New Bank Will Be Opened as Soon as Equipment Arrives

Patagonia is to have a bank, and the local merchants, as well as other residents of Patagonia, are highly pleased local business has been on the increase and it has been very inconvenient for nearby cities to obtain them.

Stock of the bank has been liberally subscribed for by leading citizens of Patagonia and vicinity, who will take an active interest in its success,

The temporary location will, in time, give way to a permanent building erected by the bank officials, thus adding to the upbuilding of Patagonia.

The advent of a banking house in our city means more than just the fact means that Patagonia's steady and substantial growth, as well as its mineral and livestock wealth, has attracted the that at last this district is to come into its own as a mining camp of more or less importance.

We predict that the bank will be a successful business enterprise and that it will receive the support and patronage of the people of l'atagonia and vi-

The bank will be known as the First State Bank of Patagonia. A charter has been granted by the state authorities, and as soon as fixtures and a safe can be placed in the location selected, adjoining the offices of Col. R. R. Richardson, the institution will be opened for business.

The equipment will include a Victormanganese screw-door safe, which is regarded one of the best safes in use to day. The safe has been ordered from Los Angeles, and will arrive in the near

A meeting of stockholders of the new bank was held Wednesday afternoon, at which officers and directors were elected. They are as follows:

President-W. H. Land. Vice President and Cashier - W. P. Capehart.

Vice President-C. B. Wilson. Directors-Ed F. Bohlinger, Dr. Ray Ferguson, and C. B. Wilson.

Letter Received from Kent Fryer, at Camp

Kent Fryer, wrote the editor an interesting letter from Camp Dix, N. J., which reached us in Wednesday's smil. Kent says his mother sent him a few copies of the Patagonian recently, and to learn the fact. For solong time the that he was glad to get "home news." town has been in need of a bank, as the He is in the 133rd Infantry, Headquarters Company, and expects soon to go to the officers' training camp, and sethose desiring the services of a banking cure a commission-at least that of capinstitution to be compelled to go to tain. So we may look for him to return wearing two bars on his uniform. Kent says the eastern climate is not to be compared with the glorious climate of Arizonn, and he as anxious once more to cel the warm sunsame of Arizona days and the cool night at nome.

Among other interesting things, Mr. Fryer writes: "I hope everyone in Patagonia and Santa Cruz county takes hold and does his part in the Fourth Liverty Loan drive, which wat roon be faunched, that the institution will locate here. It and also that they will do their part by the Red Cross. If they could only undersatud and appreciate the efforts of the Red Cross, from the soldiers' standattention of the business world, and point, there would be no need of these eampaigns-it would all be voluntary on the part of everyone to give all they can. I am one of many-thousandsthat are enthusiastic in their praise of the Red Cross and its workers."

THE MAIN OBJECTIVE

"Cheap fool today, if it means tem food or no food temorrow, is a fool's benefactin," sa. orr William Goode in addressing the council at the British ministry of food the o. er day. CHAPTER I.

The Crown Prince Runs Away. The Crown Prince sat in the royal box and awung his legs. This was hardly princely, but the royal legs did not oulte reach the floor from the high crimson-velvet seat of his chair.

Prince Ferdinand William Otto was bored. His royal robes, consisting of a pair of blue serge trousers, a short Eton jacket, and a stiff, rolling collar of white linen, irked him.

He had been brought to the opera house under a misapprehension. His sunt, the Archduchess Annunciata, had strongly advocated "The Flying Dutchman," and his English governess, Miss Braithwaite, had read him some inspiring literature about it. So here he was, and the Flying Dutchman was not ghostly at all, nor did it fly. And instead of flying, after dreary cons of singing, it was moved off on creaky rollers by men whose shadows were thrown grotesquely on the sea been-

The orchestra, assisted by a bass solo and intermittent thunder in the wings, was making a deafening din. One of the shadows on the sea backing took out its handkerchief and wiped its nose.

Prince Ferdinand William Otto lookad across at the other royal box, and caught his Cousin Hedwig's eye. She also had seen the handkerchief; she took out her own scrap of linen, and mimicked the shadow. Then, Her Royal Hignness the Archduchess Annunciata being occupied with the storm, she winked across at Prince Ferdinand William Otto.

In the opposite box were his two consins, the Princesses Hedwig and Hilda, attended by Hedwig's lady in waiting. Hedwig was eighteen. The crown prince liked Hedwig better than Hilds. Although she had been introduced formally to the court at the Christmas-eve ball, and had been duly presented by her grandfather, the king, with the usual string of pearls and her own carriage, she still ran off now and then to have ten with the crown prince and Miss Braithwaite in the school goom at the palace; and she could eat a great deal of bread and but-

The crown prince yawned, although It was but the middle of the afternoon. Catching Hedwig's eye, he ran his fingers up through his thick yellow bair and grinned. Hedwig blusted. She had confided to him once, while they were walking in the garden at summer palace, that she was thinking of being in love with a young lieutenant who was attached to the called Otto, for short, by the family, because he actually had eleven names -the prince had been much interested. For some time afterward he had bothered Miss Braithwaite to define being in love, but he had had no really satisfactory answer.

In pursuance of his quest for inquite fruitless so far after all. Lieu- frames? tenant Larisch only grew quite red as although he appeared not unwilling to hear Hedwig's name.

So now Ferdinand William Otto ran was a favorite gesture of the lieutenduchess, sitting well back, was nodding. Just outside the royal box, on the red velvet sofs, General Mettlich, asleep. His martial bosom, with its pencefully. Beside him lay the prince's crown, a small black derby hat.

Prince Ferdinand William Otto considered it all very wearlsome. If one could only wander around the corridor or buy a sandwich from the stand at prospect such a king! the foot of the great staircase-or, betstreet, alone, and purchase one of the despised! Olga, the wardrobe woman, came out from behind her counter and stood toy aeroplane, with yellow silk planes, looking down the marble staircase after the small flying figure.

The old soldier who rented opera glasses at the second landing, and who had left a leg in Bosnia, leaned over the railing. "Look at that!" he ex-claimed. "He will break a leg, the young rascall Once I could havebut there, he is safe! The good God watches over fools and children."

"It looked like the little prince," said the wardrobe woman. "I have seen him often-he has the same bright hair."

But the opera-glass man was not listening. He had drawn a long sausage from one pocket and a roll from the other, and now, retiring to a far window, he stood placidly entingbite of sausage, a bite of bread. His mind was in Bosnia, with his leg. And because old Adelhert's mind was in Bosnia, and because one hears with the mind, and not with the ear, he did not hear the sharp question of the sentry who ran down the stairs and paused for a second at the cloak-room. Well for Olga, too, that old Adelbert did not hear her reply.

"He has not passed here," she said, with wide and honest eyes, but with an ear toward old Adelbert. "An old gentleman came a moment ago and got a sandwich, which he had left in his overcoat. Perhaps this is whom you are seeking?"

The sentry cursed, and ran down the staircase, the nails in his shoes striking sharply on the marble.

Olga of the cloak room lenned over her checks, with her lips curved up in a smile, "The little one!" she thought. "And such courage! He will prank like the other children, and-God bless him and keep him!"

CHAPTER II.

Disgraced.

At eight o'clock that evening the Crown Prince Ferdinand William Otto approached the palace through the He approached it public square, slowly, for two reasons. First, he did not want to go back. Second, he was rather frightened. He had an idea that they would be disagreeable.

There seemed to be a great deal going on at the palace. Carriages were wooden rudder, its motive power rolling in under the stone archway vested in a tightly twisted rubber. One and, having discharged their contents, mostly gentlemen in uniform, were moving off with a thundering of hoofs that reached from the vaulted roof of the entrance. All the lights were on in the wing where his grandfather, make a great king! Let him have his English. "Did you see it go that the king, lived alone. As his grandfather hated lights, and went to bed early, Prince Ferdinand William Otto was slightly puzzled.

He was very dirty. His august face was streaked with soot, and his august hands likewise. His small derby hat was carefully placed on the very rolled it up. He decided, as he waited in the square, to put it on again. Miss Bratthwaite was very peculiar about collars,

Came a lull in the line of carriages. Prince Ferdinand William Otto took a long breath and started forward. As he advanced he stuck his hands in his pockets and swaggered a triffe. It was, as nearly as possible, an exact imitation of Bobby Thorpe's walk. And to keep up his courage, he quoted that young gentleman's farewell speech to himself: "What d' you care? They won't eat you, will they?"

Prince Ferdinand William Otto stood in the shadows and glanced across, The sentries stood like wooden men. but something was wrong in the court yard inside. The guards were all standing, and there seemed to be a great many of them. And just as he had made up his mind to take the plunge, so to speak, a part of his own regiment of cavalry came out from the court yard with a thundering of hoofs, wheeled at the street, and clattered

Very unusual, all of it,

The Crown Prince Ferdinand Otto felt in his pocket for his hundkerchief, and, moistening a corner with his tongue, wiped his face. Then he wiped his shoes. Then, with his hands in his trousers pockets, he sauntered into the light. The two sentries made no sign when they saw Ferdinand William Otto approaching. But one of them forgot to bring his musket to salute. He crossed himself instead. And something strained around the other sentry's lower jaw suddenly relaxed into a smile as his royal highness drew a hand from its refuge and saluted. He glanced at one, then at the other, rather sheepishly, hesitated between them, clapped his hat on more securely, and marched in.

"The young rascal!" said the secand sentry to himself. And by turning his head slightly-for a sentry tearns to see all around like a horse vithout twisting his neck-he watched the runnway into the palace. Prince Ferdinand William Otto went up the stone stnircuse. Here and there he passed guards who stared and vined that this referred to his hat, with the vision of Miss Braithwalte, his knees from shaking. There came to his ears, too, the oc- and drew a small breath of relief. And he would have known that relief fol-

> He was a very young man, in a uniform. He was boyish, and smiling, There was a dog beside him, and its hend was on his knee. Wherever one stood in the room, the eyes of the photograph gazed at one. The king knew this, and because he was quite old, and because there were few people to whom a king dares to speak his Inmost thoughts, he frequently spoke to the photograph. The older he grew, the more he felt, sometimes, as though it knew what he said.

"If they've got him," he said now to the picture, "it is out of my hands, and into yours, my boy."

Much of his life had been spent in waiting, in waiting for a son, in waiting for that son to grow to be a man, in waiting while that son in his turn loved and married and begot a manchild, in walting, when that son had dled a violent death, for the time when his tired hands could relinquish the cepter to his grandchild.

Quite suddenly the door opened. The old man turned his head. Just inside stood a very dirty small boy.

The Crown Prince Ferdinand William Otio was most terribly frightened. Everything was at sixes and sevens. Miss Braithwaite had been crying her head off, and on seeing him had fallen in a faint. Not that he thought it was a real faint. He had unmistakably seen her eyelids quiver. And when she came to she had ordered him no supper, and four pages of German translation, and to go to bed at seven o'clock instead of seventhirty for a week. All the time crying, too. And then she had sent him to his grandfather, and taken aromatic it?" ammonia.

His grandfather said nothing, but looked at him.

"Here-here I am, sir," said the grown prince from the door. The king drew a long breath. But

"Go on." "We like the same things, sir-the Pike's Penk-or-Bust, and all that,"

The king raised himself on his elow, "What was that?" he demanded. Prince Ferdinand William Otto alushed, and explained. It was Bobby's name for the peak at the top of the scenic rullway. He had been on the railway. He had been-his enthusiasm carried him away. His cheeks flushed. He sat forward on the edge of his chair, and gesticulated.

"I was awfully happy, sir," he ended 'It feels like flying, only safer. And the lights are pretty. It's like fairy-There were two or three times when it seemed as if we'd turn over, or leap the track. But we didn't."

The king lay back and thought. More han anything in the world he loved this boy. But the occasion demanded a strong hand. "You were happy," he said. "You were disobedient, you were causing grave anxiety and distress-and you were happy! The first duty of a prince is to his country. His first lesson is to obey laws. He must always obey certain laws. A king is but the servant of his people. Some day you will be the king. You are being trained for that high office now. And yet you would set the example of insubordination, disobedience, and reckless disregard of the feelings of others.

"Yes, sir," said Prince Ferdinand William Otto, feeling very small and ashamed.

"Not only that. You slipped away. You did not go openly. You sneaked off, like a thief. Are you proud of

At the door the crown prince turned and bowed. His grandfather's eyes were fixed on the two gold eagles over the door, but the photograph on the table appeared to be rmiling at him.

Until late that night General Mettlich and the king talked together. The king had been lifted from his bed and sat propped in a great chair. Above ficult. To say that he was tired of his shabby dressing gown his face showed gaunt and old. In a straight chair facing him sat his old friend and chancellor.

"What it has shown is not entirely had," said the king, after a pause, "The boy has initiative. And he made no attempt at evasion. He is essentially truthful." "What it has also shown, sire, is that no protection is enough. When I, who love the lad, and would-when I could sleep, and let him get away, as I did-" "The truth is," said the king, "we are both of us getting old." He tapped with his gnaried fingers on the blanket that lay over his knees. "The truth is also," he observed a moment later, "that the boy has very few pleasures. He is sione a great deal." General Metriich raised his shaggy head. Many years of wearing a sol-dler's cap had not injured his heavy gray hair. He had bristling eyebrows, white now, and a short, fighting mustache. When he was irritated, or disagreed with any one, his eyebrows came down and the mustache went up, Many years of association with his king had given him the right to talk to him as man to man. They even quarreled now and then. It was a brave man who would quarrel with old Ferdinand II.

So now his eyelerows came down and his mustache went up. "Howalone, sire?" "You do not regard that bigoted Four Torpedo Boats Are Seized, and Attempt is Made to Escape, but Two Are Sunk by Pursuing Battleship.

London.-General demoralization of Germany's population and widespread and growing disaffection in the German' army, accompanied by mutiny and desertions, are described in a dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from its Rotterdam correspondent.

The correspondent says that information reaching him is so sensational as to inspire skepticism, but declares he has received undoubted corroboration from nuthoritative sources.

He asserts that the Germany army is filled with despondency and seethslone the old man and old woman log with mutinous spirit, and that who live there have lost three sons alarming outbreaks have occurred in several units, principally Bavarian and Sitestun:

A huge number of desertions are occurring, the correspondent says, and it is estimated that there are more than 20,000 deserters in Berlin nione.

Large numbers are scattered throughout the country and the authorlties are having the greatest difficulty In trailing deserters owing to the connivance of the working classes. Nevertheless hundreds have been arrested and generally these have been sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment. A great number of imprisoned deserters, broken by solitary confinement, have been released and sent back to the ranks.

Disobedience and defiance of officers is common at the front, according to the correspondent's information, and a similar spirit is shown in the numition factories, where the workers deliberately are slowing up, with the result that the output has been seriously decreased.

Heavy Cannonading Heard. "It was reported from various places on the Danish and Norgegian coasts three weeks ago that heavy cannonad ing was heard from the North sea," says a dispatch from Christiania to the Times. "A few days later the bodies of German marines were washed up, most of them on the coast of Juriand, but no fighting was reported on either the British or German side,

So there was much speculation about these floating corpses, which bore life belts with the figures and initials of two different German torpedo boats.

An explanation is now given by the Aftenpost's correspondent at Copenhagen, who says a report was received yesterday from across the German frontier of a recent mutiny. German mayy crews refused to go aboard the U-boats to which they belong, and selzing four tornede boats set a course for Norway.

They were evertaken by a German warship and a regular fight ensued, with the result that at least two torpedo boats were sunk and the crews drowned or killed.

GERMANS BURY DEAD WITHOUT CLOTHING

Permit Only Paper to Be Wrapped About Bodies to Be Interred.

The Germans are expected to strip their dead before they bury them. Bodies are to be placed into the coffins without a stitch of clothing. They may be wrapped in paper, however, This is the only concession made to the relatives of the dead, whose feelings are hurt by the order.

Clothing is very scarce in Germany. Every scrap counts. The government has no use for sentimentalists who would squander garments on the dead while the living are without clothes, The rules and regulations regarding burials are not observed strictly enough by the population of Munich, says the Neueste Nachrichten. According to a report published by the mayor's office there were 936 men buried in Prince Albert coats and 1,300 men buried in suck coats during the year, while 136 women were buried in silk and 2,132 in woolen dresses.

In Munich the custom of hiring women who attend to washing and dressing the dead is in vogue. These women, the official attendants of the dead, have been ordered by the mayor to refuse their services wherever they are asked to put into the coffin a corpse clothed in anything but paper, These professional women are held responsible for the execution of the

New York.-The price of peace will be impartial justice to all nations, the instrumentality indispensable to secure it is a league of nations formed not before or after, but at the peace conference; and Germany as a member "will have to redeem her character not by what happens at the peace table, but by what follows," This was President Wilson's answer, given Friday night before an audience of Fourth Liberty Loan workers here to the recent peace talk from the central powers, although he did not refer specifically to the utterances of enemy

Shortly before the President started speaking, news of the further successes of American, British and French offensives on the western front reached the meeting at the Metropolitan opera house, and this gave dramatic point to Mr. Wilson's pereration-that "peace drives can be effectively neutralized and silenced only by showing that every victory of the nations associated against Germany brings the nations nearer the sort of peace which will bring security and reassurance to all peoples and make the recurrence of another such struggie of pitiless forces and bloodshed forever impossible, and that nothing else can."

"We are all agreed," he said, "that there can be no peace obtained by any kind of bargain or compromise with the governments of the central empires, because we have dealt with them already and have seen them deal with other governments that were parties to this struggle, at Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest. They have convinced us that they are without honor and do not intend Justice. They observe no covenants, accept no principle but force and their own inforest."

Five thousand persons who filled the Metropolitan opera house to capacity heard the President. Five minutes before his arrival a guard of soldiers, sailors and marines seated at the rear of the platform were suddenly ordered to attention. They arose with a smart click of rifles, the national colors were advanced, and the great audience became silent until the President, without other warning of his coming, walked on the stage, escarted by Benjamin Strong, rovernor of the federal reserve bank of New York. Then a tremendous burst of cheering broke loose, which caused the President, after taking his seat, to rise three times in acknows edgement.

Mr. Strong read to the audience a momary of late reports showing American troops' advances during the day in France.

"Our boys in France do not learn readily when to stop lighting," he added. "That is the spirit in which we must raise the Liberty Loan."

Cheers greeted the news of the American successes, particularly when Mr. Strong said the Yankee troops in their drive had reclaimed 100 square miles of territory for France.

BULGARIANS ARE IN FLIGHT

Franco-British Forces Closing Down on St. Quentin Despite Strong Resistance-Americans Shelling Metz-Austria's Peace Suggestion Promptly Rejected.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

With a regenerated and reorganized army, Serbia took the lead last week in smashing the Hun and his ailles, Aided by French and Greek contingents, the hard-fighting Serbians struck at the Saloniki front held by the Bulgurians and certain German units. They struck hard, too, and within three days had advanced 12 miles on a 20mile front, taking 50 towns, including the strongest of the enemy positions. At first the resistance was stubborn, but by Thursday the Bulgarians were reported in full retreat and the Serblans pursuing them day and night. The enemy threw in fresh divisions, but in vain, for they too were completely defeated. So swift were, the flight and the pursuit that the Serbians had not had time to count the great number of prisoners taken or to estimate the quantities of material that fell into their hands.

This Serbian advance by the end of the week was seriously menacing the city of Prilip, one of the chief bases of the central powers in Macedonia. It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that it may later be connected up | The airmen on both sides were extrawith the operations of the allies in Albania, of which little has been heard lately. A good many authorities long have held the opinion that the war can be brought to a successful end soonest by a great offensive in the Balkan region, cutting off Turkey and Bulgaria from their ailies and threatening Austrin from the south.

With the Franco-British pincers slowly but surely closing down on St. Quentin, the French and Americans in possession of the western end of Chemin-des-Dames and steadily pushing toward Laon and the Yankees firmly established on their new lines in Lorraine, shelling Metz and threatening the great Iron and coal fields of the Briey basin, the German high command last week was still clinging to the Hindenburg line through most of its length. The Huns had massed vast numbers of long-range guns and were resisting desperately, but their increasing dearth of man power was becoming more evident daily, and the prisoners taken, though well fed and clothed, were despondent and tired.

After several days of preparatory operations Field Marshal Haig on Wedneeday attacked on a 16-mile front northwest of St. Quentin, from Gouzeaucourt south of Holnon Wood. Before nightfall the British had smashed ahead to a depth of three miles, taking Priziere, La Verguiere, Epchy, Ronssoc. Villeret and other towns and bagging more than 6,000 prisoners. The primary object of the drive, which was made in a hard rainstorm, was to gain possession of the old British trench system of last March, running along an important ridge. Many of the best Eghting units in the German army were opposed to Halg's men, but the latter attained their object in the main and at some points went further than had hern expected. The artillery work of the Germans, especially with high veocity guns massed behind the St. Quentin canni, was more severe than for a long time before.

- Pist ---Simultaneously with Haig's attack, the French hit the Boches on a tenmile front south of St. Quentin, advancing more than a mile and taking four gillages and hundreds of prisoners, Military critics express no doubt of the ultimate fall of St. Quentin, but the enemy is sure to put up a long, trayed.

Stubbornly hanging on to the west end of the Chemin-des-Dames and improving their positions there, the French repulsed many fierce attacks last week and advanced toward Laon slong the southern edge of the St. Gobaln forest. The entire plateau southwest of Laon is under the fire of their artillery, and though they were moving forward with due caution, they showed no intentions of stopping.

On the new American front in French Lorraine the infantry activity during the week was confined mostly to operations for the solidifying of positions, though the Yankees did push ferward along the Meuse for a considerable gain. This brought Metz under the fire of their artillery and the bombardment of that great fortress city began at once and vigorously. It seems that the allies are now in a position to keep up the shelling of Metz during the fall and winter, if necessary, and thus its reduction, virtually impossible by direct attack, may be accomplished. The Germans now admit the importance of the American drive on the St. Miblel salient, but the deception of their people through the official reports continues, as exemplifled by the statement, one day last week, that American attacks on Haumont had been repulsed and the Yankees also had been beaten at Thinumont. At that time Haumont had been safely held by the Americans for three days and Thinumont was already five miles behind Pershing's lines. Fresnes, an important city, also was taken by the Yankees last week, and the line built by them now runs parallel with the Hindenburg line at an average distance of a mile and a half. Every day the German artillery has been deluging the old salient with explosive and gas shells, and the American gunners have replied most effectively, battering the towns held by the Huns and several times breaking up attempted infantry attacks, with severe loss to the enemy. ordinarily active and the Americans | the other party if it desired to recarried out a number of highly succeasful bombing expeditions over enemy territory. In one of these, however, a superior force was encountered and five of our planes were lost. Incidentally, the British reported that in the St. Quentin sector the Germans

--All along the west front the air fighting was most intense. In one day the British brought down 66 enemy planes and lost 16, which indicates the fierceness of the struggle for the mastery of the nir. The independent British nir squadrons kept up their fine work in the bombing of German cities, notably Mannheim, Metz-Sabions. Treves and Frankfort. This brings howls from the Huns which are music to the allied ear.

long and weighing 2,000 pounds.:

--The bolshevik forces in Russia, for which some victories were claimed early in the week, later were reported to be retreating on both the northern and southern fronts. The Czecho-Slovaks along the Volga continued their advance, and the fact that they captured Perm, capital of the government of that name, indicated they were in a fair way to effect the junction of the forces which are fighting in western Sibera with those which have been engaged in southeastern Russin. As was predicted, the Japanese censors do not permit much news to come from the allied expedition in Siberia, but what does come is satisfactory.

In Russia the reign of terror instituted by the bolsheviki to suppress the counter revolution continues and unknown numbers of the opponents of Lenine and Trotzky have been massacred. The American government last week issued a series of articles exposing those two precious rascals as the paid agents of Germany, giving the text of many secret documents obtained by an agent of the committee on public information. All this made intensely interesting rending, but no one in America except a few highbrow "intellectuals" is surprised by the facts revealed, and there doesn't seem any way to get those facts before the Russian people whom Lenine and Trotzky and their crew have tricked and be-

All the allied ministers who formerly were at Jassy, Roumania, including Charles Vopicka of America, have been arrested in Petrograd, according to a report reaching The Hague.

Austria's suggestion of a "nonbinding" conference of all the belligerents to make clear their war aims and peace demands met with the promptest kind of rejection by the allies, President Wilson taking the lend in refusing to consider the idea. In two sentences he replied that America's terms had been repeatedly and clearly stated and therefore no proposal for such a conference would be entertained by it. In this Mr. Wilson was heartily supported by the entire nation, and his position was also thoroughly approved by the allies of the United States. Austria's suggestion, made with the consent of Berlin, admittedly was merely a "peace flyer," and there was little expectation in Hunland that it would reelve favorable consideration. No better reception was accorded the German offer of peace to Belgium. With unblushing effrontery Berlin nsked the nation the Huns have ravished to drop out of the conflict, not even suggesting that they would make reparation for the horrible crimes they have committed there, and making the insidious proposal that the "Flemish question" should be considered and the Flemish minority that aided the German invaders should not be penalized Belgium, of course, said "No" to all this claptrap.

The political situation in Hungary is becoming extremely critical and the opposition to the government is growing bolder. Its leader, Count Karolyi, is quoted in disputches as declaring that the central powers should accept President Wilson's 14 peace points as a basis for negotiations and that the trenties of Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest should be abrogated. The pope seems to have scented chances of peace once again, for it was stated at the Vatican that if a diplomatic representation should be received by him from one of the parties, he would ask ceive such a representation. -- 100 ---

Substantial support for President Wilson's peace plans was received from the labor conference of the allied nations in London when the international relations committee recommended that the conference subscribe to the 14 points formulated by Wilson, "thus adopting a policy of clearness and moderation as opposed to a policy dietated exclusively by changes on the war map."

-- 103 --According to figures received up to date, the total registration of the country under the new draft law was at lenst 12,800,000, or 100,000 above the estimated total. Of these the government proposes to call to the colors 2,700,000, to be added to the 5,200,000 men already under arms. It is planned to have 80 divisions in France before next summer, and to finance so great an undertaking the war department has asked congress to provide it immediately with an additional $7,000,-000,000 in cash. Granting this, the administration and congress has the choice of increasing the amount of taxes provided by the revenue bill from $5,000,000,000 to $10,000,000,000, or raising all the additional $7,000,000,-000 from the sale of bonds and abandoning the plan of raising one-third of the cost of the war by titxation.

The various features of the revenue bill were swiftly approved by the house of representatives, one after another. Representative Moore of Pennsylvania proposed a tax of $3 a hale on cotton, but the Southern numbers rose in a hody to the defense of the unin crop of their part of the country.

Goats Save Bables.

The vocation of a certain Virginia minister is to save souls. For up avocation he saves lives. He confines his soul-saving operations to his congregation, while his life-saving activities cover the state at large. A large number of robust, vigorous bables awe milch goats which this minister made merly puny and sickly infants. The novel scheme which this goat keeper practices is to rent out fresh does to families with sickly children. The renter pays a given amount for each day's use of the doe, furnishes and feeds materials in such amount as the owner directs and signs a contract which makes him responsible for the full value of the goat in case of accident. The renter also pays the expressage on the goat from the point of origin to and from his home.

In the main, these goats are maintained at a cost of approximately 5 cents a day; oats, corn, clover and nifalfa hay, browse and sanitary table scraps constitute their ration. This. of course, is contrary to the general supposition that the average milch gost possesses a fin-can appetite and a back-alley disposition. As a substitute cow for bables the milch extremely efficient, says the United States department of agriculture. She will produce consistently for a period of from eight to ten months between two and two and one-half pounds of good quality milk a day, which is highly effective where it in used intelligently in decreasing infant morfality due to malnutrition.

Food Inspectors Help.

The housewife can see at a giance how much food she is to get for her money when it is in package form and Inbelod in accordance with the provisions of the federal food and drugs act, say the officials of the bureau of chemistry of the United States department of agriculture, charged with the enforcement of that law. The federal food and drugs act provides that all food in package form, shipped into interstate or foreign commerce, shall bear on the labels a plain and conspicuous statement of the quantity of the contents of the package, in terms of weight, measure or numerical count.

Pederal food inspectors are always on the watch for interstate shipment of food in package form, to see that the labels tell the truth with respect to the quantity of food in the packages. Several samples are taken from each shipment in order that their average weight may be determined. If the packages are found to be short in weight or measure, the party responsible for the shipment may be prosecuted under the criminal section of

The act does not apply "o toods which are sold and consumed within the state where produced or manufactured, but to those that are shipped from one state to another, or to ur from a foreign country, or manufactured or sald within the District of Columbia or a territory. Many states have not weight or measure laws, however, which protect the housewife from short weight or measure in parkage foods produced and sold within the State. Federal and state food officials ro-operate in the work of enforcing these laws in order that alones which cannot be reached under one law may be corrected under the other.

KINGS HAVE NO LUCK

Head Man of Gypsy Band Goes to Work. It's hard times for the kings. Constantine got let out. Nicholas was given the gate und then lost his head, Bulgarla is looking for its lost idei, and now Cheveland mourns its only king. The head man, named King, of a hand of Gypsies, this week got a job and possed up his duties watching the women of the camp do the work. The Gypsy lender was brought into court on a loating charge and was told to get a job or the state would give him one behind the bars. He took the lunch from the judge and has started real work in a munition factory. His forsaken crown is vacual, as the others in the camp do not care for the chance of having to follow in his footsteps.
