U. M. W. REBUKED BY PRES. WILSON

WILL NOT CONSIDER DEMANDS UNTIL RETURN TO WORK, SHOWING GOOD FAITH.

ORDERS MEN TO RETURN

PRESIDENT OF MINE WORKERS DEMANDS WORKERS AND SUPPORTS WILSON.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

Washington.—President Wilson, through the United Mine Workers of America, has appealed to striking mine laborers in Illinois and Indiana to return to work. Inequalities in the wage scale, held by the strike leaders to be the cause of the walkout, which has closed most of the bituminous mines in the two states, may exist, the president said, but he could not recommend any concession until the strikers return. When they did so he would invite the joint scale committee of operators and miners to meet to "just any inequalities."

The President's appeal, a telegram addressed to the United Mine Workers of America, was sent after he had studied a report on the coal situation submitted by Secretary of Labor Wilson.

The President declared he was distressed not only because failure at this time to mine coal would result in suffering during the winter, but also because the "violation of the terms of your solemn obligation impairs your good names and threatens the very foundation of fair industrial relations."

Pointing out that the United Mine Workers constituted the largest single labor organization in the world, he said "no organization could long endure that sets up its own strength as being superior to its pledged faith or its duty to society at large."

Indianapolis.—In compliance with the wishes of President Wilson, John Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, will issue a mandatory order instructing all miners on strike in Indiana and Illinois to return to work immediately to permit the normal operation of the mines, it was announced at the miners' national headquarters.

The statement was issued after a conference had reported favorably on the President's message.

"I am profoundly impressed by the President's telegram," the statement said. "The suggestion of the President will be approved by every right-thinking and loyal member of the United Mine Workers of America. It is the fairness of his statement that is apparent to everyone with respect for constituted authority or the least regard for the public welfare," the statement continued.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

BOLSHEVIST SEEDS OF POISON

Avowed Object of the Leaders of the Movement is to Stir Up Hatred of Law and Order Everywhere.

Western Newspaper Union News Service.

The "Manifesto" has been sent all over the world. It makes no bones about the plan of the bolsheviks to incite the world to disorder. On the contrary, it boasts that this is its mission. Under the caption "The Way to Victory" the manifesto declares: "The revolutionary era envisages the proletariat to make use of the means of battle which will concentrate its entire energies, namely, mass action, with its logical resultant, direct conflict with the governmental machinery in open combat. All other methods, such as parliamentaryism, will be of only secondary importance."

The "Manifesto" further proclaims the "First International" foresaw the future development and pointed the way—the "Second International" gathered together and organized the proletariat; the "Third International" is the international of open mass action of the revolution, the international of Deeds. The work of the "Third International" is mapped out in the "Manifesto" in these words:

"The task of the international communist party is now to overthrow this order (present governments) and to erect in its place the structure of the socialist worlds order. We urge the working men and women of all countries to unite under the communist banner, the emblem under which the first great victories have already been won."

"Proletarians of all lands! In the war against imperialistic barbarity, against monarchy, against the privileged classes, against the bourgeois state and bourgeois property, against all forms and varieties of social and national oppression—UNITE!"

"Under the standard of the Workmen's Councils, under the banner of the Third International, in the revolutionary struggle for power and the dictatorship of the proletariat, proletarians of all countries, UNITE!"

I have quoted these excerpts from an edition of the "Manifesto" printed in Chicago. The copy in my possession contains the name and address of the printing company. There is an introduction to this document. It is unsigned. A few extracts from this introduction are important. Commenting on the "Manifesto," the introduction says: "It will soon become the basis of international working class action, and will become the lightning that will rend the clouds and fogs that now envelop the workers of the world."

"Comment on this manifesto would be useless, superfluous. Its magnificent language speaks the message a suffering world is eagerly waiting to hear."

"It will assist the socialist movement everywhere into the path of uncompromising, revolutionary action that alone can usher in the triumph of International Socialism."

If the publication of this manifesto and the introductory comment to it is not treason, then Benedict Arnold was a patriot. It is a conspiracy against the peace, health and happiness, as well as the lives and property, the liberty and security, of every man, woman and child in the United States. It is a call to lawlessness, organized crime. It might be well for the people to give less time and thought to partisan political wrangling and set themselves to silencing sedition. It should be an easy matter to discover the author of this un-American, inhuman and criminal foreword to the "Manifesto." The publishers and distributors should be brought to the bar and made answer. Let us kill this menace by destroying the seed. If we do, we will save ourselves much trouble later. By such a course we will ally ourselves.

Lenine has repeatedly said and written that the bolshevik government cannot last in Russia alongside of the present governments of the world. In other words, bolshevism cannot live in a world of democracy. The greater truth is that democracy cannot live in the same world with bolshevism. Bolshevism in theory is based on the ideal of socialism, communism; in methods of the bolshevism of Lenine is gross violence, supreme autocracy.

Lenine Without Tolerance.

Lenine decries anyone and every one who does not accept his gospel of world revolution. He is particularly bitter towards socialists who are opposed to his program. Writing of "the military program of the proletariat revolution" he concludes his article in the November "Class Struggle" for 1919: "Whoever, in view of this last war, is not willing to carry out this demand, let him be good enough to refrain from uttering large words about the international revolutionary democracy, about the social revolution and about the war against wars."

Of those who have dared to denounce militarism and demand disarmament Lenine has written:

"What will the proletariat women do to prevent this? Merely denounce all wars and militarism? Merely demand disarmament? Never shall the women of an oppressed and revolutionary class resign themselves to so despicable a role. On the contrary, they will say to their sons: 'You will soon be grown up. You will have a gun. Take it and learn how to use it—not in order to fight your brothers, as is the practice in this war of plunder, but in order to fight the bourgeois of your own country; in order to put an end to misery and wars, not by means of "kind wishes," but by overthrowing and disarming the bourgeoisie.'"

The third "International" was called together to organize the movement against the peace of the world. It met at Moscow from March 2 to March 6, 1919; it adopted a "manifesto" which was signed by Lenine and Trotsky, the leading spirits of the congress of the communist international.

Home of Gairfowl

Off the coast of Newfoundland lies a group of islands called the Funks. Here in the beginning of the last century the gairfowl, with its short, abortive wings, resorted in hundreds and hundreds of thousands to breed. Its feathers were soft and fine. Beneath the feathers was a thick coating of valuable down, and its flesh, after the bird had been soaked, was extremely palatable.

Musical Insects

Buzzing or humming of insects is mainly due to the rapid vibration of the wings, which often strike the air more than 100 times a second, but there is sometimes a special quivering instrument over the base of the wings. Chirping or trilling is due to some sort of "stridulating" organ, one hard part being scraped against another, as the bow of a fiddle—it may be leg against wing.

DO ALL MY HOUSEWORK

Oldtime Republicans Exchange Reminiscences of Conventions in Which They Were Prominent.

Clayton M. Dewey and Joseph G. Cannon got into an argument as to which had been attending national conventions the longer.

"Now, Jay," said Senator Dewey to the former speaker, "you know you are only a comparatively young man in convention history and cannot figure in the same class with me. I was at the convention of 1844 and I know you did not come along until later." "You're both children," declared former Marshal Louis F. Payson of Chatham, who was doing his regular quadrennial turn as a member of the New York delegation. "I was here in 1800."

"I'd have been here, too," remarked "Uncle Joe" Cannon, "but Abe Lincoln beat me in a lawsuit the week before the convention and I didn't have money enough to pay the $2 a week board bill unless I walked here to save carriage."—New York Morning Telegram's Chicago Story.

Bailed Up the Barber. Judge Blank is fond of relating how he put one over on the barber who wished to make a sale. The man had just shaved him, and wanted to sell him a loction to use on his face when he shaved himself.

"Is that what you use on your customers?" asked the judge.

"No," replied the barber, "it's so expensive I cannot afford it."

"If you can't afford it when you get 20 cents for shaving a man," returned the judge, "how do you expect me to afford it when I shave myself for nothing?"

The barber was nonplussed and gave up trying to make the sale.—Boston Transcript.

Before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I could hardly stand, says Mrs. Kwarcinski.

Chicago, Ill.—"I suffered with displacement and irregularities and I did not know what to do. My mother advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and use the Sassafras Wash and I took her advice and used these remedies and cured myself. I feel fine and do all my housework which I could not do before, as I could hardly stand up and I have three healthy children. You can see this letter if you wish for free and helpful advice to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for sick, run-down women."—Mrs. A. KWARCINSKI, 3827 W. Oakdale Ave., Chicago, Ill.

For forty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been making women strong and well, relieving back-ache, nervousness, ulceration, and inflammation, weakness, displacement, irregularities and periodic pains. It has also proved invaluable in preparing for childbirth and the Change of Life.

Women who suffer are invited to write for free and helpful advice to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. (Confidential), Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

AMERICA MAKES BIG DISKS NOW

Lens Manufacturers Solve Difficult Problem With the Aid of Scientists.

CATCHING UP WITH GERMANY

All Mechanical Difficulties in Making of Large Telescopic Disks Have Been Overcome—Process is Delicate One.

New York.—Large telescope disks are being made in the United States. All mechanical difficulties have been overcome, according to an announcement made by Dr. George W. Morey, a member of the American Chemical Society.

This remarkable achievement is due to preparation and handling of the ingredients required for pure and flawless glass and is the result of experiments begun at the outbreak of the world war, under the auspices of the geophysical laboratory of the Carnegie Institution in Washington.

Catching Up With Germany. Before 1914 practically all the optical glass in the United States was imported from Germany. When the United States entered the war the field glasses, range finders, telescopes and other instruments of precision

One of the First Submarines

One of the first submarines ever built by John P. Holland, their inventor, of whom it is said that he conceived the idea of submarines as a means of destroying the British navy. Holland was an ardent Fenian and associate of many Irish patriots who have gone down into history. Leaders of the Revolutionary party in Ireland became interested in Holland's idea and commissioned him to build a trial submarine. He built it well enough, but on its trial spin on Long Island Sound it was struck by a coal barge and quickly sunk. The discouraged Irish leaders gave up the idea. Later Holland built his first successful submarine, "The Holland," which was accepted by the United States government in 1897. "The Holland" is here shown on her trial spin.

used by her army and navy were equipped with lenses fashioned beyond the Rhine. Private citizens even loaned or contributed opera glasses and binoculars to the fighting forces. Optical glass of fine quality, however, is now to be had on this side of the water. The climax of this achievement of industrial chemistry has been reached by American makers in the manufacture of lenses for telescopes. At first disks which strengthened our view were made three or four inches in diameter. Recently a special four and three-quarter inch lens was ground for Lowell observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz.

The first nine and one-half inch disk was turned out last December. Six others have since been made and delivered. As their diameters increase disks are made with greater difficulty. Finally, on February 15, 1920, the first perfect 12-inch disk was furnished, and a large optical glass corporation now lists this size for short-time delivery.

Making Larger Disks. The next size attempted was a 20-inch disk. In the manufacture of which the problem was still more complex. Several flawed ones were produced; but they cracked in the annealing process. American ingenuity was brought into play to devise a means of slowly cooling these immense plates of glass, so that they might be free from the strain so likely to destroy them. Experiments by scientists of the geophysical laboratory showed exactly how slowly their temperatures must be lowered, and the cooling schedule outlined was closely followed. Owing, however, to the extreme cold weather of last March and the shortage of gas, this schedule could not be followed. One splendid disk strained and broke just when nearly ready to be taken from the oven.

Equipment hitherto used was then scrapped and an electric furnace was specially designed to meet the needs of the problem by experts in an electric company. This device is thoroughly insulated and provided with an automatic appliance which will hold the temperature absolutely constant to a fraction of a degree while the glass is being treated to remove strain. The temperature can be dropped a few degrees a week.

With the aid of this furnace now in process of construction it is believed that the last difficulty in the way of the American manufacture of the largest disks will be overcome. Orders have already been accepted for the production of several large guaranteed disks, including one pair of the 18-inch size for refracting telescopes, and a 36-inch disk for a reflecting telescope. The furnace will receive the 40-inch size. When that goal has been reached, the company will continue the development, so that eventually the largest and finest disks in the world will be American made.

THE SLEEPING PORCH

The sleeping porch is something which is added to a house in order to provide more room for fresh air and feet. Every night during the heated term thousands of new, expensive sleeping porches are crowded with feet which protrude carelessly from the coverlets, instead of having to be run out of a hall bedroom window in the effort to cool off. All over the middle West, at this time of the year, myriad number of faithful feet wearing patent corn pads are led into sleeping porches by their owners and put where the mild evening zephyr and the stray lightning bug can roam over their surface.

Nine times out of ten the sleeping porch is an afterthought. It is one of the most high-priced thoughts a man can have, if he is going to keep up with some neighbor who started his sleeping porch immediately after the cistern was dug. It costs more to tie a 12 by 18 sleeping porch to the second story of an old house than it does to build a bungalow from the ground up, including a hot-air furnace and open-work plumbing. This is because the work is never started until a hot night comes along and parbolls the entire family to a delicate pink hue.

Most people never use the sleeping porch except when it is necessary to save human life. It is sad to see men

LAST NIGHT'S DREAMS

—WHAT THEY MEAN

SHROUDS.

A PERSON unfamiliar with dream lore might wake up after dreaming of a shroud with a feeling that he had seen an evil omen and be, consequently, depressed in spirits. He would be quite wrong. A shroud may not be altogether a pleasant thing to see in one's dreams, but it is accounted by nearly all the soothsayers to be a favorable omen to dream of that gruesome object. For one thing such a dream signifies that you are to inherit some money. It is true, though, say the wise ones, that seeing a shroud in a dream is a warning to the dreamer to take better care of his health or he will have a fit of illness which will interfere with his business. But it is merely a tendency to illness which is predicted and not illness itself. If you are careful of your health your business will prosper and your fortune increase.

If you dream that you see a shroud removed from a dead person you might wake up with affright at the ghastly sight. But really there would be no evil omen in the dream which would call for any worrying. The worst that it could mean would be that you are going to have some little strife and contention with a person with whom

WHEN NELLIE'S ON THE JOB.

The bright spots in my life are when the servant quits the place. Although that grim disturbance brings a frown on Nellie's face; The week between the old girl's reign and entry of the new is one that's filled with happiness and comfort through and through. The charm of living's back again—a charm that servants rob— I like the home, I like the meals, when Nellie's on the job.

There's something in a servant's ways, however fine they be, That has a cold and distant touch and frets the soul of me. The old home never looks so well, as in that week or two That we are servantless and Nell has all the work to do. There is a sense of comfort then that makes my pulses throbb And home is as it ought to be when Nellie's on the job.

Think not that I'd deny her help or grudge the servant's pay. When one departs we try to get another right away. I merely state the simple fact that no such joys I've known As in those few brief days at home when we've been left alone. There is a gentleness that seems to soothe this selfish elf And oh, I like to eat those meals that Nellie gets herself!

You cannot buy the gentle touch that mother gives the place. No servant girl can do the work with just the proper grace. And though you hired the queen of cooks to fashion your croquettes Her meals would not compare with those your loving comrade gets. So, though the maid has quit again and she is moved to soot, The old home's at its finest now, for Nellie's on the job. (Copyright by Edgar A. Guest.)

Brain Youth

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SOMEONE has given to us the striking sentence: "To the young, Nature does nothing but give; from the old she does nothing but take away." Your brain is the only Power in your entire body that may not age.

Keep Youth alive in Your Brain. To your Brain your Will may say: "Life at its longest is but like the looking back and reviewing of a single day." For Youth never returns to your muscles and to your bones and to your arteries—but Youth treads along with your Brain—if your Will says so.

Keep Youth alive in Your Brain. William E. Gladstone, past eighty, chopping down trees, translating the Classics and solving mysteries—stands out as one of the most striking examples of those who kept their Brains young as their bodies grew old.

Keep Youth alive in Your Brain. It is interesting that puts Youth into your Brain and drives away age. Just so long as you are interested in the things you are doing, just so long work will grow upon you, strengthening your loyalty and enthusiasm and every ounce of your effort.

Keep Youth alive in Your Brain.

Summer Salads. With head lettuce in every garden and an abundance of the leaf lettuce, peas, onions, and other crisp flavor vegetables, one need never want for salad material.

A salad bowl of crisp fresh lettuce served with French mayonnaise, Thousand Island dressing, or even the common variety of hotted dressing, makes a palatable salad.

A small head of mustard (the small black-seeded variety) makes a most excellent salad plant and a fine dish of greens. The leaves may be picked and served alone with salad dressing or mixed with lettuce. The pungent taste and good flavor is most appetizing. Added finely minced to any vegetable salad from potatoes to peas, it adds to the flavor.

Cherry Conserve. Cover pitted cherries with good orange and let stand overnight. Pour off the vinegar and add to the cherries an equal weight of sugar. Stir until the sugar is dissolved. Place in a jar covered with cloth and plate and keep in a cool place.

Tomato and Cucumber Salad. Arrange overlapping slices of peeled and uniformly sliced tomatoes on a chop plate. Alongside of the tomatoes arrange peeled sliced cucumbers, garnish with lettuce or parsley and serve with the dressing passed in a bowl. (Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

HOT WEATHER Hits the Stomach Hardest

Chicago, Ill.—Hot weather upsets the strongest stomach and causes serious trouble for the weak ones, so word is now going out to thousands of eatonic users that they should, during this hot weather, be on the safe side and take one eatonic tablet about half an hour before meals, as well as after eating. Do this and keep the excess acids and poisonous gases from forming in stomach and bowels. Eatonic acts quickly; it will help the appetite and take away the hot-weather, feverish, thirsty feeling from mouth and stomach, because it takes up the excess acids, poisons and gases and carries them out of the body and, of course, when the cause of the trouble is removed, there can be no bad feeling. Eatonic is like a bit of candy, and is recommended to all as a safe, sure remedy these hot days for stomach and bodily troubles, caused from overeating and drinking cold things. Adv.

Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased. You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be dependent; it makes any one so. But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions. Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Marks New Era In U. S. Flying

All Metal Plane Will Revolutionize Aircraft Design and Construction.

BIG ADVANCE IN SCIENCE

Frail Spruce and Linen Ship That Did Its Bit in War and Has Been Used in Commerce Will Be Displaced by All Metal Type.

New York.—The presence in America of John M. Larsen's JL-6 all metal monoplane will completely revolutionize aircraft design and construction, according to statements made here by leading airplane manufacturers.

The frail spruce and linen ship that did its bit in the war and that has been used successfully, though precariously, in commerce will soon be displaced by the sturdy all metal type brought out after the war by the Germans, almost every aeronautical expert who has witnessed the performance of the JL-6 agrees. One American manufacturing company has already announced its intention of discontinuing operations.

The War Plane Passes. There is little comparison between the JL-6 and the old type plane. The only type of airplane that was successful prior to the JL-6's appearance was the wood and linen biplane. The wing beams, the long fuselage, the engine bearers, the struts, the under-carriage were made of either spruce or ash and the wings were covered with Irish linen. The fuselage between the wings gave support to the panels. It was a strong ship; only a cyclone or a crash could warp the wings around the fuselage.

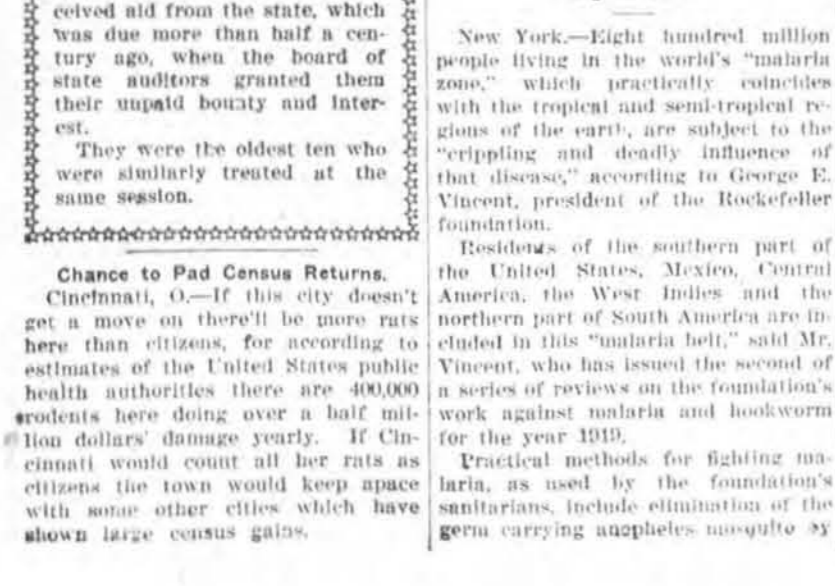

But it appears as fragile and delicate as a china vase beside the JL-6. There is an all metal fuselage. One metal wing spreads from each side of the body, a wing that measures eight or ten inches in thickness at the leading edge, and has a trailing edge as thick as the blade of your knife. There are no interfering struts to offer wind resistance, no control horns on the ailerons, no flying or landing wires, to control wires free to the wind. It has been said that the flying, landing and control wires of the old type ship cut down its speed by as much as twenty-five miles an hour.

Wings Survive Side Slip. The wings of the JL-6 are so rigid that only a head on crash will injure them. One plane that side slipped to the earth was immediately righted and flown away after a new propeller had been put on. Not even the fuselage to which the metal panels are attached was injured. Eighty-five men have stood upon the forty-seven foot spread without causing any ill effects.

The body of the plane contains a luxuriously furnished compartment that will seat in upholstered chairs six people. Two pilots may be seated in the control compartment. The motive power is furnished by a 160 horsepower Mercedes engine. It requires five gallons of gasoline to fly 100 miles. Present aeronautical motors require from ten to fifteen gallons for that distance. The motor is almost silent, compared to the deafening roar of the Liberty. A conversation can be carried on in the cabin with the motor wide open.

According to Mr. Larsen, the JL-6 represents the greatest step forward in flying in all time. He has purchased all American rights, from the Junker company of Germany, which first perfected the all metal plane. It was from an all metal battle plane that the boche shot down Maj. Raoul Lufbery in the most heroic air battle of the war. Dr. Hugo Junker, German engineer, is the original designer of the all metal ship.

300,000,000 in Malaria Zone

Head of Rockefeller Foundation Outlines Methods of Combating Disease.

New York.—Eight hundred million people living in the world's "malaria zone," which practically coincides with the tropical and semi-tropical regions of the earth, are subject to the "cripping and deadly influence of that disease," according to George E. Vincent, president of the Rockefeller foundation.

Residents of the southern part of the United States, Mexico, Central America, the West Indies and the northern part of South America are included in this "malaria belt," said Mr. Vincent, who has issued the second of a series of reviews on the foundation's work against malaria and hookworm for the year 1919.

Practical methods for fighting malaria, as used by the foundation's sanitarians, include elimination of the germs carrying anopheles mosquitoes by preventing its breeding, the screening of houses against this mosquito, and the use of quinine to sterilize the blood of human malaria carriers.

BEES SWARM INTO STATUE

Invade Jaws of Big Stone Lion at Gateway of President Ebert's Residence.

Berlin.—A colony of bees the other day swarmed in the gaping jaws of the big stone lion ornamenting the gateway of President Ebert's residence, which was formerly Bismarck's old town house and later the imperial court marshal's residence. The police guard drove them out with the garden hose.

Many spectators lamented that the bees should have chosen the presidential residence to deposit "real" honey, which today is not to be found in Germany.

Secretary Bert Hodges of Oklahoma made a doubtful political move the other day when he sent out notices to registrars that it would not be necessary for them to insist on including the ages of women in their registrations. It is only a "technical" requirement, according to Mr. Hodges. In this connection Mr. Hodges made a statement that he would prepare a bill and have it introduced in the next legislature repealing the age section of the registration law. It may be that Mr. Hodges expects to become popular among women voters by reason of this announcement. *Isn't it possible, however, that some of the ladies may decline to support him for fear of having people think that they have something to conceal in the way of years?

One of the strangest things in this world is how many women want the ballot and how few vote when they have the chance to. But may we not suggest that in olden times, when the world was young, many men did the same thing? Women have not yet acquired the voting habit, but they are slowly coming to it.

The editor of the Dallas News says that he just hates to go fishing with one of these modern city girls for the reason that as soon as she sees the water she wants to peel off and plunge in.

What a woman can't understand is why her husband is so excited over a candidate and so calm about her.

Candidates are becoming quite numerous and nearly every day witnesses one or two new ones in town. As a rule they are a pretty live bunch and one cannot help admiring the optimistic spirit they usually display. Most of them are good losers and after the primaries it will be difficult to distinguish the victor from the vanquished so far as outward appearances are concerned.

Good rains continue to fall in the Patagonia country and farmers continue to plow and plant and all are looking forward to a bumper crop this fall.

The Tucson Star is authority for the statement that that city is at present full of summer visitors. This is positive proof that all of the heroes are not dead.

It is slowly dawning upon the minds of Patagonia people that this is one of the finest all-the-year-round climates in Arizona. The only thing necessary to fill our hotels both summer and winter is some judicious advertising.

The popularity of Leslie Hardy, a Santa Cruz county man, who is making the race for the nomination for Attorney General, is increasing in the Democratic ranks. Hardy is putting the hot-shots right over the plate at Jones for receiving and accepting the endorsement of the radical labor convention, and is making it stick. It is repeatedly rumored that Hardy will carry the Southern section of the State and will also carry Maricopa county.

Catarrah Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrah deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrah Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound of imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrah, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrah Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists, 75c.

Crooked Trails and Straight

IN A BEAR TRAP.

Synopsis.—Adventurous and reckless, rather than criminal, and excited by liquor, Curly Flandrau and his chum, Mac, both practically mere boys, become involved in a horse-stealing adventure. Dispensing of the stolen stock in the town of Saguache, Ariz., the band separates. Curly and his partner staying in town. They are awakened and told a posse is in town in pursuit of them. They elude their pursuers. Overtaken next day, Mac is killed by the posse and Curly taken captive, after he has shot one and himself been wounded. The man shot is Luck Cullison, a former fighting sheriff. Cullison's friends, all cattlemen, determine to lynch Curly as an example to cattle thieves. With the rope around his neck he is saved by the intervention of Kate Cullison, Luck's daughter. His wound dressed, and further violence not apprehended, Curly is sent for by Cullison. He questions the boy concerning a notorious outlaw, Soapy Stone, real leader of the rustlers who had been Curly's undoing. Flandrau learns that Soapy Stone is Cullison's bitter enemy and exercises a baleful influence over the ex-sheriff's son Sam, who has quarreled with his father. Curly escapes Soapy Stone from a bear trap and discovers that the outlaw is young Sam's rival for the hand of Laura London.

Maloney grinned across at him. "You try it, son. You've always led a good honest life. He sure would listen to you."

He said it as a jest, but Curly did not laugh. Why not? Why shouldn't he hunt up Sam and let him know how his folks were worrying about him? He was footloose till September and out of a job. For he could not go back to the Map of Texas with his hat in his hand and a repentant whine on his lips. Why not hike into the hills and round up the boys?

"Damn if I don't take a crack at it." The man on the other side of the table stared at him.

"Meaning that, are you?"

"Yep."

"Might be some lively if Soapy gets wise to your intentions," he said in a casual sort of way.

"I don't aim to declare them out loud."

"That was all they said about it at that time. The rest of the evening was devoted to pleasure."

Since their way was one for several miles Maloney and Curly took the road together next morning at daybreak. Their ponies ambled along side by side at the easy gait characteristic of the Southwest.

Your plainsman is a taciturn individual. These two rode for an hour without exchanging a syllable.

At Willow Wash their ways diverged. They parted with the casual "So long; see you later," Curly was striking for the headwaters of Dead Cow creek, where Soapy Stone had a horse ranch.

About two o'clock he reached a little park in the hills, in the middle of which, by a dry creek, lay a ranch.

The young man at first thought the place was deserted for the day, but when he called a girl appeared at the door. She was a young person of soft curves and engaging smiles. Beneath the brown cheeks of Arizona was a pink that came and went very attractively.

"Hil Bet I'm Too Late to Draw Any Dinner."

"Curly took off his dusty gray hat. "Excuse me, venerita! I'll bet I'm too late to draw any dinner."

"Excuse me, venerita!" she answered promptly. "I'll bet you'll lose your money. You can wash over there by the pump. There's a towel on the fence."

She disappeared into the house and Curly took care of his horse, washed, and snatched back to the porch. He could smell potatoes frying and could hear the sizzling of ham and eggs.

While he ate, the girl flitted in and out, soft-footed and graceful, replenishing his plate from time to time.

Presently he discovered that her father was away hunting strays on Buck creek, that the nearest neighbor was seven miles distant and that Soapy's ranch was ten miles farther off Dead Cow.

"Ever meet a kid called Sam Cullison?" the guest asked carelessly.

Curly was hardly prepared to see the color whip into his cheeks or to see the quick stubbling look she fastened on him.

"You're looking for him, are you?" she said. "Do you know him?"

He shook his head. She looked at him, very steadily, before she spoke again.

"You haven't met him yet, but you want to. Is that it?"

"That's it."

"Will you have another egg?"

Flandrau laughed. "No, thanks. Staying up at Stone's, is he?"

"How should I know who's staying at Stone's?"

It was quite plain she did not intend to tell anything that would hurt young Cullison.

"Are you expecting to step in the hills long—or just visiting?"

"Yes," Curly answered, with his most innocent blank look.

"Yes, which?"

"Why, whichever you like, Miss London. What's worrying you? If you'll ask me plain out I'll know how to answer you."

"So you know my name?"

"Anything strange about that? The Bar 99 is the London brand. I saw your calves in the corral with their flanks still sore. Naturally I assume the young lady I meet here is Miss Laura London."

"What do you want with Sam Cullison? Are you friendly to him? Or aren't you?"

"Ladies first. Are you friendly to him? Or aren't you?"

Curly smiled gaily across the table at her. A faint echo of his pleasantry began to ripple the corners of her mouth. Both of them relaxed to peaks of laughter, and neither of them quite knew the cause of their hilarity.

"Oh, you," she reproved when she had sufficiently recovered.

"So you thought I was a detective or a deputy sheriff. That's certainly funny."

"For all I know yet you may be one."

"I never did see anyone with a disposition so dark-complexed as yours. If you won't put them suspicions to sleep I'll have to take my car to."

From his pocket he drew a copy of the Saguache Sentinel and showed her a marked story. "Maybe that will explain what I'm doing up on Dead Cow."

This is what Laura London read: "From Mesa comes the news of another case of hold and ransom rustling. On Friday night a bunch of horses belonging to the Bar Double M were rounded up and driven across the mountains to this city. The stolen animals were sold here this morning, after which the buyers set out at once for the border and the thieves made themselves scarce. It is claimed that the rustlers were members of the notorious Soapy Stone outfit. Two of the four were identified. It is alleged as William Cranston, generally known as 'Bad Bill,' and a young vaquero called 'Curly' Flandrau."

"In case the guilty parties are apprehended the Sentinel hopes an example will be made of them that will deter others of like stamp from a practice that has of late been far too common. Lawlessness seems to come in cycles. Just now the southern tier of counties appears to be suffering from such a spirochete attack. Let all good men combine to stamp it out. The time has passed when Arizona must stand as a synonym for anarchy."

She looked up at the young man breathlessly, her pretty lips parted, her dilated eyes taking him in solemnly. A question trembled on her lips.

"Are you this man mentioned here? What's his name—'Curly' Flandrau?"

"Yes."

"And you're a rustler? Why do men do such things?" letting the hands that held the paper drop into her lap helplessly. "You don't look bad. Anyone would think—"

Her sentence trailed out and died away. She was still looking at Curly, but he could see that her mind had flown to some one else. He would have bet a month's pay that she was thinking of another lad who was wild but did not look bad.

Flandrau rose and walked round the table to her. "Much obliged, Miss Laura. I'll shake hands on that with you. You've guessed it. Course, me being so notorious I hate to admit it, but I ain't had any more than he is."

She gave him a quick shy look.

"You mean this 'Bad Bill'?"

"You know who I mean, all right. His name is Sam Cullison. And you needn't to tell me where he is, I'll find him."

"I know you don't mean any harm to him." But she said it as if she were pleading with him.

"Creet, I don't. Can you tell me how to get to Soapy Stone's ranch from here, Miss London?"

She laughed. Her doubts were vanishing like mist before the sunshine. "Good guess. At least he was there the last I heard."

"And I expect your information is pretty recent."

"That drew another little laugh, accompanied by a blush.

"Don't you think I have told you enough for one day, Mr. Flandrau?"

"That 'Mr.' sounds too solemn. My friends call me 'Curly,' he let her know."

She remembered that he was a stranger and a rustler and she drew up stiffly. This pleasant young fellow was too familiar.

"If you take this trail to the scrub pines above, then keep due north for about four miles, you'll strike the creek again. Just follow the trail along it to the horse ranch."

With that she turned on her heel and walked into the kitchen.

Curly had not meant to be "fresh." He was always ready for foolery with the girls, but he was not the sort to go too far. Now he blamed himself for having moved too fast. He had offered her some of what was the proper thing.

There was nothing for it but to saddle and take the road.

CHAPTER IV.
A Bear Trap.

The winding trail led up to the scrub pines and from there north into the hills. Curly had not traveled far when he heard the sound of a gun fired three times in quick succession. He stopped to listen. Presently there came a faint call for help.

Curly cantered around the shoulder of the hill and saw a man squatting on the ground. He was stooped forward in an awkward fashion with his back to Flandrau.

"What's up?"

At the question the man looked over his shoulder. Pain and helpless rage burned in the deepest black eyes.

"Nothing at all. Don't you see I'm just taking a nap?" he answered quietly.

Curly recognized him now. The man was Soapy Stone. Little bands of perspiration stood out all over his forehead. A glance showed the reason. One of his hands was caught in a bear trap fastened to a cottonwood. Its jaws held him so that he could not move.

The young man swung from the back of Keno. He found the limb of a cottonwood about as thick as his forearm below the elbow. This he set close to the trap.

"Soon as I get the lip open shove her in," he told Stone.

The rescuer slipped the toes of his boots over the lower lip and caught the upper one with both hands. Slowly the mouth of the trap opened. Stone slipped in the wooden wedge and withdrew his crushed wrist. By great good fortune the steel had caught on the leather gauntlet he was wearing.

Even now he was suffering a good deal.

"You'll have to let a doc look at it," Curly suggested.

Stone agreed. "Reckon I better strike for the Bar 99."

His horse had disappeared, but Curly helped him to the back of Keno. Together they took the trail for the Bar 99. On the face of the wounded man appeared the moisture caused by intense pain.

"Had a shelling, looks like," Curly sympathized.

"Reckon I can stand the grief," Stone grunted.

Nor did he speak again until they reached the ranch and Laura London looked at him from a frightened face.

"What is it?"

"I ran a silver in my finger, Miss Laura. Too bad to trouble you." Soapy answered with a sneer on his thin lips.

A rider for the Bar 99 had just ridden up and Laura sent him off for the doctor. She led the way into the house and swiftly gathered bandages, a sponge and a basin of water. Together she and Curly bathed and wrapped the wound.

Laura was as gentle as she could be. "I know I'm hurting you," she said, her fingers trembling.

"Not a bit of it. Great pleasure to have you for a nurse. I'm certainly in luck." Curly did not understand the bitterness in the sardonic face and he resented it.

That something was wrong between them Curly could see. Soapy was very polite in spite of his bitterness, but his hard eyes watched her as a cat does a mouse. Moreover, the girl was afraid of him. He could tell that by the timid start she gave her lip when he would be as much to hurt her.

After the doctor had come and had attended to the crushed wrist Curly stepped out to the porch to find Laura. "I'm right sorry for what I said, Miss Laura. Once in a while a fellow makes a mistake. If he's as big a chunk as I am it's liable to happen a little often. But I'm not really one of those smart guys."

Out came her gloved hand in the earnest of grips.

"I know that now. You didn't think. And I made a mistake. I thought you were taking advantage because I had been friendly. I'm glad you spoke about it. We'll forget it. There's something I want you to do for me."

"I expect maybe I'll do it."

"It's about that boy he has up there." She gave a hopeless little gesture toward the hills.

"Sam Cullison?"

"Yes."

"What about him?"

"He's bent on ruining him, always has been ever since he got a hold on him. I can't tell you how I know it, but I'm sure— And now he's more set on it than ever."

"Jealous, is he?"

"Yes. If he can drag Sam down and get him into trouble he'll pay off two grudges at once. And he will too. You'll see. He's wily as an Indian. For that matter there is Apache blood in him, folks say."

"What about young Cullison? Can't he make a fight for himself?"

"Oh, you know how boys are. Sam is completely under this man's influence." Her voice broke a little. "And I can't help him. I'm only a girl. He won't listen to me. What Sam needs is a man friend, one just as strong and determined as Soapy but one who is good and the right sort of an influence."

"Are you picking me for that responsible friend who is to be such a powerful influence for good?" Curly asked with a smile.

"Yes—yes, I am." She looked up at him confidently.

Curly met her on the ground of her own seriousness. "I'll tell you something, Miss Laura. Maybe you'll be glad to know that the reason I'm going to the horse ranch is to help Sam Cullison if I can."

He went on to tell her the whole story of what the Cullisons had done for him. In all that he said there was not one word to suggest such a thing, but Laura London's mind jumped the gaps to a knowledge of the truth that Curly himself did not have. The young man was in love with Kate Cullison. She was sure of it.

When Curly walked back into the house, Stone laid down the paper he had been reading.

"I see the Sentinel hints that Mr. Curly Flandrau had better be lynched," he jeered.

"The Sentinel don't always hit the bull's-eye, Soapy," returned the young man evenly. "If I think I belong to the Soapy Stone outfit, but we know I haven't that honor."

Soapy frowned at him under the heavy eyebrows that gave him so menacing an effect.

"Better come back with me to the ranch till you talk around."

"Suits me right down to the ground if it does you."

Some one came whistling into the house and opened the door of the room. He was a big tall fellow with a shotgun in his hands. "From Missouri" was stamped all over his awkward frame. He stood staring at his unexpected guest. His eyes, clashing with those of Stone, grew chill and hard.

"So you're back here again, are you?" he asked, looking pretty black.

Stone's lip smiled mocked him. "I don't know how you guessed it, but I sure am here."

"Didn't I tell you to keep away from the Bar 99—you and your whole cursed outfit?"

"Seems to me you did mention something of that sort. But how was I to know whether you meant it unless I came back to see?"

Life at the horse ranch.

WOULD BREAK OLD CUSTOM

Modern Girl Not Satisfied With Second Place, Even When Inscribed on Her Tombstone.

There's a certain old cemetery out in Jersey where, now and again, when visiting friends the writer strolls on the tombstone is a story long about a neglected grave or a laughily headstone.

But two very noticeable young people furnished her diversion one afternoon. They were engaged, that was plain, and proud of it. There was a happy soprano, broken by the girl's clear soprano.

"Do you know, George, what I've been noticing in this cemetery?"

"Apparently George did not."

"Why, on almost every tombstone marking the grave of a man and his wife, his name comes first, with his wife's name modestly below. Take this:—And she read aloud, 'Thomas Springer, died April 22, 1842. Age eighty-five years. His wife Annie, died June 2, 1858, aged forty-three years. You see even if the wife dies first her place on the tombstone is at the bottom, isn't it queer?"

George had evidently not bothered much about tombstones. He'd been too busy looking at her. But it didn't really matter much, he thought.

"Oh, but it does," she argued. "It's another attack on a woman's individuality. Now, when I die, much as I care for you, I don't want my name to be a postscript on your tombstone."

Naturally George assured her that it shouldn't be, and they strolled on, in time with the infinite and the weather. It had been a glimpse of the twentieth century girl that would have amazed Annie Springer, at rest beneath the moss-grown granite.

International attention was centered during the week on the Russo-Polish situation, in which the diplomats went plenty to disturb their equanimity. In the first place, the Moscow government, replying to the British note asking if it would arrange an armistice with Poland, rejected in substance the British proposals. The Reds declined to go to London for any peace conference, holding that Great Britain is not impartial, and, in language so sarcastic that it hurt the feelings of the English statesmen, made it clear that they could deal with Poland direct. Their next move was to send a wireless message to Warsaw expressing regret that Poland had seen it to deal through the allies and suggesting that conversations on peace be conducted between the two governments without consulting or considering outsiders. So far as is known at this writing, the Poles have not replied definitely to this invitation, but a London report said they had been told to apply for an armistice in order to test the sincerity of Moscow.

Meanwhile, the soviet forces opened a general attack all along the line from the Rumanian border to the Pripyet marshes, and though at first the Poles repulsed them in most places, at one point they broke across the border and were fighting on Polish soil. North of the Pripyet the Reds moved rapidly and took Grodno. Their evident objective was Warsaw, and the civilians of that city were preparing to take flight, some already having left. American relief organizations were ready to quit the city, and the Red Cross was shifting part of its headquarters to Cracow.

In their advance through Lithuanian territory the bolsheviks seem to be threatening an invasion of East Prussia, and the German government is preparing to defend that region desperately. Fifty thousand of the best veltshewer troops have been mobilized and Berlin feels confident they can prevent an invasion if they can be maintained near the border. The danger, however, is that as the soviet army draws near the bolshevik elements in other parts of Germany may break out and cause a scattering of those defense troops and leave open to the Russians the way into East Prussia. No doubt Germany will take advantage of the conditions to ask leave to mobilize more of her regular troops, and also it is likely the threat of invasion will bring to light vast stores of concealed arms, including artillery.

Early in the week Ignace Paderewski was made Polish plenipotentiary to Paris and his return to power was taken as evidence that the Poles were willing to make peace with the Russians direct. The musician-statesman was expected to placate Lloyd George and Millerand. Pilsnisky, Polish chief of state, had refused to withdraw his armies to the lines specified by Lloyd George, insisting that national safety required the holding of the line of Barmowicz-Pinsk-Dulno.

As a result of the Spa conference Great Britain and France are pledged to support Poland against Russian aggression, and they intend to give this support in the form of arms and munitions; men also will be supplied if this is considered necessary by British and French missions that have just been sent to Warsaw. But the British government is greatly vexed with the Poles. Premier Lloyd George on Wednesday gave voice to this feeling in a statement to the house of commons. He said, "If ever a nation in history has gone war mad, that nation is Poland" and characterized its course as reckless and foolish. This, however, he asserted, does not justify the crushing of the new nation, adding: "The whole fabric of European peace depends on an independent Poland. There is no time for the machinery of the League of Nations to interfere. If the bolsheviks overrun Poland and reach the German frontier, they deprive the allies of the entire fruits of victory." If the Russian bolsheviks decline to come to terms, the allies will give material aid not only to the Poles, but also to Gen. Baron Wrangel and others who are fighting the soviet government.

For the present France's trouble in Syria seems to be over. According to a report from Beirut, King Feisal of Syria has accepted all the terms of General Gouraud's ultimatum and it is believed the French can now occupy the territory assigned them without further attacks. Feisal had been informed that Great Britain would support him, taking the position that his independence is not inconsistent with a French mandate over Syria. At the time he yielded the French troops were ready to move on Damascus, his capital.

Operations in Anatolia ceased for a time, Kemal Pasha and his partisans being held in check, but in Thrace there were signs of the outbreak of a new Balkan war. The Greeks, who had not advanced far inland, but according to reports Bulgaria, who claimed the territory, was getting into action against them, and had called the class of 1921 to the colors. The Bulgarian irregulars were helping Jafar Tajar, who, with headquarters at Adrianople, is trying to hold western Thrace for Turkey.

It was a lively week in Ireland. Several British officers were assassinated, at least one town was looted and partly burned, and there was desperate fighting in Belfast in which a number of persons were killed. The opposing forces in that city were Sinn Fein and Orangemen employees in the shipyards.

Bloody battles in the vicinity of Peking marked the progress of the civil war in China early in the week, and then came the news that the rebels had been defeated and had given up the struggle against the government.

The Prohibition party met in national convention in Lincoln, Neb., and rather surprised itself by nominating William J. Bryan for president at the first session. The nomination was made by acclamation and came after a stampede of the delegates started by the adoption of a resolution "tendering" the honor to the Nebraskaan. On Thursday Bryan absolutely declined, so the convention named Rev. Aaron S. Watkins of Gerantown, O., and gave the second place to D. Leigh Colvin of New York.

Formal opening of the Republican presidential campaign came with the notification of Senator Harding that he was the party's standard bearer, and the delivery of his speech of acceptance. This took place in his home town, Marion, where most of the big party leaders and many thousands of others had assembled. Here are some of the salient points in the senator's speech:

"I believe in party government as distinguished from personal government, or individual, dictatorial, autocratic or what not."

"Our vision includes more than a chief executive. We believe in a cabinet of highest capacity, equal to the responsibilities which our system contemplates, in whose councils the view president, second official of the republic, shall be asked to participate."

"I promise you formal and effective peace so quickly as a Republican congress can pass its declaration for a Republican executive to sign."

"No surrender of rights to a world council or its military alliance as assumed mandatory however appealing, ever shall summon the sons of this republic to war. Their supreme sac-

The long-awaited award was announced in Chicago to the representatives of eighteen brotherhoods and unions, and it really did not please them at all, as they demanded approximately twice as much. Some of the members of the grand council were not empowered to accept the award finally, so a referendum vote of the two million rail workers becomes necessary. The chief of one union, the Order of Railway Telegraphers, rejected the award, and they called for a referendum vote or strike.

Of course the railway executives at once began looking for means to pay the advanced wages, and they already have worked out a schedule of increased rates, both freight and passenger, for presentation to the interstate commerce commission. The passenger increase asked is from one half to one per cent per mile. That for freight will undoubtedly be heavy.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

International attention was centered during the week on the Russo-Polish situation, in which the diplomats went plenty to disturb their equanimity. In the first place, the Moscow government, replying to the British note asking if it would arrange an armistice with Poland, rejected in substance the British proposals. The Reds declined to go to London for any peace conference, holding that Great Britain is not impartial, and, in language so sarcastic that it hurt the feelings of the English statesmen, made it clear that they could deal with Poland direct. Their next move was to send a wireless message to Warsaw expressing regret that Poland had seen it to deal through the allies and suggesting that conversations on peace be conducted between the two governments without consulting or considering outsiders. So far as is known at this writing, the Poles have not replied definitely to this invitation, but a London report said they had been told to apply for an armistice in order to test the sincerity of Moscow.

Meanwhile, the soviet forces opened a general attack all along the line from the Rumanian border to the Pripyet marshes, and though at first the Poles repulsed them in most places, at one point they broke across the border and were fighting on Polish soil. North of the Pripyet the Reds moved rapidly and took Grodno. Their evident objective was Warsaw, and the civilians of that city were preparing to take flight, some already having left. American relief organizations were ready to quit the city, and the Red Cross was shifting part of its headquarters to Cracow.

In their advance through Lithuanian territory the bolsheviks seem to be threatening an invasion of East Prussia, and the German government is preparing to defend that region desperately. Fifty thousand of the best veltshewer troops have been mobilized and Berlin feels confident they can prevent an invasion if they can be maintained near the border. The danger, however, is that as the soviet army draws near the bolshevik elements in other parts of Germany may break out and cause a scattering of those defense troops and leave open to the Russians the way into East Prussia. No doubt Germany will take advantage of the conditions to ask leave to mobilize more of her regular troops, and also it is likely the threat of invasion will bring to light vast stores of concealed arms, including artillery.

Early in the week Ignace Paderewski was made Polish plenipotentiary to Paris and his return to power was taken as evidence that the Poles were willing to make peace with the Russians direct. The musician-statesman was expected to placate Lloyd George and Millerand. Pilsnisky, Polish chief of state, had refused to withdraw his armies to the lines specified by Lloyd George, insisting that national safety required the holding of the line of Barmowicz-Pinsk-Dulno.

As a result of the Spa conference Great Britain and France are pledged to support Poland against Russian aggression, and they intend to give this support in the form of arms and munitions; men also will be supplied if this is considered necessary by British and French missions that have just been sent to Warsaw. But the British

Whether or not to accept a wage increase of $900,000,000 yearly, including about $140,000,000 back pay, was the proposition put up to the rail workers of the country last week by the United States railway labor board. The long-awaited award was announced in Chicago to the representatives of eighteen brotherhoods and unions, and it really did not please them at all, as they demanded approximately twice as much. Some of the members of the grand council were not empowered to accept the award finally, so a referendum vote of the two million rail workers becomes necessary. The chief of one union, the Order of Railway Telegraphers, rejected the award, and they called for a referendum vote or strike.

Of course the railway executives at once began looking for means to pay the advanced wages, and they already have worked out a schedule of increased rates, both freight and passenger, for presentation to the interstate commerce commission. The passenger increase asked is from one half to one per cent per mile. That for freight will undoubtedly be heavy.

In the death of William K. Vanderbilt in Paris one of America's leading financiers and sportsmen passed. He inherited a large share of the vast estate of his father, and is believed to have left a fortune of between $70,000,000 and $100,000,000. Despite his wealth he worked his way up from the bottom in the railroad business.

Another death of the week, interesting but not important, was that of Josephine, youngest son of the former Kaiser. Distressed by financial difficulties, he committed suicide in Berlin.

Who buy inner tubes by guess

Your inner tubes are almost as important as your tires. But it takes a special skill—a rare skill—to build good tubes.

Miller stands supreme in this field. For 24 years Miller has built super-grade rubber goods.

Miller today remains the largest maker of such things as surgeons' gloves.

That sort of skill is needed in a tube. Men may differ on the best tire maker, but they cannot differ on the best tube maker. That place is conceded to Miller.

Miller Tubes

As good as Miller Tires

Layer on layer

Miller Tubes are built of thin sheets of pure rubber—surgeon grade. They are built layer on layer, sheet on sheet, up to the proper ply.

Then each tube is tested for hours under air pressure to make sure it is air-tight. Yet these ideal tubes cost no extra price.

If you will buy one Miller Tube and watch it, you will always cling to Millers.

KEEP AN EYE ON PATAGONIA—THE PROPER PLACE TO INVEST

Patagonia is situated in the center of a great mining district. The town-site is a beautiful one, located in the valley between the Santa Rita and Patagonia Mountains at an elevation of over 4000 feet. The town has a fine school building, three hotels, six stores, etc. The climate can not be surpassed; there is good water in abundance, and splendid roads lead from Patagonia to all parts of the county.

A fine tract of land has just been laid out in town lots adjoining the and aggressive conduct of the office of Acting County Attorney, he has received innumerable, favorable comments from the businessmen of this city, who are openly endorsing him for the position he is so eminently fitted.

Mr. Trippel is a life long Democrat and is the son and grandson, respectively, of Honorable E. J. Trippel and Dr. Alexander Trippel, prominent and respected pioneers of this city.

Because of Mr. Trippel's extensive and practical experience in the legal profession, extending over a period of 14 years, and especially with reference to his recent activity in the administration of the office of County Attorney of Santa Cruz County, and further, because of his sterling qualities as a citizen and a Democrat, it is freely predicted that he will be favored with the Democrat nomination of County Attorney of Santa Cruz County in the ensuing September Primary.

M. MIDDLETON FLIRTS WITH COUNTY VOTERS

Malcolm Middleton, local assayer and member of the Board of Aldermen, officially announces for the office of County Recorder subject to the action of the voters of Santa Cruz County.

Mr. Middleton is a young man, well qualified for the position, and if he receives the endorsement of the voters of this county he will be an able and efficient recorder.

He is making the race under the Republican banner and his friends contend that his chance for election looms large.

Middleton is at present engaged in the assaying business in Nogales being connected with Hugo Miller's establishment. He is a member of the City Council and notwithstanding the fact that he is affiliated with a political party he does not draw party lines when serving the county.

The election of Mr. Middleton would place the recorder's office on a high plane. He is energetic and well qualified for the position he seeks.

STEVENS SERENADES SANTA CRUZ VOTERS FOR SHERIFF'S JOB

Lou Stevens of Patagonia has cast his big sombrero in the ring and announces that he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for sheriff of Santa Cruz county.

Stevens is at present a cattle inspector and has served as deputy sheriff of this county under McKnight.

He is a capable officer, conscientious and a hard worker. He is fearless and never falters when dangerous criminals are brought to bay.

Stevens is a young married man with two children; is well known and well liked in all sections of the county.

Should he receive the Republican nomination he will make a splendid fight against the successful Democratic nominee and would have a fine chance of being victorious.

His many friends in the county urged him to make the race and will staunchly support him against all opposition.

A. A. TRIPPEL, ACTING COUNTY ATTORNEY ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY

A. A. Trippel has announced his candidacy for the office of County Attorney of Santa Cruz County, subject to the Democratic Primary to be held September 7, 1920. He is favorably known throughout Arizona, and especially so in the southern section of the State, being a native born son. His boyhood days were spent in Tucson, Arizona, and he was educated in the public schools and the University of Arizona in that city. Following a residence of twenty years in Tucson, he attended the law school of the University of New York. He acquired practical experience in the law firm of Finch & Coleman of New York City, which is reputed to be one of the most successful and extensive law offices of that metropolis. Later he was employed in the law firm of Senator Eugene S. Ives and U. S. Senator Marcus A. Smith, which was dissolved by reason of the death of Senator Ives. Thereafter, Mr. Trippel, who is admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of the State of Arizona and the U. S. Federal District Court, became associated in the practice of law with Honorable C. A. Lindeman of Yuma, Arizona.

Mr. Trippel has also had wide experience in the annotation of the session laws of recent Arizona legislatures, and has rendered valuable assistance to the State in this respect. He is considered one of the best posted legislative parliamentarians in Arizona at the present time.

During September of last year Mr. Trippel was married to one of Nogales' most popular native daughters and has since established law offices in this city. He is planning at the present time the construction of a home in this city.

In May, Mr. Trippel was appointed Acting County Attorney of Santa Cruz County, due to the absence of Leslie C. Hardy, the present incumbent, who is at present engaged in a State wide campaign for the State Attorney General.

During the World War, Mr. Trippel waived two exemptions in his questionnaire and responded to the call of arms. He is 34 years of age and is known by his host of friends to be a conscientious and tireless worker.

H. Gordon Glor Marries Under the Moon

H. Gordon Glor, prominent contractor and builder and former Santa Cruz county engineer, was the groom in a romantic and unique marriage ceremony, which was performed by Judge J. N. Wilkey in the street before his house, 118 Washington street, at midnight with the brilliant moon affording the only light, except the glare of a motor car. The bride was Miss Catherine Jetmore, daughter of a rancher at Huachuca. Witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Earl L. Seger, Mrs. Seger being a sister of the bride.

This is said to be the only marriage of its kind ever performed in Nogales. Mr. Glor's marriage came as a complete surprise to his many friends, who join in wishing him and his wife much joy in the culmination of the romance.

PRAISES SHARK AS FOOD FISH

Bureau of Fisheries Says It Has Been Neglected Because Worth Is Little Known.

TELLS HOW TO PREPARE IT

If It Has a Strong Odor, That Can Be Easily Remedied—Seafaring Folk Have Known of Its Value As Food.

Washington.—With the more frequent appearance of new sea foods in our markets, the truth of the old saying, "There are as good fish in the sea as have ever been caught," is acquiring a new application. This is especially true of a large family of fishes representative of which occur on all shores of the sea and in all climates—the sharks, strong, active, gracefully shaped fishes, varying in length from a few inches to fifty feet or more, which offer a wholesome, palatable and nutritious food, comparing favorably in dietary qualities with many of the highly priced sea foods.

Many people, indeed, have recognized their value and have utilized them extensively for food. In the countries bordering on the Mediterranean and in Great Britain, Norway and Sweden they are well known as valuable and nutritious foods. At Folkestone, England, the flesh of one of the small sharks, salted and dried, is marketed as "Folkestone beef." Until recently their use as a food in the United States has been limited principally to seafaring people in scattered localities and to the fish markets of some of our larger cities, but with late interest aroused in new sea foods they are finding a place in our largest fish-distributing centers and have appeared on the menus of some of the leading hotels in several cities.

NEW HERD OF BUFFALO

Bison on Increase Instead of Becoming Extinct.

Yellowstone National Park Authorities Say There Are More Than 100 Wild Buffalo in Park.

Yellowstone Park, Wyo.—Convincing evidence that the wild buffalo of Yellowstone national park, the last surviving remnant of the great herds which once roamed the western plains, are on the increase, instead of dying out, as was feared, has been obtained in the discovery of a new group in the southeastern portion of the park.

About fifteen animals were observed, evidently a part of the old herd, which it is thought grew so large that some of its members were forced to break away and seek new pasturage.

Definite information has been obtained by park authorities that there are now more than one hundred of the interesting. The thrasher shark uses its whip-like tail, which is as long as its body, to splash the water as it swims round and round a school of fish in ever narrowing circles, crowding the fish closer and closer together until the moment of attack. The grayfish, sand sharks and some other species work in schools and do not hesitate to attack the fish taken in the fishermen's nets, the larger forms tearing the nets and liberating the catch. The economic uses to which these forms may be put are somewhat varied. At one time large quantities of the hides, cleaned but not tanned, were used for polishing wood, ivory, metal and the like. With improvements in methods of preparation of sandpaper and emery, these have largely replaced animal hides. Within the last year the Bureau of Fisheries has interested American tanners to experiment in the production of leathers from these hides with excellent results, and there now exists a demand for large quantities of raw material. In tensile strength leathers tested compare favorably with those made from mammal hides, and the market for these products appears assured. In addition, the livers are rich in a marketable oil, which is of value in dressing leather, soapmaking, paints and for medicinal purposes. The yield varies from less than a pint in some of the smaller sharks to about 125 gallons in some of the larger sizes.

The meat of sharks is white, slightly gelatinous, resembling halibut, but somewhat less firm, and compares favorably in food value with other staple food fishes and meats. Russel J. Coles, who has eaten the flesh of many of our sharks, states that the flesh in freshly killed examples of some species has a peculiar odor which can readily be removed by salting. After several hours the meat should be freshened, then parboiled and cooked as any other fish. The flesh of the young sharks and such small forms as the grayfish is particularly good fresh, but it is as a preserved product that the meat of sharks especially commends itself. Salted and smoked or kippered it is excellent. It may also be salted and dried, flaked or shredded.

In some parts of the meat the layers of connective tissue are quite close together. These parts may conveniently be run through a meat chopper and the meat used for fish balls, chowders and the like. Persons in position to smoke the fish as needed will find the mild-cured, hot-smoked product particularly appetizing.

DELAYS THE PEACE PLANS

Red Cross Official Claps Envoys Into Quarantine.

Diplomats Entering Estonia Stripped and Scrubbed and Their Clothes Disinfected.

Reval, Estonia.—When the soviet commission to negotiate peace with Estonia recently crossed the lines to the city of Narva on its way to Reval, its members were promptly stripped to their waists, and in spite of desperate protestations and citations of diplomatic privilege, were forcibly detained for thorough disinfection before being permitted to proceed.

The Red Cross quarantine regulations at Narva prescribed that no person could leave the town without disinfection and a clean bill of health. No exceptions have been allowed to this rule since the Red Cross undertook the typhus fight here.

Ordinarily the wild buffalo never are seen by tourists and only rarely by park authorities or even by the rangers who patrol the most remote sections. The appearance of the new herd close to the main lines of travel was before the season opened, and the animals apparently had been lured down from the mountain fastnesses by the abundance of spring grass on the lower levels. They disappeared into untraveled country as soon as automobiles became frequent along the highways.

Forty-eight calves have been added this year to the tame buffalo herd of the park, which now has a population of 500. Part of the tame herd has been placed in corral at Mammoth Hot Springs for the benefit of visitors.

PROSPERITY WAVE IN JAMAICA

Planters Become Wealthy as Sugar Brings $600 a Ton and Bananas Are High.

Kingston, Jamaica.—There has never been so much money in Jamaica as now.

The sugar and banana planters are fast becoming wealthy, and if the present wave of prosperity continues for a few more years the island will have at least a dozen millionaires.

Before the war sugar brought only $30 per ton; today it is bringing $900 per ton in the English market. The island's inhabitants are experiencing great difficulty in getting adequate supplies, and it is only through the action of the food controller that 8 per cent of the output is kept for home consumption. The prosperity of sugar planters has led to large sums being invested in the purchase of the most up-to-date machinery for the manufacture of sugar.

HAS MUCH TO COMPLAIN OF

Divorce Petition of Colorado Man Contains a Long List of Grievances.

Denver.—One of the longest lists of grievances against a wife ever filed in the district court is contained in a bill of particulars in support of John Botwell's complaint in divorce against Margaret Botwell.

These are some of the acts of which Botwell complains: "That she told his friends that he was entertaining and as funny as a crutch. "That she was a confirmed flirt, and by her actions prompted men to stop and talk with her. "That she smoked cigarettes. "That she told him she did not love him, and named another man whom she said she did love. "That she repulsed his demonstrations of affection and told him she couldn't stand having him around. "That she told him he had a bum job and wasn't earning enough money."

Street Boss Quits Job to Be Better Paid Laborer

Because laborers he employed in street work are making more than the $100 a month paid him for directing the work, John Ackley has presented his resignation as street commissioner to the town council of Hackensacktown, N. J.

In an emergency the council increased the pay for unskilled labor, but overlooked an increase in pay for the man who had to superintend the work. Ackley decided it would be more profitable to quit and seek a job by the day in his own department.

Omba, Neb.—An albino robin, pink-eyed and white to its last feather, was discovered in the yard of an Omba resident. The albino robin is a rarity.

Announcement has been made by the bureau of war risk insurance that aggregate payments on awards of compensation and of insurance to former service men and their beneficiaries total $223,384,769.72.

A recent compilation of compensation payments showed payments on account of death of $15,914,737.00, and for disability of $84,577,403.20.

Kentucky Shoot a Suicide

Georgetown, Ky.—Cavanaugh Hughes had no idea of butchering a 100-pound shot, but the pig picked up a butcher knife in its mouth and ran. Hughes pursued, and when the shot dropped the knife the weapon hit the ground but end first and the blade entered the pig's throat at the point where hogs are stuck for butchering. Hughes finished the job.

Wood Fibers. The common ideas concerning wood fibers are not justified by the extended tests of the United States forest products laboratory. Each species of wood does not have its characteristic fiber length, but a greater difference may be found between the fibers of an individual tree than between the average lengths in different species. The length of fiber does not seem to affect the strength of the wood, as the longest fibers often belong to the weakest material.

Peruvian Idea of Dignity. The mayor of the smallest town in Peru feels that it is incumbent upon him, in order to make the proper display of official dignity, to be accompanied by a band of pipers whenever he appears on any state occasion. These musicians have instruments which consist of a series of reeds strung together and make a weird music.

Reward of Duty. The reward of one duty is the power to fulfill another.—George Elliot.

The KITCHEN CABINET

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

Soup is reasonable the year round in any climate. The following will be found on quite a list worth while: Royal Soup.—Soak one cupful of bread crumbs in one-half cupful of milk. Add the yolks of three hard-cooked eggs rubbed through a sieve and the breast of a stewed chicken, also rubbed through a sieve; add three and one-half cupfuls of stock, highly seasoned, one and one-half cupfuls of scalded milk, and two and one-half tablespoonfuls each of flour and butter cooked together. Season with salt and pepper.

Pressed Beef Flank.—Wipe, remove superfluous fat and roll a flank of beef. Put into a kettle cover with boiling water and add one tablespoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of peppercorns, a small piece of bay leaf and the bone of a shank of veal. Cook slowly until the meat is very tender. There should be very little liquor in the kettle when the meat is done. Arrange the meat in a deep pan, pour over the liquor, cover and press with a heavy weight. Serve cold.

Chicken a la Stanley.—Melt one-fourth of a cupful of butter, add one large onion thinly sliced and two broilers cut in pieces for serving. Cover and cook slowly for ten minutes, then add one cupful of chicken stock and cook until the meat is tender. Remove the chickens, rub the stock and onions through a sieve and add one and one-half tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour cooked together. Add cream to make the sauce of the right consistency. Season with salt and pepper. Arrange the chicken on a serving dish, pour around the sauce, and garnish the dish with sliced bananas dipped in flour and sauted in butter.

Boiled Dressing.—To one cupful of beaten eggs, a mixture of white and yolk, add an equal quantity of mild vinegar. Cook over hot water till thick. Season when ready to use. Will keep for weeks in a jar well sealed and placed in a cool place.

If we have whispered truth, Whisper no longer; Speak as the tempest does, Stern and stronger. —John G. Whittier.

SUMMER MEATS.

Chicken, veal, sweetbreads and lamb are the summer meats most commonly liked and served.

Broiled Chicken.—Clean a tender chicken and split it down the back. Break the joints, take out the breast bone, wipe clean, sprinkle with salt and pepper and rub with soft butter. Broil and serve with melted butter.

Breaded Veal Cutlet.—Have the cutlets less than an inch thick; parboil and drain, then cool. Season with salt and pepper, dip in beaten egg and crumbs and fry until brown. Serve with tomato sauce or with a border of green peas.

Chicken Goussier.—Cut into three two medium sized raw potatoes. Put into a fryingpan two tablespoonfuls of olive oil and when hot add the potato dice. Stir to keep from burning and cook five minutes. Then add a dash of paprika, a cupful of boiling water, a crushed bean of garlic, a cupful of cooked chicken chopped fine or a can of boned chicken; salt to taste. Cover and cook until the potatoes are done, stirring frequently.

Mayonnaise dressing, using olive oil, is the salad par excellence, but a tasty substitute can be prepared from corn oil, using the same method of mixing.

The secret of a good mayonnaise is freshness of the egg and well-chilled ingredients and utensils. Drop a fresh egg yolk into a well-chilled bowl placed in a pan of ice water; add a half teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of powdered sugar, a pinch of mustard, a dash of cayenne and a tablespoonful of lemon juice. Beat well before adding any oil, then but a few drops at a time, beating well between each addition. Thin the mixture with vinegar or lemon juice, adding more oil until three-quarters of a cupful has been used. Mayonnaise to be good should be thick and creamy. When serving it in the salad it may be thinned with cream.

Small Boy's Comment Appeared to Sum Up the Situation in a Thorough Manner. Judging from their appearance, the two gentlemen who were visiting London from the north of England hadn't been troubled overmuch by food regulations or shortages. More, their bulk suggested profiteering in every direction.

At the request of the driver of the taxi, his four fares descended one by one. As they appeared, the eyes of a small newsboy began to goggle, and when the four of them stood in a row on the curbstone, he eyed them solemnly, and then exclaimed: "And no bloomin' wonder, either!" London Answers.

Cold Water Has Odd Use. For years steam has been used for thawing the frozen soil of mining districts in Alaska. In spite of difficulties, now it has been discovered that cold surface water, which of course is warmer than the ground, is a much better thawing medium than either steam or hot water, states Popular Mechanics Magazine. This seeming paradox is explained by the fact that the superabundant heat units of steam rise rapidly around the pipe, and are wasted, while the few heat units carried by the cold water remain in the ground and do their work slowly but thoroughly. In one test in the Nome district, a 2-inch pipe was inserted in a 3-inch drilled hole, and fed with 20 gallons of water a minute at a temperature of 52 degrees F., the ground being at 28 degrees. In 36 hours an 8-foot cylindrical thaw had been made.

WHITE CHOSEN DEMOCRATIC CHAIRMAN

GEORGE H. WHITE
George H. White, ex-Congressman of Marietta, Ohio, who has been selected chairman of the Democratic National committee to succeed Homer S. Cummings.

DEPUTY SHERIFF WHITE RESIGNS TO RUN FOR SHERIFF

Deputy Sheriff George J. White has resigned his office as an employee of the county to make his canvass of Santa Cruz voters for the Republican nomination for sheriff at the primaries. White states he thinks it only fair to the taxpayers to separate himself from the county payroll during the time he is devoting most of his time to furthering his candidacy for the Republican nomination.

He has been with the sheriff's office for about two years and during that time has been an active, fearless and efficient officer of the law. Use of his trained bloodhound has been of inestimable benefit to the county and the law-abiding citizens in bringing outlaws to book through trailing them after a crime. This has led to the capture of many fugitives during the time White has been a deputy sheriff.

He returned late yesterday from the Elgin and Rain Valley districts where he called on many voters.

"That district is a Democratic precinct," said White, "but I found many of the voters who admit they are Democrats registered but will vote this year for Harding and Campbell and White. They say that they want a change at the White House and are against Cox because he has endorsed the Wilson way of handling the nation's affairs. They are for Harding because they see in him the man who will bring the U. S. affairs back to a basis of America first and on a sensible business foundation."

"They are for Campbell because he is a cowman and a plain man of the people who has shown by his record in office that as governor of this state he is the right man to bring about Arizona development and keep the wobblers out of power."

"I have received many assurances of the support of my candidacy. Democrats tell me they will stay out of our primaries, of course, but will be with me in the November election. I am well pleased with my canvass so far."

LETTER TO EDITOR

Editor Patagonian:
Dear sir:—
I wish to say a few words in regard to the public road work which has recently been done in the Patagonia district.

There has been some very good work done on the Patagonia and Nogales road, but owing to a scarcity of funds the work has of necessity been of a temporary nature, in places. But this temporary work had to be done in order to keep the road in passable condition until such time as more adequate means can be provided. After the new $100,000 bond issue shall have been put into operation it is expected that all work will be permanent and lasting. I assisted in the work of surveying out this new road and when completed it is going to be one of the best roads in the county, I believe.

But I am glad to say that most of the work which has been recently done on the roads between Patagonia and the World's Fair, Flux and 3-R mines is of a more permanent nature, and these roads are now in better condition than ever before. Our supervisors have shown a disposition to do the very best possible under the circumstances for the mining districts round about here. No one could have done better. But for the present the road work has been suspended and all the men have been laid off on account of there being no more funds. But it is hoped that this work will again be taken up by the supervisors this fall and pushed to completion.

Now in regard to the wages which men ought to receive I wish to say a few words. Heretofore the minimum wage for county road work in Santa Cruz county has been $3 per day. Foremen have received $4 per day. I do not believe that this is enough, and I am confident the supervisors feel just like I do about it. I am sure they are willing for the county to pay its employees better wages. In order to get this matter fairly adjusted I want to suggest that a petition be prepared asking that a minimum wage of $4 per day be established, and present this petition to the tax payers, and if a majority of them are found to favor this ruling I am sure the supervisors will gladly agree to this scale of wages.

I further suggest that this matter be attended to immediately. Let some interested party who can spare the time prepare this petition to the supervisors and put it into circulation. By getting several copies of the petition the work can be completed in a very few days. Knocking seldom accomplishes anything, but good, sensible work, based on a live-and-let-live basis, will do much for the man who wants to work.

L. E. MILLER.

Remarkable Cross-Continent Record---27.2 Miles Per Gallon

Think of it! An Overland stock car, taking on gas at 32 different public stations, driven by 25 different drivers who never saw the car before, smashed all trans-continental economy records in a day and night run from New York to San Francisco. 3,442 miles of incessant driving in 179 hours; the car punished by unfamiliar driving—reckless or conservative, according to the driver—yet the car's inherent economy is so certain that this Overland averaged 27.2 miles to the gallon. How was this remarkable cross-continental record made?

OVER CONTINENT CAR IS RELAYED FROM DRIVER TO DRIVER

A few weeks ago an Overland entire down in Arizona suggested an entirely new kind of trip for a motor car. He said, "Let's have the distributors and dealers clear across the continent relay a stock Overland automobile from driver to driver on a continuous trip, and see what the car will do."

At first the idea was scoffed at, as every man who knows automobiles knows that under such handling no car can be reasonably expected to perform even up to its normal requirements. But on second thought, it was decided that a trip like this would be the best kind of test that could possibly be given, as it would show not the best that a car could perform, but the best that could be expected under the most adverse conditions.

RUNNING AT TIMES 40 MILES AN HOUR

So an Overland stock car started from New York at midnight on July 18th. The roads were rough. Not a single driver had ever sat in the car before. In many cases the road was missed, and the distance had to be covered back until the right road or the detour was found.

"Let's try to average 20 miles an hour clear across," was the suggestion of the Overland dealers. "But that means driving 35 to 40 miles an hour part of the time," was the objection, "and you can't get gasoline economy at that speed." But 20 miles an hour was decided upon.

25 DIFFERENT MEN SIT AT THE WHEEL

A motor car trip across the United States in a week's time, in a car weighing less than 2000 pounds. That was the plan.

Mile after mile slipped off on schedule time. Distributors met the car at appointed locations. Change of the 25 drivers was made sometimes in less than two or three minutes. Once a windshield was broken which had to be fixed. Here and there a nut had to be tightened. But the car pounded on through rain and dust and heat, over mountains and plains.

At Kearney, Nebraska, the halfway mark, the average stood 25 miles per gallon over a distance of 1000 miles. And the car was running so perfectly that every driver expressed the utmost enthusiasm over its performance.

AS STANDARD AS THE CAR YOU BUY

One of the remarkable things about the trip was the low oil consumption. And the car went across, not on cord tires such as are normally used for this kind of trip, but on standard Fisk fabric tires.

The standard Tillotson carburetor, and the standard Auto-Lite generator system and U. S. L. batteries were used. The car was a standard car with absolutely no reinforcements throughout.

MAYOR HYLAN OF NEW YORK INDORSSES ECONOMY ADVANTAGES

Finally, after covering the almost impassable roads across the Nevada desert, the wonderful little Overland, protected throughout by Triplex Springs, rolled gaily down the paved highways of California into San Francisco, delivering to Mayor Ralph a letter from Mayor Hylan of New York, which read:

This wonderful trip of the Overland again emphasizes in a truly dramatic and remarkable way the wonderful stamina and riding qualities, and the extraordinary economy of this great car.

If you don't know this car and its remarkable achievements come in and look it over. It will pay you to find out what a great automobile you can buy for a small sum of money.
