PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Word has been received in Patagonia that Captain John H. Cady, a former Patagonian, and well known pioneer of Arizona, has been married in California. Mr. James Brash reports having one of the best and largest apple crops he has ever had in his orchard. Jack Gardner was in from Salero Monday and Tuesday. Pete Bergier was a Patagonia visitor Wednesday from his Soreno canyon ranch. Mother Goose bread is handled in Patagonia by the Evans Mercantile Company, and is baked by O. H. Weaver's Home Bakery, Nogales. Advertisement. Mrs. Merna Brown and son, who have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Williamson of San Rafael valley, returned Tuesday to her home in Globe. Mrs. A. C. Best and son, Ernest, were Saturday shoppers in Patagonia. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Williamson were in from their San Rafael valley ranch Monday. B. A. Hanson of Elgin was a Patagonia visitor Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Fay Whipple of Elgin were in town Tuesday. Ten carloads of cattle were shipped to the coast Wednesday from Sonoita. Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Epperson were shopping in town Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Chapman were in from their River ranch Tuesday. Ho J. Whiteside came over from Mesa Tuesday to cast his ballot. He is employed in the engineer's department of the state highway organization. C. B. Wilson received a carload of bran Tuesday. FOR SALE—Mr. James Brash has on hand at his orchard, at Patagonia, a large supply of fine apples; prices from 5c to 6c a pound, according to quality and size. Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Stone and Mrs. Roy Stump and children were county cent visitors Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. V. L. McCutchan have moved to Tombstone, where Mr. McCutchan has gone into business. Mrs. Evans of Wichita Falls, Texas, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. S. W. Kenward. Mother Goose bread is good bread. It is baked by the Home Bakery, Nogales, and is delivered every morning to the Evans Mercantile Company, Patagonia. Advertisement. Mrs. J. W. Miller was a Nogales business visitor Tuesday. Eric Ostberg, brother of Mrs. C. B. Wilson, left Wednesday for eastern points seeking a location for his family, who will remain in Patagonia indefinitely. W. D. and Henry Gray of the 3 R district of the Patagonia mountains passed through town Tuesday on their way to Harshaw to vote. Barnett & Barnett, City Market, meats.—Advertisement. James Rountree, who is drilling a well on the James L. Finley ranch at Canille, has been in town several days this week awaiting a new cable for his rig. He is drilling in the Canille hills, which are located in a game preserve, and says deer are so tame there that they come right into camp in the daytime to lick salt. Mr. Greenwood of the Tres de Mayo mine was in Tucson Monday and Tuesday on business. Josiah Bond passed through town last week on his way to Alto. He had been held up with a sprained ankle at the citizens training camp, Fort Bliss, Tex., for several weeks. Mrs. C. Price of San Antonio passed through Patagonia Monday on her way to Leebell to visit her mother, Mrs. C. de la Osa. E. D. Farley was in from Harshaw Tuesday to vote. Mrs. Bud Baldwin and Clyde McPherson of the San Rafael valley were business visitors to Patagonia Tuesday. A. H. Gibbwell left Wednesday morning for the Hunchuca mountains, where he will visit his daughter, Mrs. Redleaf, for several days.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The school as a whole will send a portfolio of school work, snapshots and letters, from the different grades to Junior Red Cross headquarters in San Francisco to exchange for a similar portfolio from some other country. The four upper grades will send separate portfolios. The Junior secretary writes that Patagonia school is the first school in the western division to report definitely for service. During the month of October the five rooms had the following percentages of attendance: Mrs. Fortune's room, 95; Mrs. Kimble's room, 95; Miss Purcell's room, 91; Miss Slater's room, 90; Miss Henley's room, 95. The sixth grade enjoyed a holiday, which they had earned through good attendance, Friday afternoon. The upper grades of the school of Oskaloosa, Kan., sent a large box of autumn leaves and nuts to the school. The pupils of Patagonia will send a collection from Arizona. The seventh, eighth and ninth grades enjoyed their earned half-holiday Tuesday afternoon. The fifth and sixth grades enjoy a spelling baseball game and arithmetic and dictionary matches. The eighth grade pupils, after reading "Rip Van Winkle," dramatized the story in six scenes. Each pupil wrote one scene. The play as a whole will be placed in the portfolio of work from the class to be sent in to Junior Red Cross headquarters. All of the rooms are cheerful with potted plants sent by the women of Patagonia. Louis Valenzuela and Ruth Gatlin have passed arithmetic test number 13. Mrs. H. B. Riggs has added the magazine "Axa" to the school library. The blackboard in the fifth and sixth grade room is decorated with a clever original Thanksgiving calendar, the work of Alfonso Valenzuela. The writing classes will use with the Zaner method a system of scales and awards. The awards consist of badges and certificates in four degrees. The badges are given first for good position and proper holding of pen and pencil in class. The certificates are given for improved form and for applied movement. The pupils of the grammar grades are candidates for a certificate sent out by the Zaner and Bloer Company, publishers of the writing compendiums. CANDIDATES CONTRIBUTE START IN SAVINGS ACCOUNT Baby prize winners at Elgin are recipients of prize money contributed by Santa Cruz county candidates for office. These prizes are made up of contributions of 25 cents from each candidate, and the total amount will be split and deposited in a savings account to the credit of Betty Evelyn Sprung and Fred Telles, who carried off the honors in this baby contest. The contest followed a community health day at Elgin, where 76 children in the school were weighed, measured and examined by Dr. Willis Wood Starr, assisted by Mrs. Henry Garmans and Mrs. W. F. Roth, trained nurses. This community survey is being followed up by suggestions for improving the health of the children, and plans may be worked out which will provide the necessary surgical assistance. The county school superintendent and the local school teachers are largely responsible for the success of the work which was under the direct charge of Miss Evelyn Bentley, home demonstration agent for Santa Cruz county. JAMES ROBINS IS NAMED CITY ATTORNEY OF NOGALES James Robins, popular young attorney of Nogales, has been appointed city attorney by the Nogales city council, succeeding E. R. Pardon, who recently moved to California. Mr. Robins is a member of the law firm of Duffy & Robins, and is well known in this part of the state.

MRS. AMY BURT

The great barracks of Kouley, a suburb of Constantinople, formerly the Turkish military school, is now under the command of an American woman, Mrs. Amy Burt of Berkeley, Cal., but instead of training Turkish officers, Mrs. Burt is superintending a great orphanage which has been organized in the extensive buildings.

Hunt Reviews Phoenix Victory Parade

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 8. — Governor-Elect George W. P. Hunt reviewed a mammoth democratic victory parade tonight. Mr. Hunt reviewed the procession from a seat near the State Democratic Headquarters in the Ford Hotel building. For more than one half hour the long procession passed the reviewing stand. Prominent party leaders occupied seats near that of Mr. Hunt. Among these leaders were several prominent in party circle outside Maricopa county. Returns received today from election continue to add to the democratic landslide. It is believed Mr. Hunt's majority over Tom Campbell will be between 7,000 and 7,500. He has apparently carried every county in party circle outside Maricopa county of Yavapai, Campbell's home county. The next legislature will be almost entirely democratic. Only two republican members of the lower house were elected in Maricopa county. The other twelve members chosen are democrats. Both seats in the state senate from Maricopa county were won by democrats. The entire democratic county ticket is believed to have been elected in Maricopa. Jerry Sullivan, democratic candidate for sheriff, was among the victors. Mr. Hunt returned this morning from Globe, his former home town, where he voted yesterday. He was showered with congratulations in Globe and Phoenix and towns through which he passed enroute from Globe to Phoenix. Upon arrival at his beautiful home on McDowell Road in this city, he found hundreds of telegrams from all parts of the state and nation, congratulating him upon his great victory. OLD SETTLERS' PICNIC SOCIAL AND FINANCIAL SUCCESS The Old Settlers' picnic and dance, held last Saturday at Sonoita, was successful, financially and socially. Those contributing to the success of the day include: Mr. and Mrs. Virgil A. Long, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Hannas, Walter Barney, Al Hilton, the local committee; the candidates who donated the beef for the barbecue; Clyde Shields, who barbecued the meat, and Ed Legendre, stockeep for Sonoita, who donated the coffee. Profits ($52.80) from the picnic will be used to repair an dilapidated Floral Hall, Sonoita, which is badly in need of attention. The committee that handled the affair wishes to extend thanks to those who helped make the day a success.

MARICOPA GOES DEMOCRATIC FIRST TIME SINCE 1916

PHOENIX, Nov. 8. — The Democratic landslide was not confined to the state ticket insofar as Maricopa county is concerned for it carried with it practically the entire county ticket. Every Democratic county and precinct candidate was elected on the face of incomplete returns compiled by the Arizona Republican. In only three instances was the vote close enough to leave the issue still in doubt. One of these was for supervisor, district No. 2, where Guy S. Vernon was making stubborn resistance to S. K. Phillips. The latter was leading by a majority of about 200 on the face of returns from about half of the precincts. Freda Marks, Republican candidate for the legislature from the first legislative district of the county, comprising four Phoenix precincts, was running neck and neck with Charles W. Henry, her Democratic opponent. George Kirkland, Republican candidate for justice of the peace of the East Phoenix precinct, was still in the running with Fred C. Bolen, Democrat, though he was trailing his opponent by more than 100 votes. The remainder of the Democratic ticket, including Jerry Sullivan for sheriff and Gene Cunningham for county attorney have safe majorities. All doubt as to the final outcome of the contests were removed shortly after midnight Tuesday night when returns from the Southside began coming in. Maricopa is undoubtedly Republican, and Phoenix has long been conceded to be. This is the first defeat the party has sustained in the city and county in eight years and it is the most comprehensive walloping it has suffered in 20 years. Legion Commander in Nogales Today NOGALES, Nov. 9.—(Special).—Celora M. Stoddard of Phoenix, state commander of the American Legion, will arrive Friday night to deliver the principal address at the big Armistice Day celebration to be held here Saturday under the auspices of Ridge-Igo Post of The Legion. A delegation of Legion men will leave Nogales at 6 o'clock Friday evening for the detour on the Tucson road where they will meet Commandant Stoddard, and escort him to this city. Stoddard will speak at 11:30 o'clock Saturday morning from the reviewing stand in front of the city hall. The Legion program will open with what promises to be the biggest parade held on the border in many months. The parade will form at 9:15 o'clock in front of the plant of the Arizona & Gas Electric Company on Grand avenue and will start promptly at 10 o'clock. After the parade, will come the speaking, and singing by members of the Twenty-fifth Infantry and other local persons. There will be several selections by the Twenty-fifth Infantry Band and The Legion's "Dumb Corps." Attorney Frank J. Barry is also to be one of the Armistice Day speakers. Attorney J. W. Fitzpatrick will introduce the speakers. On Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock The Legion will handle the gate receipts at the Douglas-Nogales High School football game, and in the evening there will be a public dance at the Firemen's Club. No charge of any kind will be made for the dance. Friday night, The Legion will present the great patriotic picture, "Carlizian," at the Nogales Theatre.

Democratic Landslide Sweeps State From Governor Down

In Santa Cruz county, as in the state and nation, there was a big Democratic landslide at last Tuesday's election. All Democratic candidates of the county were elected by handsome majorities. The state senator from this county is a Democrat and the board of supervisors will have the usual majority, Farley and Ashburn being re-elected by safe majorities. The state ticket went over in this county by large majorities over the Republican candidates. George W. P. Hunt, Democratic candidate for governor, carried the county by nearly 200 votes. The vote for supervisor in the second district is nearly 2 to 1 in favor of O. F. Ashburn over his Republican opponent, A. S. Henderson, and James L. Farley, Democrat, won in the third district over Dr. L. W. Klene, by more than 2 to 1. Judge W. A. O'Connor, Democratic candidate for county attorney, received the highest vote of any candidate in Santa Cruz county, his total being 1206, a majority of 824 over his Republican opponent, A. H. DeRiemer, incumbent. Unofficial figures of the county results give the following majorities: Ross, 177; Howe, 226; Ashburn, 439; Hayden, 572; Hunt, 105; Kerby, 211; Ramsey, 316; Hulbs, 172; Murphy, 253; Case, 49; Betts, 349; Foster, 276; Pierce, 156; Harold, 333; Brown, 308; Walker, 281; O'Connor, 824; Farrell, 498; Biel, 452; Hardy, 156; Page, 78. M. Marsteller, unopposed candidate for judge of the superior court, received 1102 votes; Lee, Democratic candidate for clerk of the superior court, also unopposed, received 1152, and Vic Wager, Democratic candidate for county assessor, 1181. Patagonia Precinct Unofficial Totals O. J. Baughn, 53; Henry D. Ross, 78; Frank H. Lyman, 102; For Judge of the Superior Court, M. Marsteller, 117; For State Tax Commission, Charles R. Howe, 78; Ed. W. Stephens, 39; For United States Senate, Henry F. Ashburn, 101; Jas. H. McGintock, 30; For Representative in Congress, Carl Hayden, 102; Emma M. Gould, 25; For Governor, Geo. W. P. Hunt, 92; Thomas E. Campbell, 51; For Secretary of State, James H. Kerby, 90; Ernest H. Hall, 45; For State Auditor, Richard H. Ramsey, 92; James A. Smith, 35; For State Treasurer, Wayne Hulbs, 85; James Greggs, 45; For Attorney General, John W. Murphy, 85; W. J. Galbraith, 45; For Superintendent of Public Instruction, C. O. Case, 89; Elsie Toles, 50; For Corporation Commission, Amos A. Betts, 89; B. A. Kirk, 39; For State Mine Inspector, Tom C. Foster, 79; John C. White, 57; For State Senator, Phil Herold, 105; J. W. A. O'Connor, 129; A. H. DeRiemer, 13; For County School Superintendent, Grace A. Farrell, 128; Mrs. Geo. J. White, 17; For Assessor, Victor J. Wager, 119; For Recorder, Tracy Bird, 100; A. J. Abbott, 36; For Supervisor, District No. 2, O. F. Ashburn, 81; A. S. Henderson, 61; For Justice of the Peace, Hayden Pondergrass, 112; For Constable, Lou C. Quinn, 112. Amendment No. 100, 23 for and 64 against it. Amendment No. 102, 19 for and 63 against it; Amendment No. 300, 15 for and 64 against it. Nogales Celebration—Morning Democrat of 9th Democratic parades, celebrating the victory at the polls Tuesday, were held throughout Arizona last night, but none more successful than that in Nogales. Several hundred Santa Cruz County dyed-in-the-wool democrats participated in a triumphal march through the business district and a portion of the residential section. "It was some parade". That's the easiest way to express it in a few words. It could also be called a "cooker" or a "humdinger." There were many unique features and those responsible for it's success are entitled to much praise. The big procession formed on Grand avenue just north of The Democrat office and moved south on Grand to Crawford, north on Crawford to Sonoita avenue, south on Sonoita to International, east on International to Morley, north on Morley to Court, west on Court to Grand, and south to the starting place. Wirt Bowman, on horseback, and wearing a silk hat, lead the parade, and behind him came the Twenty-fifth Infantry Band which played various airs, including "Hail, Hail, The Gang's All Here." "There'll be a hot time in the old town tonight," and "Over There." When the parade swept down International street, along the American-Mexican border, the band stopped and played "The Star Spangled Banner," and the Mexican national air. There were numerous torches in the parade, also a great amount of red-fire, both of which brilliantly illuminated the thoroughfares traversed by the happy crowd of democrats. Several floats, adorned with snappy and amusing inscriptions, attracted much attention. Many democrats placed cars in the procession. The biggest feature was an old-time hearse, used eight or ten years ago by the Marsh Undertaking Company. It was drawn by two mules, driven by Del Moslander, and it was well lighted by candles. Along the sides and back of the hearse walked about fifty "palaberrera" carrying torches. A big hat, representing the numbers worn by Tom Campbell, was inside the hearse. Another float, conveying a miniature coffin, bore the wording "Here Lies Tom, He Rumbled Till We Cut Him Down." Another float carried the republican angora. On the back of one car, was reproduced an editorial squib, appearing in the local evening republican paper one day back in September in which they said there would be a republican victory at the election Tuesday. "Right as usual" was the wording underneath the editorial. A cartoon on one car showed Hunt punching a burro into the state 41 years ago and punching a camel out day before yesterday. One float had a banner reading "What the republicans have done for the ex-soldiers." O. O. O. answered this question. "Republicans will find sympathy in the dictionary," and "We own our own automobiles," was painted on banners on two cars. The Arizona Gas & Electric Company had three cars in the procession, one of which bore a banner reading "Democrats for public office, Proto's juice for every purpose." One truck carried Judge Marsteller, Phil Herold, Tracy Bird, Senator C. A. Pierce, Harold Brown, who were among the victors at Tuesday's election and on this truck also rode Duane Bird, Judge Frank J. Duffy, Mr. Kinsley, Tom Fraser, Ed Bohlinger, Emery Miller, C. L. Hardy, Howard Keener, F. L. Edinborough, and other party leaders. A great crowd lined the streets to witness the jubilant democrats celebrate their victory, and they enjoyed it and is needless to say that the democrats had one glorious time. It was an affair that will long be remembered on the border. About 500 democrats took part. "Drys" Hold Majority in Congress WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—The Drys claim and the Wets admit tonight that the Prohibitionists will have enough votes in the next Congress to defeat any proposal of the anti-bone dry defeat of Volstead, head of the bone dry strength in the house, is the outstanding result of the election from both standpoints. A leading cabinet member indicated that the bone dries will have serious difficulty holding their voting strength together at the next election as neither party can afford to tie up with them. NEW FOREST ROAD TO CANILLE Four miles of new road and 4 miles of repair work will be done on a forest road between the San Rafael Valley and Canille, according to Arthur B. Young, engineer for the forest service, stationed at Canille, who was a Patagonia visitor Tuesday, accompanied by Mrs. Young. Twenty-five men will be employed on the work of building the new forest road, which will be started at the Baldwin ranch in the San Rafael Valley and will connect with the Canille-Fort Huachuca road at the Canille post-office. Mr. Young will have charge of the work, with C. N. Schaffer as foreman of construction. No grade on the new road will be more than 6 per cent, and the width will be approximately 14 feet. The forest service has a three-year road and trail building program before it, which will improve transportation facilities to a great extent through the forest reserve districts of the west. PATAGONIA DANCE NOV. 29 There will be a dance in Patagonia November 29th. Proceeds will go toward paying the deficit of the Patagonia baseball club and the Tennis club. A large crowd is expected to be present. Good music will be furnished. Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Pierce, Miss Ethyl McCormick and Mrs. Ed Farley motored to the city Wednesday from Patagonia to witness the democratic victory parade.

ELGIN NEWS

The Woman's Club of Rain Valley was entertained at the home of Dr. and Mrs. L. W. Klene Thursday afternoon. Among those present were: Mrs. Skutt, Mrs. P. E. Dalton, Mrs. Ray Schock and son Leslie, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nell, Mrs. Klene and Mrs. Sara Baker. Mr. E. M. Ferris accompanied a shipment of cattle to California Tuesday last week. Miss McCollister, teacher of the Elgin school, gave a delightful Halloween entertainment at the school house and the program was enjoyed by those present. During the evening peanuts and apples were served. AT THE COMMERCIAL HOTEL Registered at the Commercial Hotel this week: J. G. Erierson, Nogales; W. A. O'Connor, Nogales; W. R. Montgomery, Tucson; P. C. Miller, Tucson; Geo. E. Short, Tucson; Cooper Hunter, El Paso; R. L. Ash, Douglas; J. Rodriguez, Douglas; G. W. Jones, Tucson; B. Offutt, Tucson; H. E. Hickman, Tucson; Clyde C. Atkins, Tucson; Mrs. J. D. Brown, Globe; Mrs. Rose Williamson, San Rafael; Mrs. C. Price, San Antonio; R. G. Craig and wife, Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. H. Silverton, El Paso. President Legarra's Statement "It was a clean landslide." J. A. Legarra, president of the Santa Cruz County Democratic Club, made the above statement yesterday in commenting upon the democratic victory in state and county, Tuesday. Much credit for the victory in Santa Cruz County is due the Democratic Club, which worked hard and urged straight democratic ballots. President Legarra was on the job every minute, and other members of the club also performed their duties in an excellent manner. "As long as I have been in Arizona, I have never seen such a clean landslide" said Mr. Legarra.

What Winner and Loser Say

After the returns showed that George W. P. Hunt, democrat, had defeated Thomas E. Campbell, republican, in the gubernatorial race, the two candidates issued the following statements Tuesday night: HUNT GRATIFIED "I wish to express my appreciation and gratification in the confidence placed in me by the voters of Arizona. While I never had a doubt of being elected, nevertheless I am quite surprised in carrying Maricopa County. That is the biggest recommendation I could ask for. I have no policy to announce yet but I can assure the people of this state that I shall try to the best of my ability to make a good governor."—GEORGE W. P. HUNT. GOVERNOR CAMPBELL CONGRATULATES HUNT "I extend my congratulations to Mr. Hunt and hope he can keep the promises he has made."—THOMAS E. CAMPBELL.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Lloyd George Starts Campaign and Bonar Law Forms New British Ministry.

GERMANY IS TOPPLING AGAIN

Threatens Voluntary Bankruptcy and Reparations Body Hurries to Berlin—Daugherty's Dry Ship Ruling is Upheld—News From the Near East.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE, forced out of the British prime ministership by the attitude of the Conservative party, seeks re-election to parliament and return to power. He opposes the radical demands of labor, and advocates the fostering of friendly relations with the United States and with Russia. In this instance especially British politics affects the world at large. Is it your opinion that Britain would be wise again to put the helm of the ship of state in Lloyd George's hands?

THOUGH he has not fulfilled prophecy by trying to form a new party, David Lloyd George is making a pretty fight for return to parliament and to power. He declares his object is to secure the dominance of a party or group that will keep the government in a middle course of safety and moderation. Addressing a gathering of the National Liberal party, he took a firm stand against recent radical demands of the Labor party, and also made it clear that one of his chief claims for support was his friendly relations with the United States. He asserted all reasonable concessions must be made to induce this country to enter the League of Nations, which would be crippled without it. He said Britain must pay her war debt to the United States in full. "Working with the United States," declared he, "ought to be one of the chief purposes of the government. If these two nations would work together, it would be the surest guarantee for a just peace, and a just peace is the only lasting peace."

The ex-premier's quarrel with the Labor party is in a way international, for that party, in a manifesto issued last week, not only demands the creation of a "war debt redemption fund by a special graduated levy on fortunes exceeding $5,000," but also declares for the revision of the peace treaty and German reparations, for an international conference to arrange the freedom of the straits, for independence in Egypt and self-government in India.

Andrew Bonar Law, having been elected head of the Conservative party, accepted the post of prime minister and on Tuesday announced his cabinet. It is a respectable list of names, with quite a number from the peerage, but most of the new ministers are considered rather nonentities. The mainstay of the cabinet is Marquis Curzon, secretary for foreign affairs. Lord Cave, the lord chancellor, and Stanley Baldwin, the chancellor of the exchequer, are men of proved ability. It is taken for granted that Bonar Law will make many changes in the ministry if he is returned to power at the general election, which is set for November 15. He is a candidate for Glasgow, and is opposed by a Labor candidate and also by Sir George Paish, noted economist.

Eleventh Convention of Women's Christian Temperance Union at Philadelphia in November.

Philadelphia.—Wearers of the white ribbon of the Women's Christian Temperance union, representing nearly every nation in the world, will assemble here November 11-16 in the eleventh world convention of the organization. Two great objects of the convention are announced as follows: "The en-as the first step in the restoration of foreign exchange. Sir George also wants America to throw open her doors to unrestricted immigration—an unwelcome suggestion in view of our experience with certain classes of immigrants in recent years.

BEING refused the cabinet positions they demanded, the Italian Fascist in convention in Naples made preparation for militant action that threatened to become revolutionary. Thousen Premier Facta and his cabinet resigned. Former Premier Giolitti conferred with Benito Mussolini, chief of the Fascist, and it was believed he would be called on to form a new ministry. The Fascist are now the strongest organization in Italy and have announced that they will assume control of the government, legally or otherwise.

GERMANY, whose mark made a new low record of 2 3/4 cents a hundred last week, is again threatening to go into voluntary bankruptcy by defaulting in her reparations payments in material as well as in cash. Chancellor Wirth, whose political life is in great danger, has begun hedging and now has adopted the slogan of "First bread, then reparations," and has put the problem up to the cabinet. The Socialists are calling for more drastic measures, including confiscation of foreign money in the hands of private persons, and on the other hand the bourgeoisie demand the suppression of the decree against speculation and the agriculturists insist on higher official prices for German wheat and corn. The allied reparations commission went to Berlin to consult with the government. The British commissioner, Sir John Bradbury, said he would vote to declare Germany in voluntary default of its agreement if it should refuse to carry out within a reasonable time requests for internal reforms. This was a considerable concession to the French demands. It may be that in return France will agree to the indefinite postponement of the Brussels financial conference, leaving the entire reparations matter in the hands of the commission.

French, Belgian and Italian exchange rates dropped sharply last week, going to the lowest prices of the year on the New York exchange.

FEDERAL JUDGE HAND in New York upheld the ruling of the attorney general prohibiting the carrying of liquor on vessels entering American waters, and the case brought by a number of steamship companies is now to go before the Supreme court, which probably will not hand down a decision for six or eight weeks. Meanwhile the Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has informally instructed his agents not to enforce the order against foreign vessels whose supplies of liquor are sealed when they enter our ports. American ships, however, must obey the ruling. The French government has indicated that it will not comply with the request, presented unofficially by Ambassador Herriot, that it cooperate in preventing liquor smuggling from the St. Pierre et Miquelon islands off the southern coast of Newfoundland. According to French officials, the islanders trade French liquor for food at Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island ports, and do not themselves smuggle the booze into the United States. It is said this liquor trading is essential to the fishermen of the islands.

SAMUEL GOMPERS, Frank Morrison and James O'Connell, the executive committee for the national non-partisan campaign of the American Federation of Labor, have issued a manifesto denouncing the present congress as reactionary and calling on the voters to "put progress in" at the November election. The appeal says the congress has performed no service for the people, but has "tried by every trick and device to serve predatory interests." Its action in removing the excess profits tax and reducing the surtaxes and concerning the soldiers' bonus is especially condemned.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

A Trying Period Through Which Every Woman Must Pass

Practical Suggestions Given by the Women Whose Letters Follow

Phila., Pa.—"When I was going through the Change of Life I was weak, nervous, dizzy and had headaches. I was troubled in this way for two years and was hardly able to do my work. My friends advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am very glad that I did not take it sooner. But I have got good results from it and am now able to do my household work of the time. I recommend your medicine to those who have similar troubles. I do not like publicity, but it will help other women I will be glad for you to use my letter."—Mrs. FANNIE ROSENSTEIN, 882 N. Holly St., Phila., Pa.

Detroit, Mich.—"During the Change of Life I had a lot of stomach trouble and was bothered a great deal with hot flashes. Sometimes I was not able to do any work at all. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in your little books and took it with very good results. I keep house and am able now to do all my own work. I recommend your medicine and am willing for you to publish my testimonial."—Mrs. J. S. LIVERNOIS, 2051 Junction Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Allments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

The critical time of a woman's life usually comes between the years of 45 and 50, and is often beset with annoying symptoms such as nervousness, irritability, melancholia. Heat flashes or waves of heat appear to pass over the body, causing the face to become very red and often bring on headache, dizziness and a sense of suffocation.

Another annoying symptom which comes at this time is inability to recall names, dates or other small facts. This is liable to make a woman lose confidence in herself. She becomes nervous, avoids meeting strangers and dreads to go out alone.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is especially adapted to help women at this time. It exercises a restorative influence, tones and strengthens the system, and assists nature in the long weeks and months covering this period. Let it help carry you through this time of life. It is a splendid medicine for the middle-aged woman. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs and contains no harmful drugs or narcotics.

A Return Desired. "How was the political speaking last night, square?" asked old Riley Rezendy of Petunia. "My rheumatism is bothering me so that I didn't feel like attending."

"The Hon. Thomas Rott pleaded with the voters for a return to the principles of the glorious Old Party, and—" replied Squire Ramsdott.

"He did, hey? That reminds me: if he is in town yet I am going around and plead with him for the return of their ten dollars he borrowed from me six years ago, when he started for the convention."—Kansas City Star.

He who smokes last smokes best

Wherein our correspondent takes a long shot at Zancaville, O.

When we printed a letter from a smoker who professed a preference for the early morning smoke, apparently we started something. Almost the next mail brought along a batch of letters, among which the following is a fair sample:

Dear Sir: Will you allow me to take issue with your article on "The Best Pipe of the Day" in the issue of the 15th of the month? I am a smoker of the pipe of the day for many years, and I can assure you that the knowledge of local conditions down in Southern Ohio, but up here the majority of our regular pipe smokers have no such knowledge towards the last pipe of the evening.

Take a night when you are sitting in front of the fire after the neighbors have gone. Your wife suggests it is bedtime, and while you are waiting for her to go to bed, you are craving for one last smoke. She goes on upstairs and you promise to follow directly. But instead you take out your pipe and light up. You smoke slowly and peacefully, calling out at intervals that you'll be there in a minute. Only you don't go until the last ash has died in the bowl of your pipe.

The wifey of the best smoke of the day. Or suppose you've been out to a stiff, formal party where you have smoked your cigars and cigarettes. You get home about 11 P.M., take off your glad rags and jump into something cool and comfortable. Then you find your old pipe, which you have left on the table, and light up for a real smoke.

You, sir, for every smoker A. K. K. can produce will like this article. I am a smoker of the pipe of the day for many years, and I can assure you that the knowledge of local conditions down in Southern Ohio, but up here the majority of our regular pipe smokers have no such knowledge towards the last pipe of the evening.

Yours very sincerely, (Signed) T. S. Flint, New York City.

Yes, as we suggested above, when we gave space to an expression of opinion about the "Best Pipe of the Day," we started something. But we are glad to open our columns to friendly discussions about pipes and smoking in general.

So if you have any particular notions, fads or fancies, send them along. We are not at all afraid of a structural standpoint ourselves, not even acting as referees in the debate.

And if you aren't an Edgeworth smoker, be sure and tell us about it. For we want to send you free samples, generous helpings both of Edgeworth Plug Slices and Ready-Rubbed.

Edgeworth has made friends all over the world. Some smokers may not care for Edgeworth, but those who do, we believe, settle down and never smoke any other tobacco the rest of their lives.

Edgeworth is sold in various sizes to suit the needs and means of all purchasers. Both Edgeworth Plug Slices and Edgeworth Ready-Rubbed are packed in small, pocket-size packages, in handsome tin humidors, and also in various handy in-between sizes.

For the free samples address Larus & Brother Company, 44 South 21st Street, Richmond, Va. If you will also add the name of the dealer to whom you will go if you should like Edgeworth, we would appreciate that courtesy on your part.

To Retail Tobacco Merchants: If your jobber cannot supply you with Edgeworth, Larus & Brother Company will gladly send you prepaid by parcel post a one- or two-dozen carton of any size of Edgeworth Plug Slices or Ready-Rubbed for the same price you would pay the jobber.

Get Back Your Health!

Are you dragging around day after day with a dull headache? Are you tired and lame mornings—subject to headaches, dizzy spells and sharp, stabbing pains? Then there's surely something wrong. Probably it's kidney weakness! Don't wait for more serious kidney trouble. Get back your health and keep it. For quick relief get plenty of sleep and exercise and use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped thousands. Ask your neighbor!

A Colorado Case

J. W. Hollis, 141 E. River St., Canon City, Colo., says: "I could hardly bend on account of the lameness and sharp, cutting pains through my back and hips. My kidneys acted too often and there was a red brick-dust like sediment in the secretions. A neighbor advised me to use Doan's Kidney Pills. They helped me from the start and finally my kidneys became strong."

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

Oysters are now in the market and some cool evening try:

Oyster Omelet.—Take two dozen nice fat oysters and cook them in their own liquor until the shells are well-cured; drain, saving the liquor.

Put a tablespoonful of butter and one of flour into a saucepan; measure the liquor and add enough milk to make one cupful; stir until boiling; add a teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper and the oysters. Stand over hot water, to keep hot, while making an omelet, using six eggs. Turn the omelet onto a good-sized platter and pour over it the oysters and sauce.

Vanilla Souffle.—Moisten three tablespoonfuls of flour with a little cold cream; add it to hot milk, using a cupful, and cook until thick. Separate the whites and yolks of four eggs; add the yolks to the hot mixture, take from the fire and stir in one-half cupful of sugar and the stiffly-beaten whites of the eggs; flavor with vanilla and bake in a moderate oven until the custard is set. Serve hot, with a liquid pudding sauce.

Hot Slaw.—Beat the yolks of two eggs with two tablespoonfuls of cold water, a tablespoonful of butter, melted, a pinch of salt and one-quarter cupful of vinegar. Cook over hot water until thick and then pour hot over finely-shredded cabbage. Let the cabbage stand in the dressing until hot, then serve.

Another appetizing cabbage salad or hot slaw is prepared by chopping a small head of cabbage with one good-sized onion. Take a half-inch slice of pork, cut into small cubes and cook until brown. Pour this hot pork fat over the cabbage, reserving the browned cubes for a garnish on top of the cabbage when served. In the hot frying pan add a quarter of a cupful of vinegar; heat until boiling and, after seasoning the cabbage well with salt and pepper to taste, pour over the boiling hot vinegar. Set in a warm place until ready to serve.

For those who enjoy the cassaba melon in salad the following makes a good substitute. Cut into small cubes a tart, well-flavored apple or two; mix with diced cucumber and serve with French dressing.

Sardines on Toast.—Toast bread and butter lightly; arrange a few sardines on each slice, or cut the slices to fit the sardines; heat the fish and place on the toast. Serve hot with a dash of lemon juice for each.

Life is a clearing in a wood Where stays, mid-flight, the Soul—a thrush Bathes in the beam and finds it good. Peoples with song the solitude, Then singing, dars the dark, the hush. —William Roscoe Thayer.

DAINTY GOOD THINGS

If you have half a cupful of salmon left from the meal save it to use the day following in a salad. Shred a small amount of cabbage, add a bit of minced sour pickle, a spoonful of coconut and a spoonful of oil. Dress with a spoonful of salad dressing and, presto! we have a delicious salad. Serve on lettuce, or a slice of tomato.

Tomato Jelly With Tuna Fish.—Prepare a tomato jelly by using one and one-half cupfuls of strained tomato juice, a slice of onion, salt and pepper; bring to the boiling point and add a tablespoonful of gelatin, which has been soaked until soft in one-half cupful of cold water. Turn into a mold when the gelatin is well dissolved and, when cold, dip out a spoonful from the center of each and fill the cavity with tuna fish seasoned with mayonnaise. Garnish the top with a spoonful of mayonnaise.

Clam Omelet.—Beat the whites and yolks of six eggs separately. To the yolks add one-half spoonful of salt, six tablespoonfuls of water and six tablespoonfuls of fat which has been melted in the omelet pan. Carefully fold in the stiffly-beaten whites, then pour into the omelet pan and spread with one-half cupful of finely-minced clams. Cook until the omelet has set and cooked on the bottom, then place in the oven to finish the top. Fold and serve.

Crab Salad With Caviar.—Arrange a bed of watercress in the salad bowl; on this place the meat from a lobster and cover with a mayonnaise dressing in which a teaspoonful of caviar has been stirred. Garnish with sections of hard-cooked eggs.

Lobster With Anchovy Sauce.—To two tablespoonfuls of fat in a saucepan add two tablespoonfuls of flour; stir and add one cupful of water; stir until the mixture thickens; add four teaspoonfuls of anchovy paste, one teaspoonful of salt, four teaspoonfuls of lemon juice. Serve the lobster and pass the sauce.

Bamboo Slow to Mature.—The "slowest" crop in the world is the giant bamboo of India. It blossoms only when in its thirtieth year, and then dies. In the meantime it bears an enormous quantity of seed, which is gathered and used as grain by the natives.

Advice to Office-Holders.—So live, O public servants, that you never are obliged to announce in a voice choked with emotion that you got the fullest investigation.—Ohio State Journal.

During Hot Weather. "It's a cold world." "That's a dead issue, at present."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

DEMANDS SULTAN GIVE UP POWER

BEY DECLARES A NEW TURKEY HAS SPRUNG FROM THE OT. TOMAN EMPIRE.

ASSAILED BY CONGRESS

AFTER HIGHLY HEATED SESSION BODY VOTES TO PUNISH VIZIER.

Paris.—Reports reaching official quarters at Paris from Ankara, seat of the Turkish Nationalist government, indicate that the heated session of the national assembly will probably result in the adoption of a measure depriving the Sultan of all civil authority.

Constantinople.—Violent scenes marked the proceedings of the first Ankara assembly during the discussion of the status of the Sultan. A number of the opposition deputies left the hall, others covered postponement of the question until after the conclusion of peace. Dr. Iliza Nur Bey, member of the Nationalist delegation to Lausanne, presented a motion endorsed by seventy-six deputies, declaring that a new Turkey had sprung from the ruins of the Ottoman empire and proclaiming the Sultan non-existent.

This motion was amended by the addition of the words: "The great national assembly of Turkey will liberate the caliphate from captivity."

After a lively discussion the motion was referred to a commission of judicial experts.

Mustafa Kemal Pasha, in a two-hour speech, outlined the course of Turkish history. He pleaded for the separation of the sultanate from the caliphate, pointing out in support of his argument the inconveniences of having the sovereign and caliph identical, and insisted upon the necessity of a discussion of the project.

The assembly finally adopted a resolution moved by Dr. Rizk Pir Bey, that the telegram sent to the Ankara government by Tewfik Pasha, the grand vizier of the sultan's government, was an act of treason and the author of it must be punished.

Tewfik Pasha in his telegram to the national government renewed his plea that a union of the two governments be negotiated, declaring that abstention of the sultanate from the Lausanne peace conference would have a bad effect on the whole Moslem world, but that nonparticipation by the nationalists would prevent the realization of peace and throw the whole world into anarchy.

Lieutenant General Harrington, commander of the Allied forces, announced that all the Greek troops in Thrace had crossed the Maritza river and that the military evacuation of that territory was complete.

Kidnaper Given 40-Year Term. Muskegon, Mich.—A mob of hundreds of citizens crowded into and surrounding the Circuit court chambers Raymond E. Wilson, confessed abductor of 11-year-old Rosalie Sluaty, was sentenced to imprisonment at Marquette for thirty-five to forty years. The court expressed regret a life term could not be imposed. Thirty minutes later Wilson was on his way to prison.

Bandits Blow Safe Open. Devils Lake, N. D.—After cutting wire communication, several bandits blew open the vault in the State bank at Walford, Pierce county, and escaped with $4,000.

Says Peggy Used Hammer. Los Angeles.—Peggy Coffee wielded the hammer that beat the life out of Mrs. Alberta Meadows, according to testimony given Mrs. Clara Phillips on trial for Mrs. Meadows's slaying. Peggy Coffee was the state's star witness and was accredited with being the only eye-witness to the alleged slaying. Mrs. Phillips told of the events leading to the killing last July of Mrs. Meadows's alleged statement that she was preparing to run away with Arthur Phillips, husband of the accused slayer.

Two Mail Bandits Slain. Memphis.—The St. Louis & San Francisco passenger train, leaving St. Louis at 8:05 p. m., was held up and robbed by masked bandits near Weyenberg, Mo., a small station, a few days ago. Two of the bandits were shot and killed by the train crew, but others made their escape with a number of pouches of mail, according to information received by Frisco officials.

Mussolini to Work Hard. Rome.—Benito Mussolini, the new premier, in addition to working fifteen hours daily, "exacts"—this is a favorite word of his—that all his ministers also shall work hard. To each member of his government Mussolini has allotted a task, desiring to solve in a relatively short time the difficult problems that since the war have found no solution because of the alleged incompetence of parliament, useless party struggles and the weakness of the various succeeding governments.

American Claims Will Be Arranged. Washington.—The mixed claims commission to adjust American claims against Germany arising out of the war has begun the task of arranging the mass of claims for orderly consideration. The first session, at which Dr. Wilhelm Kiesselbach, German commissioner, was present, was confined to an exchange of courtesies, with Justice Day, umpire of any disputes that may arise, presiding.

POTTERS' TRUST INCREASES COST OF POTTERY AND CHINA

Prospects of an increase of from 30 to 50 per cent in the prices of pottery and china by January 1, next, confront American housewives as they get ready to go to the polls next Tuesday. This increase in this common necessity of the home is attributable to the new potter's tariff law, which has imposed a heavy duty on all pottery and chinaware.

The American Potters' Association will reap the full benefit of this new tariff. This organization, commonly called the "Potters' Trust," had powerful backing when it went before the Republican congress to demand more "protection" for its products. Even a Republican member of the tariff commission showed interest in this plea for higher duties. His interest was ascribed to the fact that he was once a member of the association.

There was no Republican legislator or lobbyist on hand to represent American women.

VALUE OF GOAT OVERLOOKED

English Newspaper Gives a Variety of Reasons Why the Animals Should Be More Popular.

It is difficult to understand why goat keeping has never attained wider popularity in England. In many other countries goats are looked upon as national assets, declares London Tit-Bits.

In addition to being inexpensive to buy, goats are exceedingly cheap to keep. Their milk is more rich, sweet and creamy than cow's milk, and, above all, the animals are entirely free from tuberculosis. The milk cannot, therefore, convey the dreaded plague to infants. It is estimated that 75 per cent of cows are infected with the disease.

A good goat can be bought for about $10. It should be kept tethered in a field or garden, where it will easily find food for itself, for goats eat almost anything in the way of grass and vegetables, provided they are clean. Thin porridge occasionally is also acceptable, while hay or grain may be given at regular intervals—say, three times a day. Even at this rate the cost of food for each goat should not be more than a few cents a day.

In unfavorable weather it is better to keep goats under cover. An excellent shed for this purpose can be made at home at a cost of about five dollars. The annual yield of milk is about 250 quarts from each goat, and this is equal in food value to 400 pounds of butcher's meat. Milking must be done twice a day—in the morning and evening. There are occasions when goats, like cows, become dry, but by keeping two or more a regular supply should be maintained.

Goat's milk is especially suitable for ailing children, and is the best food for adult invalids who are compelled to take milk in its raw state.

Many people dislike goats because of an erroneous belief that they show their bad tempers in a forceful manner. While animals that are frequently annoyed and irritated naturally show resentment, goats which are cared for kindly and looked after properly are both docile and grateful.

MIND HAS ITS LIMITATIONS

Impossible for Human Reason to Attend to More Than One Thing at a Time.

It is quite possible for us to do two or more things at once. In fact, most of us do so rather frequently. For instance, a pianist reads the notes of a piece of music and at the same time plays the piano with his fingers. Talking and knitting, again, is quite a common "double," while really extraordinary cases of doing three, four or even more things at once, have frequently been seen on the stage. In all these cases, however, the conscious mind has only attended to one action, and the other performances have been automatic or subconscious.

The playing of the piano, or the knitting, has become so much a matter of habit as to be conducted without conscious thought, while the music hall performers who conduct seven or eight complicated operations simultaneously have practiced so often that they are done mechanically.

"EAT ARIZONA MEATS"

"Eat Arizona Meats" is the appeal contained in the latest leaflet issued by the Arizona Industrial Congress in its series urging the use of Arizona products. The leaflet is being distributed by chambers of commerce and other organizations throughout the state, and are being used as mail enclosures by a number of business houses and banks.

After pointing out that there's nothing like meat when you're hungry, the leaflet adds that Arizona can produce enough meat to supply the entire demand in the state. "Boost your state with your appetite," Eat Arizona Meats," urges the slip.

The form of this new "Use Arizona Products" leaflet is as follows:

Hungry? Roast Beef and Mashed Spud, Juicy Lamb and Hashed Browns, Baked Ham and Sweet Potatoes. Man, they can't be beat! And all from Arizona, too.

Arizona can produce enough meat to feed us all. Quality Guaranteed. Be loyal to—Our farmers, our stockmen, our packing plants.

Boost your state with your appetite, eat Arizona Meats, with Arizona Potatoes, Bread, butter vegetables, fruits and jams to round out a Real Meal.

Eat Arizona products, Arizona Industrial Congress. "Forward Arizona."

FRENCH FOUNDED NEW YORK?

Claim Made That Man From Hainaut Province Was the Original Settler of the Metropolis.

Several days ago your correspondent reported the invitation extended King Albert by Rev. Charles S. MacFarland, general secretary of the Churches of Christ in America, asking the sovereign to honor with his presence the celebration of the three hundredth anniversary of the founding of New York.

As a chief reason for his invitation Mr. MacFarland observed that the American metropolis owed its birth in large measure to original Walloon colonists. Of course, the Belgian newspapers have taken the liveliest interest in this bit of history and several of them, notably the Nation Beige, have printed exhaustive articles on the subject.

It would seem to be a fact, however, that the real founders of New York were in reality people from northern France or, more exactly, from the ancient province of Hainaut.

It was, indeed, a man from Avesnes, in that province, named Tasse de Forest, who, in 1624, went ashore on the island of Manhattan with some three hundred Walloon farmers and artisans who had brought their household goods and cattle from Antwerp, where they shipped.

These colonists named the community which they formed there New Avesnes in honor of their home city. Later, when the Dutch crowded them out, the city became New Amsterdam, and was finally christened New York by the English.

It has been suggested that a statue of Tasse de Forest be erected in New York in 1924.—Kansas City Star.

BARRED ENTRY INTO LONDON

Famous Gates Set Up as Defenses of the British Capital in the Middle Ages.

The first and one of the most famous of the gates of London was Aldgate, originally called Aeldgate, which defended the approach to the ancient city by the great highway of Essex. It was sold to a carpenter July 29, 1700, who paid $885 for the materials, which were torn down and removed. This marked the passing of London's gates, except Newgate, which was not demolished until 20 years later. The original walls of London are supposed to have been built in the Fourth century by Theodosius, the Roman governor. There were originally four principal gates. The English metropolis, like most of the cities of the Middle Ages, was surrounded by a wall and a ditch for protection against enemies. In 1715, during the war between King John and the rebellious barons, the citizens of London aided the latter in entering the city by way of Aldgate. The old gate was then torn down and replaced by another, built strongly of stone, which in Queen Elizabeth's reign gave way to another, more ornamental than useful. It was this gate which was demolished in 1700.

First Tourist Agency.

For the first known instance where guide-managers escorted parties of travelers, for the origin of the modern tourist agency, one must harken back over 2,000 years.

In the Fifth century, B. C., when Herodotus, the Greek historian, was making his famous travels through the Greek archipelago and into Africa and Asia, the world was already considered by its inhabitants to be quite mature, indeed old. And the seat of antiquity was Egypt—for the pyramids were already 3,000 years old. Every year great numbers of travelers, not pilgrims, but merely people in search of enlightenment and culture, visited this seat of antiquity to see the temples and the pyramids. And to facilitate their travels, certain priests or officials acted as guides. They took whole parties and attended to their housing and all their accommodations for the period of their journeying.

Napoleon as "Corporal Violet."

"Corporal Violet" was an appellation given to Napoleon Bonaparte during his stay in Elba in 1814-1815 by his adherents in France. The violet was the floral device of the empire, and was worn by its partisans, who confidently predicted that a certain "Corporal Violet" would return in the spring.

Napoleon was toasted as "Corporal Violet" and "Father Violet," while ladies who longed for the emperor's return wore violets in their bonnets, and smiled significantly when asked the reason. Little pictures of the flower were sold, which, on raising the petals, disclosed the features of the banished hero.

People Living Longer.

According to the life tables for the year 1920 for the original registration states, just constructed, there has been an increase of two and three-quarter years in life span in the last 20 years, 1901-1920, says the New York Medical Journal. The complete expectation of life at birth is now 54.3, which in 1910 was 51.5 and in 1901, 49.2. In the last two decades there has been added five years to the expectation of life, and the span of life has been lengthened by a fifth in less than one generation.

Big Tree Seedlings.

The big trees, or giant sequoias of California grow in the forests of the Sierras at various points in a range of about 250 miles. In the Tahoe forest, however, where the most northern grove of big trees is, there is almost no natural reproduction, and many persons have predicted that when the present mature trees die, the species will disappear from that region.

Some time ago, the forest service planted several acres of big tree seedlings in the Tahoe national forest, and these grew so well that later the service planted another large tract. If they are protected from forest fires these interesting survivals of a past botanical era may be kept alive for an indefinite time.

ESKIMOS CLEANLY IN HABITS

Missionary Puts Quietus on Story Which Has Been in Circulation Many Years.

The "long-standing" story that the Eskimo objects to soap deserves to be corrected in the interests of truth," according to reports from Rev. William A. Thomas, Episcopal missionary among the Tigras at Point Hope, Alaska. Point Hope is about 300 miles north of the Arctic circle. Mr. Thomas and his wife are the only white residents of the settlement.

"The Eskimo must keep clean to stand the rigors of the climate," Reverend Thomas says. "The application of anything that might close up the pores of the skin and prevent the free circulation of the blood is the quickest way to have the face frozen. If the Eskimo used seal oil or whale oil or any of the other lotions which he is charged with preferring to soap, he couldn't stand the bitter cold of the Arctic climate.

"As a matter of fact, the Eskimo uses a whole lot of soap. Also, like the red Indian, they pull the hair from their faces by the roots that their faces may be kept clean.

"I am speaking of the Eskimo at home, in his native igloo or hut. This igloo is not necessarily the unclean dugout of snow which it is sometimes depicted. The snow igloo is a temporary affair built for overnight shelter. The igloo in the native communities is a neat, compact affair."

MUST PUBLISH THE "BANNS"

Law of Great Britain Has Come Down From the Earliest History of the Country. The word "bann" is derived from the early Saxon and means to "proclaim." In the very early days a simple declaration of marriage, either with or without witnesses was considered valid; but this system led to so many abuses that in the year 1215 a council of the church laid it down that a wedding should only be solemnized after due notice had been given in the church for three successive Sundays. This was, of course, to inform the church of the intentions of its members, and to guard against abuses. In Puritan days additional publicity was often given to an impending marriage by the crying of the banns in the public market place. It is now the law of Great Britain—apart from church discipline—that banns must be published for all marriages contracted in Church of England, although the archbishop may dispense banns by special license. It is interesting to note that the Saxon word which gives us "banns" also gives us ban, banish and banit, meaning to "proclaim" an outlaw. The licenses issued by Canadian provincial authorities are really dispensations from the publishing of the banns.—Montreal Family Herald.

Hardy's Emotional Art

Thomas Hardy is in the great tradition, not of the romantic nor of any specific school, but of poetry per se, in that he gives us the causes of emotion rather than his individual emotions and by that means makes us share them. In him, is the very soul of his verse, one feels a shyness, almost an unwillingness of emotion, which causes him to avoid the obvious beauties of verse, instinctively rather than on any conscious esthetic principle. He likes to write about an incident which has caused him to feel rather than about the feelings it has aroused; and his effort is to draw the incident in its essence and particularity. Through long, intense and patient effort he has become a master of such drawing; he can give the character of an incident his Rembrandt can give the character of a person. In a few strokes of extreme precision and unforced emphasis, so that we have both the relish of fact and the beauty of art.—Current Opinions.

Freshening Salt Water.

"Water, water, everywhere, nor any drop to drink" is Coleridge's poetic phrasing of a cry that has come from the lips of the victims of a shipwreck ever since the first navigation of the sea. If the water of the ocean were drinkable, not only would enormous outlays be spared to ship owners, but one of the greatest horrors of shipwreck would be abolished. Not long ago it is reported, a method was discovered whereby sea water can be made fit to drink. The water is forced under pressure through a filter consisting of the trunk of a tree about fifteen feet long. The water is driven lengthwise through the pores of the wood, and in three minutes, at the longest, issues from the end of the trunk in thin streams, and is found to be free from salt and suitable for drinking.

Ocean Life in Inland Lakes.

The riddle of Balkal, in Central Asia is similar to that of Lake Tanganyika, in Central Africa. In both cases a large body of fresh water remote from the ocean contains organisms apparently marine. Both lakes, again, contain a very large number of species not found elsewhere. Lake Balkal contains a few mollusca of apparently marine forms. One of the most remarkable features of the lake perhaps is that, although it is frozen over for about five months in the year, the animal life is extremely abundant and varied. This may be partly accounted for by the existence of hot springs.

In the Barnyard.

The farm and everything about it looked beautiful, beautiful indeed with its yard full of ricks, the pond full of ducks, the fields full of sheep and cattle, and the trees still full of leaves and birds. She hung maize about the yard; the hens scampored towards it and the young pigs galloped, quarreling over the grains which they groped and snuffled for, grinding each one separately in their iron jaws, while the pullets stalked delicately among them, pecked up the maize seeds—one, two, three—and swallowed them like lilies.—A. E. Coppard.

WORKED UP OVER TITLES

Britisher Tells of Tribulations He Suffered at the Hands of Inquiring American Lady.

I was quite exhausted the other evening when I had been properly cross-examined by an information-hungry young American lady about why a duke and an archbishop were called "your grace," why marquises, counts, viscounts and barons were all lumped together as "noble lords," why it was that the daughter of a baron was called "the Honorable Cynthia Brown," whereas if she were the daughter of the earl of Tweledonia she would be the Lady Cynthia Brown, and what were courtesy titles anyway, and why should Lord Robert Cecil be just like a commoner whereas his elder brother, the marquis of Salisbury, was a real lord, so that a lord was a real lord, unless he sat in the House of Lords; and why the eldest son takes the second title of his father so that the son of the duke of Devonshire is called the marquis of Hartington, and as they are all ladies how is it possible to tell the difference between the wife of a baronet and his wife, or even the daughter of an earl; and, of course, she knew it was not correct to call a lord a lord in his presence if you knew him quite well as "Jimmy" or "Tommy," or anything, except when introducing somebody to him or at a public meeting, when you came out strong with "His grace, the duke of Peebles," but otherwise at golf you would call him "old Tom" to show you liked him; and wasn't it really an awful nuisance to have precedence so as to be quite sure you didn't go in to dinner before somebody else, and was it true—oh, dear, dear, dear.—Sir John Foster Fraser in Arts and Decoration.

TRICKS USED BY SMUGGLERS

Customs Officers Have to Be Very Wide Awake to Cope With Illicit Dealers in Drugs.

The smuggler of drugs has many tricks and wiles whereby he evades the law and introduces his wares into the country. A favorite method is to use artificial flavors for concealing cocaine, opium, and other drugs. One consignment of opium was smuggled through in the shells of artificial peapods, while cocaine has been found in violets. Vegetables are even more satisfactory from the smuggler's point of view, for quite a large quantity of drugs can be concealed in a hollowed potato. Perhaps the strangest trick of all was the use of a stuffed dog. Probably it would never have been detected had not a watchful secret service agent seen the woman with the dog open it and pull out a phial of "snuff." German smugglers have also been known to harbor other things besides meat. Not long ago a consignment of ink came under suspicion, and after a thorough search it was discovered that one of the ten of the bottles was a completely camouflaged receptacle for cocaine. Briquettes, fresheners, opera hats, and cheese have also made their appearance in smuggling operations, and one German smuggler even introduced the drugs in a model of the Cenotaph.

"Begger" Carries Pay Roll.

A beggar with both legs cut off below the knee hobbles pathetically across City Hall park every day or two. A little leather satchel is slung across his shoulder and the usual passerby instinctively feels in his pocket for a nickel or a dime, expecting the crippled one momentarily to open up the satchel and offer gum or shoestring or pencils for sale. But he never passes or opens the bag. An inquisitive pedestrian followed him the other day to find out where he made his "pitch" or kept his begging rendezvous. He trailed the crippled one down Nassau street and up the stairway of a building occupied by a stamp and die factory. There the crippled one took off his leather satchel and handed it through the cashier's window.

Iron in Antiquity.

An eminent scientist recently summed up some interesting facts about the use of iron by the ancients. Interesting in the light of metallurgical practice is a part of an iron tool found in the Great Pyramid, because it contains not only nickel, but also combined carbon, showing that it is not of meteoric origin. Under a sphinx at Karnak an iron sickle was found. At Delhi there still exists an iron pillar, 50 feet high and 10 inches in diameter, made up of 50-pound blooms welded together. This pillar, it is suggested, may be regarded as "the doyen among products of the heavy iron industry." The use of iron and steel in China has been traced to the year 2357 B. C. The Japanese are said to have had a curious method of making steel. They buried forged iron in marshy ground, and after eight or ten years, through some alchemy of nature, it came out steel.

Why Cardinals Wear Red Hats.

The custom of wearing red robes and red hats by the cardinals or princes of the Catholic church dates back to the early days of catholicism when the ambassador of the pope took precedence over royalty itself, for he was regarded not only as a representative of a temporal ruler but also as a personage whose spiritual power was superior to that of archbishops. Just as purple was the color worn by the emperors of Rome, red was, during the Middle Ages, the distinctive color throughout the Christian world. Kings and princesses dressed themselves and furnished their palaces in materials of scarlet hue, and as "the father of kings and princes," according to the ritual of his coronation, the pope ranked with the most influential sovereigns, his ambassadors were entitled to wear the same royal color.

Of Course Not!

A negro boarded a trolley. After a word with the conductor, he shuffled toward the door again.

An inspector, who happened to be in the car, said to him, "surely you don't want to get off so soon—and you haven't paid."

"Ah, want ter go ter Whipple street," said the negro, "an' de conductor says dah's no sich place."

"Well, there isn't," said the conductor.

"MOTHER NATURE" AT WORK

Large Old Dams Makes No Mistakes in Looking Out for Safety of Her Numerous Progeny.

A striking example of the effects of environment and changed conditions of life upon the forms of animals is furnished by a species of partridge living in the Canary Islands. About 400 years ago the Spaniards introduced the red-legged partridge from Europe into these islands, but as recent examination proves, it has undergone modifications clearly brought about by the conditions under which it lives.

Its back has turned from russet color to gray. This looks like a case of protective coloration, since the bird passes its life amid gray volcanic rocks.

These changes are exactly such as were needed to suit it to the life that it now compels to lead amid the rocks and on the mountain slopes of the islands, where a more vigorous physical development is required than was needed upon the plains of England and France.

As has been remarked, if such changes can be wrought by nature in the animal form in 400 years, what might not have been accomplished in 400 centuries?

PARTY OF FOUR WAS "MESS"

Term Used Most Frequently in the Army and Navy Has Changed Slightly in Meaning.

Originally the term "mess," as applied to persons who are in the habit of eating their meals together, and thus particularly of the parties into which a ship's company or an army regiment are divided, was a group of four persons sitting at one table and helped from the same dishes. In the Inns of Court, London, the original number is preserved, four benches or four students dining together.

In the navy it is usually convenient to have a captain's mess, another for the wardroom officers, another for the warrant officers, etc. The men's mess for the sailors or marines is styled the "general mess," but this is generally divided into sections, as a matter of convenience. It has become common to employ ammunition passers as mess attendants.

In early times the word "mess" was applied to food of a more or less liquid character, as soup, porridge, broth, etc. It is probably in allusion to the sloppy nature of semi-liquid messes of food that a mess has come also to mean a state of disorder, confusion and discomfort. Skent took the word to be a variant of "mash," originally to mix up.

Finns and Finlanders.

The people of Finland embrace Finlanders, who speak only Swedish, and Finns, who speak only Finnish. There is, according to the Helsingfors correspondent of the Vossische Zeitung, a fine distinction between the two words. However, a traveler might be unaware of this distinction, for city people, especially in western Finland, generally speak three languages fluently, having a mastery of German as well as Swedish and Finnish. Russian, which used to be compulsory in the schools, has been intentionally forgotten.

Only Finnish is spoken in the eastern and northern parts of the country, and these one is more likely to find a knowledge of German than of Swedish.

Their common language makes it easy for Finlanders to establish themselves in Sweden. The latter country is regarded by many of them as a sort of promised land, of account of its urban attractions and higher wage standards.

Clause Made Difficult.

A plot of ground in London was once let to the British admiralty on condition that a ship was to be always on the stocks. Failing to do this, the land would revert to its former owner, and in the deed a clause was inserted to this effect:

After a great many years the admiralty gave up the shipyard and sold the land to the city of London, which erected the present cattle market on the site. Recently a descendant and heir of the original owner applied to the court of common council to inspect the corporation's title to this property.

Then the conditional clause was discovered, much to the consternation of the corporation counsel. Later the matter was peacefully settled and a substantial sum of money changed hands.

Lizard Lives on His Tail.

Bendel lizards are seldom seen by day. They lie hidden until the coolness of evening brings them forth. During the hottest part of the year they remain in a state of torpor. They eat frogs, worms, centipedes, ants and other insects, as well as the eggs of frogs, birds and other lizards. In good times the extra nourishment is stored up as fat in the tail. When food is scarce this fat can be absorbed and carried to the hungry cells through the blood, and thus the Gila monster may go without other food for several months. In midsummer the female lays from six to thirteen soft-shelled eggs in a hole scraped out of the damp sand near a stream, and then covered. After being incubated in the sun for about four weeks the young are hatched. They are four inches long and brighter colored than the parents. The mouth is armed with many fang-like teeth arising from the inner side of the jaws. Four teeth on each side of each jaw are grooved deeply on the front surface and slightly on the rear. A poison sac opens between the lip and the base of each grooved tooth of the lower jaw.

Heat of the Sun.

The outside layers of the sun are comparatively cool, no hotter than the flame of a burning match. Sunspots have about the same temperature as are lumps, but the photo-spheric gases about them are considerably hotter. No one knows how furious a temperature rages in the interior of the sun. No temperature ever produced on earth equals it; of this astronomers are certain.

Venezuela's Pearls.

The island of Margarita, off the coast of Venezuela, is one of the most celebrated centers of pearl fishery. The Spaniards, in the days of Columbus, found the natives of Margarita and the neighboring mainland decked out with pearls, and the pearl-producing oysters of that locality have never since failed in their productivity. Metal scoops are dragged over the oyster beds, and the interest of the search culminates when the shells thus secured are opened. A black pearl is a rarity commanding a high price. Fine white pearls, if of good luster, are also very valuable. A company of Frenchmen enjoys a concession from the Venezuelan government to fish for pearls with diving apparatus.

CHAPTER X—Continued.

Whatever had happened, Hammond had evidently not been easily captured. His countenance was somewhat battered, and the one captor who wore a collar was bleeding copiously from a cut cheek. The three turned as Gramont's car drove up, and Hammond gave an ejaculation of relief.

"Here he is now—" "Shut up!" snapped one of his armed captors in an ugly tone. "Hurry up, Chacherre—get a rope and tie this link!"

Gramont leaped from the car and strode forward. "What's been going on here?" he demanded sharply. "Hammond—"

"I found a dead man over in them bushes," shot out Hammond, "and these guys jumped me before I seen 'em. They claim I done it—"

"A dead man?" repeated Gramont, and looked at the three. "What do you mean?"

"Give him the rpiel, Chacherre," growled one of them. Ben Chacherre stepped forward, his bold eyes fastened on those of Gramont with a look of defiance.

"The sheriff was here some time ago, looking for a stolen boat," he said, "and went off toward the Ledaons place. We were following, in order to help him search, when we came upon this man standing in the bushes, over the body of the sheriff. A knife was in his hand, and the sheriff had been stabbed to death. He drew a pistol and shot one of us—"

Gramont was staggered for a moment. "Wait!" he exclaimed. "Hammond, how much of this is true?"

"What I'm telling you, cap'n," answered Hammond, doggedly, "I found a man layin' there and was looking at him when these guys jumped me. I shot that fellow in the arm, at right, then they grabbed my gun and got me down, that's all."

"The sheriff—murdered!" Into the mind of Gramont leaped that brief conversation which he had overheard between Ben Chacherre and the sheriff; the strange, unnatural silence which had concluded that broken-off conversation. He stared from Hammond to the others, speechless for the moment, yet with hot words rising impetuously in his mind.

Now he noticed that Chacherre and his two companions were watching him very intently, and were slightly circling out. He sensed an acquaintance among all these men. He saw that the wounded man had finished his bandaging, and was now holding his unbandaged hand in his pocket, talking monotonously.

"Danger flashed upon Gramont—flashed upon him vividly and with startling clearness. He realized that anything was possible in this isolated spot—this spot where murder had so lately been committed! He checked on his very lips what he had been about to blurt forth; at this instant, Hammond voiced the thought in his mind.

"It's a frame-up!" said the chauffeur, angrily. "That's likely, isn't it?" Chacherre flung the words in a snarl, but with a covert glance at Gramont. "This fellow is your chauffeur, ain't he? Well, we got to take him in to Houma, that's all."

"Where's the sheriff's body?" demanded Gramont, quietly. "Over there," Chacherre gestured. "We ain't had a chance to bring him back yet—this fellow kept us busy. Maybe you want to frame up an alibi for him?"

Gramont paid no attention to the snarling tone of this last. He regarded Chacherre fixedly, thinking hard, keeping himself well in hand. "You say the sheriff was here, then went over toward the Ledaons land?"

"I was out when they found me—I was cutting me a fishpole," said Hammond, sulkily. He was plainly beginning to be impressed and alarmed by the evidence against him. Gramont only nodded.

brazenly. "When we found him that way! Eh?" "I suppose not," answered Gramont, his eyes fastened thoughtfully on Hammond. The latter caught the look, let his jaw fall in astonishment, then flushed and compressed his lips—and waited. Gramont glanced at Chacherre, and launched a chance shaft.

"You're Ben Chacherre, aren't you? Do you work for Mr. Fell?" The chance shot scored. "Yes," said Chacherre, his eyes narrowing. "What are you doing here, then?"

"For an instant Chacherre was off guard. He did not know how much—or little—Gramont knew; but he did know that Gramont was aware who had taken the loot of the Midnight Masquer from the luggage compartment of the car. This knowledge, very naturally, threw him back on the defense of which he was most sure.

"I came on an errand for my master," he said, and with those words gave the game into Gramont's hands. There was a moment of silence. Gramont stood apparently in musing thought, conscious that every eye was fastened upon him, and that one false move would now spell disaster. He gave no sign of the tremendous shock that Chacherre's words had just given him; when he spoke, it was quietly and coolly:

"Then your master is evidently associated with Memphis Izzy Gumberts, who owns this place here. Is that right?"

Both Hammond and Chacherre's two friends started at this. "I don't know anything about that," returned Chacherre, with a shrug which did not entirely conceal his uneasiness. "I know that we've got a murderer here, and that we'll have to dispose of him. Do you object?"

"Of course not," said Gramont, calmly. "Step aside and give me a moment in private with Hammond. Then by all means take him in to Houma. I'd suggest that you tie him up, or make use of handcuffs if the sheriff brought any along. Then you'd better take in the body of the sheriff also. Hammond, a word with you?"

"This totally unexpected acquiescence on the part of Gramont seemed to stun Chacherre into inaction. He half moved, as though uncertain whether to bar Gramont from the prisoner, then he stepped aside as Gramont advanced. A gesture to his two companions prevented them from interfering.

"Keep 'em covered, though," he said, shifting his own rifle slightly and watching with a scowl of suspicion. Gramont ignored him and went up to Hammond, with a look of warning. "You'll have to submit to this, old man," he said, in a tone that the others could not overhear. "Don't dream that I'm deserting you; but I want a good look at this place if all three of them go away. They must not suspect—"

"Cap'n, look out!" broke in Hammond, urgently. "This here is a gang—the whole thing is a frame-up on me!"

"I know it—I was present when the sheriff was murdered; but keep quiet. I'll come to Houma later tonight and see you." He turned away with a shrug, as though Hammond had denied him some favor, and lifted his voice. "Chacherre! How are you to take this man into town? How did you get here? Will you need to use my car?"

"No," the Creole jerked his head toward the barn. "I came in Mr. Fell's car—it's got a spare axle and is laid up. We'll take him back in another one."

"Very well," Gramont paused and glanced around. "This is a terrible blow, men. I never dreamed that Hammond was a murderer or could be one! You don't know of any motive for the crime?"

"They shook their heads, but suspicion was dying from their eyes. Gramont glanced again at his chauffeur. "I'll not abandon you, Hammond," he said, severely, coldly. "I'll stop in at Houma and see that you have a lawyer. I think, gentlemen, we had better attend to bringing in the body of the sheriff, eh?"

The wounded man dodged into the barn and returned with a strip of rope. Chacherre took this and firmly bound Hammond's arms, then forced him to sit down and bound his ankles. "You watch him," he ordered the wounded member of the trio. "We'll get the sheriff."

Allowing Chacherre and his companion to take the lead, Gramont went with them to the place where the murdered officer lay. As he went, the conviction grew more sure within him that, when he lay there by the rivulet, he had actually heard the last words uttered by the sheriff; that Chacherre had committed the murder in that moment—a noiseless, deadly stab! That Hammond could or would have done it he knew was absurd.

They found the murdered man lying among the bushes. He had been stabbed under the fifth rib—the knife had gone direct to the heart. Chacherre announced that he had Hammond's knife as evidence and Gramont merely nodded his head.

Lifting the body between them, they bore it back to the barn. "Now," said Gramont, quickly, "I'm off for Houma—if I don't miss my road! You men will be right along?"

"In a jiffy," said Chacherre promptly. Gramont climbed into his car and drove away. He had no fear of anything happening to Hammond; the evidence against the latter was damp-

ling, and with three men to swear him into a luncheon's noose, they would bring him to jail sure enough. "A clever devil, that Chacherre!" he thought, grimly. "We're up against a gang, beyond any doubt. Now, if I don't suspect me—"

He turned in at the Ledaons gate, knowing himself to be beyond sight or hearing of the Gumberts place. He drove the car away from the house, and into the thick of the densest bush-growth that he could find, where it was well concealed from sight. Then, on foot, he made his way along the bank of the bayou until he had come to the rivulet where oil showed.

Here he paused, concealing himself and gaining a place where he could get a view of the Gumberts land. He saw Chacherre and Hammond there beside the body of the sheriff; the other two men were swinging open the barn door. They disappeared inside, and a moment later Gramont heard the whir of an engine starting. A car backed into the yard and halted.

The three men lifted the body of the sheriff into the tannery. Chacherre took the wheel, Hammond being bundled in beside him. The other two men climbed in beside the body, rifles in hand. Chacherre started the car toward the road.

"All fine!" thought Gramont with a thrill of exaltation. "They've cleared out and left the place to me—and I want a look at that place."

Suddenly, as he stood there, he remembered the slight "plump" that he had heard during that interminable silence which had followed the conversation between the sheriff and Ben Chacherre. It was a sound as though something had fallen near him in the soggy ground.

The remembrance startled him strangely. He visualized an excited murderer standing beside his victim, knife in hand; he visualized the abhorrence which must have seized the man for a moment—the abhorrence which must have caused him to do something in that moment which in a cooler time he would not have done.

Gramont turned toward the little marshy spot where he had lain listening. He bent down, searching the wet ground, heedless that the water soaked into his boots. And, after a minute, a low exclamation of satisfaction broke from him as he found what he sought. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

The AMERICAN LEGION

AMERICANISM WEEK, DEC. 3-9

Government, Legion and National Education Association Co-Operating to Make Program Success.

John J. Tigert, United States commissioner of education, declares a conviction that a great stride toward the goal of Americanism set by the American Legion as one of its greatest programs of service will be made in the week of December 3 to 9, inclusive, which has been proclaimed American Education Week.

and the National Education Association are co-operating with the American Legion in making the week a success. Announcement proclaiming the American Education week followed a conference in Washington between President Harding, Commissioner Tigert and Garland W. Powell, assistant national director of the Americanism commission. President Harding announced he would issue an official proclamation, followed by similar ones from governors of the states.

Commissioner Tigert, through the United States bureau of education, will request state and county superintendents of schools to devote the week to the American Legion program, which will start Sunday, December 3. Ministers of all denominations will be asked to preach sermons morning and evening that day on the benefits of education. Mass meetings will be held throughout the United States, at which speakers will be supplied by the American Legion.

Monday will have its special slogan—"Americans All by 1927"—with its drive throughout the country to assist immigrants and aliens to become good Americans, by starting their education in the duties of citizenship. Tuesday will be devoted to patriotism, with such subjects as "Universal Use of the English Language," "Music As a Nation Builder," "The Flag, Emblem of Freedom," and "The Citizen's Duty to Vote," emphasized. Wednesday, better pay for teachers and better schoolhouses will be featured. Thursday will be devoted particularly to the cure of illiteracy. Thursday will be a mighty war on Bolshevism, the strengthening of the fight to eradicate radicalism. Friday will be devoted to "An Equal Opportunity for All in Education," and Saturday, December 9, will be given over to the subject of physical education, the need of more and better playgrounds, the nation's need to develop our forests, the conservation of our soil and places of play in every community.

AUXILIARY MAY ADOPT THIS Headress Fronted With Blue or Gold Star May Be Approved by the Women's Organization.

When pretty Thelma Sines of Logansport, Ind., donned the headpiece that she's wearing in the accompanying picture, it wasn't a perfectly wonderful creation for members of the American Legion Auxiliary to wear at conventions, conferences, etc., it hasn't been recorded what the Indiana women's reply was, but it Miss Sines is known that all the American Legion fellows who saw the picture immediately voted aye and urged its unanimous adoption.

Miss Sines' Auxiliary unit, No. 2 of Logansport, submitted the headpiece as the official one to be worn, but frankly confessed that the idea was really born at Columbus, Neb., where that city's American Legion Auxiliary unit presented it, and then Columbus replied that it really was the idea of some of the women of Louisiana. At any rate, it seemed to be a popular idea—made more so, perhaps, by the wearer herself shown.

Miss Sines says she likes it, that it's cool and comfortable, and affords a distinctive headpiece for the organization. It will be noted that the headpiece is fronted with a star. A gold star can be substituted for the ordained blue by those who lost loved ones in the service.

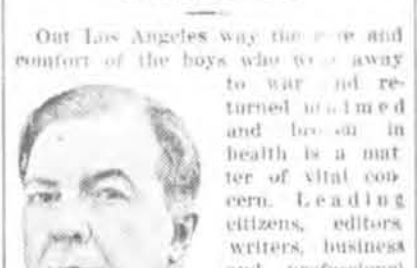

Details, Please. Old Man Matthews' daughter was reported to be the slowest witted and laziest girl in the state. One day her father came in to find her sprawled in a chair with her feet in dangerous proximity to the blazing fireplace. "Get up, get up," he yelled. "You're practically standing on a red-hot coal." "Which foot, paw?" drawled Sam, opening one eye.—American Legion Weekly.

PLACE TO SELL THEIR WARES

The "Hut," a Downtown Los Angeles Store, Operated for Benefit of Disabled Veterans.

Rupert Hughes.

Out Los Angeles way the care and comfort of the boys who were away to war and returned to find in health is a matter of vital concern. Leading citizens, editors, writers, business and professional men and women believe it their patriotic duty to help these boys back to health and competition with their fellow men. Hence the "Hut," established in downtown Los Angeles.

The "Hut" is a store, where veterans emerging from hospitals, and disabled veterans at home may sell articles they have learned to make, or where they may work at various trades catering to the general public. The "Hut" was established by a committee which includes such well-known persons as Rupert Hughes, the novelist; Edward A. Dickson, publisher of the Los Angeles Evening Express; Harry Chandler, publisher of the Los Angeles Times; Hays Rice, Stanley Chapman, Louis M. Cole, Rabbie Magnin, Henry A. Strauss, Roy L. Lasswell, Mrs. John J. Urquhart, Mrs. J. R. Coffman, Mrs. Daisy C. Danziger, Mrs. E. R. Brainerd, Mrs. Boyie Workman and other prominent citizens.

The committee was formed and the "Hut" established because of the hundreds of veterans who come from the hospitals with only small, or no compensation, and who during the period of convalescence are in dire financial straits. At the store they may ply their crafts and sell their handicraft, all the receipts for their own.

Rupert Hughes is a former service man and a member of the American Legion in Los Angeles. To him all former service men are "buddies." He is never too busy, never too engrossed, to aid in good works which are for the benefit of his former comrades in arms. As with other American Legion members, the "Hut" project is meeting with Mr. Hughes' approval and active co-operation.

"There isn't too much, can never be too much, we can do for our disabled," is a slogan with the novelist. Among the directors of the "Hut" are representatives of all the American Legion posts in Los Angeles county. The Needlework Guild of America gave $2,000 to get the project started, and the American Legion pledged $250 a month for six months to insure its success. It will be operated on a "strictly business basis," giving the veterans the opportunity to support themselves by their skill in various crafts without any plea for favors or charity from the public.

LEGION MEN PROUD OF HIM

Mayor Leach, "Minneapolis" Little Colonel, One of Several Successful Former State Officials.

They call him "Minneapolis" Little Colonel—Mayor George E. Leach of that city. He is one of a number of Minnesota mayors who have swelled the pride of the American Legion of that state in the fact of their success in civil life by being voted officers of public trust after their return from war.

Mayor George E. Leach.

Just across that line of "friendly relations" at least that's what some who know the rivalry between the Twin Cities call it—is another Legion executive, Mayor Nelson of St. Paul. And fingers point to the harmony between the two executives, though they differ radically on many things, as exemplification of the American Legion "buddy" spirit. Other Minnesota mayors who are active members of the American Legion are:

Mayor Cannon of Hibbing, Mayor Maerz of New Prague, Mayor Emple of Virginia, Mayor Quinn of Fairbault, Mayor Essling of Eveleth. Then there's Lieutenant Governor Collins, State Bank Examiner Rathbun and State Coal Commissioner Bowen who, though not mayors, are Legionnaires.

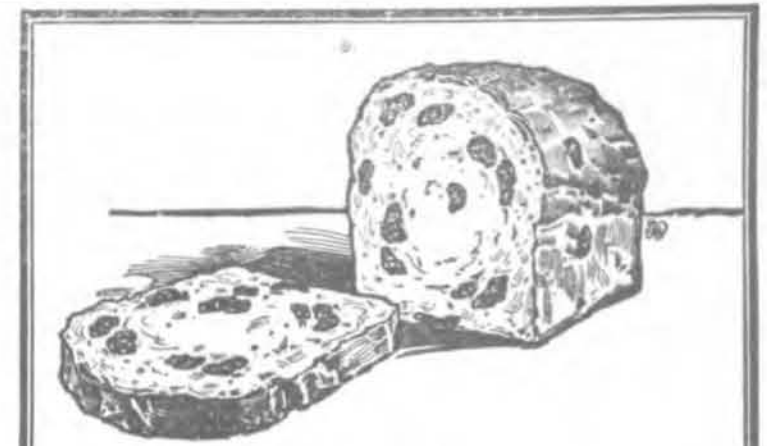

Mayor Leach was colonel of the famous One Hundred and Fifty-first field artillery, a regiment which was on the front line for 245 consecutive days, longer, it is said, than any other regiment in the United States army. The regiment took part in all the major engagements, and served with its own division, the Rainbow Division, the First, Second, Fourth, Twenty-sixth, Thirty-second, Seventy-seventh and Eighty-eighth divisions.

And the "Little Colonel" was a gallant soldier. He was decorated for bravery in action with the Distinguished Service Cross, the Croix De Guerre, with two palms and star and the Legion of Honor, officers' grade, and after returning to the United States was decorated with the Distinguished Service Medal. He now is colonel of the One Hundred and Fifty-first in the National Guard.

Form Organization. Nebraska sailors and marines, who attended the state Legion convention at York, Neb., have formed an organization for social purposes.

Practice Needed. There wasn't a much tougher outfit in the whole state of Wyoming than the Flying V, and it was with some surprise that the cowboys had gathered together and heard the boss proclaiming:

"I want you fellows to get out your guns and practice up a bit." "What for?" demanded the chorus. "Well, we're goin' into Chicago with a train of cattle in a week or so, and we wanta be able to at least hold our own."—American Legion Weekly.

WAS HANDY WITH HIS REVOLVER

Old-Time Sea Captain Notorious for His Brutality to Those Under His Command.

One of the most inhuman characters in the history of navigation was "Bully" Waterman, a captain who commanded a ship between New York and San Francisco years ago. His treatment of the crews under his command were classics of cruelty. On one of his voyages he left New York with a crew of 42 men, and by the time the vessel reached San Francisco 17 of them had been shot by Waterman, most of them being shot by the time the vessel reached San Francisco. On one of his voyages he left New York with a crew of 42 men, and by the time the vessel reached San Francisco 17 of them had been shot by Waterman, most of them being shot by the time the vessel reached San Francisco.

When the ship returned to New York the authorities were waiting for Waterman, but he learned of his danger and contrived his escape. He landed on the Jersey coast, and the ship was unloaded and cleared in the name of the first officer. When the vessel left New York for its return trip the sheriff came aboard and announced his determination to stay there until he found Waterman. When Sandy Hook was reached the acting captain told the sheriff that he was about to steer for Cape Horn and advised his returning to New York by the pilot boat. He did so, and soon afterward Waterman boarded from a coasting schooner. He never returned to New York, but died in California.

The reason is that heat causes the expansion of the human soul as well as other bodies."—Boston Transcript.

Warning Odor to Detect Gas Leak

Yale Scientists Experiment to Find Mixture That Will Give Notice of Escaping Fumes.

SEEK ANTIDOTE FOR ASPHYXIA

Artificial Atmosphere 95 Per Cent Oxygen Called Best Method Yet Known—Doctors Breathe Gas to Test Cure.

New York.—Scientists of Yale university, who have been asked by the American Gas Association to discover some means of reducing accidental deaths by asphyxiation, have developed a new technique for rescuing persons overcome by gas and are also experimenting with warning odors to mix with gas in order to make escaping fumes detected far more quickly than at present.

The most efficient warning odor so far developed is a substance called mercaptan. Dr. Yandell Henderson of Yale who, with Prof. Howard W. Haggard, has been in charge of these investigations, said that mercaptan had an odor closely resembling that of the skunk, and that objections had been made against its use, in spite of its admitted high efficiency.

The substance, which can be made synthetically from coal tar, is said to be sufficient to diffuse a powerful warning odor throughout the Grand Central terminal. Because of the enormous volume of gas used in this city any substance suited for the purpose of giving far and wide the alarm of leaking gas must be capable of communicating a sharp odor to an enormous volume of air or gas. When he was reminded that a slight odor of gas often hung about a gas jet or stove, Doctor Henderson said:

"In good modern apparatus, there should be no trouble of that kind. If any substance is to be mixed with the gas to give it an odor, it must be something strong enough to be noticed at once."

Call Most Gas Deaths Suicide.

So far no gas company has carried the experiment to the extent of furnishing mercaptan mixed with gas to their customers. In spite of the admitted excellence of such a signal as a life-saver, the scientists held that the best practical method for cutting down accidental deaths in cities through the use of gas was the requirement of a high standard of gas apparatus. The report of Doctors Haggard and Henderson to the American Gas Association said: "The observations made by the authors during the investigation indicate that a considerable number of the cases of fatal asphyxiation recorded as accidental in the Borough of Manhattan, New York city, are really suicides. The published figures for 1920 report 124 suicides by gas out of a total of 260 suicides; they report also 180 fatal accidental gasings out of a total of 2,215 violent deaths, this total including 401 highway fatalities and 367 falls from windows, elevators, etc. In the 312 deaths thus assigned to gas, suicides certainly contributed in reality a much larger proportion and the accidental gasings were correspondingly fewer than these figures show. The average citizen of New York runs a much greater risk of losing his life in a street accident or by a fall from a window or elevator than from asphyxiation and he may reduce the latter risk practically to zero by the exercise of a little care.

Blames Defective Apparatus.

"In fact, a large proportion of accidental fatalities are due to obviously defective fixtures, chiefly cheap, badly made, old, worn, cracked, loose tubing between the gas jet and stoves or

Seek in London 'Crime Napoleon'

London.—Police are seeking in this city the head of what is said to be a remarkable group of international criminals.

A "Napoleon of crime" is believed to have established his headquarters here. He is alleged to command a well-organized band of international crooks, every one of whom is a past master of every form of nefarious craftsmanship known in the underworld. They include men of education, scientific attainments and social charm. Under leadership of their mysterious chief they are credited with conducting burglaries, cracking safes and committing costly jewel robberies that baffle detection. They are declared to work in accordance burners of various sorts. This is not a matter over which gas companies can exercise any control.

The experiments of the Yale scientists were reported as establishing the value of the administration to sufferers from gas poisoning of an artificial atmosphere composed of 5 per cent carbon dioxide and 95 per cent oxygen. The carbon dioxide in the human system, it is alleged, automatically regulates the action of the lungs, carried by the blood to brain centers, controlling the breathing apparatus, the carbon dioxide stimulates breathing. Gas poisoning upsets this automatic control, because the carbon dioxide which is breathed by the victim has a chemical effect, destroying much of the carbon dioxide normally in the bloodstream. The sufferer, therefore, unable to breathe and, as his system is deprived of oxygen, he becomes asphyxiated.

Doctors Henderson and Haggard and others voluntarily allowed themselves to be rendered unconscious by gas in order to prove the value of their carbon dioxide and oxygen mixture. Breathing these substances from tanks, in which they were compressed, they were speedily restored, without the ordinary after-effects of asphyxiation, according to their reports.

After discussing the other methods and explaining the carbon-dioxide and oxygen treatment, the report continues:

"The point cannot be too strongly emphasized that for treatment to be effective it must be applied at the earliest possible moment after the victim is discovered and must remove the carbon monoxide from his blood as soon as possible."

with plans of campaign prepared by the master mind with all the skill of a great military strategist.

Gem Robberies Increase.

Several papers print this story with varying degrees of sensationalism. Of late there has been an increasing number of jewel robberies. As a result an insurance company which insures a good deal of valuable jewelry has increased its premiums charged on this class of risks by 25 per cent.

J. W. Bell, one of London's leading assessors, says that many recent jewel robberies have been so well planned and executed that the police can do little more than suspect the authors.

"The people who engineer these crimes are not the ordinary type of thief," Mr. Bell says. "There is more than one real huff in existence today. They hunt society gatherings, and in the hotels they are popular guests."

"I know one man who has a town address, a country house near Bourne-mouth, and two the motors cars, who is more than suspected of complicity in some of these great robberies, but up to the present there has never been the slightest chance of connecting him with any of them.

"He is of good appearance, always well dressed and would, in the ordinary way, be accepted as a guest at the houses of wealthy people.

"I know one instance in which a director of thieves is reputed to be worth $150,000. Another successful director is a woman who has a university education and a cultured and charming personality.

"The victims, both in hotels and at private houses, often are watched and shadowed for days before a suitable opportunity for the robbery occurs. It may easily cost $1,000 or $1,500 to meet the expenses of a successful haul, and the big thieves require frequent robberies to maintain themselves.

A further subsidy of 600,000,000 lire is being granted.

Catches Hold of Feed Wire Carrying 22,000 Volts, Keeps His Head and Breaks Circuit.

New York.—George B. Wagner, an electrician of Dorchester, Mass., caught hold of a feed wire carrying 22,000 volts while working on defective wiring in the power house of the New York Central railroad at Locust avenue and One Hundred and Forty-third street.

The wire was loose and came to Wagner's chest, but instead of trying to pull himself away he dropped slowly to his knees, pulling the wire down with him until he was able to touch the concrete floor with his elbows. This broke the circuit and Wagner was thrown loose from the wire.

He was sent to Lincoln hospital, where he was treated for burns about the hands, face and neck. He was able to work again a few days later.

Henry Clay's "Belfry" Really Full of Bees

Lexington, Ky.—In the days when Henry Clay was called "The Great Pacificator" as well as a perpetual candidate for office, his political enemies accused him many times of "having bees in the belfry."

Today that became a reality when it was discovered that the hollow stonewall of the Henry Clay statue over the tomb in the cemetery here where Clay is buried is full of bees. There is no way in which the bees can be dislodged unless a series of ladders can be used by men experienced in handling bees, and this may be done.

PLAN TO CONTROL WEATHER

Scheme Has Been the Dream of Many Scientists, but Nothing Practical Has Been Evolved.

Three or four years ago a Sheffield (Eng.) workman claimed to be patting the finishing touches to an instrument to enable him "to focus beams of other oscillation" and so control the weather. Unfortunately, the instrument could not have been so perfect as he thought, for nothing further has been heard of it. Before that a Leeds scientist had come to the conclusion that it was "within the scope of human possibility to prevent disastrous cyclones, hurricanes and storms, and even to improve permanently the weather of the British Isles."

The idea was the production of an instrument enabling the operator to collect or disperse the molecules which form the atmosphere, according to the degree of density desired, and so arranging the best weather required for any locality or seasonal occupation. More than twelve years ago Sir Oliver Lodge demonstrated that fog could be dispersed by electricity, though the process was too costly for adoption generally.

Wonderful Stock Raising Country

Vast stretches of undeveloped fertile agricultural land of the highest productivity await the settler in Western Canada. The land possesses the same character of soil as that which has produced the high quality of cereals that have carried the West's premier honors so many times in the past ten years.

Native Grasses are Rich and Abundant

Cattle fatten upon them without any grain being fed. Limited capital on high-priced lands is not a success, neither can the tenant burdened with high rents hope to succeed. The place to overcome these is in Western Canada—where land is cheap where a home may be made at low cost, and where dairy, mixed farming and stock-raising give an assured profit.

BIRD IS FAST ON ITS FEET COAL OF VEGETABLE ORIGIN

California Roadrunner Famous for Its Custom of Springing in Front of Trotting Horses.

A bird known as the California roadrunner has earned his common name from his delight in sprinting along roadways, especially when pursued by horsemen or moderately slow-going vehicles. In the picturesque old days of California it was an uncommon sight to see this bird running a half-mile or so in front of fast-trotting horses.

Another common name, chaparral-cock, is given in allusion to his living in the chaparral of the south-western plains of Kansas to the chaparral of the Pacific coast and from central California to Mexico, but he is rapidly becoming rare. He is built like a barn, except for his short legs, but, unlike that water-loving bird, chases deer for his home. He has wings, but scarcely has the power to fly, though he is one of the fleetest of runners.

Although in most instances there are comparatively few traces of its vegetable origin left, coal wears its existence to the vast masses of vegetable matter deposited through the luxuriant growth of plants in former epochs of the earth's history, and since slowly converted into a petrified state.

Coal fields today present abundant indications of the existence of huge ancient forests, usually in the form of coal formed from the roots of trees. Several such forests have been uncovered, one of which in Nova Scotia is a good example. Remains of trees have been found there, six to eight feet in height and four feet in diameter. In a colliery in England, in a space of about one-quarter of an acre, there have been found the fossilized stumps of 73 trees, with roots attached, and broken-off trunks lying about, one of them 30 feet long, and all of them turned into coal.

SCARCITY OF HOUSES HITS ROME

Shortage of Dwellings in Eternal City Serious Problem.

One Hundred Thousand More Rooms Are Needed to House Population—People Live in Immoral Conditions Because of Shortage.

Rome.—The "house hunger," as the lack of dwellings is called in Italian, is increasing in Rome. According to a statement by Doctor Raimondo, municipal councillor, Rome, a city of 600,000 inhabitants, needs 100,000 more rooms to house its population.

The surplus of people is now living in unhealthy and immoral conditions, Doctor Raimondo says. There are some quarters of the city where each room is occupied by from six to eight persons in the greatest promiscuity, and at Porta Metrona, one of the poorest districts of Rome, 28 persons are living in three rooms.

Also at the very gates of Rome a portion of the population has reverted to the troglodytic period and lives in grottoes excavated in the hills, while others have built straw huts to house their families.

This state of affairs is a consequence of the war. On account of the rise in the price of building materials, the construction of houses ceased practically entirely for about eight years. The government has tried to meet the situation by appropriating $60,000,000 lire (at par $100,000,000), to be lent at 3 per cent to workmen, civil servants, etc., for the purpose of home building.

Such amount, however, is not enough, according to Doctor Raimondo, for it provides only for the construction of about 30,000 rooms. This, together with 10,000 rooms which are being built by private individuals without state subsidy, makes a total of 40,000 rooms, leaving 60,000 more to be built within the next three years.

Former Newsboy Becomes President of University

Los Angeles, Cal.—From newsboy to university president at the age of thirty-three is the record of Cloyd Heck Marvin, M. A., Ph. Henry Clay's "Belfry" Really Full of Bees

Lexington, Ky.—In the days when Henry Clay was called "The Great Pacificator" as well as a perpetual candidate for office, his political enemies accused him many times of "having bees in the belfry."

Today that became a reality when it was discovered that the hollow stonewall of the Henry Clay statue over the tomb in the cemetery here where Clay is buried is full of bees. There is no way in which the bees can be dislodged unless a series of ladders can be used by men experienced in handling bees, and this may be done.

SYNOPSIS OF LAST SUNDAY'S SERMON

Subject, "Recruiting." Text, St. John, 11:28—"The Master is come, and calleth for thee."

Jesus was in the vicinity of the River Jordan, where John the Baptist first entered upon his public ministry, and a messenger came to the Master with the words that Lazarus, whom He loved, was sick.

After a delay of four days, Jesus and his disciples came to the outskirts of the town of Bethany, and were met by Martha, the sister of Lazarus. She bewailed the thought that her brother was dead because of the delay, and even the comfort that Jesus offered her was not fully understood, however, she left the company to carry the message privately to her broken-hearted sister, Mary, that "The Master is come, and calleth for thee."

Mary received this call a little over 1600 years ago, but this same call has come down through the centuries to the youth and to the aged in all walks of life, to enter the service of the Lord Jesus Christ. As it was a personal call in Mary's case, so it is a personal call in our case.

The young man who dedicates his life to the service of his country, that the peace and safety of our homes may continue undisturbed, is a symbol of our Christian responsibility, for there is a constant warfare of a different kind, "for we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places." Eph. 6:12.

The call into God's service is the highest call and of the greatest importance, but even in view of this God drafts no one. See what a tremendous responsibility lies in the grasp of every one of us. We mould our own destiny. This call comes to those outside of Christ to seek him; to the Christian to activity; to everyone, "The Master is here, and calleth for thee."

EARL CROPP, Pastor. We are very glad to have Rev. Cropp and wife with us. They have come to live in our midst. We hope everyone will make them feel welcome, which is a privilege as well as a duty.

Sunday School News The interest in the gold star contest is growing, and we have but one more month to work, so come and bring a friend.

Giving Children Good Teeth. Here are the rules of the British Dental association for the care of children's teeth: Be sure the child sleeps with the mouth shut, and when awake breathes through the nose. From the age of two let each meal contain some food that needs grinding. Begin the child's education in hard foods at nine months by giving it a bone, preferably a clop bone, with a little meat on it, to exercise its gums. Do not let children drink until the end of the meal. Avoid many sweets and sweet biscuits, and only give them as part of a meal. Finish each meal with a piece of fresh fruit or crisp salad, or if these are not obtainable, a stale crust of bread, with butter if preferred, but not with jam.

Not for Peepers. At one time Blackpool, famous English watering place, was celebrated for the property of her bathing arrangements. When a bell rang at a fixed hour all ladies wishing to bathe came out clad in voluminous costumes while every man had to remain in doors. Any man discovered in the street or at the window was fined a bottle of wine. When a second bell rang after the ladies had finished, the men came out similarly protected.

Largest Book in the World. In the British museum may be seen an Atlas which is probably the largest book in the world. It measures 5 feet 10 inches in height, 3 feet 2 inches in width, and to lift it is considered a four-man job—with a foreman to stand by and say, "Gently, now!" It is bound in leather, and eight distinct skins were used. On it are diamond-shaped spaces showing alternately the rose, thistle and harp. Three gilt clasps hold it together. This heavy tome was presented to the nation by George IV, in January, 1823.

SEEK TOO GREAT ACCURACY

Even Celebrated Engineers Have Been Known to Waste Time on Unnecessary Measurements.

There can be too great accuracy, according to Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering, which says:

"We recall one instance where a celebrated engineer was preparing a set of tables for publication and was using a set of 12-place logarithms. We asked why he used 12-place tables and he replied that they were the best he could find, that he had heard there were 20-place tables but he had been unable to locate them. The interesting thing about this anecdote is that practically all the data which the celebrated engineer was tabulating had an accuracy which was seldom better than 1 per cent, and an ordinary 12-inch slide rule would have been amply accurate for the work.

"Again, when a young engineer is about to make a mathematical calculation, say for example the surface of heating coils necessary to obtain certain results, he will almost invariably sit down and calculate it to an accuracy of a tenth or even a hundredth of 1 per cent, and this in spite of the fact that the constant factor in the equation (the rate of heat transfer) may not be known within 50 per cent.

"Herein lies one excellent reason why many a practical man with good common sense and a wide experience has been able to compete with engineers in many fields."

SPELLS THAT ARE POTENT

Evidently There is Something in the "Medicine" Devised by East African Witch Doctors.

Quite recently a Kikuyu (East African) had a spell put on him by a witch doctor, whereby he was compelled to kill the first man he met. The Kikuyu went to another witch doctor and had the spell removed. But Na. I was cured. He placed a medicine on the Kikuyu's doorstep so that when the latter stepped over it the spell would be released.

The Kikuyu came out of his hut shortly afterward, immediately ran amuck, went down the street and killed the first man he met—another old Kikuyu. The witch doctor and the murderer both stood their trial and the witch doctor got the longer sentence.

At a place called Kibos there once lived an old gentleman who carried around a monkey's paw strapped to his finger. Whoever he pointed this at immediately fell down stone dead. He caused so many deaths that he ultimately had to be removed from the district by the government.—London Express.

Apples Breathe. Every living organism, whether animal or vegetable, breathes; that is, it absorbs oxygen and gives off carbonic acid.

Any organism which does not breathe may be considered dead. Now, rippled plucked from apple trees are not dead. They are not so vigorously alive as while the sap runs through them, but still they are alive, and so they breathe and absorb oxygen. It is found, too, that apples stored in an atmosphere of oxygen and carbonic acid keep twice as long as apples stored in common air.

No doubt the oxygen stimulates their respiration and increases their vitality, while the carbonic acid serves as food, provided sufficient light reaches the chlorophyll in the skin of the apple.

Watchman Helps Men on Careers. "I've helped make more big men than most old fellows have, despite my menial job, and of course I haven't done it through giving young upstarts financial backing," boasts the venerable night watchman for a large downtown corporation.

"You see, people who come and go here after seven o'clock are supposed to sign in and out. Well, a lot of young fellows are in a hurry to get out and oftentimes don't want to sign out. I make them, though, and in that way the big bosses, scanning the time sheets and personal reports, learn that young So and So is an industrious lad, who often works overtime. Christmas presents from them net me a big penny annually, attesting appreciation for what I've done."—New York Sun.

The Philosophy of a Smile. Of all appearances of the human countenance methinks a smile is the most extraordinary. It plays with a surprising agreeableness in the eye, breaks out with the brightest distinction, and sits like a glory upon the countenance. What sun is there within us that shoots its beams with so sudden a vigor? To see the soul flash in the face at this rate one would think would comfort an atheist; by the way observe that smiles are more becoming than frowns. This seems an actual encouragement to good humor, as much as to say: If people have a mind to be handsome they must not be peevish and untoward.—Jeremy Collier.

Woodpecker is Nature's Lineman. The downy woodpecker, the hairy woodpecker and the flicker all seem possessed with a mania for killing destructive wood-boring larvae, says the American Forestry Magazine.

Better equipped than a telephone lineman for climbing; supported by a spruned tail; provided with hooked claws for clinging to the bark; hammer-headed, chisel-beaked, and armed with a tremendously long, strong, lance-pointed, barbed, extensible tongue the woodpecker drills through the wood directly into the spot where the borer lies hidden, pushes in the tip of his barbed tongue, seizes the victim and whips it quickly into his open beak.

COULD REBUKE WITH EFFECT

Kindly Cardinal Manning Had Cause to Wit, Which He Only Occasionally Employed.

Cardinal Manning had a caustic wit and he loved to "take down" those who exhibited pomposity. In "Pages From the Past," John Ayscough (Rt. Rev. Mgr. Count Beckerstaffe Drew) tells how the cardinal snubbed an ostentatious prelate.

Once he brought a very magnificent bishop, who by no means despised ornament, to see St. Thomas' seminary.

"It is very plain," remarked his lordship, scanning the rather austere facade.

"You are right," rejoined the cardinal most sweetly. "Quite. There is nothing vulgar about it."

On another occasion the same prelate was a fellow guest, with the cardinal, of royalty. The bishop came in purple; the cardinal presently arrived in his ordinary black coat, breeches, gaiters, and apron; to whom the bishop rushed up, much perturbed at thus helping in splendor a prince of the church.

"Never mind, my dear lord," said the cardinal. "It does not matter. I dare say no one will notice you."

Age of a Fish.

The size and weight of a fish are no indication of its age. Its length of life is revealed, just as that of a tree is, by its rings. The fish has an annual rings also, but not in its body. Put a fish scale under a magnifier and you notice the scale is covered with little rings—some close together and some farther apart. When the fish grows slowly because its food is scarce and the water is chilly, those rings lie close together, but when its food is plentiful and the water is warmer, and the fish grow bigger quickly—as it were, stretches its skin with good feeding—then the rings on the scales lie well apart. Each of these rings represents one year in the age of the fish. There is another way. It is by tracing out the markings on what are termed the earstones of the fish—the tiny hard things in its inner ear. Put these earstones under a powerful microscope and you see tiny light and dark rings. Every light ring tells of one year's growth. So by counting these light rings you arrive at the fish's age.

Melting Carbon.

Carbon may be melted and main tained in a liquid condition, according to the experiments of a French investigator. The heating was effected under great pressure in the electric furnace, and a curious phenomenon was noticed at 1,500 atmospheres, namely, that after a brief failure of the arc, the current refused to pass even when the power was much increased. It is supposed that as the carbon passed into liquid and transparent state, it assumed a rare allotropic form, becoming a non-conductor. The test was too brief for a study of this condition, but was made to include a sudden cooling of the molten carbon by a flooding with water of the interior of the pressure vessel. The minute diamonds were recognized in the gray powder thus obtained, the result being, however, not wholly satisfactory.

Cause for Dudgeon.

"What's the excitement next door?" "Some bill collectors are quarreling over their seniority rights." "Their what?" "A grocer's representative who has been after the Gadders for six months claims he was pushed aside by a laundryman with a bill less than two weeks old."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Of the Merovingian Period.

Paris workmen engaged in carrying out street improvements in the Boulevard St. Marcel, near the Jardin des Plantes, have apparently unearthed vestiges of a cemetery dating from the Merovingian period on the site of a portion of what was much later known as the collegiate burial ground of St. Marcel. So far five stone coffins have been discovered, together with a large number of bones. The discoverers tend to prove that during the Merovingian period only the more important dead received the honor of burial in coffins of any kind. In one of the coffins brought to light a small quantity of coal is said to have been found, which indicates that the deceased person was one of the great ones of his time. The purpose of purifying the soul of the departed is supposed to have been reserved exclusively to leaders of the community.

"According to Hoyle."

Edmund Hoyle (1672-1733) was an English writer on whist and other card games. He was the first man to systematize the laws of whist, and for a time he supported himself by teaching the game. His famous "Short Treatise on Whist" appeared in London in 1742. Rules for other games followed, and his book of games, which included the "short Treatise," has passed into many editions. His name has become proverbial, and "Hoyle" in common speech means a book of rules and instructions for card games, especially the famous old book edited by Hoyle himself. The common expression "according to Hoyle" means following the rules laid down in Hoyle; adhering strictly to rule in any game; following the recognized spirit of enterprise; "playing the game."

"Little Corporal."

"Little Corporal" was the title familiarly bestowed upon Napoleon Bonaparte by his admiring soldiers after the Battle of Lodi (1796), in allusion to his small stature, youthful appearance and surpassing bravery.

COOPERATIVE EXTENSION WORK November 6, 1922. The Patagonian, Patagonia, Arizona. There will be an agricultural meeting at the Elgin school house on Saturday, November 11th. Topics of interest to the farmers will be discussed. The cheese which was made at Elgin September 1st will be cut and sampled by the audience. Professor R. N. Davis, Dairy Husbandman, of the University will talk on cheese-making and some phases of the dairy industry. Professor R. B. Thompson, Poultry Husbandman, will give a talk in regard to the poultry industry in Arizona. County Agent C. R. Brown will take for his subject, "Cash Crops versus Diversification for the Dry Farmer—A practical discussion on production methods and the relative profits to be derived from both types of dry farming." Mr. Lee H. Gould, County Agricultural Agent of Santa Cruz County, will also be present. All persons interested in dairying, poultry, and dry farming are invited to attend. Yours very truly, Evelyn A. Bentley, Home Demonstration Agent, 327 W. Congress Street. EARLY BAART WHEAT IN ARIZONA—OUR MOST VALUABLE GRAIN CROP. The Experiment Station has just published a timely hint on early baart wheat; this will be sent to all wheat growers in Arizona who are interested. This circular gives a short history of the introduction and distribution of Early Baart wheat in Arizona by the Experiment Station and of its displacing the common Sonora wheat. Early Baart wheat is the most valuable grain crop grown in Arizona now, the yield during the past year being more than one and one-quarter million bushels. Under favorable conditions Early Baart wheat yields from forty to forty-five bushels per acre and as a bread wheat is compares favorably with Kansas hard wheat. During the last few years the Experiment Station has bred and selected out improved strains of Early Baart wheat that yield heavier, mature earlier, and produce harder grains than the ordinary kind. This timely hint describes briefly proper cultural methods for growing Early Baart wheat in Arizona under irrigation conditions. The college campus is rapidly turning from a love-making place to a prolific field for divorces. This is the season when the woodpile has superseded yore the fly swatter.
