fitted around the paper, and held fiveeighths inch from the surface by chairs and nails. A coating of one and a half inches of cement mortar was then applied with cement guns. The roof was covered with a one and a half-inch menolithic slab, built in place by the use of wire-mesh re-enforcing, and cement mortar applied by cement guns from below against wood panels, walch were removed after 24 hours. The cement surface was given a final coating of hot asphalt paint.

CONVENED IN SPECIAL SESSION FOR WAR LEGISLATION

Profiteers Have Hearts Like Cesspools FIFTY-SIX AMERICAN SOLDIERS Declares Governor Hunt in

Message

Western Newspaper Union News Service. Phoenix, Ariz.-A special "war seasion" of the Arizona Legislature convened for the consideration of legislation believed by Gov. G. W. P. Huut to be necessary to meet what he calls in The Chino Valley and the Home Oil his message "the unusual conditions imposed by war,"

At 2 o'clock May 21 the House and Senate met in joint session for the purpose of listening to the governor's message, which contains nearly 10,000 words, and reviews much of the state's war and labor activities.

The primary purposes of the session, the governor says, "is to back up our state's duty to furnish them."

The governor pays his respects to the "profiteering patrioteer," whom he wears the outward semblance of a human, but yet is a graven cur, whose mind is a sink of infamy; whose heart is as malignant as a cosspool, and whose character is as devoid of principle as that of a raving ape in an African jungle." It is this type of an individual, he says, "who have sown the seed of blind prejudice, class dissension and malicious falsehood from which the state of Arizona, during the past year, has reaped a hapless harvest of industrial strife, culminating in such shameful events as the deportations at Bisbee and Jerome, the tarrings and featherings, and finally the reckless tendency to brand as disloyal everyone who reserves the right to do his own thinking."

The governor goes on to discuss the Bisbee deportations at length, and depicts the fate of the deported men as they were sent on their boxcar journey towards New Mexico.

"I am certain," the governor said, that the I. W. W. was not a determining factor in the strikes that have tied up the copper mines during the past four months. These strikes grew out of a long-standing struggle between the forces of legitimate organized labor and the forces of organized business dominated by the copper companies. So far as lawlessness is concerned the chief role of the I. W. W. has been to serve as camouflage."

Later on, in his review of labor con ditions, the governor declared that sensational newspapers and speakers have been largely responsible for the mystery thrown about the I. W. W. and for the publicity which has been given the organization.

Coming down to the purposes for which the legislature is convened, the governor recommenda legislation providing machinery for permitting Arizona electors in military camps or naval cantonments to yote for candidates for federal and state offices; the establishment of a moratorium so "that no Arizonian in his country's service will suffer civil penalties; to insure against want all dependents of those citizens who enter upon either naval or military service; to provide funds for the care of all Arizonians who return from the front wounded or sick, lies through the collapse of Russia. and to give credit to officers and enlisted men in the old national guard submarine situation were most aptifor continuous service."

from a cupful of ten has been stimulated by this ingredient.

There are hundreds of blends of teas but those commonly known and most used are English Breakfast, Formosa, Oolong, Ceylon, Orange Pekos, young Hyson and Southong.

Properly brewed tea is an important essential. Tea should not be infused too long and should under no circumstances be boiled.

Ceylon ten is the ten best liked for iced ten and when serving it hot the tea bull is desirable.

Green tea known by gun powder, Hyson and various other names, is much lighter in color, a drink of high fragrance, but a bit more harsh than black teas. The English know the value of fresh boiled water for the fragrant beverage.

In many places certain springs or wells have water which makes a most superior ten, the ten makers going many rods to carry this precious water to have the right tasting cup of Russians, we are apt to think, always require a slice of lemon in their ten while as a fact they serve Jam with their national drink, dropping it into the tea which is drunk from tumblers.

In Morocco the leaves of thyme and verbens are added to the tea to lend it piquancy.

The Peralan likes his sweetened almost to a sirup. The Burmese add garlic and other highly flavored sesame oil to theirs.

Perhaps in America as in no other country cream in tea is the tea par excellence. We must bear in mind, however, that tannin in tea will act upon the delicate stomach lining and should be infused just long enough to extract the flavor. Any added steeping tends to increase the amount of

One way to avoid a fight is to stop and count ten. By that time the other fellow will probably have you licked.

GOOD EATING. Simple desserts are the rule these days. Dates which are rich in food value are little appreciated by the average housewife. Wash the dates, remove the pits and arrange in small dishes, sprinkle with a tablespoonful of broken nut meats, such as pecans, add a spoonful of

Mrs. John A. Logan Tells How Annual Ceremony Was Inaugurated By Her Husband of of of

HE widow of a great general who led many victorious charges in the Civil war, and mother of a soldier who laid down his life in the service of his country, Mrs. John A. Logan, has given her time and efforts since the commencement of foreign hostilities to work for the afflicted of the present war.

"I cannot rest, and will not, so long as strength is given me, for I know what sorrow and suffering is wrought upon the helpless by war," she said.

It was in the spacious workroom at the top of her beautiful home in Washington that her visitor found her. It was not a sewing day, and instead of European work, Mrs. Logan was sitting at her desk absorbed in the perusal of letters, papers and books which related to the long past of her own life, to a war nearer home and to her participation in the events which made American history at a crucial period of this country's life, and it was of those things she was in a mood to talk.

"I have been thinking of what the coming Memorial day must mean to us afforded one of the evidences of the all," she said. "The survivors of the Civil war are rapidly passing off the stage of life, but those who yet remain from that time, and they who are following us, will see to it that homage is done to those who paid the price of a nation's salvation. It is a duty we owe and it should never die.

"This year, as we strew with flowers the graves of those who died for a just cause we cannot but think of the terrible cataclysm of suffering and death now overwhelming Europe, and the great range of memorial days which will be its heritage ere long.

"I prefer the name Memorial day to Decoration day, for although ours is a national holiday, it should not be forgotten that it is a day of national remembrance of the dead and ought to be observed with seemly quietude and dignity. I have been very much pained these later years to note that many of the younger generation have lost all sight of the original meaning of the day, and that in some places it is celebrated by such diversions as horse racing and other riotous sports which seem to be a very prostitution

"The Grand Army of the Republic has made strong protestations against the misuse of our national day of mourning for the soldiers who gave the citizens and soldiers. their lives for our country, and it is good to note that the Sons of Veterans, who are now filling the places of their fathers, take a very serious view of their duty in consecrating this one day to sacred memory and affectionate tribute to our soldier dead, and are carrying out appropriate programs. at the various g ounds where soldlers of the Civil war lie buried.

"I can, too, say in all truth that Memorial day has brought forth a great harvest of worthily expressed sentiment, the occasion having inspired men and women to utterances of real eloquence, heautiful thoughts and true poetry, because the theme is worthy of the best that loyal hearts can feel and gifted tongues or pens

The colonel, who was a bachelor, was accompanied by his finncee, Miss Farrar of Boston.

GENERAL ORDERS, NO. II.

1. The 10th of May, 183, is designated for the purpose of strawing flowers er otherwise decorating the graves of commades who died in defense of their country during the late rebellion, and whose bodies now its in almost every city, village and hamlet shurchyard in the land. In this observance no form of ceremony is presented but posts and commandes will. is prescribed, but posts and comrades will, in their own way, arrange such fitting services and testimonials of respect as freumstances may permit. We are organized comrades, as our regulations tell us, for the purpose, among other things, "of preserving and strengthening those kind and fruierus feelings which have bound together the soldiers, sallors and marines who united to suppress the lake rebellion." What can aid more to assert this result than by

Their soldier lives were the reveille of freedom to a race is chains, and their deaths the fattoe of rebellious tyranny in arms. We should guard their graves with sacred vigilance.
All that the consecrated wealth and tasts of the nation can add to their adorament and security is but a fitting tribute to the memory of her sixin defenders. Let no wanton foot tread runlely on such hallowed grounds. Let pleasant paths invite the coming and going of reverent visitors and fond mourners. INDIAN WORKED WITH BRAIN

Buck's Ingenious Explanation for Not Aiding Squaw to Carry Their Domestic Burden.

A group of people who were touring Alaska one summer were disgusted at the laziness of the buck Indians they seve in the villages and along the trail,

One day when they were taking a side trip they came upon a couple of Indians who were evidently packing into the mountains to stay a while. The squaw was staggering under a tremendous burden. She lugged all of the bedding and provisions, and a paposse for good measure. The eid buck was slumping along tuzity ahead of her, smoking his pipe and looking down at the trail.

tourist party hailed the Indians and when they stopped he inquired, somewhat out of patience;

"See here, buck, how comes it that Nikawana is carrying all of the baggage and you are slouching along, enjoying your pipe? Why don't you take at least half of the load off your squaw, you big lazy Indian?"

The buck stood silent as a sphinx for a few moments, then grunted to himself and, pointing his index finger to his forehead, he exclaimed in deep. gutturn! tones:

"Hub, me all time think!"

Crime Always Poorly Paid. It has long been a matter of note that the safe robber of highest degree and the counterfeiter of fullest accomplishment bring to their purposes talents which would serve them in legitimate application exceptionally well, Ranking below these operators in genius, the new motor car thief displays yet an acumen and a smoothness in busines execution which should make him as a straight man of affairs generally valuable.

All these performers, refusing to work honestly for sure and sufficient compensation, work much harder for the uncertain returns and ever-present perils of crookedness. They make manifest a curious paradox of crime. They are not explained wholly by theories of a stunted spirit of adventure and a highly temperamental love for the risks of the game. Perhaps the law, to meet them effectively, should hold them to punitive account in measures proportioned less to arbitrary degrees of crime than to proved wastes of natural gifts,

Do Men or Women Dream Most? A question often asked is, "Who dream most, men or women?" According to Heerwagn's statistics "Women sleep more lightly and dream more often than men; the frequency of dreams is proportional to their vividness; women who dream sleep longer than those who do not; twice as man, women as men dream."

Another mooted point is, "Has age got any bearing on dreams?" In normal individuals above the age of sixty-five De Sanctis found that dreams were rare; atmospheric influences seem to be important elements in causing them; memory of them is weak; they are emotionally poor, and deal with long past scenes.

I was just crossing the snowy square In front of St. Isaac's, returning from the last mass before the midnight Easter service, when suddenly-were the gates of Fairyland flung open? Down the aisle of columns, out from among the dusky pillars of the great cathedral, in twos and threes-or nione, a voluminous sometimes shawled and aproped nyanya in the background-came figures-gravely intent little figures, each carefully shielding his candle with tiny, cupped hands or twists of white paper, the yellow candle light flaring up into faces as cherubic as Reynolds' "Age of Innocence," but weighted with all the sweet solemnity of Miltonic angels: children bearing home sacred candles still farther down the canyons of the and gleaming like myriad will-o'-thewisps, phantom ships floating on a phantom tide. Afterward he made several bows and genuflections, as if inviting his dend friend or the other party to set to,

"A number of fires were burning in the vicinity, and on these were placed pleces of paper with squares of imitation gold leaf pasted on them representing gold coin; other squares with silver foil represented silver coin; and smaller squares, punched full of holes, represented the brass 'cash,' which has a hole in the center. Some burned small garments made of paper, and thus furnished a new suit to their deceased friends at a small cost. After the provisions had been displayed long enough to give the spirit enough to satisfy blesself, they were carefully brought back to town."
