COUNTESS OF ANNESLEY

Priscilla, countess of Annesley, has been making a prolonged visit to the United States. She is one of three ladies to bear the same title in Great Britain, consequently at times situations are somewhat embarrassing, since she is constantly being confused with the others. She is the widow of the fifth Earl Hugh Annesley, and was his second wife. She has been an active force in North Irish affairs, and is among the powerful political hostesses.

VAUGHN

Mr. and Mrs. Dwyer have rented the Everhart ranch and have taken up their residence there.

James Palmer of Shony Hollow ranch is making regular trips to Patagonia with products from his dairy herd.

The spot for drilling the test oil well, has of late been definitely settled, and is about two miles north of the Vaughn school house, and the erection of the derrick is almost completed. About five carloads of machinery and material have been unloaded at the site of the well. The residents of Vaughn are very much interested in the outcome of the test well, and are hoping for a gusher to be brought in.

Stow Collier, after spending a fortnight at his Vaughn ranch, has returned to the Collier Brothers' sand camp on the Nogales Duquesne road, where they have a contract for building about five miles of road for the county.

Frank Jolley has returned home from Nogales, where he had been for some time attending court.

MYSTERIOUS MIXTURE

While searching the home of Jesus Junco, one of the alleged postoffice robbers, Sunday night, Deputy Sheriff Lou Quinn and Pat Patterson uncovered a mysterious concoction of milk-like consistency and color and a bottle of denatured alcohol, supposed to have been the "making" of 40-mulpoever cough.

Step lively or be stepped upon. Love may be blind, but it knows how to feel.

LOCAL NEWS NOTES

McILHANEY SHIPPING ORE John McIlhane, who lately started in the mining game here, has another carload of ore on the platform from the Santa Rita awaiting shipment. The ore is lead-silver.

FROM 3-R MINE

Fred Goldsmith and niece were in Patagonia Wednesday from the 3-R mine, shopping and visiting friends.

TO NOGALES TUESDAY

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Gatlin and Mrs. C. A. Broyles were visitors Tuesday to the line city, where they went on business.

FROM SAN RAFAEL VALLEY

Clyde McPherson and W. D. Parker of the San Rafael valley, well-known cattlemen, were business visitors to Nogales Monday and Tuesday. They were making arrangements for the sale of steers to cattle buyers.

SELLS CATTLE

Supervisor O. F. Ashburn of the Pennsylvania ranch is reported to have made a deal for the sale of all steers 3 years old and upward for $35 a head. While this is a low price, yet it is better than no sale and helping the cattle another year.

COURT TO RESUME JUNE 27

Jurors who had been notified to report for duty on June 6 were given a further vacation until the 27.

CAMPING IN HUACHUCAS

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Pattison and family left Tuesday morning for a few days' camping trip at Ramsey Canyon, in the Huachuca mountains. They will return today.

C. A. Pierce, local assayer, left Tuesday evening with the local Boy Scouts to attend the government stock sale at Fort Huachuca last week. He bought some mules for road grading work.

Sunday morning a camping party left for the Santa Rita mountains. The top of "Buldy" is their destination but they expect to explore other points of interest as well. They will be gone 3 or 4 days. Those who went were: Miss Margaret Frazier, Miss McCollister, Mrs. James Frazier, Mr. Joiner, Ralph Klone and Mr. and Mrs. Dr. L. W. Klone.

FINISHERS ADDITION

Ed Hurline, has finished the addition to the Patagonia office and will immediately commence the rebuilding of the boarding house at the Morning Glory mine at Mowby. The rebuilding of the boarding house seems to indicate that work on the mine will soon be resumed.

FROM BLOXTON

James Parker Jr., was in Patagonia Tuesday from Bloxton, where he recently moved with his family from Washington Camp.

SHIPPING ORE

The Black Eagle mine has a carload of ore on the platform awaiting shipment to the smelter. As treatment charges are too high at El Paso, Mr. McCutcheon, one of the former owners of the mine, thinks the Douglas smelter may take the ore and save himself and partner, Mike Hogan, some money.

TO NOGALES

Robert A. Campbell, candidate for supervisor from the second district, was a business visitor to Nogales Tuesday. He was accompanied by James Keating and William Fessler. They were accompanied on the return trip by H. H. Barnett and Dave Putnam.

VISITS DENTIST

Station Agent F. A. Stone was in Nogales Monday having some dental work done. He was accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. C. A. Broyles.

MOVING MACHINERY

H. H. McCutcheon is moving the machinery used in construction of the Nogales city well back to Patagonia, from where it will be distributed to the various places from whence it comes—the mining camps.

ELGIN NEWS

Mr. I. P. Frazier was a Rain Valley visitor this week.

"Shorty Holcomb" from Nogales attended the government stock sale at Fort Huachuca last week. He bought some mules for road grading work.

Sunday morning a camping party left for the Santa Rita mountains. The top of "Buldy" is their destination but they expect to explore other points of interest as well. They will be gone 3 or 4 days. Those who went were: Miss Margaret Frazier, Miss McCollister, Mrs. James Frazier, Mr. Joiner, Ralph Klone and Mr. and Mrs. Dr. L. W. Klone.

Mr. C. J. Trask and daughter are spending the week on "The Star King Ranch" visiting Mrs. Sara Baker.

Oliver Rothrock who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Trask is now at his home in Elgin.

Many of the people from Elgin and Rain Valley are spending their Sundays at "Monkey Springs."

L. W. Mix, M. Escalada and Lt. Commander Paul M. Bates were Rain Valley visitors Tuesday calling at the home of Dr. Klone.

The Rain Valley school year was brought to an end by a picnic and a swimming party at Monkey Springs. It was well attended and enjoyed by all. Miss Margaret McCollister is the Rain Valley teacher and it is understood that she will return next fall after spending her summer vacation in "The Flagstaff Normal." Miss McCollister is from the State of Oklahoma.

Mr. McCarty who was injured as a result of an auto accident about a week ago is reported improving.

Mrs. Cora Everhart, Elgin Postmistress expects to leave for California this week.

The spooling in of the first oil well in the Elgin district will take place about the first Sunday in July. It was announced Wednesday by Captain L. W. Mix, president of the Nogales Gas & Oil Company.

"The derrick is already up and work on setting up the machinery is under way," said Mix, who added that the spooling in will occur just as soon as the machinery is in place.

"It may be," said Mix, "that the spooling in will take place Sunday, June 25, but I doubt if everything can be gotten ready before Sunday, July 2."

Mix, accompanied by M. Escalada, secretaries of the company, and Commander Bates of the U. S. Navy, made a trip over the Elgin field yesterday.

Postoffice Robbed; 2 Arrests Quickly Made By Local Men

Clever Work by Deputy Sheriff Lou Quinn and Pat Patterson Land Criminals Behind Bars in Record Time; Officers to Be Rewarded by U. S. Postoffice Department

Two burglars broke into the Patagonia postoffice Saturday night and robbed the place of money, stamps, and parcel post packages.

Jesus Juarez was arrested Sunday afternoon and made a confession of the robbery, admitting his guilt and adding that Rares Laguna was an accomplice. Laguna was also arrested Sunday and both men were brought to the county jail in Nogales.

The robbery was first discovered at 7 o'clock Sunday morning when Postmaster H. R. Riggs came down to his office. The place had been ransacked from top to bottom and it was found that the burglars had gained entrance into the room by crawling through a large mail drawer.

The intruders had opened the drawer by removing the lock, with a large butcher knife used as a screw driver.

All parcel post packages in the office were opened, and several articles stolen, including a number of safety pens. The burglars also got $1.15 in pennies and $100 worth of stamps.

Until invoices are received, there is no way of Postmaster Riggs telling exactly how many parcel post packages were stolen.

Immediately after he was informed of the robbery Sunday morning, Lou Quinn, the efficient deputy sheriff of Patagonia, got busy on the case and, with the assistance of Pat Patterson of Patagonia, a former deputy sheriff, soon brought about the arrests.

Quinn learned that Juarez had spent 115 pennies at a Chinese store. Accompanied by Patterson, the officer went to the home of Juarez and soon after placing him under arrest he made a complete confession and implicated Laguna. Juarez confessed after he was taken to the postoffice and confronted with a number of the torn parcel post packages.

Juarez told how the postoffice had been entered and showed where the butcher knife had been thrown in the rear of the building after it had been used as a screwdriver in removing the lock from a large mail box through which the intruders crawled into the room. Several stolen parcel post articles were found at Juarez' home.

Juarez was arrested at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, just seven hours after the robbery was discovered, and after implicating Laguna as an accomplice, Quinn and Patterson began a search for Laguna.

At 6 o'clock Sunday evening, while arriving about a mile north of Patagonia en route to the home of a relative of Laguna, Quinn and Patterson saw Laguna walking down the railroad, bound for Patagonia. They jumped out of the car and placed the man under arrest. He denied that he was guilty.

The two prisoners will be tried in the federal court and conviction on a charge of robbing a postoffice means a term in a federal prison. Juarez is about 18 years old and Laguna about 25.

This was the second time that the Patagonia postoffice has been robbed in three years.

GRAND JURY CALLED TO INVESTIGATE KU KLUX KLAN

PHOENIX, June 5.—Activities of the Ku Klux Klan in Maricopa county are to be investigated by a special grand jury.

The jury panel of 21 was called Saturday and they are to be in attendance in court on Wednesday, June 7, to receive the instructions of the court.

Information that such a grand jury will be called was made public Saturday afternoon when Judge R. C. Stanford of the superior court issued an order to Claude S. Berryman, clerk of the court. The drawing of the jury took place Saturday.

Following is the order of the court instructing the calling of the special grand jury:

June 2, 1922. In the Superior Court, County of Maricopa, State of Arizona. To Claude S. Berryman, clerk: You are directed to draw a grand jury to be in attendance in and at the above entitled court, in Division No. 1 thereof; the drawing to take place at the hour of 1 p. m., on Saturday, June 3, 1922; the number to be drawn twenty-one (21); the time at which such grand jurors shall be in attendance in the above entitled court is 9:30 o'clock, Wednesday, June 7, 1922.

R. C. STANFORD, Judge of Division No. 1.

Asked By Bar Association

The calling of a special grand jury by Judge Stanford to investigate the activities of the Ku Klux Klan in this county follows recommendations that such action be taken contained in a resolution adopted by the Maricopa County Bar Association at its last meeting, directed to Judge Stanford and formally presented to him last Wednesday.

Members of the bar association also tendered their services free in the prosecution of any court cases that might result from such an investigation as was urged in the resolution.

Rumors has persisted in Phoenix for several days to the effect that the Camellion Klan No. 6, Helms, of Arizona, the local organization of the Ku Klux Klan, has been practically disbanded as a result of resignations which have poured in on it since the recent publicity of the activities of the order in this locality.

CHURCH NOTICE

There was no church service last Sunday. Rev. Mr. Foreman being in Phoenix. There will be regular services each Sunday in future. Please come.

There will be an ice cream supper and a community sing at the Opera House next Tuesday night, June 13, at 7:30 o'clock. Everybody invited.

NEW ALDERMEN OF NOGALES NOW IN OFFICE

Mayor James A. Harrison and Aldermen Joe Wise, Bert Schleimer, Ben J. Jones, J. C. Towres, Samuel Lecker and T. M. Ford, Jr., who were elected at the recent city election, were sworn in Monday night, the old city council holding its last session Monday evening.

The retiring aldermen were Malcolm Middleton, T. J. Wylie, Oost Herold, H. J. Karns, Samuel Lecker and George Fiedler. At the recent election Mayor Harrison was reelected and Alderman Lecker elected. Sometime ago Lecker was chosen to serve out the unexpired term of an alderman who had resigned.

The new aldermen Monday night discussed proposed improvement of city water mains.

JURY FINDS DEFENDANT GUILTY OF MURDER

After being out sixteen and one-half hours, the jury in the case of Placido Silva, returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree and recommended life imprisonment.

The verdict was returned at 10 o'clock Sunday morning in the superior court, Nogales, where the case had been on trial seventeen days.

Silva was found guilty of murder in connection with the killing of Postmaster and Mrs. J. Frank Pearson at Ruby last August. He is said to have been a member of the band of bandits who raided the Ruby store and postoffice and murdered

STEADILY IMPROVING

People who expected to see the United States resume its normal status following the war were disappointed.

Those who pinned their hopes to a slow but gradual readjustment are witnessing the vindication of their judgment.

Neither wages nor prices will ever go back to the prewar level. Men who have enjoyed a long taste of high wages and easy work will not willingly return to long hours and grueling toil and poor pay. Manufacturers and dealers who have reaped in sky profits will fight shy of the old system of slim pickings and few of them.

That is human nature, and nature makes all laws and regulates all things.

It was, however, manifestly impossible to maintain wages and profits at the sky peak of war days. Abnormality may prevail for a period, but in the end it must give way to rational thought and action.

Prices of necessities, and of even luxuries, have been steadily declining for a long time. The same is true of labor, and of all of the raw materials that go into the reconstruction or production of articles of daily use.

The fall has been slow but gradual, and some time must still lapse before we reach that level which will insure the return of a full measure of prosperity to the country.

The situation, however, is fairly satisfactory and full of promise, and the future is bright to those who can see.

TOO MUCH SELF

Over in the old world the war goes merrily on in their efforts to preserve peace.

To the careful observer on this side of the Atlantic, however, there appears to be one necessary element that is almost entirely lacking. The welfare of humanity is forgotten. It has been sidetracked in favor of self-interest and greed.

It is readily conceded that the nations desire lasting peace, but each wants that peace on terms that predominate in their own favor.

The league of nations is a failure for that reason. The Washington conference was time wasted for the same reason, and the Geneva confab was tarred with the same brush.

Now they are planning for a future meet to be held at The Hague, and unless history repeats itself the same road will be traveled there.

Nothing of a lasting nature can be accomplished in world adjustment until humanity triumphs over selfish greed, and that day has yet to come.

This government should speak softly and keep its powder dry.

There are no wings yet in sight.

FIND THE WAY

This is a day of rapid transit on country roads. The motorist moves along at twenty-five miles an hour. The truck driver covers a lot of ground and the farmer is no longer satisfied to jog along to market at his former slow speed.

Time is money, and must be conserved.

On many of the country roads hereabouts certain bad spots are to be found. Some would require a stronger adjective to describe.

These spots are annoying. They are time wasters and energy destroyers.

They should be repaired. If there is an available means of doing so, then a means should be found.

Men with brains can always find a way—and there are plenty of brains in this community.

Before pointing an unloaded gun at your friend first try it on yourself. At the springs Sunday were Nogales Campfire Girls who have pitched tents and are enjoying an outing at that popular place.

"NOTICE OF REDEMPTION"

Interest Will Cease June 15, 1922, On All 3-4 Per Cent Victory Liberty Loan Notes

The following letter is self-explanatory.

Treasury Department Twelfth Federal Reserve District, San Francisco, California, May 31, 1922.

To all Banks and Publications in the Twelfth Federal Reserve District.

Dear Sirs:—For the particular benefit of your patrons won't you kindly emphasize to them at every opportunity within the next two weeks the fact that interest on all 3-4 per cent Victory Liberty Loan Notes will cease on June 15, 1922, in accordance with the "Notice of Redemption" issued by the Secretary of the Treasury and regularly published in daily papers of this District, commencing Thursday, February 9, 1922.

This fact was again specially reiterated through the following press statement from Washington, D. C., on Monday May 22, 1922:

The Secretary of the Treasury today called attention to the fact that all 3 3/4% Victory Notes, pursuant to the notice given February 9, 1922, have been called for redemption on June 15, 1922 and that interest on the 3 3/4% Victory Notes will therefore cease on that date. As announced on February 9, 1922, the Treasury is prepared to redeem any of the 3 3/4% Victory Notes before June 15, 1922, at the option of the holder, at par and accrued interest to the date of optional redemption.

In "Calling" the 3 3/4% Victory Notes for redemption on June 15, next (nearly a year before their maturity on May 20, 1923), the Government is exercising the following option, reserved in Treasury Department Circular No. 138, announcing and prescribing the terms under which the Victory Liberty Loan was offered on April 21, 1919:

"The Notes (Victory) may be redeemed, at the option of the United States, under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, on June 15 or December 15, 1922, in whole or in part, as to either or both series, at par and accrued interest, on four months' notice of redemption given in such manner as the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe."

In view of the foregoing, it behooves all owners or holders of outstanding 3 3/4% Victory Notes to present them for redemption not later than the middle of June, 1922, because these Notes will not earn any interest after that date. Redemptions can be effected through any bank or trust company in the Twelfth Federal Reserve District, or by direct application to the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco or its branches at Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle, Spokane and Salt Lake City.

It will likewise be advantageous for the public to know that they can invest the proceeds of these redemptions (up to $1000 cash) profitably and with equal safety in not exceeding $5000 maturity value of the New Issue of 4 1/2% Treasury Savings Certificates. These Certificates mature in five years from the date purchased, and are issued in three denominations: a $25 Certificate can be bought for $20; a $100 Certificate for $80 and a $1000 Certificate for $800. Therefore they cannot depreciate in value; they are also registered, which fully protects the owner against theft, fire, or loss of any kind. They are exempt from State and local taxation (except estate and inheritance taxes) and from the normal Federal Income Tax. The Government cannot "call" these Certificates for redemption prior to maturity but the Treasury will, if desired, redeem them on demand any time before maturity, at values designed on the back of each Certificate, equivalent to the price paid plus interest at about 3 1/2% per year, compounded semi-annually.

Any banking institution can obtain Treasury Savings Certificates for itself or its customers from the nearest Federal Reserve Bank or money-order Post Office, and other corporations or individuals also enjoy the same privilege.

Thanking you in anticipation of prompt and favorable action, I remain, Yours very truly,

THEODORE HARME, District Manager.

BUSINESS, INDUSTRY AND FINANCE IN THE UNITED STATES

Monthly summary by Federal Reserve Board, May 26, 1922.

Steady improvement in the indicated yield of the principal agricultural products has been an outstanding feature in the developments of the past month.

Improvement in the prices of cotton, grains, and other products is also a noteworthy feature of the month. In appraising the manufacturing situation of distinction must be drawn between basic commodities and those of a more highly finished sort.

The marked improvement in the case of iron and steel noted in business surveys of previous months has continued during May, unfilled orders increasing materially and output production being the greatest in May since November, 1920.

Much the same may be said with respect to copper and the other non-ferrous metals. The situation in other important lines of manufacture is less easy to characterize. Due to the continuation of the textile strike the output of cotton goods has been materially lessened, although in the Southern cotton mill districts, plants are reported as operating near the full capacity.

There was a recession of activity in woolen manufacturing during April, especially in the worsted branch of the industry, while the silk industry is suffering from a condition of continued depression and inactivity.

A mixed situation confronts manufacturers of boots and shoes. In the St. Louis district activity has been well maintained, but in the Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago districts, some recession has apparently occurred. A portion of this must be ascribed to seasonal reaction.

The general index number of wholesale prices compiled by the Federal Reserve Board shows an advance of two points as compared with the preceding month, making it 149 (which closely approximates the index number 116 of the corresponding month a year ago). This advance is due to the advance in the prices of agricultural products and in materials used in certain basic industries. On the whole the adjustment of prices among commodities and industries is approaching a more normal relationship, reflecting the improved condition in agriculture and the larger disbursement in wages in many basic industries.

Retail trade exhibits an enhancement of buying power, returns being more favorable than those of recent months. In wholesale trade, however, the situation is spotty, some lines, such as hardware, being favorably influenced by the great activity in building.

On the whole there appears to have been a decrease in unemployment which has been brought about through the increased seasonal demand for outdoor labor and the enlarged opportunities for employment in the mines, and in other occupations. Factory demand for labor has not kept pace with the growth in other branches of industry, but, on the whole, has receded, especially if voluntary unemployment due to strikes in certain sections of the country be considered. Financially, the month of May has also been a period of comparative stability. Among domestic developments, the striking event of the month has been the announcement of a cut of 10 per cent in railroad rates by the Interstate Commerce Commission. What effect this will have upon commodity movements is as yet unascertained.

AS TYPE OF MONOTHEISM

Melchizedek 50 Figures in Pages of Scripture and as Character in Legends.

Melchizedek is a vague character occasionally mentioned in the Scriptures, whose name means "king of righteousness." The most definite references to him indicate that he was king of Salem, and priest of Jehovah in the time of Abraham, joining the royal with the priestly dignity, and so becoming a welcome type for the ancient writers.

Later on his name seems to have become more or less legendary, and was used in a figurative sense as "a priest forever after the order of Melchizedek," and he is placed in the same category as the Messiah. Himself, apparently as a type of ancient monotheism. Still later he becomes identified with Shem, the son of Noah, and the ancestor of Abraham, and as the subject of an elaborate story in the Egyptian book of Adam and Eve. In this story he is represented as having been chosen of God "from all generations of men," to stand by the body of Adam after it had been brought back to Jerusalem. He is supposed to have remained with Adam's body under the protection of an angel until he encountered Abraham. He is one of the four mentioned in Holy Writ as "without father and without mother, without descent, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but made like unto the son of God abiding forever."

WOMAN AND HER SECRETS

Admitting That She Keeps Them Well, Vriter Wonders If She Has Any to Reveal.

Heaven knows there is little novelty about woman. Adam was the only man to whom she was something new, but "relational inequities" have lent color to every page of the world's history, and she has shown no disposition to conceal them. "Woman does not betray her secret," wrote Immanuel Kant, ponderously, and with that truly German air of providing food for thought. Just what he expected her to betray, just what anybody expects her to betray, has never been made manifest. The cat is the only one of God's creatures that suggests reserve and perhaps secrecy. I have sometimes thought that half-shut eyes and the inability of relaxed nerves may be responsible for the suggestion, and that this self-contained little beast is less mysterious than it looks. Woman does not even look mysterious, save in the veiled East. In the West all her efforts tend to revelation. Her secret is as easily kept as are the secrets of the sea anemone. The only thing she does not tell is how she is going to vote. This makes her interesting to the politicians, if not to the world at large. The basic principles of party politics have not taken firm hold of her intelligence. Hypnotic and side issues seduce her from the main traveled roads over which the mate ever surely trod.

French "Convulsionnaires"

The Convulsionnaires were a curious group who flourished in France in the early part of the Eighteenth century. They were in the habit of meeting in St. Medard's churchyard, in the suburbs of Paris, in which was located the tomb of Abbe Frenelon, de Paris, where countless miracles were alleged to have been performed. The members of the sect threw themselves into the most violent contortions, rolled on the ground, imitated birds and animals and fishes, and when entirely exhausted fainted or went into convulsions.

At length Louis XV issued an order against them, ordering them to be imprisoned if found "crying out" in this fashion. But even with these strict regulations against them it was difficult to stamp out the fervor entirely for a great many years.

Word "Bum" Has Dignified History.

The word "bum" which is considered by nearly everyone as a pure Americanism of the most vulgar sort, has in reality a very dignified history. It was first used in England more than two centuries ago in the form of "bummer." A bummer was a man who peddled fish outside the regular markets and these persons were, of course, looked down upon and held in contempt by the regular dealers. The word finally gained a general significance and came to mean any dishonest person or one of irregular habits. It appears in the English market by-laws of the Seventeenth century in the form of "Bummerer."

The word appeared in the United States during the gold days in California and gradually made its way east.

Pithy Paragraphs.

The world condemns a woman with great severity when she goes wrong. Some few centuries later a group of men played the same cards in the same way for the life of the world's best man, and not one of their names is remembered. Jezebel can never be forgotten. She was a woman.—James W. Valentien.

The preacher who is sensational in the sense of utilizing methods or matter the main object of which is to attract may gain attention, but will rarely win a heart, and, after all, heart culture, properly understood, which, according to Proverbs, "determines the issues of life," is the fundamental and finest service of a church.—Alex. under Lyons

Memory of Lower Animals. Elephants and apes have often surprised their keepers by the strength of their memory. It is a saying among trainers that "elephants and tigers never forget an injury; that they may retaliate even years afterward."

That the shark has a memory has been proved many times, not only by his detection of the shark-hunters' schemes, but by his attention to certain ships from which he has received special feed favors.

MRS. ELIZABETH CLARK

Mrs. Elizabeth Clark of Atlantic City has started suit for the restoration of 15,000 acres of land which, she says, was granted to antecedents of her family by Queen Anne of England. The land she claims includes all of Brighton Beach, part of Atlantic City, Long Island, and a section of northern New Jersey.

Classed With Spain in 1054.

The Spanish-American war of 1898 was the second time that trouble developed between Spain and the United States, originating in Cuba. In 1854 the "Black Warrior," a steamship belonging to United States citizens, was seized in the harbor of Havana, and declared confiscated. The proceedings aroused feeling against Spain, and diplomatic exchanges took place at Madrid, the owners demanding indemnification of $300,000. The Spanish government proved reluctant and at length the ostend conference was held to adjudicate the matter.

The vessel was finally released on payment by the owners of a fine of $5,000, and amicable relations with Spain were restored.

Chocolate Properly Appreciated.

Cocoa as a beverage was first used by Leonardo Cortez, to whom the ancient Mexican natives taught the use of it. In the aboriginal Mexican language, this concoction was called "chocolate," which means cocoa and water. Although from the moment that this explorer and his followers brought it to Europe, just four centuries ago, "chocolate" found its enthusiastic devotees, yet, at the same time, it met with bitter opposition on the part of many persons. Fortunately, saner opinions, in respect of this harmless product now prevail, and, although cocoa differs somewhat from the chocolate of Cortez' times, the change does not lie with the cocoa beans, which are practically the same now as they were then.

Warlike African Tribe.

The Masai are the most warlike and warlike tribe of all the native tribes of Africa, and, man for man, they are possibly the wealthiest people in the world. Their wealth has been acquired by waging ruthless war on all the other tribes in the vicinity and appropriating their worldly goods, which are chiefly in the form of huge herds. But, with all their warlike tendencies, they have never risen against the white man. Scarcely 50,000 in number, they held sway for generations over millions of their more peaceful neighbors.

The Masai are the exact reverse of vegetarians, for they live on nothing but meat; considering everything grown in the earth as despicable food, fit for monkeys, but not for men. Their favorite drink is secured by tapping the large vein in the neck of an ox and drawing off a quantity of his blood, which is sometimes drunk mixed with milk and sometimes "straight." The ox is also their chief food.

GOODYEAR TIRE BUSINESS IMPROVING

A country-wide conference of Mechanical Goods salesmen and Goodyear technical men was held at the home office of The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Inc., at Akron, Ohio, from May 8 to May 11.

Reports of steady improvement in business conditions over the country were brought in by the sales representatives. They were addressed by various company officials and production executives and were taken through the factory while in Arken.

A dinner Wednesday night at the University Club wound up the conference.

Mr. D. R. Burr, Manager of Mechanical Goods Sales at Arken, Mr. G. H. Barmore, Manager of Mechanical Goods Sales at Los Angeles, L. C. Rockhill, General Sales Manager, and President E. G. Wilmer were among the speakers.

On his return to Los Angeles, Mr. Barmore made the following statement on conditions in mechanical rubber goods:

"The mechanical goods business all over the country is showing signs of betterment."

"There is no better indication of the gradual comeback of industries in general, and also of the recognition by the leading industrialists that only the most modern systems are conducive to successful plant operation in this present highly competitive period, than the fact that installations of Goodyear Belts with the conveyor special feature of assistance and service from G. T. M. corps, are increasing daily and point to our having a gratifying share of this business."

"The same is true of transmission belts."

ROMAN WOMAN, FIRST NURSE

On Record in History as Establishing Convent Home for the Poor A. D. 380.

The word "nurse" is derived from the Latin, and means "to nourish." There is no reference to a sick nurse in the Bible, although numerous children's nurses are mentioned.

Fabiola, the first nurse recorded in history, was a Roman woman who established a hospital and convalescent home for the poor after her conversion to Christianity, about A. D. 380. She inaugurated a society of sick nurses, and had them trained as such nurses.

Nurses, who are addressed as "sisters" on account of their old religious traditions associated with their work, first their professional dignity in 1744 when twelve women were engaged at St. Bartholomew's hospital, London, to nurse the sick and perform mental work.

From that time nurses were so trained until the doctors at the New York hospital began to lecture them on "scientific cleanliness" in 1788. Florence Nightingale was trained at his establishment, and introduced his methods into England.

COULD NOT FORGET COURTESY

Japanese, Though Inebriated, Obeyed at Once the Inborn Politeness of His Race.

It was on the road to Kanakura on a very pleasant morning, that we were favored with an unusual illustration of native politeness. Courtesy is an in-heritor of Japanese character, and though it often confuses the outsider or beyond understanding, particularly in business transactions, it is nevertheless a perpetual joy to him. The coolie, the room boy, the little Chesterfield manners in reserve for any occasion.

Such a coolie it was who sprawled in a sake stupor fair in the middle of the narrow roadway, with the car rushing down upon him. At night he would have been maimed or killed before the brakes could be applied. As it was, the nonchalant chauffeur halted with the tires almost at the heels of the slumberer. Stepping from the car, he thrust his foot in the ribs of the coolie, without heat or haste, and rolled him from the way. At this the drunken one propped himself on a wavering elbow, took in the situation and essayed a most amazing recovery. He rose and stood beside the car to doff his hat almost to the ground, and very clearly, though in Japanese, tendered a gentleman's apology for the inconvenience he had caused the travelers.—Hen Hur Lampman in the Portland Oregonian.

TESTS VIGOR OF BANK ROLLS

Majority Withier Quickly, but Some Grow Robust When Exposed to New York's Climate.

New York has long been known in the provinces as the nesting place of bank rolls. In this nest either they grow or they die young. A bank roll is a sensitive plant, as it were, being influenced quickly and permanently by climate and diplomatic changes. Nothing can become discouraged more quickly than a bank roll in New York, and nothing can gain a satisfied and prosperous maturity more quickly if it gets the right start, attends to its own business and keeps away from strangers.

Generally speaking, I would recommend this town as the best health resort for bank rolls in the world. Some bank rolls come here in the full vigor of perfect health, with perfectly normal chest measurements and waistlines suited to their age, and immediately go into a decline which no science is able to stem. They seem to be victims of the old-fashioned disease known as galloping consumption.

Others come here in a very frail state of health, puny in fact, and by judicious exercise take on weight and require larger and larger belts. Circumstances alter bank rolls.—Roy K. Moulton, in the New York Mail.

Polished Shoes Once Decried.

Polished shoes were for a long time looked upon as a sure sign of effeminacy in men, and were often even ridiculed, says London Answerer. Therefore, "shock me no all over, from my flat cap into my shining shoes," became almost proverbial.

Shoe ornamentation of any kind came to us from France. It was of a Frenchified Englishman that Ben Jonson wrote in his famous satire: "Would you believe that so much scarf of France, of hat, and feather, and shoe, and tie, and garter, should come hither?"

Now let us look at the other extremity. Powder for the hair was first introduced into England early in the Seventeenth century, and became immediately the mock of the dramatists, and was severely censured by the Puritans.

The fashion became very popular about 1795, when a tax of 1 guinea per annum was levied on every person who wore their hair powdered. The hair-powder duty for the first year was estimated at £250,000 ($1,250,000).

Twisted, but Meant Well.

An English newspaper is printing choice bits of broken English as overheard by its readers. Two examples follow, which are considered the most amusing: A coffee room waiter who said he was a Swiss, replying to a guest ordering breakfast:

"Toungie tes no more, schiekken never vos! How you like your eggs volt, tight or loose?"

The other concerns an enraged Portuguese who turned upon his opponent and spat out:

"If I did know ze English for ze box, I would blow your nose, by damn, I am!"

After all, wisdom is nothing but an understanding not to quarrel.

A Man To His Mate

By J. ALLEN DUNN

COPYRIGHT BOBBS MERRILL CO.

LUND AND CARLSEN.

Synopsis—Latterly on the San Francisco water front, John Rainey, newspaper reporter, is accosted by a giant blind man, who asks Rainey to lead him aboard the sailing schooner Karluk. In the cabin they find Captain Simms and a man named Carlsson. Simms recognizes the blind man, called Jim Lund, and accuses Simms of abandoning him blind, on an ice floe, and denounces him. Simms denies the charge, but Lund refuses to be pacified. He declares his intention of accompanying the Karluk on its expedition north, where it is going in quest of a gold field which Lund has discovered. Peggy, Simms' daughter, is aboard, and defends her father. Carlsson, who is a physician as well as first mate, drops Rainey, awaking from his stupor. Rainey finds himself at sea. Carlsson informs him he has been kidnapped. He offers Rainey a share of the gold, and Rainey is forced to declare himself satisfied. Lund gives him a brief account of a former expedition of the Karluk, tells him he distrusts Carlsson, and suggests a "partnership." Rainey to act as Lund's "eyes." Rainey is made second mate. Captain Simms is ill and the navigation is entirely in the hands of Carlsson. At the latter's suggestion a shooting match is staged and the seal hunters exhaust their ammunition. Carlsson shows his skill with the pistol and Lund does some astonishing shooting "by sound." Suddenly, the ship's boy, is swept overboard and is rescued by Rainey, who thus wins Peggy's admiration. The captain gets worse. Scurvy tells how to cure it by stirring up trouble over the division of the gold. Carlsson draws a gun on Rainey, who overpowers him. Tomak, the mysterious Japanese cook, delivers himself neutral.

CHAPTER VI—Continued.

"All right, sir," Rainey answered, getting a thrill at this first actual intimation of the meeting. Hansen, it seemed, was not to be one of the representatives of the seamen. And Carlsson had been smart enough to forestall Lund's demand for Rainey by taking some of the wind out of the giant's sails and doing the unexpected. Unless the hunters had suggested that Rainey be present, but that was hardly likely, considering that he was to be left out of the party.

"In just what capacity are you entering this conference?" Lund asked, when Carlsson notified him in turn. "The skipper ain't dead, is he?"

"I represent the captain, Lund," replied the doctor. "He entirely approves of what I am about to suggest to you and the men. In fact I have his signature to a document that I hope you will sign also. It will be greatly to your interest to do so. I am in present charge of the Karluk."

"You ain't a regular member of this expedition," objected Lund stolidly. "Neither am I a member of the crew, just now. But the skipper's my partner in this deal, signed, sealed and recorded. Afore I go to any meeting I'd like to have a talk with him personally. That's fair enough, ain't it?"

Several of the hunters had gathered about, and Lund's question seemed a general appeal. Carlsson shrugged his shoulders.

"If you had your eyesight," he said almost brutally, "you could soon see that the skipper was in no condition to discuss matters, much less be present."

"Here's my eyesight," countered Lund. "Mr. Hansen here. Let him see the skipper and ask him a question or two."

"What kind of a question? I'm asking as his doctor, Lund."

"For one thing if he's read the paper you say he signed. I want to be sure of that. An' I don't make it easy of yore business, Carlsson, what I want to say to my partner, by proxy or otherwise. Second thing, I'd like to be sure he's still alive. As for yore standin' as his doctor, all I've got to say is that you're a d—d pore doctor, so far as the skipper's concerned, anyway."

The two men stood facing each other, Carlsson looking evenly at the giant, whose black glasses warred off his glance. It was wasting looks to stare at a blind man. Equally to sneer, but the look between the two was timed now, and both were casting aside any veneer of diplomacy, their enmity manifesting itself in the raw. The issue was growing tense.

Rainey fancied that Carlsson was not entirely sure of his following, and relied upon Lund's indignant refusal of terms to back up his plans of getting rid of him decisively.

CHAPTER VII.

The Show-Down.

"Rainey can see the skipper," said Carlsson carelessly.

"All right," said Lund. "Will you do that, Rainey now?" And Rainey had a fleeting fancy that the giant winked one of his blind eyes at him, though the black lenses were deceiving.

He went below immediately and rapped on the door, a little surprised to see the girl appear in the opening. The drawn expression of her face, the strained faint smile with which she greeted him, the hopeless look in her eyes, startled him.

"I wanted to see your father," he said in a low voice.

She told him to enter.

"He is in a stupor," she said. "He has been that way since last night, following a collapse. I can barely find his pulse, but his breath shows on this."

She produced a small mirror, little larger than a dollar, and held it before her father's lips. When she took it away Rainey saw a trace of moisture.

"Carlsson cannot raise him?" he asked.

"Cannot—or will not," she answered.

in a voice that held a hard quality for all its despondency.

"Lately the doctor has seemed nervous. He talks of perverted nerve functions, and he has obtained a tremendous influence over father."

"You heard what he said when—the night he tried to shoot you? You see, I am trusting you in all this. Mr. Rainey, I must trust some one. If I don't I can't stand it. I think I shall go land, sometimes. The doctor has changed. It is as if he was a deal personality—like Jekyll and Hyde—and now he is always Hyde. He said last night that he could save father or—or—that he would let father die. I told him it was sheer murder! He laughed. He said he would save him—for a price."

She stopped, and Rainey supplied the gap, sure that he was right.

"If you would marry him?"

The girl nodded. "Father will do anything he tells him. I sometimes think he tortures father and only relieves him when father promises what he wants. Otherwise I could not understand. Last night father asked me to do this thing. He told me he looked upon the doctor as a son, that it would make him happy for me to marry him—now, that he would perform the ceremony. That he did not think he would live long and he wanted to see me with a protector."

"It was horrible. What shall I do?"

"Miss Simms," said Rainey, "your father is not in his right mind or he would see Carlsson as you do, as I do. Carlsson's brain is turned with the lure of the gold. If he marries you, I believe it is only for your share, for what you will get from your father. It cannot be right to do a wrong thing. No good could come from it. But—something may happen this morning. I cannot tell you what. I do not know, except that Lund is to face Carlsson. It may change matters."

"Lund," she said scornfully. "What can he do? And he accused my father of deserting him. I—"

A knock came at the door, and it started to open. Carlsson entered.

"Ah," he said. "I trust I have not disturbed you. I had no idea I did interrupt a tete-a-tete. Are you satisfied in to the captain's condition, Mr. Rainey?"

Rainey went on deck, raging but impatient. He told Lund briefly of the talk between him and Peggy Simms, and described the general symptoms of the skipper's strange malady. It was nine o'clock, an hour to the meeting. He went down to his own room and sat on the bunk, smoking, trying to piece up the puzzle. If Carlsson was a potential murderer, if he intended to let Simms die, why should he want to marry the girl? He thought he solved that issue.

As his wife Carlsson would retain her share. If he gave her up, it would go into the common purse. But, if he expected to trick the men out of it all, that would be unnecessary. Did he really love the girl? Or was his lust for gold mingled with a passion for possession of her? He might know that the girl would kill herself before she would submit to dishonor. Perhaps he knew she had the means!

One thing became paramount—to save Peggy Simms. Lund might fight for the gold; Rainey would battle for the girl's sanity. And, armed with that resolve, Rainey went out into the main cabin.

Carlsson took the head of the table, Lund faced him at the other end. All six of the hunters, as privileged characters, were present, but only three of the seamen, awkward and diffident at being aft. The nine, with Rainey, ranged themselves on either side of the table, five and five, with Rainey on Lund's right. The girl was not present. Yet her share was an important factor.

Lund sat with folded arms, his great body relaxed. Now that the table was set, the cards all dealt, and the first play about to be made, the giant shed his tenseness. Even his grim face softened a trifle. He seemed to regard the affair with a certain amount of humor, coupled with the zest of a gambler who loves the game whether the stakes are for death or dollars.

Carlsson had a paper under his hand, but deferred its reading until he had addressed the meeting.

"A ship," he said, "is a little community, a world in itself. To its safety every member is a necessity, the lookout as much as the man at the wheel, the common seaman, the navigator. And, when a ship is engaged in a certain calling, those who are hired as experts in that line are equally essential with the rest. Each man's responsibility being equal, his reward should be also equal."

"Payment for all services comes on this voyage from an uncertain amount of gold that Nature, mother of us all, and therefore intending that all her children shall share her heritage, has washed up on a beach from some deep-sea vein and thus deposited upon an uncharted, unclaimed island. It is discovered by an Indian, the discovery is handed on to another."

"Meaning me," Lund seemed to be enjoying himself. Despite the fact that Carlsson was presiding and most evidently assumed the attributes of leader, despite the fact that ten of the twelve at the table were arrayed against him, with the rest of the seamen behind them, Lund was decidedly enjoying himself.

"Share and share alike," he said. "I've got yore drift, Carlsson. Let's get down to brass tacks. The idea is to divvy the gold into equal parts, ain't it? How does she split? There's twenty-five souls aboard. Does that mean you split the heap into a hundred parts an' each one gets four?"

"No," it was Denning who answered. "It don't. The Jap don't come in for one."

"A cook ain't a brother?"

"Not when he's got a yellow skin," answered Denning. "We'll take up a collector for Sandy. Rainey ain't in the deal. We split it just twenty-two ways. What have you got to say about it?"

His tone was truculent, and Carlsson did not appear disposed to check him. He appeared not quite certain of the temper of the hunters.

"You figger we're all equal aboard," said Lund slowly, "havin' out Mr. Rainey, Tamanda an' Sandy. You an' me, an' Carlsson an' Harris there"—he nodded toward one of the seaman delegates who listened with his slack mouth agape, scratching himself under the armpit—"are all equal!"

Denning cast a glance at Harris and, for just a moment, hesitated.

Harris, squinting under the look of Denning, which was aped by the sudden scrutiny of all the hunters, found speech: "How in hell did you know I ain't opened my mouth yet?"

"That ain't the truth, Harris," replied Lund composedly. "It's allus open. But if you want to know, I smelled ye."

There was a guffaw at the sally. Carlsson's voice stopped it.

"I'll answer the question, Lund. Yes, we're all equal. The world is not a democracy. Harris, so far, hasn't had a chance to get the equal share that belongs to him by rights. That's what I meant by saying that the Karluk was a little world of its own. We're all equal on board."

"Except Rainey, Tamanda an' Sandy. Seems to me yore argumint's got holes in it, Carlsson."

"We are waiting to know whether you agree with us?" replied Carlsson. His voice had altered quality. It held the direct challenge. Lund accepted it.

"I don't," he answered dryly. "There ain't any one of you my equal, an' you've showed it. You had to knock together in a pack, like a band of sheep, with Carlsson for sheepherder. I'm talking," he went on in a tone that in an instant Rainey caught the objection of Lund's speechmaking. He had done it to engage Carlsson beyond endurance, to make him draw his gun. Giant as he was, he moved with the grace of a panther, with a swiftness too fast for the eye to register. Something flashed in his right hand, a gun, that he had drawn from a holster slung over his left breast.

The shots blundered. Lund stood there erect, unharmed. A red blutch showed between Carlsson's eyes. He slumped down into his chair, his arms clumping the table, his gun falling from his nervous hand, his forehead striking the wood like the sound of an auctioneer's gavel. Lund had beaten him to the draw.

Lund, no longer a blind Samson, with contempt in his gaze eyes, surveyed the scattering group of men who stared at the dead man dully, as if gripped by the exhibition of a miracle.

Carlsson swept aside the spectacles and they shattered on the floor as he leaped up and the automatic shone in his hand. Lund had folded his arms above his great chest. He laughed again, and his arms opened.

"A Fine Lot of Skunks—"

a massive square finger, thatched with red wool, direct at Carlsson, as if he had been leveling a weapon.

"Carlsson's a fake! He's got you lipped. He thinks he's boss, becuz he's the only navigator of yore crowd. I ain't overtooked that carl, Carlsson. That ain't the only string he's got on ye. Nor the three shares he expects to pull down. He made you pore suckers fire off all your shells; he found out you ain't got a gun left among you that's any more use than a club. He's got a gun an' he showed you how he could use it. He's shovin' back larria at the bunch of you!"

The women stirred. Rainey saw Carlsson's grin disappear. He dropped the paper. His face paled, the veins showed suddenly like purple veins in dirty marble.

"I've got that gun yet, Lund," he snarled.

Lund laughed, the ring of it so confident that the men glanced from him to Carlsson nervously.

"You're a fake, Carlsson," he said. "And I've got yore number! To h—l with you an' yore pore gun. You ain't even a doctor. I saw real doctors ashore about my eyes. I've bin gettin' my sight back ever since I left Seattle. An' now, d—n you for a moly-headed, slimy-souled fakir, stand up an' say you're my equal!"

He stood up himself, towering above the rest as they rose from their chairs, tearing the black glasses from his eyes and flinging them at Carlsson, who was forced to throw up a hand to ward them off. Rainey got one glimpse of the giant's eyes. They were gray-blue, the color of agateware, hard as steel, implacable.

CHERISH WORLD WAR RELIC

Pillar From Altar of Church in Ruined Village of Belleau at National Headquarters.

One of the most treasured of the many World War relics being gathered at the American Legion's national headquarters, Indianapolis, Ind., is that just received from the battlefields of France. It is a pillar from the altar of a church which once stood in the ruined village of Belleau, adjacent the famous wood of that name, near Chateau-Thierry.

The wooden pillar bears honorable scars, those suffered when scores of German high-explosive shells crashed into the little church. One shell fragment ment all but tore the pillar in halves, but when the marines and the infantry had driven back the enemy and recaptured the town, far beneath the mass of stone and mortar the altar was found intact.

Upon returning to their devastated home the French villagers looked upon the little altar as a good omen and set about to clear up their ruined church building. Later they removed one of the altar pillars, and after appropriate ceremonies, sent it to America as the gift of appreciation of the commune of Belleau to the Yankee regiments, through their organization of the Legion. The pillar is carefully preserved at the Legion's headquarters, protected by the French and American flags.

Deaths Directly Traceable to the World Conflict Are Placed at About 12,000,000.

A study of the official records of the German war department shows that 40 men were killed and 100 wounded on the German side during every hour the World War raged. This estimate was arrived at after the archives had been probed by General Von Altrick, one of the German "high command."

It is also stated in the same report that the Kaiser had a total of 13,000,000 men under arms during the war, of which 1,808,548 were either killed outright or died of wounds or sickness incident to their service. The largest figures are those of the number of Germans wounded which General Altrick places at 4,246,770.

German deaths, directly traceable to the war, are placed at about 12,000,000.

Carrying On With the American Legion

Farmers gave 200 trees and the village gave a lot to the Elizabethtown (Ind.) post of the Legion when it wanted a community house.

A "Gold Star" Legion organization, open to parents, sisters and brothers of men who gave their lives in the World War, has been proposed.

A total of $88,000,000 yearly renewable term and converted government insurance is being carried by ex-servicemen in the state of Washington.

War-time draft dodgers are prohibited from holding public office in New York state, a bill sponsored by the Legion to that effect having passed the general assembly.

Legion posts have been formed in Calcutta, India, New Zealand and Denmark, making a total of 11,050 posts located in practically every civilized country on the globe.

A large tract of land along the Potomac river, near Washington, D. C., has been turned over to the Legion and other organizations as a summer camp for disabled service men of Maryland and West Virginia.

The Legion in New York has received a letter saying: "I understand that the government will pay us war veterans adjusted compensation, with the option of taking land. I've just discovered a new island in the St. Lawrence river and I want that. If you can arrange it with the government."

Noble Suggestion.

Father had been having great difficulty in the disciplining of eight-year-old Sammy, and he well-nigh despaired of accomplishing any reform.

"Samuel," he said with genuine feeling, "I hate to have to spank you so often. Why don't you make an effort to be good?"

"Well, dad," said the incorrigible, "I do. But I wish you'd try it yourself sometime and see for yourself just how hard it is."—American Legion Weekly.

The Silent Partner.

"Does you take this woman for thy lawfully wedded wife?" asked the colored parson, glancing at the diminutive, watery-eyed, bow-legged bridegroom, who stood beside two hundred and ten pounds of feminine assurance.

"Ah takes nothin'," gloomily responded the bridegroom. "Ah's been tooked."—American Legion Weekly.

No Luck.

Fathers Assemble Girls. In the evening fifteen to twenty girls were assembled in the town hall with their fathers.

Every man wanted as much as he could get for his daughter, and the boy had to deal with them one by one, listening to them enumerate the particular charms and abilities.

After long bargaining with the fathers the boy went to the market and bought donkeys, bullocks and silver-mounted arms for a tenth of the price he had agreed upon for the girls.

When these girls are delivered they are carefully veiled and can travel anywhere with their purchasers unmolested, for in the Near East no one, not even a government official, would dare lift the veil of a Moslem woman.

Reliable Prune Cake.—Take one cupful of boiled unseasoned prunes, one cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of shortening, three eggs, one-half teaspoonful of nutmeg, one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of cloves, one teaspoonful of vanilla, one teaspoonful of soda, two and one-half tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and prune juice, mixed, and two cupfuls of flour.

Lemon Cake Fudding.—Sift five tablespoonfuls of flour, two cupfuls of sugar, and one-fourth of a tea-spoonful of salt, add two cupfuls of milk, the beaten yolks of four eggs, one tablespoonful of butter and the juice of three lemons; mix and fold in the whites of the eggs beaten stiff.

Mock Chop Suey.—Cook one-half cupful of rice in boiling salted water until nearly done. Strain one pint of tomatoes through a colander, chop one Spanish onion very fine.

Gingerbread Nuts.—Put a pound each of brown sugar and honey and the grated rind of a lemon in a saucepan and shaker. Remove and add one-fourth pound of butter, one ounce of ginger, one teaspoonful of soda, and two pounds of flour.

HELPFUL SUGGESTIONS. To the small town or country housewife who has not easy access to a market there is a great satisfaction in the knowledge that no matter who comes she is prepared for an emergency.

A few cans of fish, such as salmon and tuna, sardines and clams, if liked, some jars of sliced dried beef, and bacon, peanut butter, cans of corn and tomatoes, with a bottle of good salad dressing, which may be stretched by the addition of cream, a box or jar of cheese, are a few of the foods which will be most commonly used.

When taking dishes to a church supper or ball, mark them with small bits of adhesive tape with the name written in ink. This will not wash off at all easily, and one may identify one's property with little difficulty.

When looking a crust for a flint pie, take it on the bottom of the pan, breaking it lightly with a fork; this keeps the crust from blistering.

To make flies binding take the binder from the sewing machine and press the material as it is drawn through the binder.

Stall. The excited citizen rushed into the little bank and slipped a $50 bill down upon the cashier's window ledge.

"What?" asked the astonished cashier. "What? Two cases of what?"

"Two cases—this ought to cover it." "What sort of a place do you think this is? And of what do you want two cases?"

"Anything—I'll drink it whatever it is. I saw a sign outside that said '4 per cent.'"—Wayside Tales.

Woman Sheriff Heads All Raids

First to Hold Position in United States Shirks None of Duties of Office.

FILLS OUT HUSBAND'S TERM. Mrs. McAuley Served for Years as Deputy for Her Late Husband in Michigan County—Determined to Enforce Law.

End Axe, Mich.—For the first time in the history of Michigan, and as far as is known in the United States, a woman has been appointed as county sheriff.

And this woman, Mrs. Lula McAuley, is no novice at the job either, for she succeeds her husband, Donald McAuley, for many years the Huron county sheriff.

Every man wanted as much as he could get for his daughter, and the boy had to deal with them one by one, listening to them enumerate the particular charms and abilities.

After long bargaining with the fathers the boy went to the market and bought donkeys, bullocks and silver-mounted arms for a tenth of the price he had agreed upon for the girls.

Highest Quality—Lowest Prices

The entire Goodyear effort of many years has been toward one result—the tire buyer's advantage.

Goodyear has taken two methods to achieve that result. One has been to raise the quality of Goodyear Tires.

The other, to lower Goodyear prices. Goodyear has succeeded in both—to your great advantage.

Goodyear Tires are better today than ever—larger, heavier and stronger. Many users tell us they are getting double the mileage from them they got from Goodyears ten years ago.

Goodyear prices are lower today than ever. On the average they have decreased more than 60% from the prices of 1910.

Look at the figures listed below. Think of the fine performance of the Goodyears you have known, and remember that Goodyear Tires are giving even better performance now.

You can get these tires at your Goodyear Service Station Dealer's. See him today.

Breakfast and Its Relation to Health

(By HELEN BARR)

The more grain products used the cheaper the diet. The more meat used, the more expensive the diet.

What are grain products? The grain products include bread, flours, cereals, macaroni, rice, barley, cornmeal and other similar products made from grain.

What makes the food value of oatmeal so much higher than white flour? The chief difference is in the food value of these two grain products is the difference in the amount of the grain which is used in the preparation of the product.

Is white flour necessary? White flour is not necessary even for children. In fact, we would all be better off just as well, if we ate more of the grain products other than white flour.

What about nuts? The food value of nuts is high. The use of nuts may reduce the use of meat considerably.
