MR. ADVERTISER

The Patagonian is about to make a slight change in its advertising policy. It enlarges this week, adding one column to each page, and two inches to the length of each column.

Heretofore it has allowed no ads on front page. It is its desire to distribute its advertising matter,—your advertising matter,—so as to give each customer a position as near as may be to reading matter. For this reason we have decided to devote several columns of the front page to advertisers. The front page is probably the best position in the paper. The charge, therefore, will be higher than other pages—40c per inch per week. Only double column ads which stand without change for at least four weeks will be placed here, at present.

Should you care for space here, answer by letter. First come first served. The space is limited.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The Mining Department of the Arizona State Fair is now in its permanent quarters, which are a credit to the state and which will have an exhibit that will be the State Museum of Minerals and mineral resources. This building will be open daily the year round and your cooperation in making this exhibit worthy of the industry is solicited. The following exhibits will be in place:

First, There will be a mineral exhibit arranged mineralogically with the carbonates, sulphides, arsenides, etc., put together in separate cases. This is for those who wish to study the state's resources mineralogically.

Second, there will be cases containing each of the ores of copper, lead, iron, zinc, manganese, mercury, etc., through all of the metals.

Third, there will be county cases showing the resources of each of the different metals and minerals coming from that county.

Fourth, there will be separate cases covering the metals, minerals and rocks of each of the large mines in the state.

Fifth, there will be a collection covering all of the type rocks such as sandstone, trachyte, diorite, monzonite, etc., for the benefit of those desiring petrological study.

Sixth, there will be cases covering the building stones of the state such as marbles, granites, slates, sandstones, etc.

Seventh, there will be cases covering clays, bricks, terra cotta, gypsum products and other mineral building materials.

Eighth, there will be cases covering the fossils of the state which will permit the paleontological study.

Ninth, there will be cases covering ore of mine ores, average ores from each of the shipping mines of the state.

Tenth, there will be cases covering the oil and coal resources of the state covering oil sands, oil shales, and oil and the coals.

We solicit your assistance in putting the state more firmly on the mineral map and would appreciate your sending such specimens as you may be able to send, large or small, to the Mineral Department, State Fair, Phoenix, Arizona.

PARKER LOSES AUTOMOBILE THRU FIRE

While coasting toward the river on the Patagonia road yesterday morning Deputy Sheriff Jim Parker, noticing smoke curling up from under the bottom of his car, turned his head to find the totem on ablaze.

He endeavored to extinguish the blaze which had gained considerable headway but was unsuccessful and the car is a complete wreck, the body burning to the chassis.

Parker is unable to give a clear version of the manner in which the car took fire. It is thought however that the blaze from the back fire when he threw in his clutch after coasting, ignited grease on the rods beneath the car, setting fire to the auto.—Nogales Herald.

DEMOCRATIC PARLEY

To The Democrats of the State of Arizona—

The Democratic Party Council of the State has been called to meet in Phoenix at 10 o'clock A. M. Thursday morning, November 6th, 1919 (Fair Week) at which Meeting all Federal, State, County and Precinct Democratic Office Holders as well as all other loyal Democrats of the State are requested to attend.

Business of importance to the Party will be transacted and we urgently request that every Democrat, man and woman, that can possibly do so be present at this Meeting.

The old grant known as Baca Float the Patagonian is informed, which has been in litigation for some time, now has all legal entanglements straightened out, and has been taken over by a Mr. Holmes. A mill will be erected there soon; a road is being built, and other rubbish cleared away preparatory to some good business.

NOGALES COMING

A committee for the Young Business Men's Association and a committee from the Chamber of Commerce have been invited to attend a smoker and dinner Friday night at Patagonia to assist in the organization of the Patagonia Business Men's Association composed of prominent citizens of the Santa Cruz County mining city.

The committee will probably leave Nogales late Friday afternoon by auto and will proceed to the Commercial hotel where a request will await them. Later the meeting will be called to order and interesting talks will be made by residents of the two cities.

It is set forth that Patagonia is badly in need of a civic organization and with one, much could be accomplished. It is understood that one of the first business items the Patagonia association will take up will be telephonic communications between that city and Nogales. This is very important to both cities and the local civic organizations should work from this end of the line in agitating a phone system.—Nogales Herald.

NEW CAFE

The Patagonia Cafe has changed hands. Mr. Roy Blair and Mrs. H. Archer now have charge. They are putting considerable capital and effort in rejuvenating the premises and business. Tables will be ready and meals served next Saturday (tomorrow). Everything has the appearance of being new and bright, and the Patagonian is speaking success for them in their new field.

GOPHER AND GROUND SQUIRREL POISONING

Continued gratifying results are being reported to Mr. Stanley P. Young representing the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Arizona and U. S. Biological Survey cooperating with Santa Cruz County in regard to the poisoned grain being given to farmers of Santa Cruz County to help them rid their farms of rodent pests, such as the pocket gopher and ground squirrel.

Temporary headquarters, where distribution of the poisoned grain is being carried on, is in Patagonia, and will probably be so until early in November. Patagonia is so situated as to enable Mr. Young to work the farming areas adjacent thereto and thereby send the poisoned grain so as to reach practically every farmer in the northern and eastern portions of the county.

It is expected that by December 15 all the poisoned grain to the farmer will have been distributed and the use of the same demonstrated. After this has happened, then at some later date a written inquiry will be sent to each farmer. In this inquiry the government will ask for results each farmer has obtained from the use of the poisoned grain, and the percentage of rodents killed on his respective holdings. Therefore, it will be appreciated if farmers of Santa Cruz County will remember about this coming inquiry so as to be able to give this information expeditiously when asked for.

The poisoned grain and the use of it is being demonstrated and given out just as fast as time will permit, for the University Extension Service and U. S. Biological Survey are anxious to help the farmers of Santa Cruz County kill off their rodent pests as soon as possible.

As has been stated in previous issues in the event where the poisoned grain has so far been distributed any farmer who may have been overlooked, will receive his allotment by applying for the same while headquarters are at Patagonia. Also any rodent troubles prevalent among the farmers and best means to their eradication will be discussed upon making these troubles known.

BERT LYTELL IS COMING
Clever Actor to Present 'The Hattons' Comedy at Gardner Theatre

"Lombardi, Ltd.," the big Screen Classics, Inc., production starring Bert Lytell, is booked as the feature attraction at the Gardner Theatre beginning Wednesday night next. It is a picture of the famous Oliver Morosco stage success by those gifted collaborators, Frederic and Fanny Hatton which enjoyed a run of an entire season in New York and more than a year of continuous performance on tour.

"Lombardi, Ltd.," was, in fact, one of the outstanding hits of recent theatrical seasons, and it is said to have been translated to the screen with a minuteness of detail and a wealth of special settings that make it even more alluring comedy in the silent drama than it was in the legitimate theatre.

Bert Lytell, whose following has grown to tremendous proportions, enacts the stellar role in this picture as Tito Lombardi, the eccentric genius whose fame has been won by designing fashion creations for the smart set of Fifth Avenue. It is a role of wonderful lights and shades and nuances of temperament.

The story has to do with Lombardi's love affairs and his business troubles. He is so trustful that he permits some of his rich customers to swindle him out of money due for gowns designed and fashioned. Then his sweetheart proves false by eloping with a man about town. Lombardi is pretty far gone in purse and affections when a loyal girl comes to his rescue.

Lovely mannequins, "perfect 36" models and a host of other beautiful women surround the handsome young star in "Lombardi, Ltd.," and they wear imported gowns that the producers say cost thousands of dollars. The highly decorative settings in the picture were designed and executed by M. P. Staulep, special technician for the production, which was directed by Jack Conway and personally supervised by Director General Maxwell Karger.

Jane Mathis made the scenario of "Lombardi, Ltd.," from the original manuscript of the Hattons' play. The leading feminine roles—and they predominate—are in the capable hands of Alice Lake, Vera Lewis, Juanita Hansen, Thea Talbot, Ann May, Jean Acker and the models, Virginia Caldwell, Golda Madden and Patricia Hannan—with Joseph Kilgour, George McDaniell and John Stepping providing the masculine support.

GREATERTVILLE MINING NEWS

The Greatertville mining district, along with Patagonia, is, so far as late move means point, just shaping up to enter upon a new and unprecedented period of growth. This does not mean a boom. Care has been taken to avoid bombastic bubble blowing. The Greatertville people have been on the still hunt for good time—not for stock markets—for good solid individuals with discernment who were interested in the mining business. They have now about filled up the vacant places at the round table and have most good enterprises represented by a staff of plain, practical people who expect to put their own time as well as money and brains into the developing of the district.

The El Rico, a high grade silver-lead property, now in the hands of eastern people, will soon be numbered among the busy.

On the whole conditions at Greatertville, like those at Patagonia, amount to that of general reorganization and thorough preparation all along the line. All parties interested are reported as in stronger hope just now than at any previous time.

Postmaster Francis has gone to Tucson for a few days for recuperation. He was accompanied by his sister, Miss Francis.

The Tucson Citizen says that an open Sonora means trouble for Arizona. Well, it's too bad that we haven't the right to tell our neighbors how to live, the world over.

Nogales had an eye to business when she invited the State Merchants' Association to meet there, promising them a "bull fight" on the other side. That was fine,—but, say,—that's the first time we ever heard it called "bull fight."

A new idea under the sun: If labor persists in demanding recognition of organizations composed of labor, they should be compelled to incorporate in order that a contract with the organization can be enforced. Guess Judge Gary originated the idea, but it contains "food for thought."

The new sidewalk along the entire front of the Washburn building and the postoffice, under glare of electric light to be placed by Peirce Auto & Machinery Co., will present a half block of real city front. Sidewalks add value to property, for tenants will, ere long, refuse to take business houses without them.

The State of California, in dissolving wine companies in accordance with prohibition laws, will allow the stock of wines now on hand to be allotted to the companies' shareholders. The U. S. Government will not interfere, and now there will follow a scramble for wine shares. For a short time they will outdistance anybody's oil stock.

Should 500,000 men cease producing coal just at the approach of winter and stay out sixty days, the blow will be almost equal to a war. Labor is going too far in its efforts to obtain what it calls justice. It is losing out with the public. Yet, labor's answer is that to declare a truce pending investigation will be but a repetition of old mockeries. The government has been derelict in its duty to labor in the past, and there's no wonder its plea for time now falls on deaf ears.

Tonight, at the Commercial hotel dining room, the business organizations of Nogales,—the Y. B. M. A. and the Chamber of Commerce—will be entertained by Patagonians at light luncheon. There will be organized also a business men's club for Patagonia. Efforts will be started at once toward putting over a copper circuit telephone line direct to Nogales. A business men's organization is a necessity at Patagonia, because of the growth now on, but particularly because of what is soon to follow.

The present editor of the Patagonian is not a Republican, but appreciates the honor of having been placed on the Roosevelt drive committee for memorial funds for the commemoration of one of America's greatest characters. There is a small U. S. history, published some years ago, by Lord. This book has as its introductory, an article by Theodore Roosevelt on "Americanism." It is a masterpiece of logic and literature. No man can read this without regarding Mr. Roosevelt as one of our very greatest Americans, nor without taking pride in the fact that we have him as a contribution to American manhood.

It seems to be common opinion at Patagonia that the near future holds much in store for us. One citizen predicts that within six months there will be a wave of activities break in upon us as will exceed any period of growth Patagonia has had. At present nearly all mines are active, but along the line of developments. Much money is being put in this form of improvements. This spells, of course, that shipment of ore in large quantities is bound to follow within a reasonably short time.

That paved road, Bisbee to Nogales, it "listens" good. The value to Patagonia and to the U. S. Government,—to Nogales,—to the whole of Santa Cruz County, will be beyond calculation. It is said that we can not hope to get the Tucson-Nogales road, owing to insurmountable difficulties. In that event, parties far east of Patagonia would it is said, prefer to go through Nogales enroute to Tucson for the advantage of the difference in the roads. This would put a whole lot of travel from the East through Patagonia. Then, too, we should not forget that fat appropriation by Uncle Sam, if we are willing to come up with our part.

There's one class of people who have been entirely overlooked in the shuffle for a living during these days of high cost. And that's the juror. The pittance allowed a juror will not pay his expenses at all, at all. Besides, what juror but whose time at home is worth the per diem he receives at court several times over? If jurors should serve for honor, why pay them at all? Let them sacrifice their time for the "good of the order," as does a member of a school board. But a juror is compelled to certain expense in attending court. He could not be expected to give both time and expenses. But that's what he does at present, under the old pre-war per diem and after-war prices. Let some ambitious aspirant for legislative honors look into this matter. A good juror is often lost by non-compensation for time knocking such a hole in his small income.

President Wilson, on a sick bed, is rolling up his sleeves and preparing to take a hand in the industrial conference now on at Washington. One thing may be said of Woodrow Wilson, surely, and that is that he is not too proud to fight when matters have gone beyond the point of dignity.

Certain politicians of supposed national repute are still humdruming on that old catgut "third term," perhaps just to see how people will take it. Woodrow Wilson has many friends. Many of his political opponents regard him as a great man. But, after an expense of some thirty billions of dollars in an effort to make the world safe for democracy, that man who would establish the precedent of electing a president of the United States of America for an indefinite length of time is an enemy to his country. Many even now charge even the good Woodrow Wilson with having usurped power. What would be the end, should a powerful but unscrupulous man become entrenched in the presidential chair? Why, revolution,—and we're near enough to that now. When a Democrat suggests a third term for Woodrow Wilson it is a confession that there are no other strong men in it. It's a bad day for us when but one man of a hundred million people is capable of being president.
