

SAN PEDRO OIL Co.

Patagonia Now Has Live Oil Company Ready For Business.

WILL SINK THREE WELLS 5000 Feet

The humble little village of Patagonia has sprung suddenly into the lime light. There is no nook or corner of the United States which has not felt the shock of the wonderful oil discoveries in Texas. New knowledge, acquired in recent years, has shown that oil pools exist where formerly least expected, and advances in geological science have proven that oil can be located fairly surely by surface indications. The vast fortunes which have been amassed by oil discoveries, together with increased knowledge and consequent cheapening of the cost of discovery have inspired capitalists everywhere to be on the lookout for oil indications. Some of the best oil fields have been found in marine beds where the sea once rolled its stormy billows. A large part of the State of Arizona bears abundant evidence of prehistoric ocean beds. These two facts caused thinking men to believe that oil might exist in Southern Arizona, strong minded captains of industry, ever alert for returns on capital, who were willing to put up their own money in advance, got busy. Geologists of known standing were directed to make investigations. Reports being favorable, capitalists of Patagonia and Tucson joined hands pooled capital, leased holdings, and are now in the field as the San Pedro Oil and Gas Company. Reports indicate some of their best holdings lie in Santa Cruz County, near the line of Pima. Men of standing in other lines of business compose the company. And while the Patagonian has not had the opportunity of interviewing all the members, those who have spoken express the strongest faith in obtaining oil. So much so that definite plans have been worked out for the sinking of not fewer than three wells to a depth of 5,000 feet.

One of the novelties of the lease contracts of this company,—which is a departure,—stipulates that any and all minerals discovered become the property of the company. Coal is known to exist on some of their holdings, and being in a mineral belt, ores and precious metals may be encountered. "Safety first" being an article in the company's financial creed, if artesian water only is found, it becomes the property of the company, and may be utilized to great value as agricultural possibilities of Southern Arizona are scarcely exceeded by the mineral. Lengthy reports by competent geologists are summed up in one terse sentence, viz., "conditions and indications justify the expense of drilling."

So Patagonia has a real oil company ready for real business, composed of real business men of Patagonia, among whom may be named O. F. Ashburn, W. P. Capchert, A. D. Sydenham, H. T. Wilson and others. A limited amount of stock will be allowed to pass into the hands of the public at par, $1.00. The prospective purchaser of oil stock could possibly do no better than to invest in this home company, for should the company succeed, even in uncovering hidden treasures other than oil, the effect upon local business and local real estate will bring back good dividends on the money invested. The powerful searchlight for oil has been turned on Southern Arizona,—Santa Cruz County,—and these men are determined to find out the truth.

Another Good Thing For Patagonia

Work To Begin Soon On State Highway, Nogales To Fairbank

Messrs. Van Frank and Montgomery engineers, under instructions from Phoenix, have been at work for some time on a state highway from Nogales to Fairbanks. It seems that the particular location of the route is largely up to the engineer in charge, Mr. Van Frank, his duty being to find the shortest route which will enable him to eliminate as far as possible short curves and heavy grades. With these objectives in view it is thought the line will lay via Patagonia, Sonoita, Huachuca, etc., that section between Patagonia and Sonoita being already practically adopted. At Nogales this highway will connect with the Nogales Tucson highway, and at Fairbanks with Tombstone, thence to Douglas or Tucson. Thus when finished the isolation of the Patagonia section of country will come to an end. The highway will also be of great local value, rendering Patagonia more easily accessible by farmers, stockmen and miners.

The U. S. Government, it is thought, will approve the line now conceived, as it will be of military value to the government.

Mr. Van Frank hopes to see men at work on the Patagonia-Sonoita section within a short time.

Babies At The Fair

Have you read your Fair book? It's interesting all the way through. Regarding babies at the Fair, it has this to say:—

Do your bit by bringing your baby to the contest, and make him a better baby. The large number rejected by the army physicians as unfit to serve their country from those who volunteered and were drafted, shows the great number of the present generation who are not as efficient, capable and happy as they might have been if their parents had given them the necessary care during infancy. Do your best to find out if your baby has any defects by entering the Better Babies Contest and then remedy them by following out the free instructions which will be given. Your baby and your country will thank you. Conserve your baby.

Class 23.

The man who takes the prize at the Santa Cruz County Fair, Sonoita, Sept. 25-27, for class 23, which is a general exhibit from one farm and grown by one individual, and which first prize is $100.00, shall be given space in these columns commensurate with his efforts and success, if the Patagonian can get an interview. The little ins and outs ups and downs, of how he achieves this success will be of the greatest importance to all the farmers of Santa Cruz county. The prize is not too heavy as a general exhibit is expensive to prepare, and great effort in producing the stuff will have been put forth. It is this class of farmers who set the standard, and are, unwittingly, public benefactors. Ye scribe is going to "lay for him."

September 14 has been designated by Gov. Campbell as "College Sunday," on which day pastors everywhere are asked to devote at least one sermon to the cause of education. The Governor urges all parents to patronize Arizona colleges instead of sending children abroad at heavy expense.

J. D. BURROUGHS.

Information has been received in Tucson of the death August 29 at Burbank, Cal., of the Rev. J. D. Burroughs, for a number of years pastor of the First Baptist church of Tucson. Mr. Burroughs, with his wife, left here in 1912, after a pastorate of three years, going to San Pedro, Cal. From that point he was transferred to a pastorate at Palo Verde, Ariz. In March of this year he was forced to relinquish his work, because of failing health and went to Santa Monica to rest and recuperate. He had been at Burbank but a short time when his death occurred. Interment took place there Tuesday.

CRUELY printed in pencil on a piece of dirty brown paper, and stuck there with a sailor's rusty knife, was this message. And well they knew what it meant. The girl they had sought for days and believed to be lost—now they knew her to be worse than lost.

Calypso, with her pure, olive skin and black, silken hair—Calypso, the beautiful Spanish girl who had masked as a boy and begged to be allowed to go with the rest on their perilous journey—

Should he give up the treasure that he and his party—some of whom had paid the supreme price—had fought and repeatedly risked their lives for; should he give up this wealth of gold and jewels for the girl he adored, or trust to mercy of his enemies for her safety?

Segregate Forest Lands?

There was a report this week of a strong petition to Secretary Lane signed by many citizens of Santa Cruz County, asking that certain forest reserves be segregated and declared subject to homestead entry. Just where the particular reserve lies could not be learned, nor could the Patagonian find anyone who had signed the petition. That such a petition is being circulated with the stated objects in view, was confirmed, however. Perhaps some of our readers will do us the kindness of shedding a little light on the subject.

Sugar Famine

Government Intervention Knocks Out Profits And Wholesalers Refuse To Handle.

There was considerable famine of sugar in Patagonia this week. Local merchants reported that they could not get it. On investigation the cause of the trouble was reported to be government intervention in prices, placing the war time price of 11c, which local merchants say, is less than cost to them. CHAPTER XIV—Continued.

Lying there, he made swift calculations. The quarry, no longer of use to the builder, was reasonably sure to be abandoned. In all probability some sort of a stone-cutter's shed would be found nearby. It would provide shelter from the fine rain that was falling and from the chill night air.

"The way I feel at present," she said, jerkily, "I shall never, never from this instant till the hour in which I die, let go of your coat-tails, Mr. Barnes." Sutting the action to the word, her fingers resolutely fastened, not upon the tail of his coat but upon his sturdy arm.

"Heaven bless you," he exclaimed, suddenly exalted. "And, since you put it that way, I shall always contrive to be within arm's length."

And so, together, they ventured along the edge of the pit until they reached the wagon road at the bottom. As he had expected, there was a ramshackle shed hard by. It was not much of a place, but it was deserted and a safe shelter for the moment.

A workman's bench lay on its side in the middle of the earthen floor. He righted it and drew it over to the boarding. She laid her head against his shoulder and sighed deeply.

"Thank you," she said, and promptly settled herself against his shoulder. "It is better," she sighed.

"Would you mind telling me something about yourself, Miss Cameron? I should like to know whether I am to address you as princess, duchess, or—just plain Miss."

"I am more accustomed to plain Miss, Mr. Barnes, than to either of the titles you would give me."

"Don't you feel that I am deserving of a little enlightenment?" he asked. "I am working literally as well as figuratively in the dark. Who are you? Why were you a prisoner at Green Fancy? Where and what is your native land?"

"Mr. Barnes, I cannot answer any one of your questions without jeopardizing a cause that is dearer to me than anything else in all the world. I am sorry. I pray God a day may soon come when I can reveal everything to you—and to the world. I am of a strike country; I am trying to serve the unhappy house that has ruled it for centuries and is now in the direst peril. The man you know as Loeb is a prince of that house. I may say this to you, and it will serve to explain my position at Green Fancy: he is not the prince I was led to believe awaited me there. He is the cousin of the man I expected to meet, and he is the enemy of the branch of the house that I would serve. Do not ask me to say more."

owners, Mr. Barnes—a loyal prince of the blood. "But why here?" he insisted.

"He was to take them into Canada, and thence, in good time, to the palace of his ancestors."

"I am to understand, then, that not only you but the committee you speak of, fell into a carefully prepared trap. The treachery, therefore, and its inception in the loyal nest. You were betrayed by a friend."

"I am sure of it," she said bitterly. "If this man Sprouse does not succeed in restoring the—oh, I believe I shall kill myself, Mr. Barnes."

"What is the real object of the conspiracy up there, Miss Cameron?"

"You must bear with me a little longer, Mr. Barnes," she said, appealingly. "I cannot say anything now."

"You said that tomorrow night would be too late. What did you mean by that?"

"Don't move!" came from the darkness outside. "I have my gun leveled. I heard my name taken in vain. Thanks for the blessing. I was wondering whether you would say something pleasant about me—and, thank the good Lord, I was patient. But I'd advise you both to sit still just the same."

A chuckle rounded out the gentle admonition of the invisible Irishman.

CHAPTER XV. Large Bodies Move Slowly—But Mr. Sprouse Was Smaller Than Average.

There was not a sound for many seconds. She was the first to speak.

"I am ready to return with you, Mr. O'Dowd," she said distinctly. "There must be no struggle, no bloodshed. Anything but that."

"O'Dowd spoke out of the darkness: 'You forget that I have your own word for it that you'll be a dead woman before the day is over. Wouldn't it be better for me to begin shooting at once and spare your soul the everlasting torture that would begin immediately after your self-produced decease?'"

"Easy, easy, my dear man," cautioned O'Dowd. "Keep your seat. Don't be deceived by my infernal Irish humor. It is my way to be always polite, agreeable and—prompt. I'll shoot in a second if ye move one step outside that cabin."

"O'Dowd, you haven't the heart to drag her back to that beast of a—"

"Hold hard! We'll come to the point without further palavering. Where are ye dragging her yourself, ye rascal?"

"To a place where she will be safe from insult, injury, degradation—"

"Well, I have no fault to find with ye for that," said O'Dowd. "Bedad, I didn't believe you had the nerve to tackle the job. You may be interested to know that up to the moment I left the house your absence had not been noticed, my dear Miss Cameron. And as for you, my dear Barnes, your visit is not even suspected. How the devil did ye do it, Barnes?"

"Are you disposed to be friendly, O'Dowd?" demanded Barnes. "If you are not, we may just as well fight it out now as later on."

"You are not to fight!" she cried in great agitation. "What are you doing? Put it away! Don't shoot!"

"Is it a gun he is pulling?" inquired O'Dowd calmly. "And what the deuce are you going to aim at, me hearty? I have a bull's-eye lantern with me. From the luxurious seat behind this rock I could spot ye in a second. Having said as much I now propose arbitration. Would ye mind handing over that tin box in exchange for my polite thanks and a courteous goodbye to both of ye?"

"We have no box of any description, Mr. O'Dowd," cried she triumphantly. "Thank heaven, he got safely away!"

"Do you mean to tell me you came away without the—your belongings, Miss Cameron?"

"They are not with me," she replied. Her grasp on Barnes' arm tightened. "Oh, isn't it splendid? They did not catch him. He—" struggling out of the night when they stole across the road above Hart's Tavern and made their way through the stable yard to the rear of the house. His one thought was to get her safely inside the Tavern.

The door was locked. He delivered a series of resounding kicks upon its stout face. Revolver in hand, he faced about and waited for the assault of the men who, he was sure, would come plunging around the corner of the building in response to the racket. But there was no attack.

"Well, what the—?" Then his gaze alighted on the lady. "For the love of—!" began the embarrassed Dillingford. "What the de— I say, can't you see that I'm not dressed? What the—"

"Give me that lantern," said Barnes, and snatched the article out of the unresisting hand. "Show me the way to Miss Thackeray's room, Dillingford. No time for explanations."

"Well, for the love of—"

"I will take you to Miss Thackeray's room," said Barnes, leading her swiftly through the narrow passage. "She will make you comfortable for the—that is until I am able to secure a room for you. Come on, Dillingford."

Miss Thackeray was awake. Through the closed door she asked what on earth was the matter.

"I have a friend here—a lady. Will you dress as quickly as possible and take her in with you for a little while?"

There was no immediate response from the inside. Then Miss Thackeray observed, quite coldly: "I think I'd like to hear the lady's voice, if you don't mind. I recognize yours perfectly, Mr. Barnes, but I am not in the habit of opening my—"

"I guess I don't need to dress," said Miss Thackeray, and opened her door. "Come in, please. I don't know who you are or what you've been up to, but there are times when women ought to stand together. And what's more, I shan't ask any questions."

She closed the door behind the unexpected guest, and Barnes gave a great sigh of relief.

"Say, Mr. Barnes," said Miss Thackeray, several hours later, coming upon him in the hall, "I guess I'll have to ask you to explain a little. She's a nice, pretty girl, and all that, but she won't open her lips about anything. She says you will do the talking. I'm a good sport, you know, and not especially finicky, but I'd hate to—"

"How is she? Is she resting? Does she seem—"

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

President About to Start on His Trip to Tell People About the Peace Treaty.

LIVING COST IS INVOLVED

Opponents of Pact Propose Many Amendments to Keep America From "Foreign Entanglements" —Montenegro Revolts Against Serbian Rule —Palmer Predicts Lower Prices.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

Being satisfied that economic conditions the world over absolutely depend on the ratification of the peace treaty, and decidedly disturbed by the violent assaults on that pact in the senate committee on foreign relations, President Wilson determined that his speaking tour of the country could not be much longer postponed. He announced that he would start on Wednesday, September 3, and would visit about 50 of the principal cities, being absent from Washington about 25 days. At San Francisco he will review the Pacific fleet. It was said in Washington that the president considered the trip of greater importance than any function arranged for the reception of General Pershing, who is about to come home.

The peace treaty is by no means the only subject on which Mr. Wilson will address the people. He is much exercised by the labor situation, especially as it applies to the railroads, and will take the opportunity to try to impress on the workers the wisdom of avoiding strikes in order to allay unrest and restore normal conditions and thus help bring down the cost of living.

Some half a dozen of the most stubborn opponents of the peace treaty in the senate also will leave Washington during the week to appeal to the country to uphold them in the position they have taken. Among them will be Senators Johnson, Foiden, Borah and Reed. They are not going to trail the president, but will expend their efforts mainly in states whose senators are classed among the mild reservationists. These senators, they hope, can be forced to join the group of extremists. The latter are now openly trying to defeat not only the League of Nations covenant but the main body of the treaty. With this end in view the foreign relations committee, which they control, has adopted a series of amendments to the treaty offered by Senator Fall. These not only would restore Shantung directly to China, but would exclude the United States from all the interallied commissions set up by the pact except that on reparations. Lodge and his followers hold that the treaty, even if drastically amended, would leave the United States liable to become embroiled in the controversies of Europe and Asia.

This action of the committee was bitterly assailed in the senate by Democrats and by Republicans of the "mild reservation" group, and it was predicted that the amendments would not be accepted by the senate. Senator McCumber especially attacked the Shantung amendment, declaring it was the greatest blow that could be struck at the real interests of China. Senator Borah replied that the Shantung settlement was indefensible from the standpoint of international morals and common decency.

In this connection the fact that Dr. Paul Reinsch, our minister to China, has just resigned is significant. It is understood in Washington that he found his position in Peking untenable on account of the approval of the Shantung settlement by the American peace delegates, since, according to the general belief, he had a good deal to do with persuading China to enter the war on promises of American support. Another related story came from Washington to the effect that the Shantung affair has caused a breach between the president and Colonel House. It is said Mr. Wilson took the advice of House in the matter, rejecting that of the other members of the American delegation, and that now the Texan is in disfavor and is resting in London preparatory to coming home. Naturally, those close to the president denied the tale, saying House was in London helping the British officials in the organization of the League of Nations.

The near East does not surrender its supremacy among trouble-making regions. The Turks continue to massacre the Armenians; the Bulgarians and Greeks are at swords' points over Thrace; the Jugo-Slavs and Italians are getting ready to fight over the possession of Fiume, and now the whole of Montenegro has broken out in revolt against the rule of the Serbians. The latter are using strong measures to suppress the revolt, but the national spirit of the Montenegrins has reawakened and fighting is general throughout the country. Just how the forced inclusion of Montenegro in the new state of Jugo-Slavia, against its will, is squared with the principle of self-determination never has been explained to the world.

Rear Admiral Bristol, commander of the American naval forces in Turkey, warned the Porte not long ago that the massacres of Armenians must cease. This action aroused some criticism in the supreme peace council, because the United States has not yet accepted the mandate over any parts of the Turkish empire; but the vexation of the French and British was allayed when Mr. Polk explained that the warning, though it came from President Wilson, was unofficial and was transmitted in an informal way by Admiral Bristol. The British troops are being withdrawn from Armenia and it is predicted that unless the country is strongly policed by foreign troops several hundred thousands of Armenians will either starve or be slaughtered by the Turks, Kurds, Tartars and Georgians. Even now these peoples are greatly hindering the work of the American relief commission.

A new government in Hungary has not yet been formed, and though Archduke Joseph was forced to relinquish his control, his premier, Friedrich, asserts he is still favored by a majority of the people and will retain the leadership.

In Upper Silesia conditions are reported much improved. Most of the miners have resumed work and the fighting between the Poles and Germans has grown less. The Fifth and Fiftieth regiments of American infantry, now in the United States, have been ordered to Silesia to help in policing that country during the plebiscite provided for by the peace treaty. A resolution protesting against this was introduced in congress by Wood of Indiana, who said the work should be done by European troops.

Russian bolsheviks last week claimed two considerable victories—the capture of Pskov, southwest of Petrograd, and of Kamishin, on the Volga. General Denikine, the anti-bolshevik leader in southern Russia, who occupied Odessa, reported steady progress into the central part of the country, and the Kolchak forces denied that they had evacuated Omsk. Representatives of the people of north Russia, assembled at Archangel, have sent to President Wilson a cable urging that the allied armed support be not withdrawn lest they fall prey to the bolsheviks. However, the president has said that the American troops would be brought home as soon as possible. The peace conference has been trying to devise means to protect the north Russians, but has not arrived at any definite plan.

After killing several bandits, including, according to report, the leader of the gang that kidnaped the American aviators, the American expedition into Mexico retraced its steps. At first it was said this was because the "hot trail" had been obliterated by rains, but afterward it was admitted that the expedition had encountered Mexican troops and withdrew in order to avoid a clash. If anything of solid benefit was accomplished it is not yet apparent.

General applause was accorded President Wilson's action in refusing to grant to the railway shopmen more than a slight increase of wages, and his statement explaining his course and appealing to the men, and to all workers, to stop striking and get to work to increase production and thereby help reduce the cost of living. He declared it vital to public welfare that demands for higher wages, "unwisely made and passionately insisted on," should cease, and that there should be a truce in industrial disputes until intelligent settlements can be made. In this he was supported by Warren S. Stone, chief of the engineers, whose statement implied that the shopmen, if he insisted on striking, would not be helped by the four great railway brotherhoods. The leaders of the shopmen rejected the settlement offered by President Wilson and ordered that the locals take a vote on the question.

In his statement Mr. Wilson called the present a "temporary situation which will last, in all probability, only for a limited time," and in so far as the cost of the necessities of life is concerned Attorney General Palmer agrees with him. Mr. Palmer believes the price of almost every necessity will be lower next year than this, and that persons who buy clothing and other articles now for next year will be fooled and are only helping to keep prices high. Reduction will be brought about, he thinks, by the activities of the government against profiteers and hoarders, the operation of fair price committees, and especially by increased production. He sees in the arguments that induce people to buy now an organized propaganda promoted by greedy dealers.

The department of justice announced it was meeting with success in obtaining from shoe manufacturers a promise to fix maximum prices on shoes, and that in the matter of food-stuffs reports indicated a slight downward tendency, not yet sufficient to be reflected in the retail market. In the great food centers, however, there were considerable declines in prices, which perhaps were to be attributed in part to the expressed intention of the war department to open retail shops in a number of cities. These markets not only will dispose of the army's surplus stores, but will be kept open for an indefinite time for the sale direct to the people of supplies which the war department will purchase at wholesale, according to the present plan. This, of course, aroused the opposition of the retail dealers, who asserted that no government agency is authorized by law to conduct such a business.

The railroads of the Pacific coast were tied up for a number of days by a strike and the officials of the unions had ordered the men to return to work under penalty of suspension. They were warned by Director General Hines that the government would take over the operation of the lines if they did not at once resume their positions, and that anyone who interfered with the use of railroad property would be dealt with for having committed an offense against the United States.

The committee of the steel and iron workers, which was given power to call a strike unless concessions were granted by the United States Steel corporation, was twice refused an audience by Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the executive committee of the corporation, being told to put its demands in writing. Samuel Gompers, who had just returned from Europe, at once took a hand in this serious affair and it was announced that the executive committee of the American Federation of Labor would consider Mr. Gary's attitude and make recommendations to the committee of steel men on the advisability of calling a strike.

Any idea that Uncle Sam did not intend to enforce the emergency prohibition law was dispelled by numerous raids on liquor dealers in Chicago, New York and elsewhere. It was a notorious fact that intoxicating drinks could be bought in many of the larger cities, at least, and the saloonkeepers had grown carelessly brazen. They were brought to their senses by arrests and indictments, and gentlemen of bibulous propensities were again forced to draw on their private stocks.

Birdless Prairies of the Northwest.

Those of us who have lived in the East among the feathered songsters that make their summer homes among the leafy bowers of forest trees realize how few and far between are the bird notes of the West. One may travel the prairies for days and meet with less than half a dozen varieties. Especially in this part of the country is it desirable that we should conserve what we have left of the feathered tribes and seek to induce others to visit us. A birdless country is something difficult to picture; it is not an impossibility should we fail to respect the laws now provided for the perpetuation of the migratory and other species.—Culgary Herald.

Will Preserve Historic Spots. The western front is to retain some of its battlefields, at least, as war memorials. The decision of the French government to preserve in their present condition selected sites, and to prohibit any alteration will be welcomed by many who feared that the disgusting and mercenary hands of the cafe proprietors, the souvenir sellers, the restaurants and the hotel keepers would obliterate historic spots in their efforts to provide attractions for the coming throngs of tourists. Among the places already decided upon are the forts at Verdun, the trenches of Soissons, the underground mazes of Montquert farm, the ruins of Bapaume, and the mangled remains of Pozieres.

Lift off Corns!
Doesn't hurt a bit and Freezone costs only a few cents.

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin calluses from bottom of feet.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store; apply a few drops upon the corn or callus. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!—Adv.

Living Wage in Paris $975 a Year.

As the absolute minimum for maintaining a man and wife in Paris under the present cost of living, $975 a year is the estimate made after a detailed investigation by the socialist newspaper L'Oeuvre. This allows for the smallest quantity of food capable of keeping them in health and permits of no extra expenses, such as use of tubes, omnibuses, the purchase of newspapers, pleasures, or even the replacement of worn-out household articles. The possibility of obtaining supplies at figures so low as those taken is, however, disputed.

Walking for Pleasure.

The old-fashioned person who used to walk mile after mile on pleasant Sunday afternoons through the countryside, has practically disappeared. This is the inevitable conclusion drawn by anyone who still pursues this ancient pastime and who has spent Sunday after Sunday drilling by foot over macadam and dirt roads frequented by automobilists and an occasional farm hand traveling to a neighbor's.

Walking for the sake of the walk has nearly passed out, along with the one-horse rig, the glass-encased artificial flowers in the parlor and half-covered furniture. It had its day before the bicycle and the automobile and with the advent of these quicker, easier means of transportation it dropped from the human scheme of things with a dull thud.—Omaha News.

Concrete "Piles."

The piles used for a wharf inside the new pier at Burnie, Tasmania, are concrete tubes or pipes 30 feet long and 4½ feet in diameter, the wall being one foot thick. The pipes are produced in a steel cylinder, which is placed on four wheels, and rotated by an electric motor at the rate of 250 to 300 revolutions per minute. As the centrifugal force throws out the water, each length of pipe being completed in about fifteen minutes. To get the required height, these sections are placed one upon another, with cement between, and an eight-inch steel band is placed over the joint. The hollow center is filled with sand.

Proof that Some Women do Avoid Operations

Mrs. Etta Dorion, of Ogdensburg, Wis., says:

"I suffered from female troubles which caused piercing pains like a knife through my back and side. I finally lost all my strength so I had to go to bed. The doctor advised an operation but I would not listen to it. I thought of what I had read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and tried it. The first bottle brought great relief and six bottles have entirely cured me. All women who have female trouble of any kind should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

How Mrs. Boyd Avoided an Operation.

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well.

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. MARIE BOYD, 1421 6th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

TAI SHAN A SACRED PLACE

Chinese Mountain Said to Be the Oldest Permanent Place of Worship on Earth.

There are five sacred mountains in China, and the most sacred of all is Tai Shan, the Great Mountain, said to be the oldest permanent place of worship in the world.

Since those days of simple worship, many temples and shrines have been built on Tai Shan's slopes.

The journey up the mountainside is accomplished by the traveler partly in a swinging chair supported by Chinese bearers and partly on foot.

Here there are more temples and thick incense and grave old priests who announce a pilgrim's presence to the gods by ringing deep-toned bells.

Brother to the Mosquito.

The prolonged drought has produced a prolific host of insects, and certain species of gnats are developing a disconcerting interest in ankles, says London Daily Mail.

An official at the Natural History museum, South Kensington, states that the chief offender is a fly insect bearing the long name of Ochlerotatus dorsalis, which breeds in estuaries and explores inland.

Another bloodthirsty gnat is the Pulicaris, which is labeled at the museum as particularly troublesome in the evening.

Mr. Carr, who is president of the Durham Hosiery mills, goes on: "I thought in my youth that rules made order and that a certain military discipline was essential; that it was foolish to humor people and all that, nor was I going to recognize certain local traditions about days on which no work should be done.

For in the effort to preserve her equilibrium the shoulders are thrown forward, depressing the chest; breathing is interfered with, and that means poorer blood and a final decrease in vitality. YOUTH HAS MUSICAL GENIUS

Willy Ferrero, 13 Years Old, and American Born, Is Capable Leader of Orchestra.

Willy Ferrero, 13, who leads 100-piece orchestras in selections of Wagner, Beethoven, Rossini, Grieg and others, is an American and was born in Portland, Me. The child has attracted the attention of Europe since he was 4 years old, but it was only recently that his American birth was revealed by his parents, who are Italians.

The lad was taken to Italy whither his parents were returning to take up their residence in their old home in Turin. When Willy was 4 he began his musical career, leading an orchestra in the Piffes Bergere in Paris. A year later he appeared in the Costanza theater, Rome, where for the first time he led an orchestra of 100 pieces.

The child took his orchestra before Emperor Nicholas in 1913 and conducted two concerts for the monarch. In the same year his orchestra was filling an engagement in London, and he was commanded to appear before Queen Alexandra at Marlborough house. He appeared before Pope Benedict XV in 1916. In April, 1915, just before Italy's declaration of war, Willy was presented with the gold medal by the Italian minister of education after he had made a successful appearance in the Augustino, where he had conducted an orchestra and chorus aggregating 500 participants.

To this day at Weissenstein stands a monument to his memory and that of its brilliant young chief. No wonder Marshal Foch takes pleasure in recalling Lazare Hoche to his countrymen. Of Hoche it is said that he once proudly wrote to the minister for war of his day, "Je suis la patrie." The French of the present century would throw up their hats at such a sentiment as enthusiastic as the contemporaries of Hoche and Rouget de Lisle. With the great mass of them, though they do not perhaps express it so freely, Foch is "la patrie" in the sense that he certainly stands for them as "la Victoire" personified.

How About Minerals?

We note no reference in the Santa Cruz Fair catalogue to a mineral display at the Fair. Perhaps a mineral display has no place at such fairs, but it occurs to us that, so much as mining is at this time our leading industry, it would not be a bad thing to have on exhibit a fine line of sample ores from over the county, with a competent miner or mineralogist in charge to explain and make them interesting to the public. The State maintains schools for the teaching of agriculture, and also mining. Why not push our mining industry? A single visitor to the fair may be the medium through which thousands of dollars may be invested in mineral resources here, by simply becoming interested in a good mineral display.

Patronize The Movie

For some our best educators have been endeavoring to have the moving picture installed in our public schools. This means that these educators have recognized in the movie one of the most powerful educational factors extant. The U. S. Government has found in them a means of reaching the masses in a way which no other known means will do.

In Patagonia money has been invested and strong efforts put forth to provide a place of education as well as of amusement. Our small children are all uneducated. The public school teacher and the preacher have power of a certain kind in the teaching of science and morals, but they cannot approach the movie in getting—not NEXT to, but INTO,—the child's mind and heart.

Last Saturday night in particular, Manager Gallagher of the Gardner Theater put on a film which carried a theme of the highest order and a moral of the purest character. Not only that, but its educative value in imparting, through that most alert, active, and powerful of all organs of sense,—sight,—the sense through which the most powerful and lasting impressions are made,—was worth a month's journey over land and sea. And this education was attained for a few cents within the space of about two hours, and accompanied with keenest pleasure, instead of fatiguing effort.

The companies are now making special to place high class films in small towns, but their cost is considerable, and liberal patronage is necessary to obtain the best. Mr. Gallagher states that he will admit all children under six free at all times, and that only two of a family, twice the ages of six and fifteen will be charged, provided they are accompanied by their parents. This is most liberal, and Patagonians, from every viewpoint, should strive to build up a strong movie for the benefit of the kiddies. It means much saving to parents in their general education.

The Fair

It is time every farmer who expects to have exhibits at the fair had his products selected. Arizona is making progress in agriculture and stock raising not approached by any other Western State except California. And the main reason is the maintenance of local and county fairs.

There is one product in the supposed dry southwest on which may rest,—and rest firmly,—two profitable industries. The product is the grain sorghums, and the industries are poultry and dairying. On the grain sorghums can be built up the poultry industry and dairying, both of which are highly profitable. In Southern California poultry raisers have decided that there is no better egg producer than milo maize. The writer has seen a lady seventy years old, with little help, turn, with the aid of a little milo maize grown on her own farm, $40 per month from eggs alone.

The grain sorghums all make excellent ensilage, and with a small silo, costing from $15 to $25, every small farmer can maintain a small bunch of milch cows which will go far toward carrying the expenses of a small farm. Don't worry about marketing the cream. There will be a creamery at Patagonia some day. Until then co-operative shipping will be remunerative. Go to the fair at Sonoma, Sept. 25-27, not so much to see the biplane stunts,—you've seen these before,—but to get some good old farm ideas from your neighbors.

In view of the great increase in mining, sure to take place soon, our farmers have just ahead of them a most golden opportunity,—there will surely be a market for practically everything produced, and more,—in Santa Cruz County.

Let's Organize It

A local commercial organization, having for its object the promotion of the interests of the town and country, is, in this day and time, one of the necessary pieces of furniture of every progressive town. A growing town can no more dispense with its services than a growing boy can avoid adding a number to the size of his hat.

Patagonia is going to grow. Unmistakable signs foretell it. Growth directed into proper paths will mature a town,—enable it to "find itself,"—much easier than if allowed to pursue its wild growth. The berry vine seems to enjoy a wild, natural growth, but we all know that health of the vine is conserved by proper training, and its yield increased by proper pruning and culture. So with a town. Moreover, certain sources of remunerative inspiration to growth may long lie dormant if left untouched, but may be quickened into life by effort, just as the seed is caused to germinate by being placed in contact with soil and moisture. A local commercial club need not be expensive. A large membership is to be desired, of course, but a large membership, even, is not an indispensable factor. A dozen men, so organized, may do wonders toward promoting the growth of the town. LET'S ORGANIZE.

"I have placed my will in my safety deposit box," grins said J. Fuller Gloom. "My pockets are filled with condensed and desiccated foods. I shall attach the end of this stout cord to a convenient projection, light a candle and enter, crawling carefully among the stalactites and stalagmites, paying out the cord as I go, and—"
"Great heavens, Mr. Gloom!" ejaculated an acquaintance. "Are you contemplating exploring some vast and dismal cavern?"
"Yes. I am going into our Kansas City post office for the purpose of having weighed, purchasing stamps for, and mailing this parcel-post package."

WAR DEVELOPS RADIO TRIUMPH

Method Discovered of Communicating With Submerged Submarines.

YOUTHS ARE LUCKY FINDERS

Revelations Come When Researchers Are at Work on Something Else—Single Turn Loop Brings Amazing Results.

Washington, D. C.—In a general way it is known that during the war a method was found to communicate with a submerged submarine from shore or sea.

The scientists of the radio section of the bureau of standards stumbled on its secret and the lucky ones to suspect it were two young assistants not long out of high school.

In the fall of 1917 a series of experiments was undertaken by the bureau to develop an apparatus for the detection of enemy submarines.

Discovery Significant. The significance of this discovery struck both young men. Here was a way possibly to detect the presence of enemy submarines.

In December improvements in the submerged coil brought the reception of signals from Lyons, France; Paris and San Diego, Cal.

the use of loops on submarines for both transmission and reception under water. Both he and Mr. Lowell were sent to New London to work under Commander McDowell in charge of the base.

Boat Used as "Ground." A new type of loop was tried on the U. S. S. G-3, in which the lead-in wires were brought in from the upper side of the loop.

RAISULI BANDIT OF RARE CHARM

Washington, D. C.—That relentless bandit, Raisuli, the Villa of Morocco, whose present raids have caused a political crisis in Spain, has another side.

"He could not bear to hear a child cry, while on several occasions I noticed his care even to avoid allowing the bees collected on his cup to drown," is the surprising statement, not of a friend, but of the wealthy American who was held for ransom by Raisuli in 1904.

Ion Perdicaris' own story of his adventures as the prisoner of the "Moroccan Robin Hood" is told in a communication sent by him to the National Geographic society soon after his release.

Has a Superior Character. "He was quick to see the humorous aspect of a situation, while his repartee was as immediate and to the point as though he had been born in County Galway itself.

"In many respects the man interested and attracted me, in spite of all my natural motives for dislike," said Mr. Perdicaris. "Raisuli was at once so gracious and dignified, not to us only, but to his own wild adherents, who evidently idolized their chieftain, whose position among them seemed that of the head of a Highland clan in the olden times.

hull. Better, but not satisfactory, results were obtained. Up to this time the frame of the boat had not been used as a "ground."

The lower side of the loop was removed and the ends of the wire fastened to the bow and stern. The top of the loop was submerged eight feet; signals from Nauen, Germany, were clearly heard.

When a submarine equipped with the perfected apparatus is submerged any North American or European station can be received as distinctly as when it is on the surface.

Signals can be transmitted from the loop to a distance of ten or twelve miles when the submarine is completely submerged, the maximum distance being obtained when the top of the loop is practically at the surface.

SCOTS DO HONOR TO YANKEE DEAD

Glasgow Islay Association Issues Photographic Album of Tuscania Graves.

OFFERED TO NEXT OF KIN

Labor of Love to Show Relatives How Last Resting Places of Heroes Are Cared For—Otranto Graves on Same Island.

Glasgow, Scotland.—Next of kin of the United States soldiers who went down with the Tuscania may now secure the "Photographic Album of the American Soldiers' Graves in Islay," which has been forwarded for distribution to the American Red Cross.

Islay Monument. honor to the gallant dead. Large crowds gathered from all parts of the island to pay their tribute of respect to the memory of the fallen; and after solemn services the bodies were reverently laid to rest in four different, and specially selected cemeteries.

"Hitch in Side" Was Nine Broken Ribs

St. Louis.—Thomas Morgan, 54, walked into the city dispensary and asked doctors to take a look at his side. "I've got a hitch there and it's making me nervous," he told the doctors.

"A wagon ran over me in East St. Louis," Morgan said, "but I didn't pay any attention to a little thing like that. Today my side got to hurting me considerably and I thought I had a little touch of rheumatism that needed fixing up."

beautiful order and the association is pledged to their upkeep.

The monument at Mull will also serve as a memorial to the American soldiers who perished in the Otranto disaster and are buried at Kilehoman, Islay. The transport Otranto and the transport Kashmir, both carrying American troops to France, collided off Islay October 6, 1918, in a gale and thick weather.

This rocky island off the southwest coast of Scotland was thus the scene of the only considerable disasters in the transportation of the millions of American soldiers to France. Its American graves make it sacred ground. The work of the Glasgow Islay association has been a labor of love.

Plot World Revolt

Documents Found in Germany Reveal Complete Plans.

Secret Spartan Circular Urges Agitation Among the Noske Home Guards.

Berlin.—A complete and carefully drawn plan to overthrow the present government and further world revolution is contained in a secret Spartan circular to its agents and district chiefs.

The document, which was secured by the "general bureau for the study of bolshevism," begins by regretting that the government signed the peace treaty, thereby delaying the inevitable crisis.

The document speculates on various possible developments and then sets forth a concrete plan, the first step of which would be to instigate an internal German crisis by tampering with the home guards of Gustav Noske, minister of defense, which are declared to be less reliable than formerly.

The circular urges Spartacist organizations to agitate among the soldiers by leaflets and verbally. The railroad men, the document says, can be counted as won for revolution.

The postal workers are depressed, according to the circular, which goes on to say that the program with regard to the peasants is complete. The winning over of the peasants is declared to be important, for without their sympathy or without their emity revolution would be difficult, if not impossible.

Delay in provoking the revolution is rather welcomed, "as it will enable further education of the proletariat; but every moment and every situation must be utilized toward the final goal."

Want Original Tunes. New Haven, Conn.—To obtain a new air for the Yale song "Bright College Years," which is now sung to "The Watch on the Rhine," the class of 1889, through Murray Dodge, its secretary, has offered $1,000 as a prize. The prudential committee of the corporation received the notice and selection of a tune is to rest with the alumni advisory board.

CUBAN VOODOOS SLAY

Keep Parents on Island in Constant Fear.

Authorities Act to Prevent Further Human Sacrifices by the Worshipers.

San Juan, Cuba.—With the recent sudden outbreak of cannibalistic practices by voodoo worshippers, which have resulted in the deaths of at least three innocent children and a half dozen of the voodoos, the latter by the application of "lynch" law for the first time in this country's history, fathers and mothers are living in constant fear that their little ones may be spirited away by the superstitious negroes to be offered up in sacrifice to "Chango," the god of the "Brujos," as they are called in the Castilian language.

The voodoos are divided into various sects, each with its separate god.

The latter include "Babagneye," god of sickness; "Eleua," god of injury; "Olorraun" god of misery, and "Chango," the terrible god, to whom human sacrifices are made.

"Chango," according to the voodoo belief, was the son of Olorraun and Anaragun. He was slain by Eleua, the "god of injury," and ascended into heaven from a ceiba, or god tree, in the month of May. It is in the month of May, therefore, that the "Brujos" observe their holy week, when Chango is expected to make a weekly visit to the earth, descending by the ceiba, his sacred tree, always on Monday.

The followers of Eleua do not directly offer human sacrifices, although their heiners sacrifice the lives of some patients by giving them poisonous concoctions, supposedly a mysterious cure for some ailment, in order to restore to health some other patient. Eleua, being the "god of injury," his followers believe that good can come to one person only through injury to another.

Voodooism is not practiced by the negroes alone. Many white persons also are said to secretly take part in their religious meetings, and accusations have been heard in various quarters of the difficulties encountered by officers seeking to break up their temples because of the obstacles placed in their way by persons of influence.

Reward for Globe Flight. Hoquiam, Wash.—Deeds to 1,000 acres of Gray's harbor land, lying within what it has been hoped for years will prove an oil belt, are to be placed in a local bank as a reward for the aviator who first enters the globe. George J. Hibbard, a Seattle attorney, makes the offer, and has set the time limit for winning the land at Aug. 1, 1924.

TURKISH BATH WEAPON

Greeks "Parboiled" and Then Sent Out Into Cold.

Charges of Frightful Atrocities by Turkish Officials Made by Doctor White.

Charges that Turkish officials decimated the Greek population along the Black sea coast, 250,000 men, women and children living between Sinope and Ordu, without the shedding of blood but by "parboiling" the victims in Turkish baths and turning them half-dead out to die of pneumonia or other ills in the snow of an Anatolian winter, are made in a letter from Dr. George E. White, representative of the American committee for relief in the near East.

Sinope was the birthplace of the philosopher Diogenes, Doctor White tells, and Ordu is just beyond Cape

Jason, which is still preserved in memory of the Argonauts and the Golden Fleece.

The letter, written to Prof. J. P. Xenides, secretary of the Greek relief committee here, described the new method of ridding the land of its inhabitants which, it is said, was somewhat different from that employed by the Turks against the Armenians.

The worst of the crimes laid to the Turks, according to Doctor White, were committed in the winters of 1915 and 1917, when orders were issued for the deportation of the Greeks along the Black sea coast. The people, he wrote, were crowded into the steam rooms of the baths in Chorum under the pretense of "sanitary regulations," and after being tortured for hours were turned out of doors into snow almost knee-deep, and without lodging or food.

Their garments, which had been taken from them for fumigation, were lost, ruined or stolen. Most of the victims, ill-clad and shivering, contracted tuberculosis and other pulmonary diseases and "died in swarms" on the way to exile, the letter declared.

Doctor White said that in the province of Bafra, where there were more than 25,000 village Greeks, now less than 3,000 survive and every Greek settlement has been burned. The number of orphans, including some Armenian and Turkish children, in the entire district, it was said, aggregated 60,000. Since the armistice, the doctor wrote, many of the deportees have been returning to their ruined homes.

An Egg Oddity.

Pottsville, Pa.—The most curious egg ever seen in this section was exhibited by Deputy Clerk of the Courts Charles Hawk and Deputy Recorder Unger. It is six inches in diameter and when opened was found to contain two yolks and two shells, a perfect egg being found within the outer shell. The egg was laid by a Plymouth Rock hen owned by William Baker, a farmer near Tower City.

M. & M.

It was announced today by J. B. Bristol, manager of the Santa Cruz County fair to be held at Sonoita September 25, 26 and 27, that Governor Thomas Campbell would deliver an oration at the fair on Arizona Day, the closing day of the celebration.

Arrangements have been made whereby the crack band of the 25th Infantry under the able leadership of Lieut. Leslie King, will render concerts in the afternoons and evenings during the fair. The citizens of Arizona who have had the pleasure of hearing the 25th Infantry band play, will be delighted at the announcement made by the fair management.

Exhibition flights will be given by daring fliers every afternoon of the fair, by both civilian and government aviators. From present indications, the exhibits at this year's fair will far surpass any ever shown in the past the management being doubtful as to whether or not the enlarged exhibit space will hold the mineral and agricultural exhibits for which space has been requested.—Nogales Herald.

(Editorial Note:—Before the above was clipped from the Herald, the Patagonian's suggestion as to a miners' display was in type. We are glad to note that there will be a mineral display.)

Messrs. Meriwether and Mowbray have fitted up a veritable photo gallery on wheels, and are starting out on a tour of the county for work; they will also perhaps collect up a fine lot of agricultural photos, photos of fat stock etc., while on the tour. They have been requested by the Fair management to be on the fair grounds for the purpose of photographing such exhibits as desired, and to arrange an exhibit of Santa Cruz photos here before taken. This collection of photos added to, each year, will finally become historic, and possibly become a part of the fair each year.

MAKES FINE RECORD

Silver World editor recently learned of the remarkable war record made by Gowen Peirce, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Peirce, the latter one of the owners and managers of the Golden Pleece mine in its bonanza days, all of whom will be remembered by those who were residents of Lake City, fifteen and twenty years ago. Young Peirce was a combat flyer and "officially" got two Hun planes and one balloon, although our informant tells us that Gowen actually got six of the enemy air machines.—Silver World.

CHEVROLET CHEVROLET CHEVROLET
A Veteran of the Civil War Writes

"In the year 1899 there were 3760 automobiles manufactured in this country, representing a wholesale value of $4,750,000," says the American Garage, local dealer in Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks. "Last year notwithstanding that production was handicapped by war conditions, 1,153,637 passenger automobiles and trucks were built, all of which represented a wholesale value of $1,236,106,917.

"The popularity which the automobile has attained during the past 20 years is amazing. No other single utility of anywhere the same price has ever duplicated this record. But the most interesting phases of this wonderful expansion do not lie in the actual increase in the number of motor vehicles, rather in the benefits which these increasing numbers have directly or indirectly wrought.

"Motor trucks have displaced 2,000,000 horses. In this way motor trucks have contributed greatly to the profit of farming.

"From a transportation angle the 450,000 trucks in service will carry four and one-half million tons of freight every day. Besides furnishing the farmer with the means of reaching profitable markets, the motor truck is assuming an important position industrially."
