NEW TARIFF A COFFIN FOR THE CORPSE OF PROSPERITY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The Fordney-McCumber Profiteers' Tariff bill, which is estimated to double the taxation of the American people; that is to say, to add another $4,000,000,000 in the way of taxes, but of which only a few hundred millions will go into the treasury, the balance into the pockets of the special privilege class, has been signed by the president and is now a law.

This tariff bill, aptly termed "the coffin for the corpse of prosperity," will fall heaviest upon farmers and working men, by reason of the fact that it will further curtail the farmers' foreign markets, and by destroying what little is left of our foreign trade will greatly reduce production in manufacturing lines as well as in natural industries.

In a speech just prior to the passage of the bill Senator Underwood, the Democratic leader of the senate, called attention to some of the outrageous rates of the bill, particularly the wool schedule, in which he showed that the tax levied on raw wool would collect out of the pockets of the American people $209,999,000, only $20,000,000 of which would go into the treasury of the United States and the balance into the pockets of the special interests.

Senator Underwood excoriated that feature of the bill which transfers the taxing power from congress to the president, and said:

"I do not think it will last long as a law. If it should last long, if the terms of the bill were to stay on the statute books for two decades, I would predict the rottenest filth and corruption that could grow out of such a bureaucracy, that would be a stench in the nostrils of all good people. But I do not think it will last. I think before that day comes the American people will see the size of what this congress has done, will realize that the congress has laid down a great responsibility that was given to them, which the Constitution of the United States has placed in their hands, that they have surrendered a great trust, and the American people will rebuke any party and any set of men who have been guilty of abandoning a trust like this given to their safekeeping."

Democratic Bonus Proposal Rejected by Republicans

Democratic members of the ways and means committee of the house of representatives, in a minority report made on March 29, 1922, recommended that "whatever kind or sort of bonus or adjusted compensation congress shall deem justly due the World War veterans" should be paid from taxes levied on excess profits and great wealth. This proposal was rejected by the Republican house, which, with the Republican senate, had previously voted to repeal excess profits taxes amounting to $420,000,000 and high surtaxes aggregating $61,400,000 a year.

Realizing that many big monopolistic corporations which have "profited" from the people and the government since January 1, 1916, to the extent of more than $40,000,000,000 of net profits and who are continuing their profiteering, would represent one legitimate source of revenue for the payment of the bonus, the Democratic minority said: "For this purpose we favor the repeal of the surtax on the large incomes of these millionaires and multi-millionaires which was repealed by the Republicans in their revenue act of 1921, and a re-enactment of the excess profits tax which was also repealed by them in said act."

MINES AND MINERS

Mr. A. F. Gross of Duluth, Minn., is in Patagonia this week looking after his mining interests. While here he made the final payment on the Deep Down mine, formerly owned by John Costello. Roy Stump and Robert Wood Jr. left Wednesday for Ajo to look over the mining situation. Mrs. Stump and children will remain in Patagonia and Mrs. Wood and children will be at Harshaw with Mr. Wood's father, R. A. Wood.

E. D. Farley was in town Tuesday from the Hardshell mine, and reports a good strike on the Begler claims, where they have cut an 84-foot ledge.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bender left Wednesday for San Francisco.

J. B. David was in town Wednesday from the Rheas mine, in the Patagonia mountains, and reports ore in the new strike, made last week as improving in quantity and quality.

A carload of ore from the Alto district was shipped to the smelter by Tuesday's freight.

Joe Colte and Val Valenzuela Jr. relocated the Wandering Jew claims at Alto and have renamed them the Franklin group. A Mexican named Ochoa is doing the location work.

The Black Eagle is again shipping ore to the smelter at Douglas. Two carloads are ready to go forward as soon as cars are available.

Harry Steen, C. A. Bronson and F. O. Stow, of Mowry were in town Saturday.

Want to Be Queen of Ariz.? Send Your Photographs, Girls

Next week will be the last chance to enter the beauty contest being conducted by the Patagonian. Remember, girls, you don't have to have "votes" to be entitled to a chance to go to Phoenix, where you may be chosen as the state's prettiest girl. All you have to do is to send in your photo, which will be well taken care of and returned to you in perfect condition, and the judges will select the winner. After the winner of our contest is chosen by the judges, the winners of the other county papers' contests will form the trio from which judges will choose the prettiest to represent Santa Cruz county at the state contest at Phoenix.

Bear in mind that your expenses to Phoenix will be born by the fair association. You will not be out anything except your time. And think of the honor in store for you if you are chosen as the fairest lady in Arizona!

PHOENIX, Oct. 13.—Who is the most beautiful young woman in Arizona?

As the first step in determining this most important question, one that has never yet been decided, every county in the state, with the exception of Maricopa, is now engaged in the fast-moving pastime of a popularity contest to determine which fair resident is entitled to represent that county on the Arizona court of beauty, the brilliant center of attraction around which all festive activities of the coming state fair will revolve.

MOTOR TRUCKING REAL AGENCY OF EFFICIENT CIVILIZATION

With more than a million motor vehicles of the commercial class handling merchandise, whether in making neighborhood deliveries for a corner grocery or hauling heavy loads hundreds of miles over rural roads, it is certain that the practical demonstration of the value of motor transportation is to be continued on so vast a scale that the entire nation must be convinced of its absolutely essential importance, to the welfare and progress of the country. The actual tests of operation will be convincing to all but those who refuse to see.

It is being shown every day that motor trucks render service impossible to railroads. They go where no railway train can. They move freight from the point of actual production to the place of consumption, not in an approximate way which requires another haul after the principal carrier has done its utmost, but in the strictest sense. The trucks cut out the second handling of millions of packages every day. They save time and minister to the convenience of the great multitude of producers, merchants and consumers they serve.

The development of motor truck transportation in the United States would not stand out so far above the comparatively scanty use of self-propelled business vehicles in other parts of the world if its growth were not good evidence of national advancement in all material conditions and elements of progress. The astonishing expansion of motor trucking in this country proves that such reinforcement of the older systems of handling merchandise was greatly needed, in a land of continental dimensions, where the population and the business of thousands of cities and smaller towns, not to speak of the farms, are spread over much more space than would be occupied under the conditions existing in Europe and Asia.

Such an agency of efficient civilization cannot be curbed and fettered unduly without a reaction harmful to the entire community wherever such restriction is made the policy of the government or the purpose of the majority of the population. Freedom for the motor truck to win its way to greater vicinities over them and space and render still more important service to the public, is essential to the continued progress of this country in fields of development in which it has outstripped the world.

Allies Ready to Permit Turkey to Regain Her Former Territory in Europe.

KING CONSTANTINE OUSTED

Greek Army Compels Him to Abdicate and Declares for War to Keep Thrace—Federal Fuel Distributor Spens Gets Busy—Death of Senator Watson.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

OWING to the military and diplomatic skill of Mustafa Kemal Pasha and his colleagues in the Turkish Nationalist government, and to the strong determination of the people of the allied nations not to embark in another war, it is practically certain that Turkey will regain the territory in Europe which she lost in the World war and probably a considerable part of Mesopotamia, now under British mandate. Do you and your friends think the Turks are entitled to this restoration and are really no worse than most of their neighbors? Or do you believe it is worth another great war to keep them out of Europe?

CONCILIATION and concession were the order of the day in the Near East. The allies, in formally inviting the Turks to a peace conference, assured them that they "will take advantage of this opportunity to declare that they look with favor upon the desire of Turkey to recover Thrace up to the Maritza river, and Adrianople."

It was even intimated that Russia would be admitted to the conference, and M. Franklin-Rouillon, who last year negotiated an agreement between the Nationalists and the French, was sent to Smyrna with a mandate to deal with Kemal. The stipulation of the allies was that the Dardanelles, the Sea of Marmora and the Bosphorus must remain free and open to all nations. The British also insisted that the neutral zone, which embraces the straits and Constantinople, must not be invaded by the Nationalists during the peace negotiations.

Early in the week Kemal gave a long interview to a correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, in which he said that he had no desire to provoke hostilities with Great Britain, but that he insisted on complete independence of the Turkish empire and complete freedom of the straits to all nations. He said Turkey had no wish to fortify the Dardanelles, but that she must control the Sea of Marmora and the Bosphorus to secure the safety of her capital—Constantinople. On Wednesday the Kemalists announced they would respect the neutrality of the straits pending an armistice conference with the British generals. They then formulated their reply to the allied peace proposals. Not given to the public at this writing, this answer is understood to provide, among other things, that the Nationalists shall occupy all strategic positions prior to the opening of the conference; that all British forces on route be recalled and the British shall not fortify the neutral zone; that the Nationalists shall occupy Thrace before the conference, at which Russia, Ukraine and all countries bordering on the Black sea shall be represented; that if these conditions are accepted, the Nationalists agree to an armistice conference at Mudania, which is to be followed in three days by the opening of the peace conference in Smyrna.

Meanwhile Kemal, who has freely expressed his distrust of the British and especially of Lloyd George, sent various units into the Asiatic part of the neutral zone and occupied strategic positions from which he virtually controlled the Dardanelles. The British commanders made several demands for the withdrawal of the Turks, but Kemal responded that he knew of no neutral zone. To the French he explained that he had occupied these places because the British had disregarded the neutrality of the straits by permitting the Greeks to have free passage through them.

REVOLTS by the Greek army against the government, which was expected, came on schedule time. The troops that had returned from the scene of disaster in Anatolia and were concentrated in the archipelago islands rebelled and, using battleships and destroyers as transports, sailed to the mainland and moved on Athens under the leadership of regular officers of the army and navy. Military airplanes dropped in Athens proclamations demanding the abdication of King Constantine, the formation of a ministry friendly to the allies and the sending of reinforcements to Thrace. On Wednesday the cabinet resigned and Constantine formally abdicated the throne in favor of Crown Prince George, who was sworn in. For the present a revolutionary committee is in charge of the government. The object of the coup d'etat as announced in Athens was to oust Constantine in order to unite the country in firm opposition to the Paris conference's peace terms to Mustafa Kemal Pasha and to wage an immediate and aggressive war to retain Thrace. Army and navy leaders fully support the Thracian war, and they say they can take Constantinople.

THOUGH it had been reported that Bulgaria was ready to seize the part of Thrace which she claims, Dimitri Stanoef, Bulgarian minister to England, denies this. "Bulgaria is firmly resolved to avoid participation in any military action," said he, "not only because the country is practically disarmed, but also because the new Bulgaria is an agricultural country and does not wish to risk a repetition of her previous misfortunes."

SOVIET Russia formally declared herself the champion of Islam last week. She sent a note to the entente, the Balkan nations and Egypt demanding the restoration of Turkey in Europe and warning the world that she would not recognize "any decision concerning the Turkish straits taken without her participation or arrived at against her interests."

ACCORDING to an agreement about completed between the United States and Japan, the international technical control of the Chinese Eastern railway by the Stevens commission will soon be terminated. It is provided that the commission shall cease to function upon completion of the evacuation of Japanese troops from Siberia. The Chinese government is to be made responsible for the continued operation and protection of the railway, and if it fails in this, there will be a resumption of international control. The other allied powers are in accord with this plan. That is the news that comes from Washington. From Peking come reports that put another face on the matter. The president of China has suspended the Russian Boxer indemnity of about $5,000,000 annually and the soviet government, in its reply of protest, intimates that it will seize the Chinese Eastern railway. John F. Stevens, the head of the commission, according to a correspondent, is convinced the line is lost to China.

GREAT BRITAIN has offered to pay $50,000,000 of interest due the United States, and the World war debt funding commission has been considering the proposition. At the rate of 5 per cent, the interest due in the next two installments, October 15 and November 15, amounts to $95,000,000, but the funding law authorizes a rate of 4 1/2 per cent, so it is suggested that the $50,000,000 be paid October 15 and adjustments be worked out with Sir Robert Horne, who is coming over soon. Congressman Burson of Ohio, who is a member of the funding commission, is in London, and at a luncheon attended by prominent financiers he said plainly that the United States expected Great Britain to pay in full. He pointed out that the loans made by America were not given out of an overflowing treasury, but were raised, sometimes with diffiulty, by loans from the American people, who had no reason to expect that they would not be repaid. He also drew attention to the American suspicion that if the loans were forgiven the money thus released might be used in new wars.

CONRAD B. SPENS, railway official of Chicago, who was appointed federal fuel distributor under the act passed by congress, started in by warning the various states that his powers do not extend to coal mined and sold within a given state and their officials must look after that end of the proposition. He then asked eight leading railway executives to serve as an advisory committee in the fuel transportation emergency and named 13 prominent business men as members of an advisory committee for industry, to keep in touch with the distribution of fuel supplies for industries in their respective districts. Large industrial consumers are asked to confine their purchases of coal under present conditions as closely to current needs as safety permits; to suspend accumulation of advance stocks of coal until the present emergency pressure on production is relieved; to unload coal cars immediately and return them to service and to promptly furnish material requested for new railroad equipment or repairs.

THE grand jury in Marion, Ill., which investigated the Herrin coal mine massacre, indicted 70 men for participation in the outrage, 44 of them for murder. All of the latter group have been put under arrest, and of the total 20 are still at large. Eight of those accused of murder are held without bail. The others were released on bonds, which were furnished by the leading citizens of Marion. The defense of the men, as already outlined by their lawyers, will be, in brief, that this is a "private persecution by a political boss and a laboring organization," the allusion being to Attorney General Brundage and the Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

FEDERAL JUDGE WILKERSON in Chicago formally entered the temporary injunction obtained by Attorney General Daugherty against the railway shophmen, having sustained it on all points. The proceedings were perfunctory and the attorneys for the union did not concern themselves with the form of the order. They said they hoped to be permitted to take the case direct to the Supreme court of the United States on appeal.

SOME twenty thousand veterans of the Civil war assembled in Des Moines, Ia., for the fifty-sixth national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic. On Wednesday three-fourths of these grizzled warriors, escorted by two regiments of the regular army, marched in the yearly parade—an event that grows more and more pathetic as the years pass. They were reviewed by their commander-in-chief, Lewis S. Pflieger, and by Hanford MacNider, national commander of the American Legion. One tragedy marked the occasion, M. J. Mackenhausen of White Bear Lake, Minn., dropped dead after two hours of marching. Judge J. W. Willett of Tama, Ia., was elected commander-in-chief for the coming year.

THOMAS E. WATSON, United States senator from Georgia, one of the most fiery political figures of the time, died suddenly of asthma Tuesday in Washington. Ever 30 years he was active in state and national politics, and he was the Populist nominee for vice president in 1906 and for President in 1904. The Populists elected him to the house of representatives in 1891, and in 1920 he was elected senator. He was opposed to Woodrow Wilson and his policies and was especially against the League of Nations.

ACCORDING to the Freeman's Journal of Dublin, Eamon de Valera has abdicated as leader of the Irish republicans and Liam Lynch has succeeded him. The newspaper says this destroys hope of a rational peace as Lynch is driving his followers to fight to the bitter end. The republicans are keeping up their guerrilla warfare, but the Free Staters are steadily cleaning them up, especially now in County Kerry.

has passed the senate and Senator Bursum (Rep., N. M.), its author, says he has been promised by Republican leaders of the house of representatives that it will be passed by the house soon after it reconvenes. He expects the bill to become law before the holidays.

Under the measure all Civil and Mexican war veterans who served 90 days or any who have developed disabilities would receive the increase from $50 to $72 a month under the bill and their widows' pensions would be increased from $30 to $50 a month. Other beneficiaries under the bill include Civil war army nurses, while pensioners of the Indian wars would receive $30 and their widows $20 a month.

The pension bureau estimated that the increased cost during the first year would amount to about $30,000,000, but Senator Bursum, in presenting the bill, told the senate that revised estimates placed it at not over $25,000,000. The present pension outlay is about $200,000,000 annually, said Senator Bursum.

I hereby solemnly promise to fill any man's pipe

This promise is made in the letter that follows. We have sent Mr. Lewis some free samples of Edgeworth (as we do to all who ask for them). We didn't know that he was an Edgeworth smoker until we received this letter.

Niagara Falls, N. Y. Messrs. Larus & Brother Company, Richmond, Va.

Gentlemen: I am a smoker of good tobacco for over 40 years and have no hesitancy in saying that all smoking tobacco Edgeworth in my estimation occupies the first place.

Having smoked it for a number of years in many different parts of our own good U. S. A., and also Alaska and Cuba—it has always given me supreme smoke-satisfaction, at all times, anywhere, everywhere, regardless of climatic changes or any other locus-pecus.

My object in sending for the free samples (if you will forgive me) was to determine whether or not Edgeworth was being made any different—that possibly the samples (like whiskey samples used to be) were the best and finest of the whole output.

But on smoking the samples I find no difference whatever, and so I am convinced beyond the shadow of a doubt that Edgeworth always is of the same superior quality in all its forms, and further, that my little joke in asking for and receiving something for nothing will be excused by you on the plea of curiosity.

In thanking you kindly for your courtesy in sending free samples, I hereby solemnly promise to fill any man's (reasonable-sized) pipe with Edgeworth tobacco of my own purchase, to convert him to that really good smoke, "Edgeworth."

Very sincerely, (Signed) Arthur John Lewis.

Edgeworth samples are no different from the regular Edgeworth tobacco you can buy in a store. We wouldn't keep "special" samples any more than we would have a special kind of tobacco in a different pouch or in our pocket to hand to a friend.

We feel that Edgeworth is good enough, that its pleasant fragrance and mellowness will appeal to most pipe-smokers. We do not think our effort is wasted if we send free samples of Edgeworth to a man who doesn't find it exactly suited to his taste.

If you never tried Edgeworth, let us send you enough to fill your pipe a few times. Smoke it, and then decide whether or not Edgeworth was "made for you."

If you'll send the name and address of your tobacco dealer, we'd appreciate the courtesy. When you send for samples, address Larus & Brother Company, 44 South 21st St., Richmond, Va.

To Retail Tobacco Merchants: If your jobber cannot supply you with Edgeworth, Larus & Brother Company will gladly send you prepaid by parcel post a one- or two-dozen carton of any size Edgeworth Plug Slice or Ready-Rubbed for the same price you would pay the jobber.

One Ray of Joy. "And what kind of a filling do you want, my little man?" asked a kindly dentist of a small boy who had been suffering a dozen martyrdoms in the chair.

It was the first cheerful word the boy had heard for an hour. "Gimme chocolate," he replied, brightening visibly.—American Legion Weekly.

The Mardi Gras Mystery

By H. BEDFORD-JONES

Very well. Do not plan to wear any jewels, Lucie. I have a set to lend you for the occasion—no, not a gift, merely a loan for the sake of Comus. They are very nice pearls; a little old fashioned, because they were mounted for the Princess de Lamballe, but you will find that they fit in excellently with your gown. I'll bring them with me when I call for you—" And I'll tender fitting thanks then. One thing more: Henry Gramont is going to see you after luncheon, I think—on business. And I want you to be nice to him, Uncle Jacin.

"Most assuredly," said the other, dryly. "I should like to be associated in business with that young man. The firm would prosper."

Smiling, she went up the receiver. Ten minutes later, when Gramont and Miss Ledanos entered the waiting car, Hammond saw the boxes that they carried. He stood beside the open door, paralyzed, his eyes fastened on the boxes, his mouth agape. "To the post office, sergeant," said Gramont, then affected to observe his stupefaction. "Why, what's the matter?"

Hammond met his twinkling eyes, saw the laughter of Lucie, and swallowed hard. "I—er—nothing at all, cap'n," he answered, hoarsely. "A—little chokin' spell, that's all. Post office? Yes, sir."

CHAPTER VIII.

From the time they left the Ledanos house with Lucie, Gramont had no opportunity of seeing his chauffeur in private until, later in the afternoon, he left the Maison Blanche building. He had enjoyed a thoroughly satisfactory interview with Jacin Fell. The car was waiting for him in Royal street, not far from the Monteleone, and Gramont approached it to find Hammond in deep worry over the outcome of the interview with Fell.

"Well, cap'n?" he exclaimed, anxiously. "Gramont draw up. 'You're smiling,' so I guess it ain't a pinch!" "Don't worry. The stuff is returned, and the matter is now closed. We can forget all about the Midnight Masquerade. Now, there's another and more important thing that I want to speak with you about, a matter of business—" "Hold on, cap'n!" interrupted Hammond, quietly, his eye on a spot behind Gramont. "One of your friends is headed over this way, and if I know anything about it, he's got hot blood in his eye."

Gramont turned to see Bob Mallard approaching. The latter addressed him without any response to his greeting. "Have you a moment to spare, Gramont?"

"All afternoon," answered Gramont, cheerfully. He affected not to observe Mallard's air of heavy business, nor the frowning suspicion that lurked half-veiled in the other's glowering features. The two were standing a bit apart, and Hammond was fussing with one of the headlights, but Gramont suspected that the chauffeur was listening avidly. "I've just come from a talk with dad. How did it happen that you sold him that stock of yours in the company?"

Gramont smiled a little. "I happened to need the money. Why?" "But why the devil didn't you hang on to that stock? Or if you needed money, why didn't you come to me?" exploded the other, angrily.

"Heavens!" drawled Gramont, who was quite willing to exasperate young Mallard to the limit. "You seem frightfully concerned about it! What's the big idea, anyway? I offered the stock to your father at a discount. He realized that it was a good buy, and took it. What's wrong with that?"

"Nothing wrong, if you put it that way," snipped Mallard, angrily. "But it's a confounded sly way of doing things—" "Now, just wait right there!" Gramont's easy smile vanished. "I don't take that kind of talk, Mallard. I'm off in the morning to start work on that report I was engaged to make. When the report comes in, my resignation comes with it."

"All right. Let it come here and now, then," Mallard's tone was ugly. "If you're so blamed anxious to get out of the company, get out!"

"Thanks. I'll be glad to be relieved of the job," Gramont turned and addressed his chauffeur. "Hammond, you'll kindly remember this conversation, in case your future testimony is needed—" "Confound you, what if you mean talking that way?" broke out Mallard. "Do you suppose I'll deny firing you?" "I don't care to have you offer any reflections on my actions, Mallard," said Gramont, evenly. "My course in this matter is perfectly open and above board, which is more than you can say for your doings."

"What?" Mallard clenched his stick and took a forward step, anger working in his face. "What the devil do you mean?"

"Exactly what I say—and perhaps I can prove it. Remember the oil concern to which you persuaded your precious father to sell some of Miss Ledanos' Bayou land? Remember the real estate company to which you persuaded him to sell her St. Landry parish property? You had interests in both concerns; I don't imagine you'd care to have your share in those transactions exposed. Further, I entirely understand your indignation over my getting rid of this stock before the crash, and it'll become you to assume any such attitude."

nance. Then, mastering himself, he turned away without further speech. Leaving Hammond to take the car home, Gramont headed for Canal street to mingle with the carnival crowd and revel in his new-found sense of freedom. Now that he was his own master, he felt like a new man. With a boyish abandon he tramped the streets merrily, exchanging jests and confetti, shoves and bladder-blows, laughs and kisses. Madness and reckless gaiety were in the very air, and Gramont drank deep of these youthful frolics. When at last he wandered home to his pension, he was footsore, weary, disarranged and tumbled—and very happy. The wine of human comradeship is a good wine. That evening the Comus ball, the most exclusive revel of the most exclusive aristocracy of the southland, crowded the edifice to which it was held to capacity. Here evening dress was prescribed for all the guests. The Krewe of Comus alone were masked and costumed. In grotesque and magnificent costumes which had been in the making for months. The Krewe is to the South what the Bohemian club is to the western coast, with the added enhancement of mystery.

Despite the revels of the Krewe, however—despite the glittering jewels, the barbaric costumes, the music, the excitement—an indefinable air of regret, almost of sadness, pervaded the entire gathering. This feeling was something to be sensed, rather than early evening with the common role of all the "blackcoats"—that of looking on idly. More than once he saw Lucie Ledanos called out, among others of the fair sex, as a dancing partner for some member of the Krewe. None of the male guests, however, was allowed to participate in the festivity until Rex and his queen should arrive—at midnight; thus, Gramont saw almost nothing of Lucie during the evening.

While in search of smoking companions, Gramont encountered many of his acquaintances, and among them Doctor Ansley and Jacin Fell. The three strolled off together into one of the unused passages leading to other parts of the building. They opened a window and stood watching the crowd that surged in the street below, constantly increasing as the hour grew later, for the procession of Rex would be well worth seeing and nobody meant to miss anything upon this night of nights.

Suddenly, at the sound of an approaching footstep, the three men turned. The electric lights were going in all of the hallways, and they perceived that the individual approaching them was a member of the Krewe of Comus. He was also, it became evident, giving a share of his allegiance to Bacchus, for his feet were obviously unsteady. He was clad in a particular costume, which was crowned by an exaggerated head of Mephisto. "Wonderin' who I am, aren't you?" he hiccupped. "Well, don't wonder; 'sall between o' friends tonight. Tell you what, m' friends—come with me and I'll find you a'll drink, eh? Real old Boone plachneck—got it from some boys in Louisville, been savin' it up for tonight."

He wagged his head at them, and pursued his subject in a half-maudlin burst of confidential assurance. "Havin' a little party in one of the rooms," he continued. "All of us friends—lots more fun than dancin'! And say! I'm going pull something great, positively great; you don't want to miss it, gentlemen? You come along with me and I'll fix it for you. Come on, Gramont, that's a good fellow—don't matter tonight, nothin' matters tonight, nothin' at all. Mardi Gras only comes once a year, eh? Come along, now."

Jacin Fell very evilly refused the invitation, as did the others. Gramont, who now recognized their acester, was less civil in his refusal. Mephisto regarded them with vinous regret. "No joyment in you, any more? Better come along. Tell you, I've got the biggest joke of the season ready to pull off—something rich! Gramont, come on!"

"Thanks, no," responded Gramont curtly. The masquer gave up the struggle and moved on down the empty hallway. "I wonder who that was, now?" mused Doctor Ansley, frowning. "Evidently someone who knew us; at least, he recognized you, Gramont."

"So it seemed," put it Jacin Fell, his tone, like his eyes, had a somber fire. "A party of them drinking, eh? That will make trouble. The Krewe won't like it. Who was he, Gramont? Sounded like—" "Young Mallard," at Gramont's response a whistle broke from Doctor Ansley. Jacin Fell nodded assent. "You took the words out of my mouth, so Bob is drinking again, eh? Hello, Gramont—where to?"

Gramont tossed his cigar through the open window. "I think I'll make my adieux, Fell. I intend to be up early in the morning and get off to work—" "What?" protested Ansley in astonishment. "You must stay until Rex comes, at least! Why, that's the event of the carnival! The evening hasn't started yet."

"I'm growing old and sober, doctor," and Gramont chuckled. "What's more, I was drifting with the crowds all afternoon, and I've just begun to realize that I'm dead tired. Rex or no Rex, I'm afraid I'd best say goodnight, gentlemen."

Returning to the auditorium, Gramont sought out his hosts and made his farewells, although not without encountering some opposition. At length he was free, he had obtained his hat and coat, and he passed out of the building he again met Fell and Ansley, who were finishing their cigars at the entrance. He bade them a final adieu and plunged into the crowd.

It lacked half an hour of midnight. For a little, Fell and Doctor Ansley stood talking, then tossed away their cigars and turned into the building.

They halted in the foyer before the appearance of two men—Joseph Mallard, looking extremely agitated, and behind him old Judge Forester, who wore a distinctly worried expression. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

FISH WAS MISTAKEN FOR VESSEL

Peculiar Appearance of Swordfish Gave Rise to Many Strange Stories Concerning It. In the warm waters of the Indian ocean there lives a strange mariner, who is the cause of many tales among the natives of the near-by coasts. They tell of a wonderful sail often seen in the calm seasons, when not a breath disturbs the water, and the sea rises and falls like an immense sheet of glass. Suddenly a sail appears, apparently driven along by a mighty wind. This sail glimmers with rich purple and golden hues. On it comes quivering and sparkling as it covered with gems; then, suddenly, it disappears as quickly as it came!

Many travelers have listened with incredulity to this strange tale, until, one day, this beautiful craft passed directly under the stern of a passing vessel, and it was seen to be a gigantic swordfish which is now known as the "sailor-fish." The sail was really an enormously developed dorsal fin, over 10 feet high, and richly colored with blue and iridescent tints. As the fish swam along near the surface of the water this great fin waved to and fro, so that from a distance it was easily mistaken for a sail.

ALLIES PROMISE THRACE TO TURKS

TURKISH GOVERNMENT ACCEPTS ENGLISH PROPOSALS AT MUDANIA CONFERENCE.

TURKS ACCEPT TRUCE

LINE OF DEMARKATION BETWEEN BRITISH AND KEMALISTS AGREED UPON.

Constantinople.—The allies have agreed to turn over Thrace to the Turkish army in thirty days.

The Mudania conference, it is understood, probably will reach an agreement on all points of the Turkish proposals with the exception of the provision relating to the occupation of the western line of the Maritza river by allied troops.

The Turkish conditions agreement in the Mudania conference are as follows: 1—Formal guarantees concerning the evacuation of Thrace.

2—Establishment of allied garrisons in the larger towns of Thrace.

3—Occupation of Thrace by Turkish Nationalist gendarmerie.

4—Transfer of the civil administration of Thrace to Kemalist functionaries.

5—Evacuation of Thrace within eight days by the Greek army.

6—Occupation of the westerly line of the Maritza river by allied troops.

The delegates agree to establish a definite line of demarcation between the British and Kemalist forces in the Chanak zone. The space between the opposing forces will be sufficient to place them out of rifle shot, thus lessening the danger of immediate conflict.

Cancellation marked the conference between the allied generals and the Turkish representative at Mudania. Ismet Pasha, who speaks for Mustafa Kemal Pasha, leader of the Nationalists, and also for the Ankara government, has announced that the government accepted the allied proposals in principle and he took occasion to explain that the Turks had no intention of creating incidents with the English.

Ismet asked for a settlement of the Turkish administration of Thrace and asked that Thrace be freed from allied control, but he felt that at least one month would be required to effect the transfer. He also suggested that there should be an allied covering force on the Maritza river and that a neutral zone should be created west of that river.

The allied generals explained that the proposed administrative measures must all be subject to the approval of the governments concerned.

Printers Order $125,000 Hospital. Colorado Springs.—Trustees of the Union Printers' Home here approved an extensive building campaign, to include immediate construction of a $125,000 addition to the main building for hospital purposes. The new structure will provide for 100 patients and will make the printers' home one of the finest sanatoriums in the country, according to Secretary J. W. Hays.

Water Inundates Village. Vancouver, B. C.—Bella Coola, a town of 175 inhabitants on the north coast of British Columbia, was submerged in a flood from the Bella Coola river and now is covered to a depth of from four to six feet by mud and water, according to advices received here. Many residents are homeless, but no loss of life has been reported.

Shop Strike Ended on 83 Roads. Chicago.—Eighty-three railroads of the United States, operating approximately 65,000 miles of line and employing between 125,000 and 130,000 members of the Federated Shoppers, have settled the shoppers' strike with their system federations, according to a special bulletin sent to all members of the organization over the signature of E. M. Jewell, president. The latest additions to the settling roads were the Fort Smith & Western, the Georgia, Florida & Alabama and the Chicago Great Western.

Half of Grape Crop Doomed. San Francisco, Calif.—Approximately half of California's 350,000-ton wine grape crop is near destruction as a result of the failure of shipping facilities and there is little hope of saving it. E. M. Sheehan, president of the California Grape Growers' Exchange, announced here. "The total crop is valued at $30,000,000. We see no hope of getting sufficient cars to move the crop," Sheehan said.

Coal Miners Reaffirm Demands. Cleveland, Ohio.—The policy committee of the United Mine Workers of America, in session here, reaffirmed the demands of the February, 1922, convention of the union in Indianapolis, demanding the continuance of the present wages in coal mines until 1925, and, in addition, the six-hour day and five-day week. These demands will be presented to the next scale conference of miners and operators prior to the expiration March 31 of the Cleveland agreement.

Bankers Oppose Branch Banks. New York.—The American Bankers Association, in convention here, went on record by a vote of approximately three to one, as being opposed to branch banking or the establishment of branch offices by both state and national banks in any form. An association opposed to branch banking has undertaken a campaign for the passage of a federal statute prohibiting national banks from having branches, or more than one office in any state.

MINING AND PROSPERITY

Mining news from Utah and other western states is the most encouraging that has been reported since the readjustment period started. Lead has reached .9635 cents per pound; zinc is up above 7 cents; silver is pegged at $1 an ounce by the Pittman act; gold mining is increasing as cost of operation declines, and copper is holding its own around 14 cents a pound with larger amounts being used as it slowly replaces substitutes which displace it during the war time period. The future for the lead market looks exceedingly good for an indefinite period.

Reductions in railroad rates are enabling mines to again ship ore profitably to smelters, with the result that increasing activity in mines and smelters is taking place. When the metal industry is producing on a profitable basis it assures prosperity in many western states, especially in Arizona.

Given reasonable taxation and freedom from destructive industrial warfare and labor disputes, western mines head headed for a period of activity which will furnish employment to thousands of additional workmen and bring prosperity to many states.

REASON FOR ENCOURAGING ALL INDUSTRIES

What industry does for a community is well illustrated by the advertising of the Oregon City woolen mills through national as well as local channels. For many years the cry has been raised; Why are western wools shipped east, woven into cloth and shipped back west in the shape of clothing, suits, overcoats, etc.?

Now an Oregon woolen mill is putting finished wearing apparel for men on the market, the virgin wool for which is raised on sheep from surrounding states. This mill is giving invaluable publicity to Oregon City and putting western products on the map before millions of readers.

This is what a progressive industry does for a community. It is the best argument that can be advanced as to why industrial development should be encouraged in every community. Such development means the utilization of local product with increasing employment, expanding payrolls and added incentive for producing the raw material which has a market close to home.

The Oregon City woolen mill is blazing the way for a great woolen industry in the west in its national advertising of a finished product produced from pure, virgin wool, woven where the wool is grown and the success of its undertaking is of very direct interest in every sheep grower in the west.

WHY RUN THE RISK?

One newspaper in one city, on September 29, contained two fire items. One from the state of Washington recorded the death of a little crippled girl 8 years old who was unable to leave her parents' farm house when it burned. The other reported the death of six persons and injury of many more when 21 families were trapped by flames in a New York apartment house. This is merely a sample of daily press reports as they appear in all parts of the United States.

During the past five years published figures show approximately 75,000 men, women and children burned to death, 100,000 injured and property destruction of $1,672,722,677.

Is it any wonder that "five prevention week" is becoming a national feature recognized in all states?

Training in fire prevention should not be confined to one week; it should be a daily course in every public school in the land.

Engender the idea of fire prevention in the minds of the children and in ten years the saving in human life and

ITEMS OF INTEREST TO MINERS FROM ALL PARTS OF STATE

F. L. Ransome of the Geological Survey has issued a report on the Papago and Pima mining districts near Tucson.

In several Arizona towns, notably in Miami, new school buildings are to be roofed with copper, this in pursuance of a campaign for the larger use of the red metal.

The L. A. Garford quartz mill at Wickenberg has been dismantled and shipped to Sanburg, Calif., where the owner has leased property adjoining the Kelly silver mine.

Three units of the gih Inspiration mill have been closed down, due to a bulge of the concrete shaft lining on the 400 level. For some time the mill has been operating fourteen units.

It is reported that an extensive body of commercial ore was recently uncovered in the Verde Central property, in the Jerome district. An extension of the drift from the 600 level will be run to cut the exposed ores at depth.

Lead-silver ore averaging $57 per ton has been encountered in the new No. 3 shaft of the El Capitan Mines, Inc., of Miami, at a depth of but 15 feet. Five thousand feet of excellent road have just been completed by the company, which is being financed in the east for more extensive development work.

Monthly production of copper by the Iron Cap Copper Company at Copper Hill now averages about 600,000 pounds. All the ore is now being shipped to the International smelter at Miami, and in addition to the copper is returning between $6000 and $7000 monthly in silver. About 180 men are being employed at the mine and mill of the company.

Close to 60 tons of dust that averages 5 per cent copper and carries important values in gold, silver and other metals, is being recovered daily by the new Cottrell plant from the United Verde smelter at Clarkdale. This means that the plant is daily saving three tons of copper that formerly was dissipated in the atmosphere and irretrievably lost.

Five cars of ore averaging 30 tons each were recently shipped from the Ely Northern property of the Boston & Ely Consolidated Mining Company. The ore went directly to the smelters and averaged from 8 to 10 per cent in copper. Other shipments will follow as the days and weeks go by. The Boston & Ely Company has arrived and can now be reckoned as a steady shipper.

Ira R. Jorlunen, assistant general manager of the Calumet & Arizona Mining Company, and one of the most widely known mining men in the country, left the Warren district about September 15 to open consulting offices in San Francisco. He will resign as assistant manager of the C. & A., the New Cornelia Copper Company at Ajo, and the "X" mine, near Lordsburg, N. M., in order to give his entire time to consulting practice and the examination of properties with a view to later entering mining for himself.

physical property would be enormous. Most fires are preventable. Then why not give more thought to this subject which touches every home, every industry and every individual in our country?

Why subject your loved ones and your property to the ravages of the red hand of fire when the simplest training and precautionary measures will remove 90 per cent of the risk?

"SANDWICH" LONG IN DISPUTE

Invention of Toothsome Morsel Has Been Credited to Many, Including the Great Napoleon.

Both Napoleon and Lord Sandwich have been given credit for inventing the sandwich, but Voltaire, in his history of Charles the Twelfth, king of Sweden, tells of how the king during his campaign in Poland and Russia never or seldom took time to sit down and eat his meals, but generally stood up, spread some butter on a piece of bread with his thumb and put a piece of meat, fish or cheese on top of the butter. This happened almost one hundred years before Napoleon.

And in 1702, or seven years before Napoleon was born, Edward Gibbon of "Decline and Fall" fame, noted in his journal under date of November 24: "I dined at the Cocoa Tree. . . . That respectable body affords every evening a slight truly English. Twenty or thirty of the first men in the kingdom supping at little tables upon a bit of cold meat or a sandwich."

When Napoleon was two years old Foote introduced the word in a play of his, "The Maid of Bath," staged in 1771. But the origin of the word was traced by Pierre Jean Grosley in his "Londres," published in 1770. He resided in London in 1765, and refers to the word as having recently come into use. The title to authorship rests with the butler or attendant, who served thin slices of beef between thin slices of toast to John Montagu, fourth earl of Sandwich (1718-1792), while the latter was attending a prolonged session at the gaming table.

FLOWER BROUGHT BIG PRICE

English Horticulturists Paid Large Sum for American Plant With Somewhat Peculiar History.

Ten thousand dollars is an extraordinarily price for a single plant; yet it was paid by English horticulturists for an orchid raised in America, the cutleya glauca alba.

This cutleya was flowered in 1910 and exhibited at an orchid show in the United States, where it was awarded a gold medal. The plant was found in 1909 in a lot of other specimens of cutleya glauca. It was only by chance that the plant was not sold for a dollar or two. The only reason was that, after most of its companions had been disposed of, this one, with some others was set aside. Finally all the specimens were potted.

To the great surprise of the horticulturists when, next spring, the plant came up with just pure white flowers. The plant was sold in London for perhaps the highest figure that an orchid ever brought.

Why "The Innocents" Succeeded.

How easy it is now to understand the prodigious success of "The Innocents Abroad," appearing as it did precisely at the close of the Civil war, at the opening of the epoch of industrial pioneering, in the hour when the life of business had become obligatory upon every American man? How easy it is to understand why it was so generally read as a guidebook by Americans traveling in Europe. It attacked not only the illegitimate pretensions of the human spirit but the legitimate pretensions also. It expressly made the American business man as good as Titan and a little better; it made him feel that art and history and all the great, elevated, admirable, painful discoveries of humankind were things not worth wanting one's emotions over.—Exchange.

Change.

Chiropractors at a convention discuss the probability that women in another few generations will have only four toes.

Tight shoes are deforming and dwarfing the little toe. Instructors at swimming pools frequently comment on the number of women whose little toes have almost disappeared.

Back of this is the biological principle that nature makes additions to the body when needed, and takes away parts no longer necessary. Thus fish in Mammoth cave are blind, not needing eyes. A change of diet has made a long human organ shrivel into a small appendix.

Chew Food Thoroughly.

A point which counts much for economy whether living at home or at restaurants is a rather funny one, you may say. I have not heard it mentioned often. People usually laugh about it, but it is very true, nevertheless. That is that most people—just the average person—but most people, do not chew their food sufficiently to get the full nutrient value from it. If food were chewed three or four times as long as it usually is, we would not eat more than half as much of it as we do. Think of cutting your next bill right in two in the middle! And feeling better for it!—Nellie Kelso in Their Magazine.

COLLEGE BOY REAL SALESMAN

Bright Idea That Enabled Him to Dispose of the Last Egg Cups in Stock.

Two college boys were peddling odds and ends of china in an unfrequented farming district. They stopped their ancient clanging truck before a typically unpretentious establishment. A round, solemn woman with her arms rolled up in her gingham apron approached the automobile, only mildly interested. The lad with the keen blue eyes and the quirkish mouth asked in a brusque tone, "Is there anything you would like in coffee cups, soup bowls or milk pitchers?"

"No," responded the woman disinterestedly, then brightened slightly as she added, "but I'd kinda like to look at some egg cups."

"Yes, ma'am," said the boy as he deftly slid the cover off a box containing five dusty but dainty receptacles. "You're lucky to get these, too; there are only five left."

The woman shook her head dubiously. "Can't use 'em. Five aren't enough. There's eight in our family." And she started back to the house.

"Wait a minute," called the boy frantically as he saw the possibility of a sale disappearing without a struggle. "Perhaps all of your family don't eat eggs."

BARON BELIEVED HIS YARNS

Munchausen Said to Have Deceived Even Himself by His Tales of Wild Adventures.

Baron Munchausen was the imaginary author and hero of a series of wonderful tales entitled "The Adventures of Baron Munchausen." They were first published in England in 1785 by Rudolph Erich Raspe, an expatriated German, and were followed by translations and imitations in German and other languages.

The name of the hero is said to be derived from Jerome Charles Frederick von Munchausen, a German officer in the service of Russia, who became notorious for his ridiculous tales of adventure. It is said that by dint of repetition he came finally to believe implicitly in the truth of his most extravagant stories.

The authorship of these tales is in dispute, although one authority says "the author is Rudolph Erich Raspe, and the sources from which the adventures were compiled are Bebel's 'Finesse,' Castiglione's 'Cortigiano,' Bildebrandt's 'Utopia,' and some of the baron's own stories."

Return of the Trencher.

The poet's table was set with very old plates—they were blocks of wood a foot square and two inches thick, wherein the plate proper was hollowed or dug.

"These," the poet said, "are trenchers, real old medieval trenchers. We derive from them the phrase, 'a good trencher-man,' you know."

As he spoke he served his guests with the hash of meat and potatoes that composed the frugal luncheon.

"The high cost of servants," he went on, "unless the revival of the trencher a necessity for us poor poets. Now, friends, clean your trenchers like good trenchermen; set the gravy up with bread; then turn them over for the pie course."

The guests duly turned their trenchers over and there on the other side was another plate, dug or hollowed out of the wood, just like the first one.

"Two plates in one," said the poet delightedly. "What a saving, eh?"

NEW WAY TO PUT CAT OUT

New Yorker Would Save to Have Done Considerable Amount of Thinking to Conserve Energy.

"I have heard of many methods for conserving energy practiced by New Yorkers," said the commutator who was spending the summer in town, according to the New York Sun, "but never have I seen anything to equal the man who lives on the second floor across the yard from me.

"I am staying in the old Washington square section and the back yards are fair sized and are together. I was sitting on the small porch the other afternoon about 6 o'clock when this man comes to his window with a large white cat. He fumbles about a bit and first thing we know he is holding the creature down by a long rope attached to a sort of harness that fitted about the cat's body, in the back yard.

"He then tied the rope to something inside the room and sat down to read his paper. In about half an hour the cord was jerked, which attracted the man's attention, and he started pulling the cat upward until he had it safe on the sill, when he took off the harness.

"And I wish you could have seen the broad expression on his face when he caught us roaring with laughter at him. All this to save himself walking down one flight of stairs to put the cat out in the yard."

CATTLE FOOD- BIG PROBLEM

Importance of Winter Fodder in Switzerland and Norway Cannot Be Overestimated.

Mountain peoples depend for much food on cows and goats. The problem of getting enough winter feed for the animals is a difficult one. And so this art of mowing has been developed to extremes. In Switzerland not a spear of grass escapes. Grass only three inches high is cut three a year. The Norwegian peasant gathers a small hay harvest from the roofs of his houses and barns and from the edges of the road. Swiss peasants, called witherers, secure hay from ledges of rocks. The risk is so great that the law in places only allows one witherer to a family.

The traveler in Norway frequently sees huge bundles of hay sliding down to a valley on wires stretched from some high precipice on a fiord. This represents the harvest from isolated spots or from the field of the summer shepherd. The economy of vegetable resources is caused by the necessity of finding fodder for the six or seven months of stall-feeding. Because of frequent rains in Swiss regions, no chance is taken in drying the hay. The farmer's family keeps tossing the hay to hurry drying.

The Nation's Destiny.

Our history, sir, has been a constant and expanding miracle from Plymouth Rock and Jamestown all the way—aye, even from the hour when, from the voiceless and trackless ocean, a new world rose to the sight of an inspired sailor. As we approach the fourth centennial of that stupendous day—when the old world will come to marvel and to learn, and our gathered pleasures—let us resolve to crown the miracles of our past with the spectacle of a republic compact, united, indissoluble in the bonds of love—loving from the Lakes to the Gulf—the wounds of war healed in every heart as on every hill—serene and resplendent at the summit of human achievement and earthly glory—blazing out the path and making clear the way up which all the nations of the earth must come in God's appointed time!—Henry W. Grady.

A Psychologist.

When Miller received an autograph copy of his friend Lewis' latest book on the "Genetic Theory of Knowledge" he immediately sat him down and acknowledged the gift, saying that he "anticipated great pleasure in its perusal."

"Why didn't you read it first?" asked Mrs. Miller. "Then you could have said something much nicer than that."

"Margaret," said the husband as he gave Lewis' book a conspicuous place on the library table. "I have a feeling that this is one of the times when my forethought would be better than my bluntness."

Owl's Need of Silence.

A good deal has been written, says Professor Batten in Chambers Journal, about the feathers of the owl, which enable him to fly with such unobtrusive flight that he can surprise his quarry lurking in the grass. It has often occurred to me, however, that the silence of the owl's flight may be due to the bird itself to hear, rather than to prevent others from hearing. In his hunting, the owl is dependent upon the minute sounds of guidance, and anyone who has ever flown will realize that it would be impossible to hear anything at all in the air unless flight were as noiseless as it is capable of being.

Red Clergy Plan Live Church

Calls All-Russian Conclave to Decide the Fate of Orthodoxy.

TO GET CLOSER TO MASSES

New Movement is Against Supporters of Old Byzantine Church Service Which Demands Splendor in All Its Glory.

Moscow.—The "Red clergy," led by a group of young men, held its first congress here early in August and discussed plans to establish a new "live church." It was contended that the church must be brought nearer to the masses, and that the "new church" should be as "simple and as humble as was Christ himself."

The aims of the "Red clergy," so-called because of its acknowledgment of the social revolution and the soviet Internationale, include liquidation of the superiority of the regular clergy in Russian church affairs, doing away with the reactionary section of higher clergy who, it is claimed, are still hoping for a coup d'etat to sweep them into power again, and preparation of an all-Russian conclave at which a successor to Patriarch Tichon is to be elected.

Orthodoxy in Split. The "Red clergy" group, headed by Archbishop Antonin and a number of young Moscow and Petrograd clergymen, came into existence as a result of a split among the Russian Orthodox clergy, brought about soon after confiscation of church treasures was started by soviet government officials.

Because of the opposition which developed among the ruling church authorities, a number of the clergy were prosecuted in various parts of Russia, even Patriarch Tichon himself having been placed on trial. Many sentences of death were imposed, some of which were carried into effect, and various other archbishops, bishops and clergymen were given jail sentences.

Realizing that the conflict between the state and the church threatened the very existence of the church itself, the group of young clergymen took the initiative and demanded the abdication of Patriarch Tichon. The "proletarianized." And it is on these grounds that the "Red clergy" have recognized the revolution, its results, and the Internationale.

The live church proposed also to clear the churches and parish councils of counter-revolutionary clergy and to remove the vow of celibacy for bishops.

Jersey Man Sentenced to Cut Grass in Library Grounds as Punishment for Hoax.

Belmar, N. J.—Because he played a practical joke on an undertaker, Harry G. Sykes was sentenced by Mayor William A. Bamford to cut grass in front of the public library.

Sykes was accused of calling by telephone Russell T. Hardy, reporting a death and asking him to take care of the corpse. When Hardy found he had been made the victim of a joke, he complained to the mayor.

Hunt Secret of Youth in Tibet

English Expedition Hopes to Penetrate Mysteries of Ancient Monasteries.

PRIESTS HAVE STRANGE POWER

Mission Expects to Find Rare Volume Written Shortly After the Great Deluge—Are All of Buddhist Faith.

London.—The veil of mystery which shrouds Tibet and the forbidden city of Lhasa may soon be pushed aside. Recently a group of English investigators left London for Tibet. There they hoped to obtain from Buddhist priests secrets of great and mysterious powers they are rumored to possess.

If the expedition succeeds it may mean a great step forward for the white race—or it may mean nothing at all.

The investigators are headed by D. W. M. McGovern. One of the principal rumors they will investigate is the statement that Tibetans have the power to lengthen the span of human life.

Know Secret of Youth.

It is said there are Tibetan priests who have been in the priesthood more than a century. It has been believed that the priests possess the secret for which Ponce de Leon sought in vain. Whether there is any truth in the belief is one of the things which the mission is interested.

Another matter the mission proposes to investigate is the belief that Tibetan monasteries contain books written thousands of years before the art of letters was introduced into the western world.

It has been rumored that in some of these monasteries, where no white man has ever been allowed to enter, are rare volumes written shortly after the great flood, giving an authentic account of the great deluge. Thus far the white world has been compelled to rely upon the Jewish legend contained in the Bible and the legends of other peoples.

Wealth in Libraries.

London is confident the investigators will find material of great importance in the libraries, records which will clarify many puzzling chapters in the early history of the world.

Whether or not the mission will accomplish the great things expected of it remains to be seen. Tibet has never welcomed intrusion from the outside world. A few short years ago a white man took his life into his hands to visit the country.

In the last few years, however, the attitude of the country has changed slightly—perhaps on account of Great Britain's invasion.

One thing which will be in favor of the men composing the English mission is the fact that all connected with the Buddhist faith. The leader is a Buddhist priest and as such will be able to get into much closer touch with the priests who guard the great secrets, if such they are than would one of the Christian faith.

The members of the mission are not so sanguine about finding a fountain of youth, but they do believe their investigations will be of great historical value. All this provided, of course, that Tibet allows "itself to be investigated." If not, about as much as the average tourist.

NINE JAP FLYERS DIE IN YEAR

During the Same Period 25 Were Wounded in 38,371 Flights, Says Report.

Tokyo.—During the last year in Japan nine aviators were killed and twenty-five wounded in 38,371 flights, the gross mileage of which was 512,909. These statistics were issued by the aviation department of the war office and include naval, military and civilian flyers, in reply to complaints that accidents had been frequent of late. These accidents, it is explained, were due to adverse atmospheric conditions above the central district of the country during spring and summer.

"As a whole, airplane accidents in this country are by no means so numerous as the recent frequency of accidental falls is apt to lead the people to believe," says the report.

REDUCE THE COST OF HELIUM

Government Makes Greatest Price Reduction on Record.

Cost is Dropped From $2,000 to Nine Cents a Cubic Foot, and May Be Reduced to Five Cents—Only Plant in World.

Fort Worth, Tex.—The biggest price reduction on record has just been put into effect here by the government's helium plant. The cost has been cut from $2,000 to 9 cents a cubic foot!

Even at that there is no crowd at the doors to take advantage of the great reduction. Experiments are now going forward to make the cost only 5 cents.

An immense warehouse at the plant has stored in it 2,000,000,000 cubic feet of helium. Two weeks ago two carloads of the product were shipped East for army use. The installation has been closed for six months, but recently resumed operation, congress having appropriated $800,000, which will keep the plant working for one year. When the plant is in full swing it is expected that 150 men will be employed there, and work will continue day and night.

This is the only helium plant in the whole world, giving this government a monopoly of the supply. Experiment has shown that only the Texas gas contains helium. Gas from other states and other countries, when tested, did not contain the element.

The Fort Worth plant was erected during the war and its first shipment was sent East before the war ended, but before it could reach France the armistice was declared. If the dirigibles during the war had been able to use helium, Lanham says military authorities informed him, the great conflict would have lasted no more than a year. On the other hand, if Germany had possessed this helium plant she could have sent her Zeppelins broadside and destroyed cities in France

ALIVE; SCOLDS UNDERTAKER

Victim of Catalepsy Complains Long and Loudly of Funeral Rites in Progress.

London.—The story of how a "dead" man scolded an undertaker is told by the Paris correspondent of the Daily Express.

A railway employee named Pierre Lesmelle on Saturday complained of strange pains in his head, and he went to bed. When the undertaker of the district visited him some time later his breathing had apparently stopped and his heart had ceased to beat.

The woman concluded that the man was dead. She reported his death to the authorities at the town hall and sent telegrams to his relatives in the province. Then she laid the body out for burial and placed candles at the head and feet.

On Monday arrangements were made with an undertaker and a grave was prepared. The undertaker and his assistant duly arrived with a coffin, but when they entered the room

Fight Fire and Water in Wreck

American Professor, Wife and Children Have Exciting Experience in Argentine.

OIL-LADEN VESSEL BLOWS UP

Battle in Water With Fear-Crazed Passengers—Burning Oil Spreads Over Water and Many Are Horribly Burned.

New York.—A burning ship surrounded by a sea of blazing gasoline, attacks by passengers crazed with fear that threatened to impede escape and the buffeting of rough waves were the obstacles that Professor Edward K. Kemmerer of Princeton University, his wife and two children battled against and overcame when the steamer Villafraza was wrecked in the Parana river, Argentine, last June.

Professor Kemmerer, a noted economist, who was at one time financial adviser to the Mexican and Guatemalan governments, returned recently with his family.

It was a dramatic narrative of a fire and shipwreck and the many obstructions that he and his family had to surmount before reaching shore that the professor unfolded. The Kemmerers are the only cabin survivors of the river tragedy.

"We were awakened at 2 a. m. by a roaring explosion," Professor Kemmerer began. "We were in bed and jumped out and only in our night clothing. Running to the companionway, we found the ship ablaze from stem to stern.

"Fire on All Sides. "We reached the deck, where there were swamping flames and saw oil burning on the water on all sides. Women and children were running about, some with clothing afire, men were fighting and people were jumping overboard.

"It was terribly hot and people were shouting and shrieking all about and there was great confusion. We saw it all in an instant and we knew we had no time to lose. Suddenly the ship began to list.

"My wife and children—Ruth, of the ship's hold where the cargo of gasoline was stored. I was looking back and could see the ring of the fire coming on toward us.

Seized by Drowning Man. "Suddenly I heard my wife scream. She had been seized by a drowning man who had gripped her and would have carried her down. Before I could reach her she had released herself and was swimming on. She was quite exhausted from the effort, however, and she had injured her leg, which had been broken several years ago.

"A man who had been burned and driven insane was on top of a table which had blown from the ship. He was clinging to the table on me and after a severe struggle I succeeded in disengaging myself from him.

"When I had done so I found the sea was running higher and we became separated, and unable to get together. Finally, we brought up to shore at various points and were cared for by the natives. It was two hours before I found my wife and children. My wife's face was slightly burned, but she has recovered from it."

THRIFT HABIT IS NOW POPULAR

Average of More Than One Savings Account for Every Family.

Reports to Bankers' Association Give Partial Data for Year Ended June 30, 1921—Total Amount Exceeds $16,600,000,000.

New York.—An average of more than one savings account for every family in the United States is indicated in partial data for the country, compiled by the savings bank division of the American Bankers' association, revealing more than 23,000,000 savings depositors. In addition, there are at least 10,000,000 other owners of savings accounts of varied forms whose numbers cannot be reduced to definite figures.

The summary follows:

"Complete data is practically impossible to obtain under present statistical conditions in regard to savings. But even with all figures lacking for the thousands of state-chartered banks which accept savings in Illinois, Missouri and twenty-three other states, and the District of Columbia, and with only the mutual savings banks out of all the state banks and trust companies in Indiana, Ohio and New Jersey included, the number of savings accounts reported by the federal and state supervisors of banks reached a total of 26,637,831 on June 30, 1921, which is the only date for which the statistics are available. The figures are made as follows:

Mutual savings banks (U. S.) .. 9,549,880 Other State banks (22 States) .. 6,196,227 Trust companies (6 States) .. 2,713,808 Private banks (New York only) .. 72,861 National banks (all States) .. 8,015,759

Total reported .. 26,637,831

"In addition there are millions of savings depositors in the non-reporting states above mentioned, which include not only the South with the exception of the Virginias, but also the great states between the Mississippi and the Rockies except Minnesota. Furthermore, there are perhaps three million owners of time certificates of deposit, which are used in place of savings accounts in rural sections; also the half million patrons of the postal savings system, five million members of building and loan associations and other millions who invest the proceeds of their thrift with life insurance, real estate mortgage and standard industrial and other corporations.

"The total of savings deposits recently was reported by the savings bank division of the American Bankers' association as amounting on June 30, 1921, to $16,618,595,000."

WILL TAP LAST BIG PINE FOREST

Great Tract in Oregon to Be Laid Under the Axe.

Will Be Cut in Rotation so Its Timber Will Never Give Out—When Last Unit is Cut First Will Be Ready for Cutting Again.

Washington.—The last great tract of untouched pine timber in the United States is soon to be tapped.

Behind the announcement of the forest service regarding the proposed sale of timber in the Malheur National Forest, Ore., says a statement by the National Lumber Manufacturers association, lumbermen see the last opportunity for their trade to deal with a virgin pine forest of great extent, and the last opportunity for the settler to take possession of a region remote from railroads and markets and virtually unused agriculturally.

"The opening for sale of the timber of the Bear Valley unit of the Malheur National Forest," says the statement, "affects 890,000,000 feet of the great Blue mountains forests now, and means the beginning of the lumbering of the entire forest with its more than 7,000,000,000 feet of timber. To begin the lumbering operations it will be necessary to build about 80 miles of main line railway, besides tap lines, which will open for settlement an agricultural country with area of 10,000 square miles.

"While this ancient forest is doomed the terms are such that the succession of its sylvan posterity is secure. Though the timber now offered for sale by the forest service is sufficient only to keep a moderate sized mill running continuously for twenty years the service will at the end of that time open up another unit and eventually 7,000,000,000 feet of timber will be available. It is reckoned that by the time the last unit is cut over the first one will be ready for cutting again.

"The agricultural development to ensue upon the lumbering activities, which will employ hundreds of men, and the necessary railway building, will demonstrate the policy of using the national forests as an adjunct of the general progress and welfare of adjacent regions. According to the forecast of the forest service there will be at least one logging and lumbering unit that will never have to move on to find new forests, at least one sawmill town, which will never die for lack of material for its industries."

"He has not been at home three months since he was six years old," his dad wrote the sheriff.

NAME CAVE FOR EXPLORERS

Lewis and Clark Cave in Montana Has Fine Collection of Stalactites and Stalagmites.

Butte, Mont.—Morrison cavern, 45 miles southeast of here, said to have been discovered in 1905 by George Morrison, has been placed under the supervision of the superintendent of national parks and renamed the Lewis and Clark cave in honor of the famous explorers.

The cavern has a collection of stalactites and stalagmites which is said to have few rivals in the country. After the proper lighting has been installed the large natural passway will be opened to the public.

The mouth of the passway to the cave is of the summit of a limestone cliff 1,200 feet above the Jefferson river. The main room of the cave is large enough to permit holding large meetings there.

Farmer Says Home-Made Tow-Line Pants Excel Present-Day Summer Trousers.

Fallon, Mo.—J. N. Hook, a retired farmer, lays ownership to a pair of pants that are twenty-five years old, and almost as good as the day they were made. Hook says they excel even the present-day summer trousers that are supposed to bring coolness and comfort. They are a pair of real honest-to-goodness home-made trousers of "towel" cloth. They show some evidences of wear, but still are entirely serviceable. The flax from which they were made was grown in Callaway county and made by Hook's stepmother, who also spun it, wove it and made the trousers.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

A young man who practiced medicine in Pennsylvania became famous and was called in consultation in many towns and cities because of his success in the treatment of disease. This was Dr. Pierce, who finally made up his mind to place some of his medicines before the public, and moving to Buffalo, N. Y., put up what he called his "Favorite Prescription," and placed it with the druggists in every state.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has long been recognized as a tonic for diseases peculiar to woman-kind. After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged-down by weaknesses of her sex—a woman is quickly restored to health by its use. Thousands of women testify that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has entirely eradicated their distressing ailments.

More recently that wonderful discovery of Dr. Pierce's, called An-guric (for kidneys and backache), has been successfully used by many thousands who write Dr. Pierce of the benefits received—that their backache, rheumatism, and other symptoms of uric acid deposits in joints or muscles have been completely conquered by its use.

TO AID LEGION'S AFFLICTED

Chairman of Rehabilitation Committee Shows Need of Care for World War Victims.

Many a former soldier boy is finding his old officers, who, like himself, have returned to the paths of peace, spending their time and energies and money fighting his battles for him these days.

In the national dispute between Brigadier General Sawyer and the national rehabilitation committee of the American Legion over the committee's claim of governmental neglect and obstruction in providing hospitals for the disabled veterans.

He is Humphrey McBride, former lieutenant colonel, of St. Louis, and chairman of the rehabilitation committee of District No. 9, comprising Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska in the United States Veterans' bureau designation of territory.

Mr. McBride quotes the government report of 1,348 beds available in Missouri for disabled veterans and asserts a careful check by his committee can locate only 1,143. He asserts there are 5,000 cases of insane with only 402 in hospitals, and that part of these are in contract institutions at an average expense of $300 a day without any supervision whatsoever over the care given them.

"There are 518 insane comrades who should be receiving the best of care, in Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska," he declares. "They should be in hospitals. The district absolute requires immediately up-to-date hospital facilities for treatment of 1,000 insane veterans."

"There is urgent need for satisfactory hospital facilities for 1,000 medical and surgical cases in order that the suspected insane or tubercular veterans may be provided with observation and diagnosis, and that hundreds of totally or partially disabled veterans may be treated and re-examined as the occasion requires. There are, according to the actual records of the Veterans' bureau, 6,000 ex-service men in this district suffering with tuberculosis; 191 are in hospitals within the district, 52 of them in contract hospitals, 139 in government owned or leased institutions. Many more have been sent to the South or West far away from homes and families. This district imperatively needs two 500-bed hospitals located at points within the district, and easy of access."

RAISE BUGS TO FIGHT BUGS

French Scientists Breed Insects and Birds That Are Enemies of Fruit-Destroying Pests.

There is a quaint institution in Mentone, in the south of France, known as the Insectarium, where learned professors are rearing various species of bugs and other insects.

Mentone is in the center of an important fruit-growing district, and the object is to discover the best means of fighting those insect pests that prey upon plants and ruin the fruit.

The orchards have suffered severely through the ravages of the mealy bug, and the fruit growers were becoming quite alarmed. Then experts discovered that three other species of bug are the natural enemies of the mealy. So these are being bred and reared and turned loose in the orchards as allies of the fruit growers.

The institution is also breeding certain species of ladybirds to destroy the cochineal, an insect that plays havoc with orange and lemon trees. These ladybirds have been brought from far Australia and California.

The institution is nothing less than an up-to-date insect farm, consisting of a large private house and an acre of ground. In the laboratory are rows upon rows of phials and jars, the larvae of various insects which are kept at a high temperature. In the garden are cages full of all kinds of creeping and flying pests.

VAST WEALTH FROM SILVER

Fortunate Spaniards Spent Millions as the Average Man Might Dispose His Dollars.

In the old Spanish days in Mexico, millionaires were often made overnight in the rich silver-mining sections around Guadalupe. A shrewd prospector in the early days, named Zambrano, discovered a mine which brought him immense wealth. He spent most of his time in the capitals of Europe, living as extravagantly as possible, squandering vast sums at the gaming table, but managing to leave a snug little fortune of $60,000,000. One of his whims was to lay a silver pavement in front of his house, but this the authorities forbade. In these days silver was on a parity with gold.

The conde de Valenciana, who discovered one of the richest mines in this section, derived so much wealth from it that he is said to have gotten rid of $100,000,000 in a few years. Another silver king sent the king of Spain $2,000,000 as a Christmas present, and asked to be allowed to build galleries and portals of silver around his mansion. This request was refused, the authorities declaring that such magnificence was the privilege of royalty only.

Making Burglar's Tools.

The "Black museum" at Scotland Yard has recently acquired a fine set of house-breaking tools which had been abandoned by their owner after a burglary. These instruments show wonderful workmanship. There is a collapsible jimmy that folds up in the pocket, a rope ladder of silk that fits into the palm of the hand, a number of keys and lock-picking instruments, and a neat oxygen-acetylene blow-lamp. Where do burglars obtain these marvelous tools? They are experts at making skeleton keys and so on, but they are not capable of making the other implements. No respectable firm manufactures such articles, although a small quantity is made secretly by employees of reputable firms, the majority come from special factories engaged in nothing else but making burglar's tools. Such factories are hidden away in back streets, and it is almost impossible to locate them.

Woo in Flower Language.

The language of flowers in the Near East is no simple form of speech that anyone may understand. Long and elaborate communications may be sent by bouquet if the lady is not too lazy to learn a complicated code. There is, say those Turks who claim to understand it, a direct and an indirect form of flower message.

The indirect message goes by words that rhyme either with the name of the flower or with the meaning of the name of the flower. They go to lengths in selecting and collecting poems for bouquets to be sent singly and in series that would be quite too much trouble to the average American. To the average American girl it sounds too complicated to interest anybody but a lady shut up in a courtyard without a telephone.

Four Minnesota men have entered into an agreement whereby the last one alive gets to drink a pint of real whiskey. That's something to live for.

CARED LITTLE ABOUT MONEY

Daniel Webster Refused to Be Bothered Over Comparatively Paltry Questions of Finance.

In A. B. Farquhar's "The First Million the Hardest" he optimistically points out that the senate has greatly improved in business integrity since Daniel Webster's day, when senators could not be expected to bother about paying their bills. Mr. Farquhar was once talking with Mr. Corcoran (the Corcoran art gallery fame) in his bank at Washington. Daniel Webster had just been in to borrow money and had asked the cashier to discount his note for $100. The bank did not discount notes that were not indorsed, so Webster went out and brought a note for $200, indorsed by another senator with whom he had promised to divide the profits. Mr. Corcoran remarked that the only value of the note was as a curiosity. It was never paid, and the Riggs bank still has it.

"Daniel Webster was very careless about all of his personal affairs," says Mr. Farquhar. "He was said to be scrupulous about paying his gambling debts, but he did not bother with little bills. He often thought it quite enough to give a creditor a copy of his signature without bothering to honor the promise to pay on it.

"He was such a powerful, lionlike sort of a man and his voice was so glorious and magnificent that I do not believe any one in the country would have ventured to mention such a trivial thing as money in his presence. Few more impressive men have ever lived—in fact, he had been called a living lie, because, as was said, 'no man could possibly be as great as Webster looked.'"

REALLY IS "CRANE'S FOOT"

Word "Pedigree" a Corruption of Term Which Was Applied to Idea by the French.

Perhaps, after all, it would be more appropriate to call a family "tree" a family "crane's foot." When one speaks of a person's "pedigree" he does not, at least consciously, mean to infer that this has anything in common with the foot of a crane. But this happens to be the literal meaning of the word, which, like a number of others, has found its way into English because of the difficulty in applying the proper pronunciation to a French phrase.

A pedigree is, of course, nothing more than a list of ancestors, and this, when blocked out in the manner dear to the hearts of genealogists, takes the form of connecting lines radiating from the common progenitor of the family to his descendants. The French, always fond of painting word pictures of familiar objects, referred to a chart of this nature as a "ped-de-grue," or crane's foot, on account of the resemblance between the two. The English appropriated the term bodily and translated it phonetically as "pedigree."

HOLD VARIOUS BIRDS SACRED

People of Many Lands Strongly Superstitious Concerning Some of the Feathered Tribe.

Some Indian tribes will never hurt or even touch certain birds, regarding them as the abode of the animated souls of their dead chiefs. In England and Scotland, especially, the robin is regarded as sacred. Its red breast is supposed to be of that color because a drop of Christ's blood fell on a robin, and thenceforward all robins were so marked.

It is deemed unlucky to kill a swallow or to destroy its nest. That is because swallows were said to have flown round the Cross of Calvary crying "Sala Sala!" which means comfort. It will be noticed that the swallow gets its name from this peculiar cry of "Sala."

The wren is another sacred bird, because, according to an old belief, it brought fire from heaven to the earth when the human race had no knowledge of how to create fire.

The lark is a bird of luck, and to have one build in the garden of one's home is said to be a sign of coming good fortune.

As Night After Day.

The scene was a bedroom in a suburb, and a worried parent was ransacking the floor at a weird hour of the early morn. With his first-born in his arms, many vain endeavors to soothe the infant's cries had been made, but the little one was laboring under the impression that things needed waking up and that he was the person to do it.

"It seems to me you know what you were about," groaned Pickelbury to his wife, "when you insisted on the child being called 'Hugh.'"

"What has his name to do with his fretfulness?" asked the unamplious wife.

"Everything!" replied the wretched man. "You would call him 'Hugh,' you know, and where there is a hue there's always a cry."—London Tit-Bits.

OLD FORM OF TELEGRAPHING

Crude Method Employed by Ancient Peoples, but It Conveyed the Desired Information.

Practical telegraphy is not so entirely a product of modern science as many may suppose. It is tradition that Agamemnon telegraphed the fall of Troy to Greece by means of bonfires on the mountain tops. Although there may be much doubt as to whether this is not a mere legend, there can be no question that in the second century before Christ there was a system of telegraphing in Europe by which messages were sent from one place to another by means of fire, the words being spelled out letter by letter.

The letters of the alphabet were arranged in five columns, so that any letter could be designated by stating in what column it was contained and its number in that column. To convey this information to a distance two men, each having five torches, were stationed behind two barricades; the first, by holding up the necessary number of torches, indicated the number of the column that contained the letter he was sending, and the second indicated similarly the actual numerical place of the letter in that column. It is evident that by a series of stations messages of any length could have been sent—say from Rome to Athens.

"Adamzad."

The Chimozit, or Nandi bear, a mysterious animal that is said to haunt the deep forests in the more inaccessible parts of the East African highlands, has again been seen, this time by a party of reliable European and native witnesses.

It has been seen by various people several times during recent years, but no specimen has been killed or captured. The latest description of the bear tallies accurately with previous reports. The animal is between five and six feet high, walks on his hind legs something after the manner of a chimpanzee, and has a long fringe of white hair completely encircling his face.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

ARIZONA INDUSTRIAL CONGRESS MAKES HOME PRODUCTS POPULAR

PHOENIX, Oct. 31.—Arizona products are being given preference in supplying the men working on the Santa Fe's double-tracking operations in Mohave county, according to reports to the Arizona Industrial Congress.
"When in Arizona do as the Arizonians do" seemed to be the motto of outside concerns engaged in the work which used American products. As witness this statement from Marsh Brothers and Gavelman, Inc., contracting engineers of San Francisco and sub-contractors on the Santa Fe program:
"We have made it a practice to deal as far as possible with Arizona merchants in connection with our needs on our construction work as sub-contractors on the Santa Fe. We have purchased all our food for our men from merchants in Kingman and we have been accorded a very high-grade service. He has also purchased to date 65,695 feet, board measure, of native lumber from a Flagstaff concern."
Officials of the Industrial Congress report good support from all interests in the "Use Arizona Products" campaign it has been conducting all year with the co-operation of the farm bureau and chambers of commerce.
