

HARDING NOTIFIED OF NOMINATION

EDITOR RAISES OLD GLORY ON M'KINLEY'S FLAG-POLE

MARION, Ohio, July 22—The Republican campaign attained full speed ahead today with the formal notification here of Warren G. Harding, the party's nominee for presidency.

Harding Advises G.O.P. of Arizona To Stand Together

PRESCOTT, July 22—"Please accept my grateful thanks for your telegram of support of the Arizona Republicans," Senator Harding, Republican presidential nominee, said in a message to Andrew Baumert, secretary of the Republican state committee.

OLDEST INHABITANT CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Mr. James Foley celebrated his 82nd birthday in Patagonia Monday. In point of years he is the oldest inhabitant in the town; in point of activity and mental acumen he is about the youngest.

Sen. Harding's Speech of Acceptance

MARION, Ohio, July 22—A pledge of constitutional government, administered by party, not by an individual, and based on national rather than world ideals, was given by Warren G. Harding today in accepting formally the Republican nomination for the presidency.

He welcomed a popular referendum on the League of Nations, advocated increased production to cut the high cost of living, pleaded for obliteration of sectional and class conflict, and declared for industrial peace.

He declared it his "sincere desire" that ratification of the suffrage amendment be completed to permit women to vote this fall in every state.

Reviewing and commending briefly many other planks of the party platform, the candidate declared for collective bargaining for farmers, repression of the disloyal, "generous federal co-operation" in rehabilitating the railroads, intelligent deflation of the currency, enlargement of government aid in reclamation, a genuine expression of gratitude to veterans of the world war and maintenance of an ample navy and "a small army but the best in the world."

"No man," he said, "is big enough to run this great republic. Our first commitment is the restoration of representative popular government, under the constitution, through the agency of the Republican party."

Restoration of Peace Promising restoration of peace as soon as a Republican congress should send a peace declaration to a Republican president for his signature, the candidate assailed the League covenant as brought home by President Wilson but declared the war's sacrifices would be "in vain if we cannot acclaim a new order, with added security to civilization and peace maintained."

"We Republicans of the senate," he continued, "when we saw the structure of a world super-government taking visionary form, joined in a becoming warning of our devotion to this republic. The Republicans of the senate halted the barrier of independent American eminence and influence."

Preserve U. S. Freedom "We do not mean to hold aloof; we do not mean to shun a single responsibility of this republic. We were resolved then, even as we are today, and will be tomorrow, to preserve this free and independent republic. Let those of government itself."

They were met at the train by W. J. Mitchell, manager of the company, and will leave today for Santa Barbara, Sonora, on an inspection tour.

These men are well versed in the mining game and hold valuable property in this county. They will remain several days.

Otto Mayer of Nogales sent five carrier pigeons to Patagonia Wednesday morning where they were released at 11:45 a. m. by Carlos Rendon, driver of the stage. After circling a number of times over the town in order, it was supposed, to get their bearings, the birds started on a bee line toward Nogales.

ASSESSOR BOOSTS TAX TOTAL IN SANTA CRUZ

Santa Cruz County has gone over the top with a big increase in property assessment valuations for 1920 taxes. Abstracts just completed by Miss Laura Parsons, clerk of the board of supervisors, show the total assessed valuation $12,791,256 as against $11,315,403 for 1919, making an increase over last year of $1,475,853 in taxable Santa Cruz county property.

While regarded as a remarkable increase standing alone, these figures are specially gratifying in view of the fact that many counties in the state have fallen below their valuation of 1919.

Most of the mining counties have suffered in this respect because of many of the mines being closed down. Special impetus through development and improvement in the Harshaw Patagonia and other districts has saved this county from loss in this respect.

The abstract work of the county supervisors has been somewhat delayed because of numerous changes necessitated by alterations of valuation made by the supervisors sitting as a board of equalization. Then, owing to the much larger amount of work necessary because of heavier property interests, Santa Cruz County is usually behind other counties of the state in completing the valuation abstracts.

BIG STRIKE IS MADE NEAR 3R BY GRAY BROS

W. D. Gray, one of the owners of the Wild Horse mine, located near the celebrated 3-R mine, about seven or eight miles from Patagonia, was in town Tuesday and reported one of the bigest strikes of copper ore ever made in this district. Mr. Gray is emphatic in his statement that nothing like it has ever been discovered this side of Bisbee. It was found in alaskite with secondary quartz. The three specimens left at the Patagonia office are calcopite, calparyite and tinnestite, running from 25 to 40 percent copper.

In the two tunnels, eight and five feet deep and 100 feet apart, there are croppings 600 feet long, which shows 500,000 tons of copper ore in sight. Mr. Gray says he can run a tunnel and top it at 800 feet.

This new strike is said to be fifteen times larger than any of the nearby mines and will go from 25 to 40 percent copper, with some silver and gold. This is said to be the biggest strike made in Arizona for many years and as a consequence the owners are greatly elated over their success.

The Gray brothers, owners of this bonanza, have been here for the last fifteen years, and this is their first big strike. H. J. Gray, the senior member, was for seventeen years superintendent of mines in the Tombstone district, and knows that he is not mistaken in this big strike. As a result of this phenomenal streak of good fortune considerable excitement prevails over the district and a new impetus has been added to the mining interests, and it is being discussed on the streets, in the stores and offices, hotel lobbies and everywhere one goes.

The Gray brothers are thoroughly dependable men and their statements regarding this new strike are accepted without question by the citizens of Patagonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Keaton of San Rafael Valley were shopping in Patagonia Friday.

STILL CLEANING The clean-up campaign in Patagonia still moves on and quite a number of front yards and alleys have put on different appearances since the last issue of The Patagonian. Among the homes which have been cleared of all unnecessary rubbish and placed in first-class sanitary condition during the week are the following: George W. Lewis on Third street; James Gatlin near public school building.

Barlett, Mrs. F. Neil, Miss Anna Daugherty, Mrs. Lillian Reens, Mrs. Vera Everhart, G. F. Neil, Rowland Beatty, Hayden Hunt, Len Hunt, Al Waulgin and Jack Everhart.

There will be a dance at the Elgin school house on Saturday, July 24. The Nogales Jazz band will furnish the music.

Mrs. Mattie Johnson was an Elgin visitor Monday.

Mr. Beebe has a brother from New York visiting him. He is very favorably impressed with Arizona.

SUBSCRIPTION RATE OF THE PATAGONIAN IS TO BE ADVANCED

September 1, 1920, is the date set for the advance in the subscription rates of The Patagonian. Notwithstanding the fact that prices on all materials necessary for the production of a newspaper have been advanced again and again The Patagonian has declined to elevate its own rates to meet the rising cost.

Recently several sharp advances were made on paper and other articles and it becomes absolutely necessary that the subscription rate of this newspaper be advanced from $2.00 per year to $3.00 per year.

However every subscriber is offered an opportunity to renew their subscription at the old rate of $2.00 per year. This opportunity to renew at the old price will pass into history September 1st when the $3.00 per year rate will take effect. Subscribers may subscribe for as many years as desired at the old rate. New subscribers will be offered the same privilege.

We courteously request that all subscribers send in their check immediately for renewals and not wait until the last moment to make their payment. Those whose subscription is in arrears on September 1st will be eliminated from the mailing list as it is imperative that all subscriptions be paid in advance.

MINING NOTES

C. L. Scheler is opening up the Great American Vein near the American Boy Mine, just northwest of Mansfield Camp. Surface samples are very good and Mr. Scheler expects to make some money from this strong vein.

Mr. Reed and family from Rhoda Island have taken Ed Hainline's new brick house. Mr. Reed is with the Red Mountain Copper Association, operating the Exposed Reef property. He states that he expects to remain here until he has thoroughly examined the district.

It is reported that the Dixie Mine is "coming along fine," and that they are getting out shipping dirt at a lively rate. This property joins the American Boy Mines.

GOOD RAINFALL

Patagonia and surrounding country were visited by good rains Tuesday afternoon. Reports are to the effect that these rains extended to all parts of San Rafael Valley, the Elgin and Sonoita districts, Duquesne and all the mining camps in the Patagonia mountains and over a great deal of the Santa Rita mountains. In fact they seem to have been general all over this section of country and the rainy season is just getting in is the opinion of all old timers. If followed up by other rains crops will soon recover from the effects of the long drought and good all around crops may be confidently expected.

Fred Cragger of San Rafael Valley was a Patagonia visitor Friday.

Just Folks

THE MOTHER ON THE SIDEWALK.

The mother on the sidewalk as the troops are marching by is the mother of Old Glory that is waving in the sky. Men have fought to keep it splendid, men have died to keep it bright, but that flag was born of woman and her sufferings day and night; 'Tis her sacrifice has made it, and once more we ought to pray For the brave and loyal mother of the boy that goes away.

There are days of grief before her, there are hours that she will weep,

There are nights of anxious waiting when her fear will banish sleep; She has heard her country calling and has risen to the test, And has placed upon the altar of the turmoil of the fray The anguish of the mother of the boy who goes away.

You may boast men's deeds of glory, you may tell their courage great, But to die in easier service than alone to sit and wait, And I hail the little mother, with the tear-stained face and grave Who has given the flag a soldier—she's the bravest of the brave, And that banner we are proud of, with its red and blue and white Is a lasting tribute holy to all mother's love of Edgar A. SLEEPING IN A TENT

SLEEPING in a tent is a tried and tested method of getting close to nature and the domestic mosquito. For some reason which science has never been able to ascertain, the American mosquito operates at his best in a wall tent which has been swathed in netting. Many a man has left an air-tight chamber two flights up, where he was free from mosquitoes and breath, and sought refuge in a tent out in the yard, only to arise in the morning decorated with the pink art craft of the nomadic mosquito and the treacherous red ant.

The Tent Sleeper is an Early Riser, Owing to the Milkman, the Iceman and the Insomniac Rooster. tent will lose the waterproof qualities it left the factory with and begin to allow lean, penetrating streams of water to wiggle down the neck of the sleepers. If it rains hard the water will also crawl under the tent and collect in a large, damp body on the floor, so that anybody who gets out of bed to tie up the west flap will have no trouble in telling what it is at once. More internal rheumatism has been caused by sleeping in a water-soaked state in a tent which was guaranteed to stand off a cloudburst than from any other cause except putting vinegar into the breakfast food.

LAST NIGHT'S DREAMS

—WHAT THEY MEAN

WHEAT.
NOTHING grows in the land of dreams, says the readers of destiny, more favorable to those who see it in their nightly visions than a field of wheat. To look upon a field of the growing grain, or preferably to walk in such a field, foretells a great financial prosperity. To those unmarried this dream indicates success in love beyond their most sanguine expectations. Not only will they marry the person of their choice but the marriage will be a most happy one and their children will be handsome and well-behaved. All this in addition to the wealth the dream foretells. If you are engaged in a lawsuit a dream-stroll through a wheatfield is a prognostication that the suit will be decided in your favor. In fact you will be successful in all your undertakings if you dream of wheat.
There seems to be some occult connection between the wheat seen in dreams and financial matters which is

Hope for Reduction in Taxes

Hope for an early reduction in taxes is held out by Representative Mondell of Wyoming, Republican leader of the house.

"We shall enter the new session of congress in December and the new congress in March," said Mr. Mondell's statement, "with the way opened for a substantial reduction of the tax burdens."

The Republican leader made no prediction as to when the lower taxes would become effective, but said reductions would not be possible until after the close of the fiscal year which begins next month.

The proposed changes in the tax laws also were not revealed by Mr. Mondell, although he indicated his disapproval of the administration program for the disbanding of the excess profits levies. He contended that such action at this time would mean a "shifting of burdens from large incomes and profits, to the small and normal incomes and profits."

No hope for a return to pre-war expenditures and appropriations was expressed by the Republican leader, although he predicted that for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1921, a reduction "by upward of a billion dollars" would be effected, making the annual government expenses approximately $3,250,000,000. Fewer government employees and smaller appropriations for

Women Drill in Training Camp

One skirt, ten inches from the ground; two middie blouses, one black sailor hat, one bathing suit, one pair of low shoes with heels not more than an inch high; one raincoat and one sweater. Such is the primitive outfit taken by Chicago's society and professional women to the United States training corps camp at Asheville, N. C. There, under the direction of the national commandant, Miss Susanna Crocroft of Chicago (portrait herewith) they will romp in the woods, sport like mermaids in the water, and live on simple military diet. They will wear a simple little $12 uniform—without corsets—and will spend at least half the time in bathing suits.

"Conditioning" will consist of setting-up exercises, military drill with broomsticks, outdoor games and dancing, and long hikes in the shadow of Mount Mitchell. Forestry classes will be conducted in the adjacent woods and groves.

They will live under tents and eat in the open air. The drill and exercises will be conducted by officers of the American Legion. Accommodations are available for a thousand women, who will be recruited from all parts of the country.

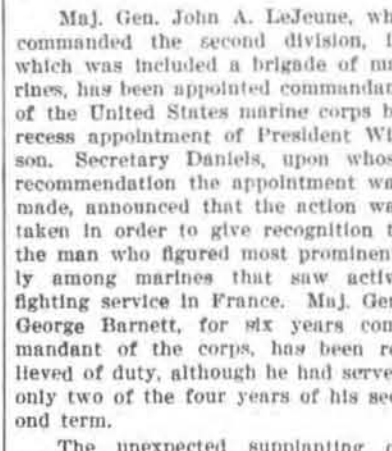

Reno and the Dicks Don't Agree

Madeleine Force Astor Dick is again in the limelight. Her first husband was Col. John Jacob Astor, who perished on the Titanic. She is now the wife of William K. Dick of New York. Reno, where divorcees are the principal industry, says Mrs. Dick has taken over a residence there. The Dicks deny that divorce proceedings are in any way possible, and say they are happy. Reno sticks to its story. Madeleine Force was first married in 1911. Her husband was old enough to be her father, and by the terms of his divorce by his first wife, Mrs. Ava Willing Astor, a year before, had been forbidden to marry again. The Titanic was lost in April of 1912. In August of 1912 was born John Jacob Astor, the sixth of his name. The second marriage took place in June of 1918. There is one son. Colonel Astor left the following bequest for his widow:

"For Madeleine Talmage Force Astor, a trust fund of $5,000,000, she to receive the income of such fund for so long during her natural life as she shall remain his widow or in case of her remarriage then, upon such remarriage, the capital of this fund shall go to William Vincent Astor."

Le Jeune Now Heads Marines

Maj. Gen. John A. LeJeune, who commanded the second division, in which was included a brigade of marines, has been appointed commandant of the United States marine corps by recess appointment of President Wilson. Secretary Daniels, upon whose recommendation the appointment was made, announced that the action was taken in order to give recognition to the man who figured most prominently among marines that saw active fighting service in France. Maj. Gen. George Barnett, for six years commandant of the corps, has been relieved of duty, although he had served only two of the four years of his second term.

The unexpected supplanting of General Barnett, who is a prominent figure in Washington society and officialdom, caused a sensation second only to the Daniels-Sims controversy. Among members of congress opinion is divided, some Republicans as well as Democrats, frankly commending Secretary Daniels, while others take a contrary view.

Generous Friend of Northwestern

James A. Patten of Evanston, Ill., Northwestern university's benefactor to the extent of $1,500,000, has terminated all official connections with the university by resigning as president and member of the board of trustees. He had been president of the board since 1917 and a member since 1905. Doctor Lynn Harold Hough, president of the university said: "Mr. Patten wished to resign at the time I was made head of the university, but was prevailed upon to withdraw his resignation and announced he would stay another year. His resignation was expected because of his apparent desire to cut down the extent of his activities."

Mr. Patten has made no statement, but an intimate associate, stipulating that his name must not be used, gives this explanation: "Generally speaking, Mr. Patten is tired of the world, tired of its ceaseless strife and discontent. He is sixty-eight years old. He said to me just the other day: 'I don't know what we're coming to.'"

ON THE FUNNYSIDE

THE MORE THE MERRIER.

"Maybe," mused Senator Sorghum, "it would be a good thing to have hundreds of thousands more government employees."

"What for?"
"So that statesmen who specialize on cutting down small salaries could make a more impressive showing as to the amount saved in the aggregate."

"You are unjust father. Harold swears he would marry me if I had not a penny."

A Warning.

"If you all fools around much gal any sadder time, sah, I'll—"
"Can't you see, sah, can't you see? First thing you knows you'll be making threats ag'in me, and I won't pay no 'tention to 'em. And then des' boogay at de 'harrassment you'll feel!"

Hard to Judge.

"Has Blithershy a sense of humor?"
"I don't know whether he has or not," replied Jobson. "But I am convinced of one thing."
"What is that?"
"He's never laughed enough at one of my jokes to justify me in asking him for a loan."

Financial Follow-Up.

"Didn't you say old Mr. Wadleigh had a turn for thrift?"
"It's worse than that. It's a gift."
"Yes?"

The Wise One—Probably that's the reason he wouldn't listen to you.

Sure Enough.

Film Shows Treatment of Flock at Culling Time in Fall and on to Selling of Lambs.

A motion picture film dealing with sheep on the farm has recently been completed by the film laboratories of the United States department of agriculture in co-operation with the bureau of animal industry. The film is now available for use by county agents, county or state sheep-breeders' association, agricultural colleges, and other department or co-operative workers or agencies.

The film is in three sections and four reels. About 45 minutes is required for the showing of the whole production.

The subject treated in the first and second reel is a year with the flock on the farm, beginning in the fall at the time that the ewe flock should be culled prior to breeding, and carrying it on through until the lambs are sold. Each seasonal practice is brought out and educational points are featured. The third reel deals with the co-operative marketing of wool and lambs, and the fourth reel with the slaughtering of a mutton sheep, dressing the carcass, and then cutting it up for meat consumption.

MEAT SUPPLIES FOR FAMILY

Greater Portion of Pork Products Used by Farmers Are Produced on Home Farm.

Nearly two-thirds of the meat eaten on the farm is pork, the average farm consumption of pork being over 500 pounds per family. The greater portion of the pork products used by farmers are produced on the home farm. A small number of pigs can be raised cheaply, says the United States department of agriculture. Kitchen and garden wastes, and sometimes dairy by-products, are available for feed. The farmer usually kills the hogs and dresses them on his own place. The hog furnishes a good variety of meat and also lard. The smoke house, a common improvement on the farm, provides a convenient way for curing pork.

SHEEP BUSINESS PROFITABLE

Study Being Made of Specialized Raising With Complete Reliance on Forage Crops.

Results of a farm sheep experiment reported by the United States department of agriculture show clearly the possibility of a profitable sheep-raising business upon eastern lands. At the government farm, Beltsville, Md., a study is being made of specialized intensive sheep raising with complete reliance upon forage crops for summer pasturage.

In 1918 a 30-acre area did not produce forage enough to feed satisfactorily 44 Southdown ewes and 33 lambs. This field is now capable of furnishing sufficient summer feed for 100 ewes with their lambs. The improvement is due in part to the application of manures, lime, and phosphates, but chiefly to the fact that leguminous crops were largely used and all crops were fed upon the ground. Under the system followed forage crops are seeded in rotation and the sheep are allowed such frequent changes of pasture as are necessary to prevent troubles from parasites.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Practically all range-bred lambs are docked and castrated.

Hogs on pasture are not so liable to be troubled with intestinal worms and are usually in a thrifty condition.

Horses' teeth demand an examination at least once a year. As the horse gets some age, his teeth need rasping often.

The success of the hog business hinges on the fact that the most economical gains are made when the pig is in a growing condition.

The calf will start to eat grain when about two weeks old and it is a good idea to start out with ground oats, barley or corn meal and wheat bran.

The lack of water may be the forerunner of many troubles of a serious nature by lowering the sheep's vitality.

Hog lice are more common than most farmers realize. Yellow eggs on the bristles back of the neck are the only indication of their presence.

Sows should not be shut up in a small pen a few feet square until the day of farrowing, unless it is absolutely necessary. They must have exercise.

SANTA CRUZ IS HEADED RIGHT

The good people of our neighboring county of Santa Cruz, after finding themselves with more roads to build than money to build them with, have recently decided to issue another one hundred thousand dollars in bonds to complete their trunk lines in that growing county. They will vote on this issue at the coming primary election in September. There probably is not a doubt but what the proposed issue will be voted and Santa Cruz is to be congratulated on what this additional issue, together with Federal aid, will do for their people.

In the first place it completes the highway from the Cochise county line to Patagonia, and in doing so completes the Borderland route via Sonoita. This gives Nogales the Bankhead Highway Military Loop and no doubt will be the means of securing the Old Spanish Trails route, main line. In speaking of this road, it can be positively stated that it is being and will continue to be the most written about and illustrated transcontinental highway in America, because of its sentimental and historic identifications and by this issue of bonds and the securing of the military loop and the OST, Nogales and Santa Cruz county will come before the people of America in a broader sense than ever before.

This issue will complete the trunk lines of Santa Cruz, and having established and proven its flood and drainage areas, gradually it will secure the paving of them. It is no stretch of the imagination to believe that the government will aid very materially in the paving of the military loop and no distant day.—Tombstone Epitaph.

It is said that the three cities in the United States that have made the greatest percent of increase in the last ten years in population, according to the Federal Census, are the three cities that have given most attention to city planning and beautification. This would seem to be a lesson to smaller places as they lay the foundation for larger ones. But whether city planning makes for better census reports or not is of less importance than that it makes for better home conditions for those who are already residents of the town. Let the people of Patagonia think.

Belgium is said to be recovering from the effects of the war at a rapid rate. The Belgians do not pretend to have discovered any substitute for work.

Heartbreaking labor awaits one of two prominent citizens of Patagonia if a recent ruling made by Governor Borquez of Sonora holds good. It will all result from the first election bet reported in Santa Cruz County. The wager is between Dr. H. J. Chenette, popular druggist, and Kent Taylor, mountain boniface, and provides that if Harding is elected president Taylor will be compelled to wheel Chenette from the busy little mining center to Nogales, Sonora, in a peanut cart and buy him one of those exhilarating drinks favored by opponents of the party headed by William Jennings Bryan.

It Cox is the successful candidate, Chenette must pay a like penalty, which includes wheeling the winner back to Patagonia. But the saddest feature for the loser is that unless Governor Borquez rescinds his order prohibiting the sale of even wine and beer within less than 150 meters of the border the winner must be pushed that much farther for the wager to be paid.

Both parties to the agreement say they are sorry since they learned of the Sonora governor's ruling. But, being true sportsmen and having shaken hands to bind the wager, neither is inclined to weaken.

They expect to have a consuming thirst when the first lap of the weary pilgrimage is completed and a worse one after the return journey is ended, because certain drastic federal laws in terrore seriously with the transportation across the line by hand or vehicle of these liquids which go to make the cup that cheers.

It has just about gotten so in this country that there is a substitute for everything but work and some people are pretty strong in their belief that this difficulty can easily be overcome.

Probably no man in Arizona has a higher respect for Liberty bonds than one who traded his for Texas oil stock.

There is one sure and safe thing to bet on and that is that the next president of the United States will be from Ohio and will be a newspaper man.

Postmaster McIntyre of Pacher Canyon, came in Saturday and remained over Sunday with his son, P. L. McIntyre, and wife. He returned home Monday morning.

Wife, Birthplace and Home of James Middleton Cox, Democratic Presidential Nominee

A recent photograph of Mrs. James Middleton Cox, wife of the Democratic nominee for President of the United States. Below, on the right, is shown the house in which Governor Cox was born, March 31, 1870, on a farm near Jacksonburg, Ohio. The upper photograph shows "Trail's End," the beautiful Cox home, which is situated near Dayton, Ohio. It is one of the most beautiful estates in that section of the country. Mrs. Cox, should her husband be successful in the elections next Fall, will be the youngest matron who has graced the White House as the wife of the President. She is in her twenty-ninth year and looks several years younger. Mrs. Cox is one of the most beautiful women of the Middle West. She was Miss Margaretta Blair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Blair of Chicago. On September 15, 1916, she was married to the Governor of Ohio. During the war she was an eager war worker and served as a phone girl in the Chicago office of the Women's Committee, Council of National Defense.

MEXICAN UNION DEMANDS CAUSE CANANEA MINE TO CLOSE DOWN

BISBEE, July 20—The Democratic mine at Cananea will close down at the end of this month, according to reports from that place, on account of the inability of the company to meet the demands for increased pay made by the Mexican union labor. The Cananea Consolidated Copper company, the big producer of the district, while not conceding to the demands of the union, will continue operations pending negotiations with the Mexican government, according to reports.

Mining companies operating in Mexico are under a heavier expense than those operating on this side of the line on account of an export tax of 2 cents a pound on copper bullion and a heavy import duty on coal and fuel oil, besides other taxes paid to the Mexican government.

These conditions, coupled with the condition of the copper market, are having a depressing effect on business in the Sonora mining camp.

MEXICAN IS DEPORTED FOR SHOOTING AT BABE

Charged with having shot at the young daughter of Mrs. L. De 'la Ossa at Luchiel while the girl was fleeing from her home with an infant in her arms, Miguel Siqueiro has been deported by order of United States Commissioner W. A. O'Connor.

It was alleged that Siqueiro, while intoxicated, entered the De 'la Ossa home and demanded a meal. The food not being prepared as rapidly as he thought it should have been, the man began shooting up the place with a rifle and six-shooter. It is said.

Fearful for the safety of the infant, Miss De 'la Ossa snatched it from its cradle and fled from the house. It was then that the drink-crazed man fired at her, members of the family charge. He has been a prisoner since May 1.

TAX VALUATION IN PIMA SHOWS BIG DECREASE

TUCSON, July 21—The assessment of Pima county's taxable property is estimated at approximately $63,625,000 in the abstract of the assessment rolls which will be presented by V. S. Griffith, county assessor, to the state tax commission at Douglas next Monday.

Mr. Griffith, in the abstract, assesses the property in the county at $64,525,000. The tabulation of property exempted from taxation has not been completed but Mr. Griffith estimates it will be approximately $900,000.

The estimate of $63,625,000 is about one million dollars less than the assessment on taxable property last year. Most of the decrease is due to the reduction of $4,100,000 allowed on the New Cornelia company's property by the state tax commission. An increase of about $3,000,000 would have been likely had the reduction not been granted the company.

The abstract must be approved by the tax commission before tax collection can be started.

JOHNSON TO BACK AMERICANISM OF WARREN HARDING

BOSTON, July 21—Senator Hiram Johnson of California, in a letter to Baneroff Abbott, leader of the Johnson forces in the pre-convention campaign in this state, said that if Senator Harding, in his speech of acceptance of the Republican nomination for the presidency, should honestly, frankly and courageously take his position in favor of the Americanism that is ours, "he could cheerfully and enthusiastically go forward with the Republican party."

If in his speech of acceptance "he should evade the issue," Senator Johnson added, a most difficult situation will be presented to men like myself.

The Republican platform plank on the league of nations, Senator Johnson said, "was not such as I would have written, but nevertheless its language seemed to me capable of but one construction."

"The big issue, which has engrossed me for so long and which has become a part of my life, seems to have been met by both platforms, the Republicans assuming the position I have taken from the first, and the Democrats the contrary position in favor of the league.

"Under these circumstances, it seems to me that men who viewed this overshadowing issue as I did can consistently follow but one course and that was the acceptance of the party opposing the league and opposition to the party approving it.

"I do not wish you to think for one instant that I am unmindful of the conditions which obtained at Chicago, or the system which we saw, in its

COMPLETES WELL
Ben Powell has completed his new well and has an abundant supply of good water. It is a dug well, has a good cement casing and will stand the pressure of a steam engine. The caving in of his old well caused quite a loss to his garden which he was irrigating, but he takes his loss philosophically by declaring that "it might have been worse." And so it might. Some one has very truthfully said that "trials are only character builders." A spring poet also once labored and brought forth a very nice little song entitled "Spring would be but gloomy weather if there was nothing else but spring." Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless this inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Haile's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. NO! NO! NO!

Synopsis—Adventurous and reckless, rather than criminal, and excited by liquor, Curly Flandrau and his chum Mac, both practically boys, become involved in a horse-stealing adventure. Disposing of the stolen stock in the town of Saguache, Ariz., the band separates. Curly and his partner staying in town. They are awakened and told a "saw" is in town in pursuit of them. They slide their pursuers. Overtaken next day, "ac" is killed by the posse and Curly made captive, after he has shot one and himself been wounded. The man shot is Luck Cullison, a former fighting sheriff.

"There's a picture in his pocket, and some letters, I reckon. Send them to Miss Myra Anderson, Tombstone, care of one of the restaurants. I don't know which one."

"Send nothin'," sneered Dutch, and coupled it with a remark no decent man makes of a woman on a guess. Because of poor Mac lying there with the little hole in his temple Curly bolted over. With a jerk his right arm was free. It shot out like a pile driver, all his weight behind the blow. Dutch went down as if a charging bull had flung him.

Almost simultaneously Curly hit the sand hard. Before he could stir three men were straddled over his anatomy. One of them ground his head into the dust.

"You would, eh? We'll see about that, Jake, bring your rope."

They tied the hands of the boy, hauled him to his feet, and set him astride a horse. In the distance a windmill of the Circle C ranch was shining in the morning sun. Toward the group of buildings clustered around this two of his captors started with Flandrau.

As they rode along a fenced lane which led to the house a girl came flying down the steps. At sight of those coming toward her she called out quickly:

"How is dad?" The quiver of fear broke in her voice.

"Don't know yet, Miss Kate," answered one of the men. "He's right peart, though. Says for to tell you not to worry. We've got here the many son of a gun that did it."

Before he had finished she was off like an arrow shot from a bow, but not until her eyes had fallen on the youth sitting bareheaded and bloody between the guns of his guard. Curly noticed that she had given a shudder, as one might at sight of a mangled mad dog which had just bit a dear friend. Long after the pounding of her pony's hoofs had died away the prisoner could see the startled eyes of fear and horror that had rested on him.

His guards put Flandrau in the bunkhouse and one of them sat at the door with a rifle across his knees. The cook, the stable boy, and red-headed Bob Cullison, a nephew of the owner of the ranch, peered past the vaquero at the captive with the same awe they would have yielded to a caged panther.

"Let's have a look at your arm, young fellow," the doctor ordered. "What about the boss?" asked Jake presently.

"Tell you more tomorrow morning." "Do you mean that he—that he may not get well?" Curly pumped out, his voice not quite steady.

Doctor Brown looked at him curiously. Somehow this boy did not fit the specifications of the desperado that had been poured into his ears.

"Don't know yet. Won't make any promises." He had been examining the wound in a businesslike way. "Looks like the bullet's still in there. Have to give you an anesthetic while I dig it out."

"Nothin' doing," retorted Flandrau. "You round up the pill in there and I'll stand the grief. When this lend hypodermic jabbed into my arm it sorter gave me one of them an-aw-aw-d'-ye-call-em—and one's a plenty for me."

"It'll hurt," the little man explained. "Expect I'll find that out. Go to it." Brown had not been for thirty years carrying a medicine case across the dusty deserts of the frontier without learning to know men. He made no further protest but set to work.

Twenty minutes later Curly lay back on the bunk with a sudden faintness. He was very white about the lips, but he had not once flinched from the instruments.

The prisoner glanced toward his guards and his voice fell to a husky whisper. "Say, Doc. Pull Cullison through. Don't let him die."

"Hmp! Do my best, young fellow. Seems to me you're thinking of that pretty late."

Brown took up his medicine case and went back to the house.

CHAPTER II.

At the End of the Road.

Curly's wooden face told nothing of what he was thinking. The first article of the creed of the frontier is to be game. Good or bad, the last test of a man is the way he takes his medicine. So now young Flandrau ate his dinner with a hearty appetite, smoked cigarettes impassively, and occasionally chatted with his guards casually and as a matter of course. Deep within him was a terrible feeling of sickness at the disaster that had overwhelmed him, but he did not intend to play the quitter.

As the day began to wear out two riders from the Bar Double M reached the ranch and were brought in to identify him as the horse thief. The two were Maloney and Kite Bonfils, neither of them friends of the young rustler. The foreman in particular was a wet blanket to his chances.

"You've got the right man all right," he said to Buck without answering Flandrau's cool nod of recognition.

"What sort of a reputation has he got?" Buck asked, lowering his voice a little.

Kite did not take the trouble to lower his. "Bad. Always been a tough character. Friend of Bad Bill Cranston and Sonny Stone."

"I don't know anything against the kid, barring that he's been a little wild," Maloney testified. "And I reckon we ain't any of us prize Sunday school winners for that matter."

As Buck turned to leave the bunkhouse the boy touched him on the arm. "How about Cullison?" he asked, very low.

was best. Afterward they might regret it, but that would not help him. Darkness came, and the lamps were lit. Again Curly ate and smoked and chatted a little with his captors. But as he sat there hour after hour, feeling death creep closer every minute, cold shivers ran up and down his spine.

They began to question him, at first casually and carelessly, so it seemed to Curly. But presently he discerned a drift in the talk. They were trying to find out who had been his partners in the rustling.

"And I reckon Soapy and Bad Bill left you lads at Saguache to hold the sack," Buck suggested sympathetically. Curly grew wary. He did not intend to betray his accomplices.

"Wrong guess. Soapy and Bad Bill weren't in this deal," he answered easily. The foreman of the Bar Double M interrupted impatiently, tired of trying to pump out the information by finesse.

"You've got to speak, Flandrau. You've got to tell us who was engineering this theft. Understand?" The young rustler looked at the grim frowning face and his heart sank.

"Out with it," ordered Buck. "Oh, I expect I'll keep that under my hat," Curly told them lightly.

They were crowded about him in a half circle, nearly a score of hard leather-faced plainsmen. Some of them were riders of the Circle C outfit. Others had ridden over from neighboring ranches. All of them plainly meant business.

"Think again, Curly," advised Sweeney quietly. "The boys ain't trifling about this thing. They mean to find out who was in the rustling of the Bar Double M stock."

"Not through me, they won't." "Through you. And right now." A dozen times during the evening Curly had crushed down the desire to beg for mercy, to cry out desperately for them to let him off. He had kept telling himself not to show yellow, that it would not last long. Now the fear of breaking down sloughed from his soul.

He rose from the bed and looked round at the brown faces circled about him in the shine of the lamps.

"I'll not tell you a thing—not a thing." He stood there chalk-faced, his lips so dry that he had to keep moistening them with the tip of his tongue.

was his prisoner, wasn't he? No use going off half-cooked. Some of them were discovering that they were not half so anxious to hang him as they had supposed.

The girl turned to her friends and neighbors. "I oughtn't to have talked to you that way, but you know how worried I am about dad," she apologized with a catch in her breath.

"I'm sure you didn't think or you would never have done anything to trouble me more just now. You know I didn't half mean it." She looked from one to another, her eyes shiny with tears.

"I know that no braver or kinder me lives than you. Why, you're a folks. I've been brought up among you. And so you've got to forgive me."

Some said "Sure," others told her to forget it, and one grass widower drew a laugh by saying that her little spiel reminded him of happier days.

"I'm so glad you've changed your mind. I knew you would when you thought it over," she told them chatily and confidentially.

ONE METHOD OF LURING FOX

Veteran Trapper Tells of Setting Trap and Building Fire Over It, Which Gets Results.

"About the best way I know for catching fox is the campfire set," writes "Ben There Bill" in the Hunter-Trapper. "To begin with I wade up a stream in my hip boots until I come to a level place where I know from previous signs that the foxes are accustomed to cross from hill to hill. Here I dig a hole near the stream while I stand in the water, and set my trap in it, with a little trench dug to the water for the chain, the end of which is secured to a log."

"I had a lot of brush and leaves piled them on top of the trap and set fire to them. When this burns down I have what seems to be a regular camp fire. The burning brush kills all scent of the trap, and I have been careful to remain in the water all the time. I throw an old chicken head or the remains of fish in the smoldering ashes which give out an appetizing odor to Mr. Fox, and when the fire is cold after careful reconnoitering, he will come scavenging in the ashes and the trap will do its work."

PEACE WORK of the RED CROSS

WORD comes from Washington that the cities and towns and rural districts of the nation are waking up, looking themselves over, examining the dark places, and deciding, almost all of them, that a vast amount of improvement is possible in both health and looks. And this awakening and stirring about is laid at the door of the American Red Cross. In other words, the Red Cross has offered through its many channels to lend the cause a trained mind, a big heart and a strong generous hand.

Reports just made by the national headquarters of the organization show that there are today 1,000 Red Cross chapters engaged in one or more forms of social and community activity included in the peace-time program of the society.

Evidence of the increasing alertness of communities to their needs is found on all sides. They are recognizing protection and conservation of life, recreation, child welfare, community organization, sanitation, education, delinquency, Americanization and innumerable other problems as their very own, their most vital business.

In the solution of these, they are being given the aid of the Red Cross "without stint or limit" wherever it will do the most good.

War-time developments gave every community in the United States an organized and recognized center of activity through which the people can serve and improve themselves. Such centers are the Red Cross chapters, scattered throughout the length and breadth of the nation. They are important and controlling factors in the peace plans of the American Red Cross. Each chapter being a local effort, all chapters are aware of existing conditions in their communities and are acquainted with what steps are necessary to improve the general welfare. Upon them rests the duty of offering some specialized service which may be adapted to home-town needs.

No community may have a very feeble sort of awakening. Does the Red Cross ignore the sign of life? Not at all. The Red Cross regards even a faint interest as too valuable to be neglected and attempts to offer the form of service suited to that community's need. In one locality where 13 of the 22 chapters engaged in peace-time work have jurisdiction over the population of less than 10,000, it is interesting to note how the consciousness of the smaller chapters is growing.

One of them recently requested the privilege of showing its city how garbage can be handled in an economical and cleanly manner. In response to the request, a Red Cross worker visited the chapter, armed with public health pamphlets and with working plans for incinerators and other methods of disposal. A chapter in California which is active in the field of health and social welfare writes:

"We have decided to furnish milk in the public school for some marked cases of under-nourishment, some of them the result of influenza. During the month, we transported to the hospital 18 cases of influenza, aided in eight family cases, and provided care for five old people suffering from tuberculosis. We also assisted in improving the welfare of seven old people, took care of a young boy who was without work or funds and one runaway girl, placed three children under the care of the juvenile court and placed two in a boarding house."

Reports from other localities indicate a warm Red Cross interest in community centers, clinics and other more concrete forms of social betterment. Activities of this kind differ, just as the needs which prompt them differ, each locality presenting curious types of problems.

There is, however, one need which irrespective of locality is found to be prevalent everywhere—the need for health education.

Ignorance is the underlying cause of the continued disaster of preventable disease and death that are undermining the vitality of the American people. Health education is the means by which this ignorance can be removed.

In recognizing this, the Red Cross is establishing health centers where information and education will be offered and where the health workers of the community may be brought to work together. While only a few of the health centers have been put in operation by Red Cross chapters, there have at the present time only about 25 centers in the country, the activity is growing steadily. Within a few years it is expected the Red Cross health center will form as definite a part of the community's institutions as the public school or library. Much depends on the interest of the people themselves.

Then there is the Red Cross Nursing service. Nursing service obviously tends to improve health conditions and promote health interests. The total number of nurses enrolled in Red Cross Nursing service is 37,300; of these 105 are colored women. While during the war thousands of applications were received from nurses, the enrollment has now resumed its pre-war status, the present monthly average being only about 125. This number falls far short of the demand, and in order to increase the supply, the Red Cross is daily bending its efforts in behalf of the recruiting of nurses. Of the 37,300 nurses, 531 are public health nurses serving under Red Cross chapters, and 124 serving in organizations affiliated with the Red Cross and under the supervision.

The Junior Red Cross interprets the Red Cross foreign relief program and its work in this country to school people and youngsters, and is now reaching over half of the school children in America. Fourteen of the 23,000,000 are enrolled in its membership. One hundred and eighty-six thousand teachers are serving as leaders of Junior Red Cross school auxiliaries. While their outstanding service is in answer to the humanitarian appeal of the suffering childhood of devastated foreign countries, their interest in service at home is equally keen. By means of the educational program supplied to thousands of schools by the Junior Red Cross, various educational courses, such as first aid are adapted to the children.

nor cause any waves?" It is told in the Ecclesiastical history that the Bishop Adain gave holy oil to travelers, saying: "But do you remember to cast this oil I give you into the sea, and the wind shall cease immediately." Pliny the elder proclaimed that "everything is soothed by oil." Our own Ben Franklin wrote much on the phenomenon of oil on the troubled waters. It has grown to be an accepted belief in every walk of life that there is oil to be poured forth there is peace.

EUROPE'S POTATO CROP.

In Europe potatoes are grown of different kinds for different purposes. Certain varieties are raised for cooking and others for starch making and distilling. Over there they have a so-called "stock potato," which is not used for human food at all. It is very large and coarse of texture and is utilized for feeding cattle. The yield from the acre is twice the ordinary, and the tubers being exceedingly rich in starch are great alcohol producers.

To Test the Hearing

The man with normal hearing can distinguish in a quiet room the ticking of a watch held in the hand of another person five feet away. A man with normal hearing can hear distinctly every word of a conversation being carried on 70 feet away. Again, if you are sitting in a concert room, a theater or a church, do you, when listening to the words of the speaker, lean forward in your seat in order to hear more clearly? If you do, it is a sign that your hearing is less normal than the rest of the audience; and the same applies, of course, to others who find it difficult to catch the words when sitting in a natural position. If you are talking to a person in the street you may find yourself listening acutely for every word he may utter. Such a practice may have become a habit with you; it shows, at any rate, that your hearing is not what it ought to be. If your hearing is not normal—see your doctor at once.

A recent outbreak of bubonic plague at Galveston has caused the citizens of the Island City to declare war on rats and it is stated that there will be no let-up until the rodent family is completely annihilated. Thousands of dollars will be spent in this war of extermination which is being waged under the supervision of Federal and State Health authorities. More than 2000 traps are already clicking off their daily toll in the city and it is estimated that 10,000 will be in operation before the fight is over. In parts of the high, dry lands of West Texas and New Mexico rats are increasing at an alarming rate and are becoming a menace to farmers and poultry raisers. They are also beginning to make their appearance in the eastern part of Arizona and unless efforts are speedily made to check the increase our state will soon be overrun with them.

Now that one of the biggest and richest copper mines in Arizona has just been discovered a few miles from Patagonia it is beginning to look like the dreams of our optimistic mining men are to be fully realized. It is certainly a cause for great rejoicing over the entire district and Patagonia in particular. It means much for this town—more, perhaps, than we can at the present time realize—mills, smelters and various other industries which will put in motion the wheels of commerce and business energy heretofore unknown in Santa Cruz county. Come to Patagonia.

Those enthusiasts attending the third party convention in Chicago who cheered every time Soviet Russia was mentioned no doubt would raise an awful howl if they were forced to return to that earthly "paradise." Every person in this country who states his belief that the Soviet Government is superior to a democratic government should be deported to Russia where he can find a closer fellowship.

A disgruntled bachelor complains that beans are sold by the bushel in the market and by the dozen in the restaurants. PATAGONIA MINE CASE FINALLY SETTLED IN NOGALES

The more or less well known case of O. K. Franklin, against Pierce and Gardner, mine operators in Patagonia, was settled this week in Nogales, Franklin receiving one-fourth the property and one-fourth the proceeds from the property. Pierce and Gardner have dropped the lease and the property reverted back to the three original Mexican owners and Franklin as fourth partner.

The suit was begun shortly after Pierce and Gardner made their big strike of silver. They had taken a lease from three of a partnership of four Mexicans. The fourth, who was born in Arizona, evaded the draft by going to Mexico. The lease purported to have his signature, at the time the lease was signed. Franklin went to Mexico and bought his interest in the property and instituted himself the fourth party to the ownership and as such, claimed one-fourth the total proceeds, and one-fourth the ownership, he not having been a party to the lease. Upon the failure of Pierce and Gardner or the remaining owners of the property to prove that the slacker-owner had signed the lease, Franklin's claim was allowed. Gerald Jones represented Franklin throughout the litigation.

MINER IS KILLED

Ramon Campillo, a miner working in the World's Fair mines, was accidentally killed Tuesday forenoon. It seems that a number of workmen had been blasting in a tunnel and one of the shots failed to go off and the deceased went down and began cleaning out the hole with his pick when all of a sudden the shot was discharged killing the unfortunate man instantly. Justice Dick Farrell held an inquest over the remains returning a verdict in accordance with the facts here stated. He left a wife and several small children living in Nogales, Sonora, where the remains were shipped for burial. He also had a brother working in the mines at Duquesne.

36 PIGEONS WILL SERVE AS HERALD NEWS AIDES

The first carrier pigeon news service to be established by a newspaper in the West will be soon in operation in connection with The Herald news department. Thirty-six blooded carrier pigeons will be housed atop The Herald building and be available for news service from this office into sections of the Southwest and Mexico not covered by telegraph or telephone lines.

By arrangement with Otto Mayer, pigeon fancier and expert, the flock of 36 carriers will be housed at The Herald. When the sheriff or other officer of the law goes into the hills on a man hunt, or when quick direct communication is necessary by anyone going into inaccessible districts, they will be provided with pigeons from The Herald to carry along and send back the news.

A similar service was used some years ago in New York in connection with the covering of news stories dealing with events at sea. But since the wireless telegraph and telephone have annihilated distances, the service has been abandoned.

But in this district where there is a scarcity in outlying districts of both wire and wireless service, the pigeons are necessary to get speedy communication on news and other matters of import where time is an essential element.

The pigeon service and quarters for the birds are now being arranged for. It is expected to have the pigeon mail installed and ready for use within a week or 10 days.

This installation will put Nogales in a class alone, since no other newspaper or city in the West or the United

The Eldorado Stage Co. of Los Angeles tested 22 leading makes on 12-passenger Packard buses. Not a tire was found to match the Millers in that extreme service.

Some Costly Mistakes

Men are Making on Tires

Men who buy tires on a guess, or on chance, are making some costly mistakes.

Large tire users make tests and comparisons. And the results in late years are amazing.

Hudson Taxi Co. of Detroit, for instance, made a long test on Miller Cords. And the average was 15,000 miles.

Miller dealers get hundreds to compare Miller mileage with others. And they find an increased mileage of 50 per cent to 75 per cent.

Large truck users are comparing Miller Cords, passenger type, with all others. And they are coming in large numbers to Millers.

California stage lines are using Millers after million-mile tests with many rivals.

The Way to Know

At the Miller factory over 1,000 tires yearly are worn out in tests and comparisons.

They constantly prove that Miller is the best tire built.

In extreme rear-wheel tests they require an average of 15,000 miles on Cords.

They prove that the new Miller tread outwears the best of others by 25 per cent.

Such tires should be tested by every owner of a car. See what they give you. Compare with any tire on opposite rear wheels.

Miller experts, in late years, have doubled average tire mileage. Old-time figures do not apply today.

You will fix new requirements for your tires when you try a Miller. Do it now.
