Brooklyn Takes 2 of 3 Games Played in World Series

SLANTS OF SOUTHPAW PROVE POISON TO INDIANS IN THIRD SERIES GAME FOR WORLD FLAG AT EBBETTS FIELD

EBBETTS' FIELD, Brooklyn, Oct. 7.—Sherry Smith's southpaw slants were poison to the Cleveland Indians today and the Brooklyn Dodgers made off with the third game in the world's series by the score of 2 to 1.

EBBETTS' FIELD, Brooklyn, Oct. 5.—Cleveland Indians, champions of the American league, topped over the Brooklyn Dodgers today by the score of 3 to 1 in the first game of the world series.

The National league champions were helpless before the mystifying slants of the big spitball pitcher Coveleski. He was given sterling support by Cleveland, especially by Tris Speaker who ranged far and near robbing the helpless Brooklyn of seeming hits.

O'Neill starred at bat with two doubles to his credit. The official attendance was 23,891.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—It has been pointed out that because of the capacity of the parks where the world's series games are to be played there is little likelihood of a new attendance record being made, but there is a possibility, if the series goes to seven or eight games, of a new mark in total gate receipts.

The 16 world's series that have been played, including the one of 1903 not under the jurisdiction of the National Commission, have attracted a total attendance of 2,352,842, or an average of 23,487 for each of the 94 games that have been played.

With the prevailing prices for admission tickets this season and capacity crowds for seven or eight games there is a chance that the total receipts will exceed those of last year.

Gen. Weygand of Royal Lineage

Military Genius Directing the Poles Said to Be Son of King Leopold of Belgium.

CHIEF AID TO MARSHAL FOCH

Influence of Former Belgian King Ruled Weygand From an Obscure Boy to High Position in French Military Circles.

Brussels.—Gen. Maxime Weygand, the military genius who directed the Poles in their spectacular victory over the Russians, and who is now generally credited with a large share of Marshal Foch's achievements in the World War, is a son of the late King Leopold, of Belgium, according to persons who are intimately acquainted with Belgian court circles and the secrets thereof.

Rumors in Paris and Brussels regarding the paternity of the famous soldier were run down today with the following result:

It was former King Leopold's influence that raised Weygand from an obscure boy of unknown parentage to such a high position in French military circles that he was chosen chief of staff to Marshal Foch, commander in chief of the greatest army the world has ever seen.

General Weygand was born in Brussels in 1866. The names of his father and mother are not contained in the birth records, nor is the place of his birth given. He was first heard of under the care of a rich Brussels manufacturer who was a close friend of the former Belgian king.

Regarded as Orphan. Young Weygand was then said to be an orphan. When he was eight years old he was adopted by a French family of the name of Weygand. The head of the family was employed by the Belgian manufacturer. The family was poor, but money was supplied to give the boy an excellent education.

This aroused comment among the neighbors and gave rise to the query: "Who is furnishing the large sums to send the orphan to a high-priced school?"

The adopted boy received the name of his foster parents. Young Weygand, who was brilliant in his studies, showed a preference for military affairs. The friends and neighbors of the Weygand family were astonished when the youth entered the famous French military academy at St. Cyr. He was admitted as a foreigner, although he had been adopted by a French family.

Lieutenant Colonel at Twenty-Six. Weygand displayed the same brilliance at St. Cyr that marked his earlier educational course. He passed into the French army after his graduation. He rose to a lieutenant colonelcy, receiving his post in 1912, when he was only twenty-six years old.

At the outbreak of the World War Lieutenant Colonel Weygand was made chief of staff to Foch. He planned Foch's brilliant stroke when that general was commanding an army corps at the first battle of the Marne. Lieutenant Colonel Weygand was promoted to a major general in August, 1916, and became France's representative on the supreme war council. Later he was president of the inter-allied military committee at Versailles.

General Weygand was the constant companion of Marshal Foch, who described him as "a man with a head and soul—the kind you can rely on."

All biographies of General Weygand and also his most intimate friends are extremely reticent on the subject of his origin.

LIVE STOCK

CARELESS POISONING COSTLY

Frequent Reports Made of Animals Gaining Access to Paint Boxes and Other Containers.

The danger of animals becoming poisoned through the careless use of poison material when spraying or baiting for insects, is pointed out by officials at the Ohio Experimental station, Wooster.

Every year reports are sent in of animals suddenly dying from securing access to paint boxes and poison containers.

Sometimes Paris green boxes, white lead or arsenate of lead containers are thrown into the trash pile or dump and animals get the poison from these.

Paint boxes, even though thin coats, are licked by cattle because of the sweetish taste of the lead compounds.

Such boxes should be thoroughly cleaned with gasoline before using for farm paints. It is stated.

Materials most dangerous to live stock are Paris green, London purple, arsenate of lead, calcium arsenate, and any compounds of arsenic or zinc.

USES ONLY PUREBRED SIRE

No Scrubs of Any Kind Found on Farm of Farmer Residing in Chatham County, Wash.

More than one-third of a group of farmers in Chatham county, Wash., who recently enrolled in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" campaign will purchase purebred sires in one or more classes of animals. The communications to the department of agriculture showed a particular interest in purebred boars, although many other classes of animals besides swine are kept in the community.

The owner of one well-stocked farm listed a Percheron stallion, a Guernsey bull, a Chester white boar, a Lincoln ram, a bronze gobbler, and a barred-rooster, all of pure breeding. There were no scrubs of any kind on this farm.

KEEPING HOGS IN CONDITION

Mixture of Charcoal, Salt, Air-Slaked Lime, Wood Ashes and Coppers is Favored.

For hogs running out the following preparation helps to keep them in good condition: Take of charcoal three bushels; of salt eight pounds; of air-slaked lime two quarts; of wood ashes one bushel; dissolve one pound of coppers in hot water, sprinkle with the solution the mixture of the other things; mix all up thoroughly and put the mixture in the feed boxes and set them where the hogs will have free access to them. Every farmer should have self-feeding boxes or racks, so that the stock can only get the needed supply and not waste it nor get too heavy a supply at one time.

PUREBRED STOCK ADVOCATED

Improvement Can Be More Quickly Brought About by Use of More Registered Sires.

The more general use of good purebred stock is strongly advocated as the foundation stone to live stock improvement on account of the fact that improvement can be more quickly and economically brought about in the herds of the country by the use of better sires than in any other way.

ECONOMIZE IN FEEDING HOGS

Where Abundance of Grain Is Furnished Animals Will Not Eat as Much on Pasture.

Where too much grain is fed the hogs satisfy their appetites on grain and will not eat as much pasture as they should. For that reason under present conditions, when grain prices are high and pork prices comparatively low, it is advisable to limit the grain ration to two pounds or less.

Feed for Cheap Production.

Silage has not gained its standing as a feed for cheap production by the experience of a few, but of many. Actual farm tests in every state corroborate the reports of the experiment stations.

Isolate Ailing Pigs.

In case any pigs appear sick, their prompt removal and isolation from the rest of the herd is imperative. If animals die suddenly their bodies should be removed from the herd. Burn or bury all carcasses.

Make Gas From Waste Material

Government Engineers Endeavor to Perfect Method of Utilizing Straw.

MAY HAVE ECONOMIC VALUE

An Automobile Has Been Operated With New Combustible and It Has Been Used for Illuminating Purposes and for Cooking.

Washington.—A gas which is obtained by the destructive distillation of wheat, oat and rye straws is now being produced upon a small scale at the experimental farm of the United States department of agriculture at Arlington, Va. Although an automobile has been operated with the new combustible, and it has been used for illuminating purposes as well as for cooking, the possibilities of straw gas are not yet fully determined, the department says. In order to determine the exact commercial value of the gas David J. Price, engineer in charge of the new office of development work, a subdivision of the bureau of chemistry designed to help commercial and industrial concerns to use new processes and discoveries developed in the bureau, has placed H. E. Roethe, Jr., in charge of a series of production tests with the experimental apparatus at Arlington.

May Have Economic Value. The work can be carried on but slowly owing to the limited funds available at present, but it is planned to do much that will determine the quantity and nature of the gas that may be obtained from wheat, oat, barley, rye and rice straws, and from cornstalks, sorghum and other vegetable matter usually burned as waste. If the results of these tests warrant further investigation the experiments will be extended to the problem of plant equipment for producing the gas on a scale sufficient to allow the farmer to supply light and heat for his house, power for stationary engines and possibly for his tractor, from a small individual outfit. If a suitable unit can be constructed so that the farmer's initial cost will be small, it seems likely that the straw gas may have a certain economic value in the sections of the country where the raw material from which the gas is made is now considered as waste and burned or left to rot on the fields. In some sections of the country the straw is used as a fertilizer, but in the West and Northwest there is an unlimited supply of the material available for conversion into light and fuel for the farmer.

While it has been possible to operate an automobile with straw gas and it is known that 50 pounds of straw will produce about 800 cubic feet of gas—an amount sufficient to drive a light roadster 15 miles—the problem of reducing the gas to liquid form or condensing it sufficiently to allow it to be carried conveniently is an essential one that must be solved before straw gas can be considered as a possible motor fuel. This will be another of the tasks taken up by the engineers in the development division.

Straw gas is not a new thing. The present process was developed by George Harrison, a Canadian engineer at Moosejaw, in 1914, who later operated on the project with Professor MacLaurin of the University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon, Canada. The university, in conjunction with the United States department of agriculture, exhibited a straw gas engine at the exposition of chemical industries in New York city during the fall of 1918. This equipment was later purchased and improved by the department. The Canadian investigators succeeded in operating an automobile with the product. However, the fuel supply was carried in a large flexible bag on the top of the car—a method of doubtful practicability.

Several valuable by-products are obtained in the manufacture of the gas. Carbon residue suitable for manufacturing lampblack of exceptionally fine quality is one. This residue also contains certain amounts of potash, phosphate and nitrogenous compounds which give it fertilizing value. The tar and ammoniacal liquids resulting from the process, aside from their value as disinfectants and preservatives, may prove useful in the dye industry. If the engineers succeed in perfecting the present apparatus and in reducing the cost of production, there is no doubt that straw gas will have an important commercial future.

Movie Lessons $8 Apiece. New York.—"Maybe I'm no Mary Pickford, but I have the makings of a great moving picture actress," said a scrubwoman to one of the district attorney's staff, investigating the so-called "moving picture schools." This investigation has disclosed that persons from scrubwomen to mothers of large families have enrolled in these schools at $8 a lesson.

New Span for Washington Bridge

An interesting engineering operation in connection with the construction of the Key bridge, at Georgetown on the Potomac, which connects the state of Virginia with Washington, was the placing of this huge 200-ton span. It was built over a timber frame erected over three scows lashed together and anchored near the Virginia shore. When the tide was at flood, the scows and their high-souaring cargo were towed between the central piers of the bridge.

Wants Radicals Removed.

Commissioner Wallis has appealed to Washington to remove the alleged radicals and anarchists detained at the island for deportation, because of crowded conditions at the immigration station.

"They are a defiant lot and should be deported," he explained. "They occupy a room that could accommodate a couple of hundred immigrants."

Railroads have also been asked by the commissioner to provide better transportation facilities for the immigrants and stop employees from "grafting" from the newcomers. He also wants them to be properly fed while being detained for entrapment.

While funds are not immediately available for improvements at the island, Commissioner Wallis states he will ask congress to raise funds by public subscription. If the necessary money cannot be provided by the government.

Small Boy Rescues Baby Girl.

Coal City, Ind.—A small boy who was let down into a well on a rope at the home of J. W. Free, rescued the one-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Morris of Hymora from drowning. The child fell into the well when she stepped on a movable cover in the platform. A bruise on one arm, caused by striking a bucket which was hanging in the well, was the only injury suffered by the baby. Mr. and Mrs. Morris were visiting at the Free farm.

BESEIGED BY TURKS

American Girl Tells About Terror in Armenia.

Orphanage Workers Were "Hostesses" to Swaggering Nationalists for Ten Weeks.

Chicago.—How American women relief workers played "hostess" to swaggering Turks in the conquered Armenian city of Hadjin for ten weeks was told by Miss Alice M. Clark of Evanston, who has just returned to her home after nearly two years of service in the near east.

Miss Clark was under siege of the Turkish Nationalists from March 8 to June 13 and for four days during a terrific engagement between the Turks and Armenians she and five other American women hid in a store room and subsisted on raisins and bread while the orphanage they were conducting was under constant fire.

"After a day of constant firing," Miss Clark said, in telling of the capture of the orphanage, "two burly Turks entered the building. Then we women began a little game of diplomacy that lasted ten weeks. They were about to search the orphanage, but we assured them we had no fire arms and they went away, saying that as long as we kept our promise of neutrality we would not be harmed."

"The pledge was kept on both sides, but it was a terrible ten weeks we women spent as 'hostesses' to these swaggering Turks, who varied their protestations of friendship with such diversions as leveling their guns as we crossed the compound or twirling daggers suggestively as they followed us about the buildings. After more than nine weeks of this, the Armenians made a sudden charge and drove off the Turks. On June 13 the Turks recaptured the compound and we were given three days in which to leave. We reached Talas after a three days' march and finally arrived at Constantinople."

Dreams She Is Drowning; 5 Feet of Water in Room

New York.—Mrs. Agnes Reynolds, who resides in a basement flat, believes there really is something in dreams.

In a dream, as she remembered it, she was at sea. The waves were unusually unhappy and she thought she was clinging to a life raft. Suddenly she awakened, hearing a voice screaming to her to stand on the bed or else drown. The voice was that of the janitress. Water had entered the cellar from a clogged sewer and had flooded it to a depth of about five feet.

Wearing Gas Helmets to Foil Bees of Indiana

Vincennes, Ind.—Bees, which lived in the ground until brought out by recent rains in many cases have completely halted plowing for wheat in sections of Knox county. According to the farmers, bees are more numerous this year because of the long dry season and the plentiful supply of red clover. Some farmers are foiling the bees by wearing gas masks, which were brought back from France by their sons who were in the service.

WILL OPEN MONGOLIA

General Hsu Says It Is to Be Restored to China.

Equal Commercial Opportunities Will Be Given to All Foreign Nations.

Urga, Mongolia.—Mongolia, restored as an integral part of the Chinese republic, will soon be opened to foreign nations," said Gen. Hsu Shu-chen, commander of China's frontier defense forces in Mongolia.

It was Gen. Hsu Shu-chen's army of 10,000 men marching 700 miles across the Gobi desert in the winter of 1918-1919 that occupied Urga and put an end to the political power of the Buddhist priest whose leader, termed "the living God," then ruled Mongolia as an autonomous state.

"All Mongolia-Russian treaties, granting special privileges to Russians in Mongolia, have been abrogated," continued "Little Hsu," as he is familiarly called to distinguish him from President Hsu. "Kiaochia, although a Siberian city, is still garrisoned by Chinese troops because Kolchak's representatives asked the Chinese to protect them from the Reds, and the date of withdrawal has not yet been decided."

General Hsu said China was not at all interested in the internal affairs of Russia, and that Russians taking refuge in China were all treated alike, regardless of their political affiliations, subject only to Chinese law.

He added that all Chinese troops would eventually be withdrawn from Russian territory, but that substantial garrisons would be maintained on the Mongolian border.

This year Freedom, Wyoming, is enjoying the novelty of shade trees along its streets and on its lawns because one of its women residents had vision enough to set trees there and determination enough to get them planted. This public-spirited woman set as her goal 250 trees in Freedom in six months, but so popular did the movement become that June 1 found 1,460 trees planted. Freedom is located in the treeless portion of Wyoming, and no native trees grow there, and up to this year none had been imported. The shadeless streets and lawns were unquestionably in need of trees, both for comfort and beauty, but as nothing was done about it they remained treeless until this woman decided that the town had gone treeless long enough. The town of Patagonia has many beautiful trees, mostly due to the foresight and wisdom of Col. Richardson, but many more are needed. We trust that the ladies of Patagonia will take up the matter of tree planting this fall and winter and never cease their efforts until the town shall have become a veritable forest. A more patriotic duty could scarcely be performed at this time. It goes without saying that a fall garden will come in mighty handy and those who failed to put one in are going to miss the good old turnip greens and other fall vegetables that belong on the bill of fare during the winter months. This has been a fine fall in the Patagonia district for fall gardens and there is scarcely a single excuse for anyone being without an abundance of green vegetables. In the fall of 1917-18 there was a nation-wide devotion to fall gardening and everybody said it was a noble pursuit. But as soon as the fall was over most of the gardeners hung up the shovel and the hoe. They were through. They had served their country gamely, but had enough of the hardships of war. Henceforth for them was rest, sweet rest. They would buy their vegetables, but when the professional gardener began naming his prices on his products the easy resters rose up on their tiptoes and roared as if their lungs would burst. Let us all plant more gardens next spring.

Surely this ought to be a warning to all automobile drivers.

Our guess is that if families were as large as they used to be, their grocery bills would look like the national debt.

If the average mortal could get along without food like the hunger strikers the cost of living wouldn't hurt anybody.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are cured by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists. 75c.

POPULATION OF ARIZONA IS 333,273 INCREASING 63 PERCENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The census of the State of Arizona gives 333,273, an increase of 128,919, or 63.1 percent; Kansas, 1,769,185, an increase of 78,239, or 4.6 percent; North Carolina, 2,556,486, an increase of 350,099, or 15.9 percent.

Arizona had a population of 204,354 in 1910, ranking the state as 46th in point of population. It showed an increase of 81,423, or 66.2 percent in the ten years from 1900, having had the largest growth numerically in its history, the number being almost twice as large as any previous decade.

In area Arizona ranked as fifth largest state in the Union in 1910 with a land area of 113,819 square miles, making its population average 1.8 per square mile.

Arizona was organized as a territory in 1863, admitted as a state in 1912 and appeared on the Federal census reports for the first time in 1870. During the twenty years from 1870 to 1890 Arizona's growth was very rapid, its population increasing a little more than four times during the decade 1870-80, and a little more than doubling in the decade 1880-90. The absolute increase for that 20 year period was 78,585. From 1890 to 1910 the growth was somewhat slower, the population increasing 116,111 or 151.6 percent.

Comparison of the rates of increase for the territory with those for the United States as a whole shows that during each decade the population of the territory increased much more rapidly than that of the United States. The largest difference between the two rates was during the decade 1870-80, when the population of the territory increased 318.7 percent and that of the country as a whole 30.1 percent, and the smallest difference during the decade 1890-1900 when the population of Arizona increased 39.3 percent and the population of the United States 20.7 percent.

The record of growth of Arizona's population follows:

Census Year	Pop.	Inc.	P.C.
1910	333,273	128,919	63.2
1900	222,931	34,958	39.3
1890	88,243	47,803	118.2
1880	40,440	30,782	318.7
1870	9,658

Will Mit Simms
Take This Dare
From Campbell?

The day before Tom Campbell challenged him to debate the land issue, Mitt Simms was interviewed at Tucson by Major George H. Kelly, editor of the Douglas International and one of his principal supporters.

After announcing his intention to make a vigorous campaign, Simms said:

"I AM PERFECTLY WILLING THAT THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE SHALL HAVE ALL KNOWLEDGE OF MY ACTS AS A MEMBER OF THE STATE LAND BOARD, AND AM NOT ONLY WILLING BUT DETERMINED THAT THE VOTERS SHALL KNOW THE TRUTH AND THE EXACT SITUATION CONCERNING THE LAND ADMINISTRATION."

Mr. Simms now has his opportunity. If he can justify his defense of Big Bill Moeur, Ben Clark and the others responsible for the land policy under which dummy leases are being cancelled and vast blocks of land tied up in the hands of a few individuals for a song, practically in perpetuity; if he is determined as he says that Arizona voters shall know the truth, let him accept the challenge of Governor Campbell to debate the issue.

If Simms will take up the gauntlet and meet his adversary, we suggest that the debate be staged at Phoenix, the capital. If Simms so desires, we have no doubt that Governor Campbell will cancel his speaking engagements and debate with his opponent this burning issue from some platform in every city of the state.

Simms says he wants the truth known. Here is the best and quickest way to make it public. The people of Arizona are waiting for your answer, Mr. Simms.

SUGAR, WHEAT, FLOUR CUT TO NEW LOW COST

(BULLETIN)
WHEAT PIT DEMORALIZED
CHICAGO, Oct. 4—An acute depression developed at the last of the day and the market closed in a semi-demoralized condition at the lowest prices of the day, showing a net decline of 1 1/2 to 12 cents on wheat, with December selling at $1.95 to $1.96 1/2 and March $1.91 to $1.91 1/2. In the final trading the leading feature was not so much the aggressive efforts to sell as the nearly complete absence of any buying.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4—Drastic cutting of prices took place today on wheat. In some cases as much as 1 1/2 cents per bushel was slashed from market values.

December wheat, once bringing as low as $1.97 per bushel as against a price of $2.07 to $2.07 1/2 at the finish of the Saturday market.

Increased liquidation by holders is in progress, especially from the rural source. All future deliveries on wheat dropped below $2 per bushel for the first time since the government price guarantee on wheat was made. Export call after a period of very slow domestic demand is also at a standstill.

Much notice is given the announcement by one of the largest flour mills at St. Louis that it has closed for lack of orders.

SUGAR HITS BOTTOM
NEW YORK, Oct. 4—A new low record on prices for the year were established today both on the raw and refined sugar markets. Prices are a half cent lower than last week with raw sugar selling on a basis of $8.51, duty paid, while refined sugar is quoted at 12 1/2 cents a pound.

FLOUR ON TOBOGGAN
MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 4—Flour continued its downward price course today falling from 10 to 60 cents per barrel for family patents.

BETTER WATERWAYS PLUS MORE TRUCKS PLAN FOR FARMERS

WEST JEFFERSON, Ohio, Oct. 2—Advocating an agricultural and industrial policy to co-ordinate American resources for the common good, Senator Harding declared here today in his speech.

"One for all and all for one" must be the motto of individual effort if the nation is to achieve its full potentialities.

Making a particular appeal for betterment of the condition of the farmer, the nominee asserted that agricultural production is really of greater interest to those who live in cities than it is to the farmers themselves. As a part of the one big community interested he said, that transportation facilities must be stabilized and the rehabilitated railway system be supplemented by waterway development and the greater commercial use of motor trucks.

ALLIES STOP
HUN'S EMPIRE

PARIS, Oct. 4—Important measures are to be taken to enforce the terms of the peace treaties with Germany and Austria and to prevent a union between those two nations should the proposed Austrian plebiscite decide in favor of the project, according to the foreign office here.

The Austrian national assembly adopted unanimously a motion calling on the government to carry out within six weeks a plebiscite on the union of Austria and Germany.

Meanwhile, it is understood no action will be taken with the view of preventing the holding of the plebiscite until such time as the plebiscite comes under the ban of the terms of the treaties.

In Their Place—
What Would
You Have Done?

This was the situation!

The Overland had no serious competition at its price, and at its price it had no competition as to quality.

Overland plants were working to capacity, 600,000 Overlands had been sold, and a continent was clamoring for more.

Then the Overland organization became concerned about the price of gasoline.

Now, gasoline is not Overland business, but it becomes Overland business when the welfare of Overland owners is at stake.

The sale of an Overland is the beginning and not the end of Overland interest in the man or woman who buys it.

So Overland designers were told:

"Gasoline is continually going up. Every cent advance increases the upkeep of the Overland. Go back to your draughting boards and bring it down!"

Months and months of experiment!

Millions and millions of expense!

"No use your getting crazy with the heat, Cullison. Your daughter asked me to bring her here, and I brought her. Of course I'm not going to break my neck getting her home where she can phone Bolt or Bucky O'Connor and have us rounded up. That ain't reasonable to expect. But I aim to do what's right. We'll all have supper together like sensible folks. Then Jose and I will give you the cabin for the night if you'll promise not to attempt to escape. In the morning maybe you'll see things different."

"Evening, Cass." Fendrick put down his newspaper, but did not rise. "Evening Bucky." Their eyes held to each other with the level even gaze of men who recognize a worthy antagonist. "I've come to ask a question or two." "Kick them out."

"Well, what have you decided?" he asked at last. "What is it you offer?" Luck demanded gruffly. "You sign the relinquishment and agree not to make us any trouble because we brought you here, and you can go by two o'clock."

CHAPTER VII.

An Arrest. After half a week in the saddle Lieutenant Bucky O'Connor of the Arizona Rangers and Carly Flandrau reached Esquiche, tired and travel-stained. They had combed the Riocons without having met hide or hair of the man they wanted. Early next morning they would leave town again and this time would make Soupy Stone's horse ranch.

The room that had been assigned to him was 212. O'Connor turned away and went up the stairs, ignoring the elevator. On the second floor he found 212. In answer to his knock a voice said "Come in." Opening the door, he stepped in, closed it behind him and looked at the man lying in his shirt sleeves on the bed.

"You better ask Cullison. The law says that if a man sells a relinquishment he can't file on another claim. If he surrenders it for nothing he can. Now, Luck may have notions of filing on another claim. You can see that we'll have to take it for granted he gave me the claim."

"Where is that paper you want me to sign?" Luck dashed off his signature and handed the document from him. He hated the necessity that forced him to surrender. For himself he would have died rather than give way, but he had to think of his daughter and of his boy Sam who was engaged in a plot to hold up a train.

"How can I when I'm under arrest?" Fendrick mocked. "You're not under arrest. Miss Cullison says her father has no charge to bring against you. So you can light a shuck soon as you want to."

Luck Dashed Off His Signature. Cullison is looking for me he is liable to find me, and he won't have to go into the hills to hunt me either. Bucky understood perfectly. According to the code of the frontier no man could let himself be driven from a town by the knowledge that another man was looking for him with a gun. There are in the Southwest now many thousands who do not live by the old standard, who are anchored to law and civilization as a protection against primitive passions. But Fendrick was not one of these. He was an aspirant to leadership among the tough hard-bitten denizens of the sunbaked desert. That being so, he had to see his feud out to a fighting finish if need be.

"There are points about this case you have overlooked," Bucky told him. "Maybe so. But the important one that sticks out like a sore thumb is that no man living can serve notice on me to get out of town because he is coming on the shoot."

"I don't stand for it. That ain't square." "You'll stand for it, my friend. I gave you a chance to clear out and you wouldn't take it."

"What for?" "For robbing the W. & S." "Luck's face lit. 'Have you evidence enough to cinch him?'"

"Who Was the Man, Cass?" me. That's all right. I'll find him. But in the meantime I'll have to look you up till this thing is settled."

How Needles Are Made. It was not until after 1885 that needles were entirely made and finished by machinery. The present-day process of making needles may be described as follows: The first operation is to cut the needle wire into eight-foot lengths; this is done by winding it into a coil of sixteen feet circumference and then cutting this coil into exact halves with powerful cutting shears.

You're the one that says I recognized him. Come to think of it, I'm not sure the fellow didn't wear his mask till he was out of sight. "I am. The mask was found just outside the office where the man dropped it before he got into the saddle."

"That's not all, Curly and I found something else, too—the old shirt from which the cloth was cut. And I have a witness who saw a man shove that old shirt down in the barrel after tearing a piece off."

"I'll not mention the name now. If it became too well-known something might happen to my witness."

"No, I said it. Your witness is Mrs. Wylie."

"Rare, however." "Are they happily married?" "How can they be? Why, his wife won't let him smoke in the house."

ITS FRIENDS ARE ELATED

Opponents of Covenant Also Find an Argument for a Lodge Reservation—Poles and Russians Talk Peace While Latter Lose Battles—Guerrilla Warfare in Ireland.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD. Believers in the League of Nations are much elated by the results of the ninth session of the league council which ended in Paris early in the week. By diplomatic presentation of fact and argument, the council induced four nations, which were on the verge of engaging in two wars, to agree to peaceful settlement of their differences.

The council had almost given up hope of arranging this settlement when, on the last day of the session, Ignace Paderewski, head of the Polish delegation, suddenly arose and in a dramatic speech declared his country was eager for peace with Lithuania and believed the latter nation also desired peace.

Opponents of the league found in this Aland islands case fresh argument to support their belief that the league covenant, as it stands, gives the council the chance to do just what the supporters of the Lodge reservations feared—to interfere in domestic questions. They point out that Finland contended that the Aland island dispute is a Finnish domestic, not an international, question and that the league had no jurisdiction thereof.

There is in the covenant, say the objectors, no guarantee that the council would not pronounce the present controversy between Japan and the United States over immigration an international question subject to its jurisdiction; and if Japan should submit the dispute to the league, as is suggested in that country, the United States would be in an awkward if not a dangerous position. It will be remembered, specifically declared that American immigration and other domestic countries should resort to an act so cruel and inhuman is really inexplicable. "If California passes the proposed referendum," Viscount Kaneko says, "California will write an indelible impression upon the minds of every man, woman and child in Japan."

Japanese leaders have almost ceased to hope for a settlement of the immigration dispute while the present administration is in power, and their chances for favorable action under the next administration are slim.

Following up the declarations made by Senator Harding, Governor Cox has been telling the Pacific coast people that he believes they are right in wishing to exclude the Japanese. It seems certain that the next administration, whether Republican or Democratic, will be pressed to terminate the present treaty with Japan, so that exclusion may be legal. With California's apparent determination to adopt additional restrictive legislation, the race question on the coast becomes more serious daily; but wise and well informed persons, in both America and Japan, have little fear that it will result in war.

In accordance with an agreement made last July between Japan and Asiatic Russia, the Japanese war office has evacuated Khabarovsk and the only Japanese garrisons left in Siberia are at Vladivostok and along the Ussuri railway. Asiatic Russia, it is said, has agreed to preserve the peace, to maintain friendly relations with Japan and to abolish communism.

The Polish-Russian peace conference opened in Riga, but it was surrounded by an atmosphere of gloom and the prediction was made freely that the results will be nil. Each side distrusts the other, and on certain questions it seems impossible for them to get together. One of these is Ukrainian, which the Reds assert is already self-determined in favor of soviet rule. The Ukrainians who follow Petlura deny this and say their soviet rulers are foreigners. They have sent representatives to the Riga meet, but these are not admitted by the Reds. Disarmament by both Poland and Russia was declared by Adolph Joffe, head of the red delegation, to be the only guarantee of stable peace.

Military operations against the soviet forces went right along, and their enemies scored several decided victories. The united Polish-Ukrainian front east of Lemberg was moving forward at the rate of fifteen miles a day and had reached Rovno and Kamenets Podolsk, and the Ukrainian cavalry had occupied the latter important city. In the Grodno region the soviet government claimed to have defeated the Poles and to have taken a number of towns. But the Moscow war reports have been almost uniformly false since the collapse of the invasion of Poland.

Following the plan which was outlined last week, General Wrangle has been pushing his way northward along the Dnieper river and, at last reports, after several smashing victories, he had captured Alexandrovsk, together with about 10,000 prisoners, five armored trains, many guns and large stores of supplies.

The immediate situation in Ireland has resolved itself into a guerrilla war of the most vicious description, which so far the British authorities have not been able to control. The Sinn Fein police in reprisal kill the Sinn Feiners like rats and ravage their towns. The most startling of these occurrences was the raid last week on Balbriggan, the center of the weaving industry of south Ireland. Inspector Burke of the British police in Ireland was shot down as he was leaving a restaurant, and his brother was badly wounded. When the news reached Germantown, where the police were stunned, ten trucks full of them started for Balbriggan. There they first set fire to the public houses and a large number of private homes from which they drove the people, and then burned to the ground some of the largest hosiery mills in Ireland, belonging to an English firm. They wound up the raid by murdering a barber and a dairyman, both Sinn Feiners. Similar raids were made last week on other Irish towns where the police had been enraged by the killing or wounding of their comrades. In County Clare a military truck in which were a number of police was ambushed by armed men and in the ensuing fight four of the officers were killed. The police involved in the Balbriggan incident were not members of the Royal Irish constabulary, but recruits for that force who, from their uniforms, are known as "black and tans." In the last two weeks more than twenty policemen and soldiers and a score of Sinn Feiners have been killed in Ireland, and large numbers on both sides have been wounded.

Oswald Garrison Villard, who used to be notoriously pro-German and anti-British, has formed a committee of 100 Americans to investigate in Ireland, with especial reference to atrocities. Public hearings will be held in Washington by a commission of the committee. Several senators and governors have agreed to serve on the committee, all the members of which are said to be prominent citizens.

So far as the public has been permitted to know, little progress has been made toward discovering and apprehending the perpetrators of the Wall street bomb outrages. It has been definitely established, however, that the blast was caused by the explosion of a huge TNT bomb with a time device, and there is no doubt the affair was arranged by Reds. Many arrests have been made, but it is not known that the guilty persons are in custody. Since the New York explosion a good many other cities have received warnings that certain public buildings were to be blown up. A good guess is that the outrage was the work of radical leaders who wished by this demonstration to keep up the revolutionary spirit of their recruits.

The five Socialists who were expelled from the New York legislature some time ago, and who were re-elected recently, attempted to take their seats. Three of them were again ousted, and the others resigned in protest. The action of the majority in the assembly was opposed by Theodore Roosevelt and is characterized by Charles E. Hughes as "incredibly faulty and flagrant disregard of the fundamental principles of American institutions." Owing to certain complications this time, the case may be taken into the courts.

The Kenyon committee of the senate resumed in Washington its investigation of campaign funds, and subpoenaed several bureau chiefs in the endeavor to learn to what extent federal agencies are being employed to disseminate election propaganda for Cox. The Republicans assert the publications of the bureau of education, war and navy have been used this way. James W. Gerard, chairman of the Democratic finance committee, told the committee he had collected only $128,000 to date and that he would be happy if he got a million; also that no limit was put on individual contributions. William Boyce Thompson, chairman of the Republican ways and means committee, told the committee the Cox charges were "all bunk," and aroused Senator Reed by asserting that Mr. Cox "is as strange to Wall street." Pinned down, he said he implied nothing sinister.

Devotees of the national sport are wrought up over another inquiry that began last week. This is an investigation, by a grand jury at Chicago, into baseball gambling, and it gains added interest because it promises to uncover crooked work by players in the world's series last fall between the Chicago White Sox and the Cincinnati National league team. Comment, if any is needed, must be deferred since at this writing the inquiry is only getting fairly started.

CAVE REVEALS INDIAN RELICS OF 13TH. CENTURY

VERMILION, S. Dak., Oct. 6—Implements, ornaments and weapons of Mandan origin, used by a tribe which settled in the Dakotas in the thirteenth or fourteenth centuries, were found in a recent exploration of Ludlow cave in Harding county. An examination was made by agents of the state geological survey, who sifted 60 cubic yards of the sand which carpets the cave.

Another highly interesting find was the scalp lock taken from a white man. The leather thong used to hang the scalp to the trophy pole was intact. That was believed to be a relic of one of the later tribes, probably the Sioux, who entered this country about 1750. The findings in Ludlow cave and the discovery of another ancient village of Mandan origin has revealed a considerable amount of ethnological material. The village was found near Moberg.

CUT PASSPORT FEE, PLEDGES SEN. CAMERON ALONG BORDER

DOUGLAS, Oct. 6—In campaigning and studying conditions along the border today Ralph H. Cameron, Republican nominee for the United States senate, found sentiment very strong against the passport fee. Before an audience which filled the Columbia theatre here he condemned the measure creating the fee as unjust and as the result of inactivity on the part of Arizona representatives in congress.

"I understand that Mexico is ready and willing to make all ports of entry into the United States free if the United States will reciprocate the action," he said. "I pledge myself, if elected, to exert every effort to have the passport fee annulled."

Mr. Cameron visited Camp Harry J. Jones here today and said he would consider it his duty as senator from Arizona to make border military camps in this state more permanent. He called attention to the fact that because of an indifferent attitude on the part of congressional representatives from Arizona regarding a camp site here the City of Douglas finally donated the grounds now used by Camp Harry J. Jones in order to assure protection during Mexican internal troubles.

Joe E. Robinson, a rancher of the Salt River valley, spoke here in behalf of Mr. Cameron's candidacy. Mr. Robinson became so convinced of the necessity for sending the Republican nominee to the senate to assure the development of Arizona that he deserted his camp to enlist in the cause.

Others here with Mr. Cameron included Jose E. Morrison of Phoenix, James R. Dunsenath, Republican nominee for congress, Ed. J. Flannigan, nominee for supreme judge and Chas. W. Fairfield, nominee for state auditor.

FARMER VILLA SO BUSY HE CANNOT GET TO EL PASO

EL PASO, Oct. 7—Francisco Villa, since the seizure of Mexico, now one of its leading agricultural and philanthropists, has notified the board of control of the International Exposition, being held in El Paso, that owing to his large farming interests, he will be unable to be a guest of the committee at the October carnival.

The committee had planned to entertain the former bandit chieftain with other and less famous of his countrymen, but only the Governors of Sonora, Chihuahua, Durango and representatives of the Mexican Federal government are attending.

DOAN'S DEATH ACCIDENTAL, CORONER DECIDES

DOUGLAS, Oct. 7—Testimony to show that the automobile of W. D. Patterson, the overturning of which resulted in the death of Frank W. Doan, well-known attorney, September 19, was not moving more than 40 miles an hour, and possibly as slow as 30 miles an hour, when the car went off the pavement just before the accident, was presented at the inquest into Doan's death. Patterson estimated the speed at 30 to 35 miles an hour. I. L. Nihell, a third passenger who escaped injury,

4 AMENDMENTS TO LEAGUE WILL ACTED ON NOV. 15

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7—Four amendments to the Covenant of the League of Nations suggested by the Danish, Norwegian and Swedish governments probably will be taken up at the first meeting of the Assembly of the League at Geneva on November 15. They have already been submitted to all members of the league for study and require the approval of the council and a majority vote of the Assembly to become effective.

One suggestion proposes a fixed annual meeting of the assembly to be held either at the time provided for in the rules of procedure or on a specific date such as the second Monday in September. It is also proposed that on the demand of 10 members of the league a special meeting of the assembly shall be called at any time.

Another proposal would regularize the method of selecting the four non-permanent members of the council. It is suggested that the assembly after the first selections shall name a new state each year to serve for a period of four years which shall not be subject to re-election for the following period. The purpose is to secure successive representation on the council of a large number of states while making only one change in membership each year.

A third amendment proposed to omit the word "generally" from the following paragraph in Article XIII: "Disputes as to the interpretation of a treaty, as to any question of international law, as to the existence of any fact, which, if established, would constitute a breach of any international obligation, or as to the extent and nature of the reparation to be made for any such breach, are declared to be among those which are generally suitable for submission to arbitration."

The purpose is to make the obligation to resort to arbitration more absolute and precise.

The fourth amendment would permit the council to authorize a state in the vicinity of another state against which an economic blockade has been enforced to maintain a certain degree of intercourse with the Covenant-breaking state if this is considered necessary by the council to prevent the blockaded state from threatening or attacking its neighbor. It is contended that some measure of freedom should be allowed especially in the case of smaller states where the fulfillment of the blockade obligation might lead to occupation of territory by the covenant-breaking state.

BALL GAME BRIBE MEAL AT RESTAURANT

(By Associated Press)

RAPID CITY, S. Dak., Oct. 6—Local baseball fans have been "let in" on the secret of one victory for the home team during the past season, thereby adding another good year to scores telling the "inside" of the national pastime.

This game, which has just been "exposed" was played with the Casper team at Denver and featured the "win" column of the locals.

Just before the Rapid City team was to take the field, so the story goes, a telegram was received by the manager from a local restaurant. Opening it he found a promise of a banquet for the team if Casper were defeated.

The game was won and the promise kept.
