

SHOULD HOLD COURT TERMS TWICE YEARLY AT PATAGONIA

Two terms of the Superior court should be held in Patagonia at least each year. Such a plan would not only result in a great saving of the tax payers' money but would be a very great convenience to the citizens of the entire county outside of Nogales. As it is most of the cases in which the people of the county are interested call for jurors from the rural districts who would find it more convenient to come to Patagonia and at the same time there would be a great saving both to the county and individuals. Also it is unfair to litigants and witnesses, as well as expensive, from the body of the county to have to go to Nogales when they could just as well attend to court business nearer home. Many times court sessions are held just at a time when farmers and stock raisers are busy and to go to so great a distance is a positive hardship as well as inconvenience.

Our people should take up the matter in time so that the proper bill can be passed at the next session of the legislature. It would be an easy matter to get the bill passed, provided our own senator and member of the lower house presented it, as other members would leave it entirely to them.

Patagonia has every facility for court sessions. The opera house, a beautiful and commodious building, could be used for a court house, and besides the town is amply supplied with hotels, restaurants and rooming houses and if necessary suitable vaults can be had for records could be provided.

SAD DEATH AT VAUGHN

Bertha Barton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barton, highly esteemed residents of Vaughn, died at the home of her parents February 12, after a short illness of pneumonia. The young lady was born October 30, 1900, in Guttenberg, Iowa, and was aged 19 years, 2 months and 14 days at the time of her death. She leaves to mourn her untimely going away her parents, two brothers and one sister, the sister residing at Greentown, Wis., one brother in South Dakota and the other one at Elgin, Arizona.

Bertha was a bright, genial girl and her demise in the happy spring time of life has caused profound sorrow among a wide circle of friends in the community.

HE DIDN'T WANT OIL

J. D. Rountree, the well driller, has drilled a well to a depth of 331 feet for John Yoas, in the foothills of the Santa Ritas, five miles east of Tubac. At that depth he failed to strike water but he did strike a peculiar sort of blue mud which experienced oil men say is a splendid indication of oil. Drilling was stopped, but Jeff suggested that he be permitted to go on and probably strike oil.

"Nope," said John, "don't want oil; cattle won't drink it."

From this, it is safe to assume, no oil stock peddler will consider it worth while to hunt up John Yoas.

PLANTING PECAN TREES

Ben Powell is preparing to set out about forty pecan trees on his place. He has ordered thirty young trees from Sausabe, Texas, his former home, and believes they will do well here.

Four years ago Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Riggs set out a few pecan trees on their place at the eastern edge of town and last year they began to bear. This would indicate that this is a suitable climate and soil for pecans and likely many others will set out trees in the future. Neil McDonald will set out a few trees this month.

The pecan is a prolific bearer and a very valuable adjunct to a home, be it rural or urban.

AN APPEAL TO FAIR PLAY
The business men of Patagonia and towns in the upper portion of the County should make it a point to send their printing to the Patagonian office. The Patagonian in turn sends it to the Herald's big job printing plant at Nogales where it is skillfully accomplished and at prices that are in accordance with city prices. The Patagonian is constantly boosting for the upper portion of the county and it is no more than right to ask for the printing which we know is being sent out of the county.

SANTA CRUZ CO. PEOPLE SHOULD BOOST FOR DAM

People in this section have not yet given up hope of getting government aid for a dam on Red Rock creek. There is a splendid place on the creek for a dam that would cost little compared with the thousands of acres of fine land that would produce immense crops with irrigation. A point has been selected near Frank Siebold's place where there are high, precipitous rock walls on either side, forming a narrow channel with a solid rock bottom at which point a good dam could be built with a base not over 20 feet wide that would store enough water in a short season of rain to supply at least 5,000 acres of land for a season. When an effort was made to have the government take up the project an estimate of $100,000 was made and the matter presented to Senators Smith and Ashurst, but those gentlemen replied that the project was too small for the government to take hold of. This seemed like a rather unusual excuse but there are those who contend that the project is possible of being enlarged to a scheme that the government could be induced to take it up. It is possible that the powers at Washington have become so accustomed to considering matters involving billions and millions that a mere expenditure of $100,000 or $200,000 is of little consequence regardless of the possible benefit to be derived. Our people should hammer away at the proposition until they secure results.

REPUBLICANS TO HOLD GET TOGETHER MEETING

Last Tuesday the County Central Committee and the delegates to the Republican State convention held a meeting which was so largely attended by enthusiastic Republicans that it was decided to have a get-together meeting next week Wednesday, February 25th, at 7:30 p. m. in the hall of the Army and Navy Union, and afford everybody a chance to be present.

The meeting next Wednesday night is chiefly for the purpose of giving the delegates to the state convention at Tucson on February 27th and 28th a good send-off and the assurance that they have the support of the Republicans of the county. The fact that Pima county has pledged its support to the delegate from Santa Cruz county S. F. Noon, for the National convention is highly gratifying to the County Republicans and a big delegation of boosters to the State convention is expected to invade Tucson on the 28th.

Unpaid Taxes on American Mines Is Subject of Debate

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Unpaid taxes on American mines amounting to $200,000,000 were involved in a lively discussion at an open forum held on the subject of mine taxation at the 121st annual meeting of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers here today. Views both of the government and the mine owners were presented, the discussion being led by Ralph Arnold, of the United States Internal Revenue Department, J. R. Finlay, J. Parke Channing and R. C. Allen, vice president of the Lake Superior Ore Association.

Other interesting subjects listened to by the 1,000 or more delegates and their friends included the reading of a paper by Herbert Hoover which outlined a comprehensive and constructive plan for the better working of the bituminous coal industry. Among the big questions around which controversy raged during the recent coal strike and for which the engineers, operators and coal experts sought solutions were:

- "Why is production intermittent? How and when do the irregularities occur?"
  - "How many days a year do the men actually work?"
  - "What are the actual wages received by men during each season and in what way can the wage basis be changed?"
  - "How and where can coal be stored at the mine, at industrial plants or elsewhere?"
- Other speakers included Van H. Manning, director of the United States Bureau of Mines; George Otis Smith, director of the United States Geological Survey; H. H. Stock, of the University of Illinois; Eugene McAuliffe, president of the Union Colliery company and Ed

FALL'S COMMITTEE MAY NOT HOLD SESSION IN NOGALES

The hearing may be held in Tucson, Nogales or Los Angeles, he declares. M.

POWER PLANT WOULD WORK WONDERS FOR ORE INDUSTRY

Owners and managers of some of the big mines in this vicinity have from time to time discussed the feasibility of erecting an electric power plant in Patagonia. The object would be to extend transmission lines to all the big mines in the vicinity of Patagonia, Harshaw and Mowry and eventually to the American Boy, Hosay and other mines west of town and on the western slope of the Santa Ritas.

Recently the matter has received renewed attention and it is not unlikely that the scheme will take concrete form and the plant established. This phase of the suggestion has been furthered by offer by Col. R. R. Richardson of a tract of land at the southern edge of town, adjoining the railroad right of way, for the plant. Col. Richardson proposes to donate the ground.

Increased demand for power at all the big mines is developing daily and it is figured that such an enterprise would give that needed power without only a great deal less trouble and uncertainty of the present plan now in operation but at a very great reduction in cost. With a plant at even a moderate cost located here with transmission lines to all the important mines the overhead cost of ore production and milling would be so reduced as to add handsomely to the returns from the mines connected with the scheme.

Those mines that would be first connected with the plant and whose owners are considering cooperation in the matter are the 3R, Morning Glory, Harshaw, World's Fair, Trench, Blaine and others that would be easily reached by lateral lines.

Reducing the cost of ore production is a very important factor in all mining enterprises.

WILD DOMESTIC HOGS

For fifteen or twenty years there have been roaming in the hills to the east of town large numbers of wild domestic hogs—not the unsightly and vicious wild hogs or peccaries so common in the unsettled regions of Arizona and Mexico, but real domestic animals which have been away from human surroundings until they have become really wild and more or less ferocious. Formerly there were many of them near town and they played havoc in grain fields until they were hunted and captured until they became scarce except in the remote hills. One favorite range for them now is the range of limestone hills east of Oscar Ashburn's place. They are difficult of capture but occasionally a cowboy ropes one but they are generally captured with dogs. It is rare that one can get a good shot at them.

Lon Quinn who has captured several of them says it is impossible to domesticate the full grown animal. He says when they are put in a pen they will build in a corner and pay no attention to feed during the day but late at night when all is quiet they will eat as much as the ordinary hog. Though they may be penned up ever so long and carefully fed and watered, the moment a person approaches they will lunge viciously against the sides of the pen in an effort to get at their human enemy. The very young pigs when caught, however, soon become tame and just like the ordinary pig.

It is supposed that those hogs originated from hogs owned by miners and others years ago about Harshaw and left to shift for themselves by people who went away after the boom days of that camp.

SOME MORE H. C. OF L.

"Alleged! Sure it's not fifteen cents," said Mayor Billy Powers to a small boy who had just completed a contract on that gentleman's patent leathers.

"Well, you," vehemently replied the ardent, "ain't everything else going up? You might read the papers."

Ed Atner, one of the proprietors of the American Garage at Patagonia, visited Nogales yesterday.

BETTER BUSINESS

The Patagonian wishes to thank its many advertisers for their excellent patronage bestowed on us this week. It is very encouraging and is an incentive to boost more and more for the county in general. Advertisers in Nogales are congratulating us on the results being obtained through the ads.

"JUST A GIRL!"

Synopsis—The man who tells this story—call him the hero, for short—is visiting his friend, John Saunders, British official in Nassau, Bahamas Islands. Charles Webster, a local merchant, completes the trio of friends. Saunders produces a written document purporting to be the death statement of Henry P. Tobias, a successful pirate, made by him in 1869. It gives two spots where two millions and a half of treasure were buried by him and his companions. The conversation of the three friends is overheard by a pock-marked stranger. The document disappears. Saunders, however, has a copy. The hero, determined to seek the buried treasure, chartered a schooner. The pock-marked man is taken on as a passenger. On the voyage somebody empties the gasoline tank. The hero and the passenger climb, the passenger leaving a manifesto bearing the signature, "Henry P. Tobias, Jr." The hero lands on Dead Men's Shoals. There is a fight, which is followed by several funerals. The hero finds a cave containing the skeletons of two pirates and a massive chest—empty save for a few pieces of eight scattered on the bottom. The hero returns to Nassau and by good luck learns the location of Short Shift Island. Webster buys the yacht Flamingo, and he and Tobias sail for Short Shift Island. As the Flamingo leaves the wharf a young fellow, "Jack Harkaway," jumps aboard and is allowed to remain. Jack proves an interesting and mysterious passenger. The adventures must duck an Andros Island, with an eye out for Tobias.

Besides, I had my wonderful young friend, to whom I grew daily more attached. I found myself feeling drawn to him as I can imagine a young father is drawn to a young son! and sometimes I seemed to see in his eyes the suggestion of a confidence he was on the edge of making me—a whimsical, pondering expression, as though wondering whether he dare to tell me or not.

"What is it, Jack?" I asked him for once when, early in our acquaintance, we had asked him what we were to call him, he had answered with a laugh: "Oh, call me Jack—Jack Harkaway. That is my name when I go on adventures. Tell me your prosaic every-day names." "Well," I had replied, entering into the lad's humor, "my friend here is Sir Francis Drake, and I, well—I'm Sir Henry Morgan."

"What is it, Jack?" I repeated. "No!" he replied. "I like you ever so much—and I wish I could; but I mustn't."

"Somebody else's secret again?" I ventured. "Yes!" And he added: "This time it's mine, too. But—some day perhaps; who knows?" He broke off in boyish confusion.

"All right, dear Jack," I said, patting his shoulder, "take your own time. We're friends anyway."

"That we are," responded the lad, with a fine glow.

I mustn't be too hard on Charlie, for Charlie had another object in his trip besides duck. As a certain poet brutally puts it, he had anticipated also "the hunting of man." In addition, though it is against the law of those Britannic Islands, he had promised me a flamingo or two for decorative purposes. However, flamingoes and Tobias alike kept out of gunshot and, as the week grew toward its end, Charlie began to grow a little restive.

"It looks," he murmured one evening, as we had completed our fourteenth meal of roast duck, and were musing over our after-duck cigars, "it looks as if I am not going to have any use for this."

He had taken a paper from his pocket. It was a warrant with which he had provided himself, empowering him to arrest the said Henry P. Tobias, or the person passing under that name, on two counts: First, that of seditious practices, with intent to spread treason among his majesty's subjects, and, second that of willful murder on the high seas.

Charlie put the warrant back into his pocket and gazed disgustfully across the creek, where the loveliest of young moons was rising behind a fringe of the homeless, barbaric brush.

"There was never such a place in the world," he asserted, "to hide in—or get lost in—or to starve in. I have often thought that it would make the most effective prison in the world."

The young moon rose and rose, while Charlie sat in the dusk of our shanty, like a meditative mountain, saying nothing, the glowing end of his cigar occasionally hinting at the circumference of his face.

"I'll get him, all the same," he said presently, coming out of a sort of trance, in which, as I understood later, his mind had been making a geographical survey of our neighborhood, going up and down every creek and corner on a radius of fifty miles.

So we sought our respective cots; but I had scarcely begun to undress when a foolish accident for which I was responsible happened, an accident that might have had serious consequences, and which, as a matter of fact did have—though not at the moment.

Neglecting everything a man should do for his gun when he is finished with it for the day, I had left two cartridges in it, left the trigger on the hair-brink of eternity, and other enormities for which Charlie presently, and quite rightly, abused me with profanity; in short, my big toe tripped over the beast as it stood carelessly against the wall of my cabin, and, as it fell, I received the contents in the fleshy part of my shoulder.

The explosion brought the whole crew out of their shanty, in a state of gesticulating nature and, as Charlie, growling like a bear, was helping to bring first aid, suddenly our young friend Jack—whose romantic youth preferred sleeping outside in a hammock slung between two palm trees—put him aside.

"I know better how to do this than you, Sir Francis," he said, laughing. "Let's have a look at your medicine chest, and give me the lint quick."

So Jack took charge and acted with such confidence and skill—finally binding up my wound, which was but a slight one—that Charlie stood by dumbfounded and with a curious soft look in his face which I didn't understand till later.

Then Jack looked up for a moment and caught Charlie's wondering look; and it seemed to me that he changed color and looked frightened.

"Sir Francis is jealous," he said; "but I've finished now. I guess you'll sleep all right after that dose I gave you. Good night. . . ." And he slipped away.

Jack had proved himself a practiced surgeon and, as he predicted, I slept well—so well and so far into next morning that Charlie at last had to wake me.

"What do you think?" were his first words.

"Why, what?" I asked, sitting up and wincing from my wounded shoulder.

"Our young friend has skipped in the night! Gone off on that little nigger sloop that dropped in here yesterday afternoon, I guess."

"You don't mean it?" "No doubt of it—I wonder whether you've had the same thought as I had. You know I always said there was a mystery about that boy? Did you notice the way he bound your shoulder last night?"

"What of it?" "Did you ever see a man bind a wound like that?"

"What do you mean?" "I mean simply that the mystery about our Jack Harkaway was just this: Jack Harkaway was no boy at all—but just a girl; a brick of a dare-devil girl!"

CHAPTER V.

Better Than Duck.

Charlie Webster's discovery—if discovery it was—of "Jack Harkaway's" true sex seemed so far plausible in that it accounted not only for much that had seemed mysterious about him and his manner, but also (though this I did not mention to Charlie) it accounted for certain dim feelings of my own, of which, before, I had been scarcely conscious.

But we were not long left to continue our speculations, being presently interrupted by the arrival of exciting news in the form of a note from Father Serapion.

Father Serapion's note simply confirmed his conjecture that it was Tobias who had bought rum at Behring's Point and that he was probably somewhere in the network of creeks and marl lagoons in our neighborhood. Charlie thought the news over.

"I'll tell you what we'll do," he said presently. "I'm going to leave you here—and I'm going to charter the sponger out there. Turner's sound has two outlets; this and Goose river, ten miles down the shore. Now, if Tobias is inside here he can only get out either down here or down Goose river. I am going down in the sponger to the mouth of Goose river, to keep watch there, and you must stay where you are and keep watch here. Between the two of us a week will starve him out."

So it was settled, and presently Charlie went along with two of his best guns and Sallor, in the rowboat, and I saw him no more for a week.

At the end of the week the wind was blowing strong from the west and the tides ran high. About noon we man," he said, taking Sallor's wounded paw in his hand, "soon be all right." Sallor wagged his tail vigorously, to show that a gunshot through one of his legs was a mere nothing.

"Yes!" said Charlie, as we sat at lunch in the shack, under the tamarind tree; "we've got him safe here under decks all right; chained up like a booby. If he can get away, I'll believe in the devil."

"Won't you tell me about it?" I asked.

"Not much to tell; too easy altogether. I waited a couple of days at the mouth of Goose river. Then I got tired and left the sponger with the captain and two or three men, while I went up the river with a couple of guns and Sallor, and a man to pole the skiff—just for some duck-shooting, you know. We lay low for two days on the marshes and then Sallor got sniffing the wind one morning, as if there was something around he didn't care much for. He grew more and more excited and, at last, as we neared a certain mangrove cove to which all the time he had been pointing, he barked two or three times and I let him go. Poor old fellow!"

As he told the story, Sallor, who seemed to understand every word, rubbed his head against his master's hand.

"He went into the mangroves, just as he'd go after duck, but he'd hardly gone in when there were two shots and he came out limping, making for me. But by this I was close up to the mangroves myself, and in another minute I was inside; and there was Tobias—his gun at his shoulder. He had a pot at me, but before he could try another I knocked him down with my fire and—Well, we've got him all right. And now you can go after your treasure as soon as you like. I'll take him over to Nassau and you can fool around for the next month or so. Of course we'll need you at the trial, but that won't come off for a couple of months. Meanwhile, you can let me know where you are, in case I should need to get hold of you."

"All right, old man," I said, "but I wish you were coming along with me."

"I've got all the treasure I want," laughed Charlie. "Send me word where you are, as soon as you get a chance; and good luck to you, old chap, and your doubloons and pieces of eight!"

Then he walked down to his rowboat and soon he was aboard the sponger. Her sails ran up and they were off down stream—poor Tobias, manacled, somewhere between decks.

"See you in Nassau!" I shouted. "Right-o!"

CHAPTER I.

In Which We Gather Shells—and Other Matters.

With Charlie gone and duck-shooting not being one of my passions, there was nothing to detain me in Andros. So we were soon under way, out of the river, and heading north up the western shore of the big monotonous island. We had some fifty miles to make before we reached its northern extremity—and, all the way, we seldom had more than two fathoms of water, and the coast was the same interminable line of mangroves and thatch palms, with occasional clumps of pine trees, and here and there the mouth of a creek, leading into duck-haunted swamps.

At last we came to a little foam-fringed bay, where it was conceivable that the shyest and rarest shell would choose to make its home—a tiny aristocrat, driven out of the broad tideways by the coarser ambitions and the ruder strength of great molluscs that feed and grow fat and house themselves in crude convolutions of uncouthly striving horn.

It was impossible to imagine a cey better answering to my conchologist's description of Short Shift Island. Its situation and general character, too, bore out the surmise. On landing, also, we found that it answered in two important particulars to Tobias' narrative. We found, as he had declared, that there was good water there for passing ships. Also, we found, in addition to the usual scrub, that cabbage-wood trees grew there very plentifully, particularly, as he said, on the highest part of the island. So, having talked it all over with Tom, I decided that here we would stay for a time and try our luck.

But, first, having heard from the sponging captain that he was en route for Nassau, I gave him a letter to Charlie Webster, telling him of our whereabouts, in case he should have sudden need of me with regard to Tobias.

The reader may recall that Tobias' narrative in reference to his second "pod" of one million dollars had run: "On the highest point of this Short Shift Island is a large cabbage-wood stump, and twenty feet south of that stump is the treasure, buried five feet deep and can be found without difficulty." But which was the highest point? There were several hillocks that might claim to be that—all about equal in height.

However, as the high points of the island were only seven in all, it was no difficult matter to try them all out, one by one, as we had plenty of time and plenty of hands for the work. For, of course, it would have been idle to attempt any concealment of my object from the crew. Therefore, I took them from their shell-gathering and, having duly measured out twenty feet south from each promising cabbage-wood stump, set them to work. They worked with a will, for I promised them a generous share of whatever we found. "Alas! it was an inexpensive promise, for, when we had duly turned up the ground, not only twenty feet, but thirty, forty and fifty feet, not only south but north, east and west of the various cabbage-wood stumps on the seven various eminences, we were none of us the richer by a single piece of eight. Then we tried the other cabbage-wood stumps on lower ground, and any other likely-looking spots, till, after working for nearly a fortnight, we must have dug up most of the island.

And then Tom came to me with the news that our provisions were beginning to give out. As it was, he said, before we returned to Nassau, we should have to put in at Flying Fish Cove—a small settlement on the larger island some five miles to the north—for the purchase of various necessities.

"All right, Tom," I said, "I guess the game is up! Let's start out tomorrow morning. You may as well have your sucking fish back, Tom," I said, laughing in self-disgust. "I shall have no more need of it. I am through with treasure hunting."

"I'd keep it little longer, sar," answered Tom; "you never know."

I had made up my mind to start on the homeward trip early the following morning, but something happened that very evening to change my plans. I had dropped into the little settlement's one store, to buy some tobacco, the only kind that Charlie Webster declared fit to smoke.

I stayed chatting with the storekeeper—a lean, astute-looking Englishman, with the un-English name of

A Superb Young Creature With Proudly Carried Head on Glorious Shoulders.

Sweeney—who made a pretty good thing of selling his motley merchandise to the poor natives, on the good old business principle of supplying goods of the poorest possible quality at the highest possible prices.

While he was attending a little group of customers I had wandered toward the back of the store, curiously examining the thousand and one commodities which supplied the strange needs of humanity here in this lost corner of the world; and, thus occupied, I was diverted by a voice like sudden music, a voice odd, rich and laughing and confident for such grim and sinister surroundings. It was one, too, which I seemed to have heard before, and not so very long ago. When I turned in its direction I was immediately arrested, as one always is by any splendor of vitality; for a startling contrast indeed—to the spiritless, furtive figures that had been coming and going hitherto—was this superb young creature, tall and lithe, with proudly carried head on glorious shoulders.

Her skin was a golden olive, and it had been hard to say which was the more intensely black—her hair, or the proud eyes which, turning presently in my direction, seemed to strike upon me as with an actual impact of soft fire.

And France is the intended victim. Just when this attack on the French is to take place has not been settled in the German mind—but every German, no matter what his age or station, says that time is coming—maybe in ten years, maybe twenty or maybe thirty.

But even if there is doubt as to the exact time of Germany's effort to avenge the loss of the world war, there does not seem to be felt the least doubt that vengeance will be visited upon the French and that Germany will be successful in the attempt.

Even young boys give rise to their hatred and tell how, when they grow

"Germany soon will be stronger than France, despite our present condition," said a German student to me a few days ago. "Then France had better watch out."

Los Angeles, Cal.—Jazz music is not a nuisance, according to a decision by Judge Lewis B. Works, in the Los Angeles county superior court. The city of Pasadena had brought suit against a social club, whose neighbors complained its jazz music "jarred on their nerves."

"Once jazz music might have been construed as a nuisance," Judge Works said. "It is no longer so construed. If the music disturbed the residents of the neighborhood, I am sorry, but this court cannot give them relief."

'Blond Lady' as Chief of Spies

Beautiful Woman Who Beguiled Unwary Into Giving Secrets to Germans.

RELATIVE OF VON HEINRICH

At Her Headquarters in Antwerp She Collected Information Which Was Forwarded to German Headquarters—Had Two Accomplices.

London.—Many details about the life of the "blond-haired lady," who served as a German chief of spies in the war, have been given by a colonel in the French counter espionage service who knew her well, according to a London Times Paris correspondent. This colonel, who was then a captain, spent some months during the war at Antwerp and saw most of the people who visited the lady, for it was his duty to supply these visitors with false information or true information when too late to use. The chateau, which the witnesses at Lille believed to be outside Antwerp, was in reality in the center of the city. It was a hotel in the boulevard de la Loi, a majestic building which those who were brought blindfolded in a motor car with drawn blinds might well have taken for a chateau in the countryside.

Related to General von Heinrich.

The blond-haired lady was certainly a relative of General von Heinrich, though the exact relationship still remains uncertain. She was a fine woman, being slim and unlike the majority of her fellow countrywomen. The Frau Doktor, as she was addressed by her colleagues, spoke French without a trace of a foreign accent and showed by her manner and dress that she had lived for a long time in France, and probably in Paris. She used to address her agents with a French cigarette between her lips, leaning back seductively in a large armchair. She never spoke harshly, but, on the contrary, in sweet, even tones, no doubt gaining much which her masculine confederates of the German general staff lost through their air of brutality.

Two men lived in the "chateau" with her, a man who posed as an English spy with a monocle pretending to be a journalist on a London paper, and an officer of the German G. I. Q. The top, the French colonial states, was the proprietor of a hotel in the same boulevard de la Loi, and the German officer, Keffer by name, had as his last duty the control of the information upon the allies' submarine bases at Calais and Dunkirk, and the numbers and changes in the north of France. The blond-haired lady, besides using part of her time in beguiling poorfortunates into betraying their countrymen, collated her information before forwarding it to Germany.

Noah, Not Adam, Ate the Apple

Deliver in Ancient Lore Finds Evidence Older Than the Bible.

NO MENTION OF ANY EVE

Records in University of Pennsylvania Provide Apparent History of Human Race Back to 14,000 Years Before Christ.

Philadelphia, Pa.—What the discoverer claims to be evidence older than the Bible by two or three thousand years, that woman had nothing to do with the downfall of the human race, was produced by the museum of the University of Pennsylvania in the form of a new set of translations by Dr. Stephen Herbert Langdon.

Doctor Langdon is now professor of Assyriology at Oxford university, England. He was for three years curator of the Babylonian section at the university museum, and while there studied and translated thousands of ancient clay tablets from the ruins of Nippur, in ancient Babylonia.

"Noah Ate the Apple."

The new book is the fourth in a series depicting the religious life of the Sumerians, a mysterious race, the origin of which is unknown, which was finally swallowed up by the later Semites. According to one of the flood stories in the collection Noah ate the forbidden fruit after he had been saved from the deluge.

This salvation was accomplished, according to the Sumerian version, by a woman deity. There is no mention of any Eve in the story. Clay tablets from which this and other stories are taken are said to be at least one thousand years older than Babylonian tablets.

14,000 Years Before Christ. After the Sumerians had been extinguished in their political power, according to Doctor Langdon, the Babylonians retained the language for ecclesiastical purposes for many centuries, just as Latin is now used in the Roman Catholic church.

The Sumerian records at the university provide an apparent history of mankind back to 14,000 years before Christ, but this is not considered absolutely authentic, because many of the reigns of kings are collateral. The Sumerians believed that the patriarchs, corresponding to those of the Old Testament, ruled before the flood for 300,000 years. According to their story it was 35,000 years after the deluge when Cyrus of Persia conquered Babylonia.

caught sight of triumphant sails making up the river. It was Charlie back again.

"Got him!" was all he said, as he rowed ashore.

Sallor was with him in the rowboat, but I noticed that he was limping, going on three legs.

"Yes!" said Charlie. "It's lucky for Tobias he only got Sallor's foot, or, by the living God I'd have stood my trial for manslaughter, or whatever they call it. It'll soon be all right, old

$50 Put in Bank in 1847; Value Grows to $1,332

Winsted, Conn.—Fifty dollars placed in the savings bank in Andros in 1847 gradually grew until President William A. Nelson of that institution recently paid the sum of $1,331.20 for the bank book, which it was worth after its 73 years' service. Twice within a period of twenty years the sum of $2 was placed on the account, but nothing more.

Chico, Cal.—After being parted from his sister for a period of thirty years, William Simpson of Virde, Manitoba, Canada, arrived here yesterday to be the guest of his sister, Mrs. L. F. Eggers in Chico. Simpson is accompanied by his wife and son Gordon, who was wounded in action in France while serving with a Canadian contingent of the British army in the world war.

EDITORIAL

You can aid your neighbor and at the same time better your own condition by boosting for Patagonia.

An electric plant at Patagonia with transmission lines to all the big mines, if owned jointly by the mining companies, would greatly reduce the cost of ore production.

Nogales is highly elated over its government aviation field which will have a disbursement of $15,000 monthly for wages. Patagonia would have secured an aviation field which military officers wished to locate here, had not some one—or several—slept at the switch.

A small dam on Red Rock creek would irrigate 5000 acres of fine land adjacent to Patagonia.

The death of V. P. Hansen of Elgin, is a great loss to the northern part of the county. He was a good man and an active, progressive citizen.

The claim that food won the war is no doubt correct. It has had an important look since.

Had the American doughboys been permitted to completely invade Germany there would have been no occasion for the German government to "wink" at polygamy in order to further the increase of population.

Holland is taking the lead in financing Germany—the same Holland that was stretching out hands in appeal to the United States for bread during the war.

Hoover isn't even in the favorite son class.

The American navy is now doing more fighting than it did during the war, but it's swivel chair fighting.

The Prohibitionists talk of nominating a presidential candidate. What for? Prohibition won only when it ceased to be a political issue and the Prohibition party was not a factor in its victory.

It is no hard matter to find a man who has picked up so much experience that he hasn't anything else.

Patagonia has a trade territory and a possible mining industry capable of supporting a city of 50,000 inhabitants.

Time was when Nogales cast half the vote of the county. This year the rural vote along with the town of Patagonia will be several hundred greater. The "first vote" contingent in Patagonia will be large.

Do not vote for a candidate for the legislature, when the time comes, who will not give a hard and fast pledge to support a bill providing for terms of the superior court to be held in Patagonia.

The Daily Herald and Border Vindette of Nogales are good boosters for Patagonia and all the northern part of the county. This is as it should be.

MICKIE SAYS

OF ALL GLAD WORDS OF TONGUE OR PEN, THE GLADDEST ARE THESE, "DEAR EDITOR: YOU WILL FIND ENCLOSED, CHECK FOR THE PAPER ANOTHER YEAR. IT'S JUST LIKE A LETTER FROM HOME AND WE CAN'T DO WITHOUT IT!" SLIP US THEM, GLAD WORDS IN TOMORROW'S MAIL, SOMEBODY!

Jesse Boyce, state auditor and candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, who accompanied the Nogales trade excursion to the West Coast of Mexico, brought back a Mexican hat measuring four feet from tip to tip. Should he ever get that hat fairly into the ring there will not be room for any more. It is up to Charley Roberts of Cochise to get that piece of headgear "knocked into a cocked hat."

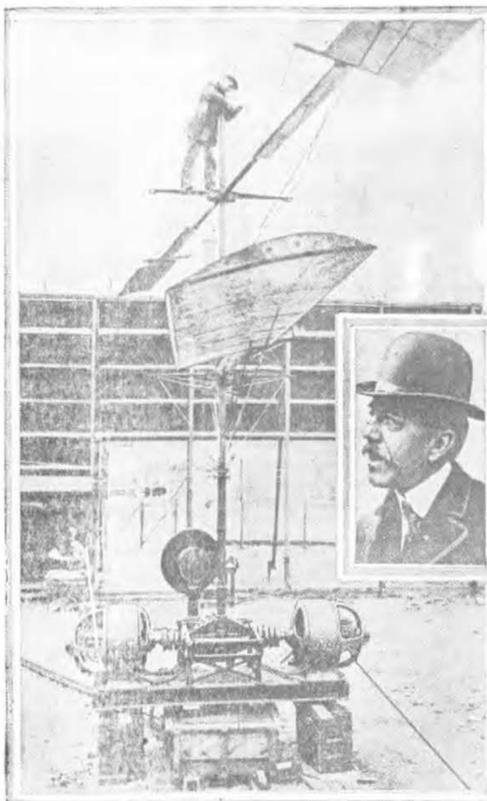

What this country proposes to maintain is a great preponderance of American red blood over alien red flag.

Within four or five years Patagonia will be shipping out large quantities of choice fruits of many varieties. Fruit raised in the foothills has an excellence of flavor not found in fruits raised by irrigation on great stretches of level land. Altitude also has much to do with it.

The British Empire, as a result of the world war, has gained about 4,500,000 square miles in territory which makes her total about 15,000,000 square miles and her dominions comprise about one fifth of the earth's surface. The gain in population is thought to be about 43,000,000 people. The United States got a quiet claim deed to the Island of Yap—if you know where that is and what it is.

Optimism is a potent factor in town and community building.

American Inventor May Win $10,000

New vertical propeller and Peter C. Hewitt.

Peter Cooper Hewitt, noted American scientist and inventor, has developed a new machine which, he claims, will do even more than the required performance to win the $100,000 prize offered by the Michelin Co for a machine that will rise straight into the air without a preliminary run, and will land in a space thirty feet square. According to Mr. Hewitt with his new propeller it will be possible to reverse the plane while in flight without reversing the engine or turning about. It can also be made to leap or drop like a flying boat. These unusual movements are made possible by the odd propeller which may be pointed in any direction, and the entire force of the blades is applied to lifting. Once in the air the shaft is pointed forward, and the machine moves ahead with a speed that equals the best attained by other machines. At any time during the flight the position of the propeller may be changed. Here is shown the new propeller being adjusted to a testing motor. In the insert is shown Peter Cooper Hewitt, the inventor.

Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. # George Washington's Farewell Address

HOLDEN STATUE AT RICHMOND, VA.

WASHINGTON IN HIS FAREWELL ADDRESS

GEOGE WASHINGTON'S Farewell Address bulked large in the nationwide discussion of the peace treaty and the league of nations. Four American state documents figured with increasing regularity in the debate in the senate and in the thousand and one public speeches and published articles: the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, Washington's Farewell Address and the Monroe Doctrine.

The Farewell Address was used at a test everywhere by everybody. Both sides used it. Those who opposed the treaty made use of it as a solemn warning against "entangling foreign alliances"—the present-day equivalent of Washington's phrase, "permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world." Those favoring the treaty argued that Washington's political wisdom was of his day only, and that his teachings are out of date; that while Washington was good and noble he was unlearned in the science of government and untrained in the arts of statecraft.

Those who adhered to the policy of the Farewell Address also upheld the Monroe Doctrine, holding the latter to be the development and outgrowth of the former.

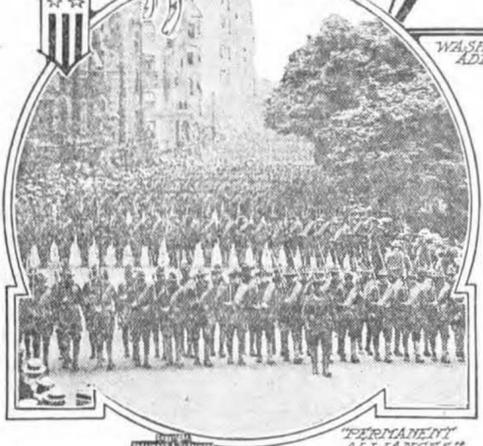

The events leading up to the Farewell Address are briefly as follows: The constitutional convention met in May in Philadelphia. After four months of secret deliberations the Constitution was completed and offered to the individual states for adoption. Nine states were necessary; New Hampshire made the ninth. The Constitution went into effect June 21, 1788. George Washington was elected the first president of the United States and served two terms, 1789-1796. He declined a third term and established the precedent for but one re-election.

If Washington accepted the presidency with reluctance it was with pronounced distaste that he yielded to what he thought was his duty and took the office for a second term. And it proved to be a stormy term. In 1793 France declared war on England and Louis XVI was beheaded in France by the revolutionists. "Citizen" Genet, representing the French revolutionists, arrived here and stirred the American people to a frenzy of sympathy with France. Washington issued a neutrality proclamation which aroused a storm of popular protest. Genet's activities resulted in his recall. In the meantime Great Britain was postponing the surrender of British posts in the Northwest, taking American sailors from American ships under the pretext that they were Britons and so acting generally that a large part of the American people clamored for war against the British. Washington finally succeeded in negotiating a treaty with Great Britain, which in part corrected these evils. Thus he succeeded both in maintaining neutrality and averting war, in spite of disorder in his cabinet and division of sentiment in the nation. And it was with a full heart that he wrote that part of his Farewell Address to the American people, September 17, 1796, as his retirement from the presidency approached. That his heart was full is shown by these words from the address:

"In offering to you, my countrymen, these comments of an old and affectionate friend, I dare not hope they will make the strong and lasting impression that I could wish—that they will control the usual current of the passions or prevent our passion from running the course which has hitherto marked the destiny of nations. But if I may even flatter myself that they may be productive of some partial benefit, some occasional good—that they may now and then recur to moderate the fury of party spirit, to warn against the mischiefs of foreign intrigue, to guard against the impostures of pretended patriotism—this hope will be a full recompense for the solicitude for your welfare by which they have been dictated."

The part of the Farewell Address most used, of course, was those paragraphs toward its close, which bear on foreign relations of the United States. These paragraphs were read into the Congressional Record as follows on several occasions:

"Against the insidious wiles of foreign influence (I conjure you to believe me, fellow citizens) the jealousy of a free people ought to be constantly awake, since history and experience prove that foreign influence is one of the most baneful foes of republican government. . . .

PERMANENT ALLIANCES

"The great rule of conduct for us in regard to foreign nations is in extending our commercial relations to have with them as little political connection as possible. So far as we have already formed engagements let them be fulfilled with perfect good faith. Here let us stop.

"Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities.

"Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to pursue a different course. If we remain united people, under an efficient government, the period is not far off when we may defy material injury from external annoyance; when we may take such an attitude as will cause the neutrality we may at any time resolve upon to be scrupulously respected; when belligerent nations, under the impossibility of making acquisitions upon us, will not lightly hazard the giving us provocation; when we may choose peace or war, as our interest, guided by justice, shall counsel.

"Why forego the advantages of so peculiar a situation? Why quit our own to stand upon foreign ground? Why, by interweaving our destiny with that of any part of Europe, entangle our peace and prosperity in the toils of European ambition, rivalry, interest, humor or caprice?

"It is our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world. . . .

"Taking care always to keep ourselves by suitable establishments on a respectable defensive posture, we may safely trust to temporary alliances for extraordinary emergencies.

"Harmony, liberal intercourse with all nations are recommended by policy, humanity and interest. But even our commercial policy should hold an equal and impartial hand, neither seeking nor granting exclusive favors or preferences; . . . constantly keeping in view that it is folly in one nation to look for disinterested favors from another; that it must pay with a portion of its independence for whatever it may accept under that character; that by such acceptance it may place itself in the condition of having given equivalents for nominal favors, and yet of being reproached with ingratitude for not giving more. There can be no greater error than to expect or calculate upon real favors from nation to nation. It is an illusion which experience must cure, which a just pride ought to discard."

The Monroe Doctrine dates from a declaration December 2, 1823, by President James Monroe in his seventh annual message to congress. The Holy Alliance, formed in 1815 by Russia, Austria and Prussia, was threatening to help Spain recover control of South America. Russia and the United States were in controversy over the Pacific coast boundaries. The aim of the Monroe Doctrine is in these two paragraphs:

"In the discussions to which this interest (the Russian controversy) has given rise, and in the arrangements by which they may terminate, the

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

NEW, GREAT FORCES AT WORK

Demand for New Order of Things is Universal and Reactionaries Merely Swell the Rising Tide of Discontent.

Article IV.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

The most obvious thing in Europe is the changed attitude of the people, and yet there are many, particularly in the conservative, employing class, who refuse to see. There are none so blind as those who close their eyes and minds to the obvious, the change goes on. It is not idle rhetoric to say that new great forces are at work. Of course you cannot see the forces any more than you can see the grass growing, but you can see the effects. You can measure the character of the forces.

Everywhere I found people talking about a new Order. Men separated by hundreds of miles are thinking and talking the same ideas. It startled me to hear the same ideas up in the Balkans that I had heard in France and England. I did not meet any one who was able to give me a clear, complete meaning of the phrase, but it is on the lips of everyone. It has a meaning, and time will produce a plan. The people are forward looking—they are thinking, waiting for something to happen. They have faith that it will happen and that it will bring great good to the human race. Every one seems confident that some great compensation must and will come out of the siege of suffering through which they have passed. If they were not so earnest, so sane, so determined about it I should have interpreted their enthusiasm as fantasy.

A meaningless minority of reactionaries scorn and scoff at all talk of a new Order. These are the backward-looking men of big business, the stand-patters in politics. They are out of touch with the times; they think the real world is the little circle in which they live. They are the barnacles on big business. They smugly set down all talk of change as bolshevism. Fortunately the real leaders of business are breaking away from this point of view. Progressive, human and open minded, they see and know that unrest is a problem and that it must be solved. They are paying heed to the complaints of the workers. They admit that there is justice back of the complaints. Instead of arguing coercion, they are talking concession. They know a change has come, they want to meet it.

New Order Must Come.

A new Order will come. The one question that is bothering the minds of men who are awake to the change is, will it come through revolution or through evolution. The greatest friend of revolution is the stubborn employer who refuses to see the change, accepts things as they are, and insists upon the use of force as the only cure for unrest.

Money is a gross thing when compared with human life. To mention Europe's financial losses in the same breath with her dead and wounded, seems sordid, but it is an everyday world and in it money has its logical place. Since the war some people are thinking that money has had too important a place in the world. It has been charged with pushing man out of his place, but bills must be paid and Europe needs money. The war cost billions and billions of dollars. Millions of men had to be clad and shod, billions and billions of cartridges and shells, rifles, cannons, airplanes, ships, were made. Europe owes the money. How will she pay it? where will she get it? It is a question that even the wisest and most optimistic of men in Europe hesitate to answer. Some wonder, is there an answer?

Europe has borrowed until her interest charge today is almost as large as her whole cost of governmental administration was a few years ago. I heard Lloyd George say that England faced a yearly interest charge of three hundred million pounds. Another official told me that this interest charge that England must pay each year is nearly one hundred million pounds a year larger than the cost of administration was at the time of the Boer war. Only the other day her interest was due on some loans from the United States and she was forced to default, and our government charged the interest to the principal and passed the day of payment on. In the meantime the pound is going down in value. When I was on the Continent it had reached $1.4. Today it is under $1.37, and steadily going down.

France is in even a worse plight. The banks are loaded with government paper. She has made no provision for taxation to pay her debt. I was told on every hand that any effort to impose a tax would bring on a revolution. It is said that her debt has reached the startling figure of $640 for every man, woman and child in the country. When I left Cherbouge to sail for America a regulation had been put into effect prohibiting any one leaving France from taking money with him, either metal or paper money, in excess of a thousand francs, and on that day you could buy almost nine francs for an American dollar. Can France pay? The figures prove France insolvent. Her officials and her men of prominence say she cannot pay. Her war debt is enormous.

Poverty on Every Side.

Italy is as bankrupt as France. A forced loan temporarily held the lira from losing all of its value. Her war debt threatens the throne.

In the new Balkan countries we find no gold reserve, little but poverty. In Czechoslovakia the government closed the borders for ten days, commanded the people to bring their money to the banks where stamps were put on the bills. When they brought their money they were given 50 per cent of it back and receipts for the balance. In this way the government cut down the volume of paper money 50 per cent. Even after this was done in the city of Prague I bought kronens for less than two cents a piece.

In Poland every kind and species of paper money is in circulation. Her frontiers have not been fixed by the peace table, and the profiteers in money smuggling have dumped the worthless paper of Europe into Poland. In October I was in Warsaw and my recollection is that the mark was worth about two cents in American money. Poland has no metal money. She hasn't a gold reserve. Her struggle to get credit to keep her people from dying by the millions from hunger and cold is pitiful.

Austria is penniless, poverty-stricken. Vienna is a city of ghosts, listless, hopeless, human beings. They drag their feet after them. Their heads are bent between their shoulders. The kronen was worth a cent when I was there in September, and even at that price there was practically nothing to buy. Austria in her extremity, her people starving, petitioned the peace table for the privilege of selling her art treasures and heirlooms. The plea was to exchange them for bread and coal. Necessity prompted the plea. The peace table refused the permission, holding that these things of value might be of only collateral out of which the allies could collect the indemnity.

Facing Gigantic Task.

Europe is not dying; she is exhausted, tortured, confused. She is trying to find herself. She is putting all of her remaining strength into the effort. The task before her is stupendous. She must rebuild her house. She must nurse her wounded, care for her cripples. She has counted her losses, inventoried her possessions. The past must bury its dead. Tomorrow is for the living. Today she is planning for the tomorrow. She must repair her house, put it in order. To understand her work, to know her plans, to feel her problems, it is necessary to know her thoughts.

Unrest is frightening her. Fear is keeping her from work. It is casting her to worry. With all her soul she is pleading to the rich and powerful to become as little children again, her children. She is telling them that the fate of the family is at stake, that they must make concessions to their more unfortunate brothers. She is trying to make them understand that they are brothers. Many of them have forgotten the relationship. When she urges them to stop wrangling and quarreling she is pleading for their common good, the family welfare. She is warning against the danger of justice too long denied, of unrest too long pent up. She is translating the murmurings and mumblings of the discontented. She knows the complaint in their hearts, she sympathizes, she understands.

This was Europe as I saw her in her black rags arising from the war. (Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

Greatest American Humorist.

On the 30th of November, in 1920, Samuel Langhorne Clemens (Mark Twain) was born at Florida, Monroe county, Mo. Mark Twain first was a pilot on the Mississippi river. At the age of twenty-seven he began his literary career as city editor of a newspaper, the Enterprise, in Virginia City, Nev. He is the best known of American humorists, and his works have been widely translated. During his life-time Mark Twain lectured a great deal in this country and in Europe. He had a great charm of personality and was beloved by all who knew him. He died at Redding, Conn., April 21, 1910.

Shoemaker's Wax a Liquid.

It is not always possible to draw a very clear line of demarcation between a liquid and a solid. Shoemaker's wax, which is so brittle that the fragmentation obtained when a sheet of it is hit by a bullet resembles that in the case of the very brittle metal antimony, is actually a liquid. To show this place leaden bullets upon a sheet of shoemaker's wax and then support the whole upon cork. At the end of a month the corks will be found floating upon the sheet of wax instead of beneath it and the bullets will be at the bottom as in a liquid.

Largest Movie House.

New York has in building a moving picture theater with a seating capacity of 5,200, which may constitute it the largest of its kind anywhere. Judging by the heavy patronage in other such places, the new house may be filled at the chief performances. The public is seeking professional entertainment as never before.

CITY PEOPLE LIVE LONGEST

Contrary to Very General Belief, the Country is Not the More Healthful Place to Live.

It has always been thought that the country was a more healthful place than the city, but the following article offered by Prof. R. F. Coen of the Colorado Agricultural college seems to refute it:

It is a lower death rate than rural New York. . . .

"The people of the country might be healthier and stronger, and therefore more capable of doing their part of the world's work, but they are not.

Now Enjoys Best of Health and Does Her Housework Unaided

"I didn't enjoy one day of good health for more than two years," says Mrs. C. E. Wilder, 746 E. Georgia St., Memphis, Tenn. "At first I had nothing more than backache. After weeks of terrible attacks of pain left me weak and limp. My arms and limbs ached. My feet felt weighed with tons of lead. I couldn't walk without a cane and had to be carried to bed every night. I couldn't do a bit of work and kept my people busy rubbing my aching limbs. Sometimes my whole body became rigid. My feet were swollen twice their normal size. "It almost killed me to pass the kidney secretions. I lost 42 pounds and each day felt I had aged a year. I was so nervous the rustle of a paper made me scream. "Finally I was advised to use Doan's Kidney Pills and seven boxes made me a well woman. HER LIFE WAS SAVED!

Kansas City, Kans.—"About twenty-three years ago Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Golden Medical Discovery saved my life. I became ill; had a severe cough and bronchitis. At times I would get so badly choked up that I would have to sit up in bed to get my breath and in a short time I began to suffer with dropsy. I doctored but did not improve, in fact, I got so bad I was bed-ridden and had to have a nurse. The doctor told me the only thing that would help me was a change of climate. He advised me to go to a southern climate. I knew of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and decided to try it. I had my nurse get me two bottles. The first night I had her give me just a few drops every few minutes and by twelve o'clock I was asleep. A thing I had not done for about three weeks. The next day they gave me this medicine every half hour and after that as directed. I kept up its use until I was a well woman. It not only cured me but I was in better health than I had ever been and since that time I have always taken 'Favorite Prescription' whenever I was badly run-down or in need of a tonic and it has never failed to help me. I am glad to recommend Dr. Pierce's medicine."—MRS. SARAH COLEMAN, 1420 Wood Ave.

Run-down—Weak—Nervous Omaha, Neb.—"I was at one time greatly benefited by taking Dr. Pierce's medicine. I became all run-down and was weak and nervous and was greatly in need of some good tonic to build me up and give me strength. I took the 'Favorite Prescription' and the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and they proved to be just what I needed for they built me up and restored me to good health. For this I am very thankful, indeed."—MRS. JENNIE RICHARDSON, 637 S. 25th Ave.

Right-o, Mr. John Bull! To Know Us Is to Love Us

WASHINGTON.—In response to the appeal of the Anglo-American society, Sir George Watson has given the sum of £20,000 required for the foundation and endowment of a chair in American history, literature and institutions, in order to promote such studies in all the British universities. The foundation of the chair forms the principal educational proposal of the British program for the tercentenary celebration of the Mayflower and the Pilgrim Fathers (1620-1920). The proposal was as follows: A sum of £20,000 is required for the foundation and endowment of a chair of lectureship in American history, literature and institutions. If this sum be given by a single donor, the name of the donor will be associated with the chair.

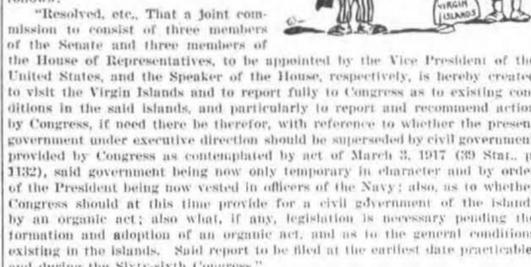

It is not proposed that the chair shall be exclusively attached to one university, but that it shall be used for the general purpose of stimulating interest and study of America in all the British universities.

Neither will the chair be held permanently by one scholar of a single nationality. The scheme provides that it shall be held, for a period of one to two years, alternately by an American and a British scholar or public man—thus drawing upon the best intellectual resources of the two countries, and securing a variety of treatment of the subjects dealt with.

The committee is of opinion that this foundation would greatly assist to create in Great Britain a wider knowledge of America today, and of the history, literature and institutions of this great trans-Atlantic commonwealth of English-speaking people.

Virgin Islanders Want Local Civil Government

THE 75,000 people of the three Virgin Islands in the West Indies, which the United States purchased in 1917 from the Danish government for $25,000,000, think it is high time they should have local civil government. Up to date they have been governed by the United States navy department, which is quite willing to get rid of the job. Congress seems to think that the proposition is worth looking into. Anyway, the senate recently passed a joint resolution, which the house amended. It was evidently stated for passage and at last accounts was as follows: "Resolved, etc., that a joint commission to consist of three members of the Senate and three members of the House of Representatives, to be appointed by the Vice President of the United States, and the Speaker of the House, respectively, is hereby created to visit the Virgin Islands and to report fully to Congress as to existing conditions in the said islands, and particularly to report and recommend action by Congress, if need be therefor, with reference to whether the present government under executive direction should be superseded by civil government provided by Congress as contemplated by act of March 3, 1917 (69 Stat., p. 1132), said government being now only temporary in character and by order of the President being now vested in officers of the Navy; also, as to whether Congress should at this time provide for a civil government of the islands by an organic act; also what, if any, legislation is necessary pending the formation and adoption of an organic act, and as to the general conditions existing in the islands. Said report to be filed at the earliest date practicable, and during the Sixty-sixth Congress."

Professor's Rocket Makes Old H. C. L. Look Cheap

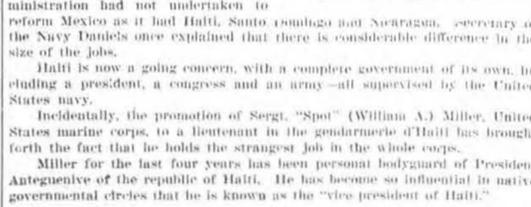

EVEN Old H. C. L. isn't in it with this new contraption. The invention of a new type of multiple charge, high efficiency rocket that will penetrate the 200 miles of the earth's atmosphere and possibly shoot to the moon is announced by the Smithsonian Institution. The invention is the work of Prof. Robert H. Goddard of Clark College, who has tested it, and prediction is made that it will be invaluable to the science of meteorology.

The highest level so far reached by scientists with recording instruments is 19 miles, accomplished with a free balloon. Professor Goddard believes that his new rocket can be sent completely through the band of the earth's atmosphere and into the etherial mysteries beyond. With a rocket of his latest designed type, weighing 1,274 pounds initial mass, Professor Goddard claims it will penetrate to unmeasured heights and lead to great discoveries. "The apparatus," says the Smithsonian announcement, "designed and tested by Professor Goddard is a multiple-charge, high efficiency rocket of an entirely new design. "The great scientific value of Professor Goddard's experiments lies in the possibility of sending recording apparatus to moderate and extreme altitudes within the earth's atmosphere. The nature of the higher levels of the air has for a long time been a subject of much speculation."

Garranza Needs a "Vice President" Like "Spot"

WHAT the United States could do for Mexico has been demonstrated by the regeneration of three American republics accomplished by virtual protectors established by Uncle Sam. The three republics are Haiti, Santo Domingo, and Nicaragua. In the case of Haiti and Santo Domingo the protectorate was established and is still maintained by force of arms. In the case of Nicaragua it was established by consent, though United States marines have maintained order in the republic for nearly a decade. When asked why the Wilson administration had not undertaken to reform Mexico as it had Haiti, Santo Domingo and Nicaragua, Secretary of the Navy Daniels once explained that there is considerable difference in the size of the jobs. Haiti is now a going concern, with a complete government of its own, including a president, a congress and an army—all supervised by the United States navy. Incidentally, the promotion of Sergt. "Spot" (William A.) Miller, United States marine corps, to a lieutenant in the gendarmerie of Haiti has brought forth the fact that he holds the strangest job in the whole corps. Miller for the last four years has been personal bodyguard of President Antegenive of the republic of Haiti. He has become so influential in native governmental circles that he is known as the "vice president of Haiti."

It Would Add to the Deliberations of Congress

SECRETARY of War Baker recently declared himself for "some radical changes" in the administration of the government, including the seating of cabinet members either in the senate or in the house of representatives. He was addressing a meeting of "mothers, wives and sisters" called by the New York League for Political Education.

"I believe members of the cabinet should have seats in one or the other house," the secretary said, "and should be present to defend the policies of their departments. They should have the right of debate without vote, and should answer questions asked of them. But no head of a department should have questions asked at him and then have his department criticised on the floor of either house without the head of that department being present to put in his defense. "The writers of the constitution tried to aim between the king of the olden days and the mob. They provided for both. They made the president responsible for the government of the nation, but gave him little power. They conferred on Congress great powers, but no responsibility. "I am not speaking now of President Wilson's administration only. The same thing has happened in every administration, even in that of President McKinley. When the strong personal friendship between the president and Senator Hanna, leader of the senate, made harmony nearly possible. "In every administration, notably in that of Mr. Roosevelt, there has been a clash between the executive and legislative branches."

GIRLS! A MASS OF WAVY, GLEAMY BEAUTIFUL HAIR

Let "Danderine" save and glorify your hair

In a few moments you can transform your plain, dull, flat hair. You can have it abundant, soft, glossy and full of life. Just get at any drug or toilet counter a small bottle of "Danderine" for a few cents. Then moisten a soft cloth with the Danderine and draw this through your hair taking one small strand at a time. Instantly, yes, immediately, you have doubled the beauty of your hair. It will be a mass, so soft, lustrous, fluffy and so easy to do up. All dust, dirt and excessive oil is removed.

Let Danderine put more life, color, vigor and brightness in your hair. This stimulating tonic will freshen your scalp, check dandruff and falling hair, and help your hair to grow long, thick, strong and beautiful.—Adv.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You. Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders. Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.—Adv.

The KITCHEN CABINET

"This community spirit says: I am under obligations of service to my neighbor next door, whoever he is. I am under obligations to my community. I am no longer a resident only; I am a responsible citizen. I must make it my duty to see that the schools and churches teach first of all good citizenship."

WAYS WITH MEATS.

To broil a steak, be sure to have the steak at least one or one and one-half inches thick. Heat the broiling pan smoking hot and rub it quickly with a piece of suet on a fork, then lay in the steak. Cook for a minute and turn to sear the other side, being careful when turning not to pierce the steak with the fork or the juices will be lost. When both sides are well seared season with pepper, salt and a bit of butter, then cook at a lower temperature until it is right to serve. Serve on a hot platter.

Pot Roast.—Take four pounds of beef from the shoulder. Put half a cupful of good drippings in an iron kettle, and when hot turn in the beef; sear well all over, then let it cook slowly for two hours. After the first hour season with salt and pepper, a piece of celery, carrot, an onion and a piece of bay leaf, if that flavor is liked. If cooked slowly no water will be needed. Pour off some of the fat and make a gravy as for roast beef.

Swiss Steak.—Pound flour with the edge of a saucer into a round steak, using as much flour as the meat will take up. Season well and fry in a little hot fat until well browned on both sides, then add water to cover and set on the back of the range or over the simmering burner to cook for two hours or until tender. Cover closely to keep in all the steam. The gravy is ready to serve with this dish as it is made from the flour in the pan with the liquor. Onions, carrot or celery may be added to the meat while cooking to vary the flavor.

Mock Duck.—Flank steak may be used for this dish. Score the flank in a half dozen slashes. Prepare a stuffing as for chicken. Add sage and suet or any sweet fat. Roll up carefully, tie and place in a kettle and half cover with boiling water. Simmer several hours on the back of the stove and when tender brown in a hot oven. If a broiler is used it may cook over night. Serve with gravy made from the liquor in the kettle.

Fried Ham.—Take a thick slice of ham, parboil it for five minutes. Do not drain, but spread with a teaspoonful of mustard and a tablespoonful of brown sugar and cook until brown. Ham is also most palatable cooked in this way, using oil instead of water in which to parboil it. Another way with ham is to place a thick slice in a granite pan and cover with milk. Bake in a moderate oven until the milk is nearly absorbed.

It is manifest the world over that only by increased production and persistent frugality in the use of food supplies can the food problem be solved and the cost of living reduced.—American Cookery.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

With the high price of eggs we will have to make some attempt to learn some egg extenders. We have become so proficient in extending meat that surely the same ability may be used with eggs. A good supper or breakfast dish is made by using a cupful of seasoned boiled rice, added to two or three eggs which have been scalloped with milk. This dish will serve four or five persons.

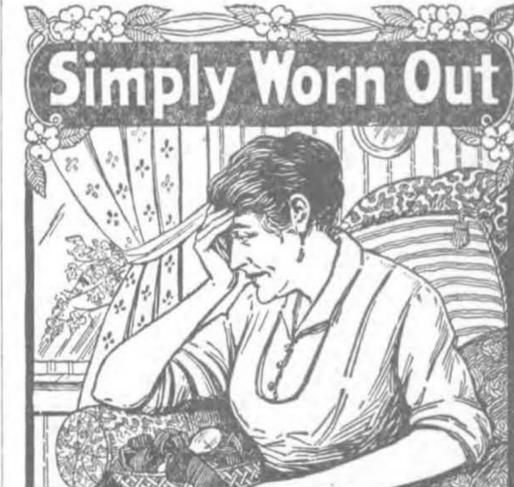

Bran Bread.—Take one cupful of whole wheat flour, half a cupful of honey, four cupfuls of rye flour, a teaspoonful of soda, four teaspoonfuls of nutmeg, two teaspoonfuls of ginger, the yolks of two eggs and one-fourth of a cupful of powdered sugar. Mix the flour with the dry ingredients, mix with the eggs and sugar, put into greased pans and bake in a quick oven.

Puffed Rice Brittle.—Heat one cupful of sugar in a smooth pan until clear and golden brown. Stir into this one-half package or more of puffed rice which has been well heated in the oven to crisp it. Fondant.—For a foundation for all bon bon and French candies this is the basis. Put together two cupfuls of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of corn syrup and one-half cupful of water in the soft ball stage. Pour out on a buttered platter and when cool enough to handle work with a wooden spoon and knead until smooth. Put away in a buttered bowl to ripen for a day or two. This candy may be mixed with fruit, colored and flavored to taste, molded in balls or dipped in melted chocolate for chocolate cream or mixed with nuts.

Marshmallow Peaches.—Arrange halves of peaches on a broiler dish. Whip cream, sweeten and flavor with almond. Place a spoonful of the cream in the cavity of the peach with a fresh marshmallow on top. Serve with cookies or cakes as a dessert.

Nellie Maxwell Fuel Promises Much. "Cataland fuel" is a mixture of oil, finely powdered coal, and a stabilizer which keeps the coal particles from settling in the oil. How Many Women Are Like This?

Can anything be more wearing for women than the ceaseless round of household duties? Oh! the monotony of it all—work and drudge; no time to be sick; tired, ailing, yet cannot stop. There comes a time when something "snaps" and they find themselves "simply worn out," and to make matters worse, have contracted serious feminine disorder which almost always follows the constant overtaxing of a woman's strength.

Then they should remember that there is no remedy like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—the experience of these two women establishes that fact:

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—"After the birth of my last child I had such painful spells that would unfit me entirely for my household work. I suffered for months and the doctor said that my trouble was organic ulcers and I would have to have an operation. That was a awful thing to me, with a young baby and four other children, so one day I thought of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and how it had helped me years before and I decided to try it again. I took five bottles of Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sensitive Wash and since then I have been a well woman, able to take care of my house and family without any trouble or a day's pain. I am ready and thankful to swear by my medicine any time. I am forty-four years old and have not had a day's illness of any kind for three years."—Mrs. H. KOEHL, 617 Ellis Blvd., Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Sandusky, Ohio.—"After the birth of my baby I had organic trouble. My doctor said it was caused by too heavy lifting and I would have to have an operation. I would not consent to an operation and let it go for over a year, having my sister do my work for me as it was not able to walk. One day my aunt came to see me and told me about your medicine—said it cured her of the same thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sensitive Wash and they have cured me. Now I do my own housework, washing and ironing and sewing for my family and also do sewing for other people. I still take a bottle of Vegetable Compound every spring for a tonic. I recommend your medicine to others who have troubles similar to mine and they can use my letter if they wish."—Mrs. PAUL FARMER, 1235 Stone St., Sandusky, Ohio.

COAX 'EM Stop Whipping Bowels Into Activity, but take "Cascarets"

Put aside the Salts, Pills, Castor Oil or Purgative Waters that irritate and lash the bowels into action but which do not thoroughly cleanse, freshen and purify these drainage organs, and have no effect whatever upon the liver and stomach. Keep your "insides" pure and fresh with Cascarets, which thoroughly cleanse the stomach, remove the undigested, sour food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels which are keeping you half sick, headachy, and miserable. Cascarets tonight will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never grip, sicken or cause inconvenience. Cascarets cost so little too.—Adv.

Francis J. Dyer, American consul at Nogales, Sonora, has been authorized by the Department of State at Washington to formally express the regret of the United States Government over the death of Gerardo Pesqueira, half-brother of Gen. Ygnacio Pesqueira of the Supreme Military Tribunal at Mexico City.

Young Pesqueira was accidentally shot by a United States border guard several days ago when the latter was firing to halt a prisoner who was endeavoring to escape from customs officers.

Despite careful nursing and skilled surgical attention, the wounded man died in St. Joseph's hospital following an operation necessitated by blood poisoning.

He is declared by all who knew him to have been an estimable young man, well liked on each side of the international line, and his untimely death is pronounced a distinct loss to both communities.

BERNARD ANNOUNCED CANDIDACY, DECLARE TRADE EXCURSIONISTS

Denial by Al Bernard that while in Mexico he announced himself as a candidate for governor of Arizona, published in the current issue of the Tucson Star, has caused the risibilities of Nogales men who were with Mr. Bernard on the trade excursion.

According to several prominent members of the party, Mr. Bernard not only announced his candidacy, but insisted that the announcement be issued to the press. The report, printed exclusively in the Nogales Herald, was telegraphed to this paper from Mexico, verified, and given to the world through the Associated Press.

The Herald is rather surprised to learn that Mr. Bernard now denies that he announced gubernatorial ambitions and publishes this statement to inform Santa Cruz readers that his announcement was taken in good faith by members of the excursion party.

It is possible that under the influence of the alluring Mexican climate Mr. Bernard felt like announcing himself as a candidate for governor, or even for president, on that particular day, and that his transition into an atmosphere bearing less humidity might have brought about a withdrawal of the announcement, his acquaintances here say.

July Expedition to South Pole Be Made In "Kangaroo" Plane

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The British Expedition to the South Pole, which plans to start in July next, will use a "Kangaroo" airplane, formerly a fighting machine, for the final stage of the journey. This plane will be fitted with skis instead of wheels to enable it to land in the snow.

The aircraft will make its actual start from the Great Barrier, and will proceed to the South Pole over the great glacier, and then across known but un-named mountains.

It is proposed to take a crew of not less than four, in addition to which a sledge containing a tent, shovels, cooking stove and camping equipment and provisions for at least 10 weeks must be carried. These provisions and the sledge necessary in the event of an accident, which might compel the party to return to the base on foot, will weigh approximately 750 pounds.

This weight, together with the necessary fuel for a 1,500 mile flight, necessitates a big powerful machine, as the mountains to be flown over are over 12,000 feet above sea level.

The "Kangaroo" was one of the latest fighting bombers designed for the British Air Ministry, and at the time of the armistice was largely used on the anti-submarine patrol service. The machine is a big plane measuring 75 feet from wing-tip to wing-tip, and is fitted with twin engines developing 550 horsepower.

One great trouble to be overcome is the question of cooling, or rather the heating of the engine, as the temperature which will be experienced is only 12 degrees above zero in summer, and experiments are now being carried out with a view to overcoming the difficulty.

SCORPION WINS DEATH STRUGGLE WITH CENTIPEDE

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Feb. 18.—The desert-old question as to which wins in a death-battle between a scorpion and a centipede has been answered for the first time, possibly, by J. W. Cateik, former mayor of San Bernardino, who witnessed such a contest in the Painted Hills of San Bernardino county.

The scorpion won. Cateik was lifting a rock to obtain a mining monument when he discovered the two creatures of the desert preparing for battle. They paid no attention to him, but carefully began the "contestious with death." Apparently the poison of neither was fatal to the other and death came to the centipede only when the scorpion finally fastened its claws about its enemy and tore off its head while the centipede was struggling to free itself.

The two creatures were each about two inches long.

For decades prospectors on the Mojave desert and in Death Valley have been willing to bet—sometimes small fortunes—on the question of whether a centipede or a scorpion would win a battle to the death, it is said, but as far as was known never witnessed such a contest.
