HOLDS SCHOOL CLINIC

The first school clinic for the rural school children of Santa Cruz county was held in Nogales Wednesday, November 8. A truckload of children, with their teachers, went from the Amado district.

The clinic is the first "follow-up" work to be done in connection with the community health days which have been held in various school districts of the county. It is proposed to hold a school clinic once a month, or as often as necessary to provide for the care of children who need some special attention and who do not already have a family physician. Several physicians and dentists have signified a willingness to devote a day's time to this work in order to eradicate contagious diseases and build up the physical health of future citizens of Arizona.

Teachers of the county are thoroughly interested in this work and are giving their fullest co-operation in all the helpful and corrective work advocated by physicians. Other schools will be given appointments for similar work, according to their needs.

The work is under the direction of the extension department of the University of Arizona, represented by the home demonstration agent, who is co-operating with the county superintendent of schools of Santa Cruz county, Mrs. A. J. Saxon.

Teachers of the county are thoroughly interested in this work and are giving their fullest co-operation in all the helpful and corrective work advocated by physicians. Other schools will be given appointments for similar work, according to their needs.

IMPROVEMENT OF NOGALES ROAD

The improvement made at the Flux crossing on the Nogales road last week by James Parker Jr. and his crew of road workers is a wonderful change for the better at that point. Mr. Parker spent several days recently making the 3-R road passable, and is now devoting his energies to the worst grades and crossings on the Patagonia-Nogales thoroughfare.

If Mr. Parker and his crew are permitted to go on with the work started, it will not be long until the road, which is in bad condition for travel, will be in first-class shape. Mr. Parker has had many years' experience on the county roads and is a thoroughly competent and economic road man. It has been said that his work is costing the county less for the results obtained than any other work of a similar character completed for some time.

Many compliments have been passed on the road work of Mr. Parker, and we believe he should be given every opportunity to improve the Nogales road from Patagonia to Nogales' city limits.

SYNOPSIS OF LAST SUNDAY'S SERMON

Subject: "The Church of God." Text: Eph. 5:27—"That he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish."

Since the idea of God and religion has been presented to man, the method of worship has been a matter of contention. Those who have the imperfect conception of God, or their gods, thinking of them as super-human beings; and who cannot explain natural phenomena, thinking these to be displays of their gods' individualities, serve them through fear who do them harm, or reverence them whom they think do them good. But even those who had the more perfect understanding of God, varied. While there were those who held strict to the teachings that were laid down in the Mosiac law; there were others who thought that by the observance of outward forms and ceremonies, and holding to the traditions of their forefathers to be of equal importance with respect to the written word.

In our dispensation and day the methods of worship have become no less in number, in fact, they seem to increase with the days. If we would pay greater attention to first principles, or the fundamentals, these noticeable divisions would be erased.

It is a fact that the majority of our religious differences have arisen out of our misunderstanding or the misinterpretation of secondary matters, but we stand as one, in the fact, that we are redeemed through the shed blood of the Lord Jesus Christ.

There are 160 separate denominations who call themselves Christian, their subdivisions are many. It is plain to see that there can be no adequate unity among our Lord's followers until we can all, without violation of conscience or principles, kneel together at the one altar and there to eat of the one bread and drink of the one cup. This is better than the loftiest profession to proclaim to the world that we are members of this unique body, the Holy Universal Church, the Church of God, the church without spot or wrinkle, which Christ came into the world to establish. This invitation into its membership is so simple that there need be no occasion for misunderstanding. "Behold, I stand at the door, and knock. If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he will be with me." —Rev. 3:20.

The church and Sunday school services will be at the school house Sunday morning, as usual, instead of at the Opera house, as was planned last Sunday. We hope to have a large attendance.

We will have a community sing Sunday night at the school house, so come and enjoy an hour of real singing. This means everybody.

Tuesday night of last week the good people of Patagonia gathered at the home of the new pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. Earl Cropp, and presented them with many good things to eat, which were appreciated very much.

The pastor knows, by the number of visitors at his home that there are many here, and he expects to see them at church next Sunday.

SCHOOL NOTES

It is hoped that the coal which has arrived for use in the furnace will keep a fire all night so that the rooms will be warmed earlier in the day.

The eighth grade pupils gave a short gram in their room Tuesday morning. Sarah Louise Pierce has passed test card number thirteen in arithmetic.

The seventh grade pupils of Oskaloosa, Kan., have sent letters to the seventh and eighth grade pupils of Patagonia to be answered as a project in English.

Mrs. Fortuna's class in sewing has completed four of the garments in the layette they are making, which consists of two muscans, two shawls, one bonnet, and one petticoat. The girls' next work will be making aprons.

The pupils of the different grades have started work on a Christmas cantata under the direction of Mrs. Kimble.

A globe, liquid soap dispenser, playground ball and a set of silent readers for the five upper grades are new additions to the school plant.

LIVESTOCK FENS WANTED FOR PATAGONIA

At a special meeting of the Patagonia Chamber of Commerce and Mines, held November 10, at the Commercial hotel, at which there was a representative gathering of citizens, the matter of building by the Southern Pacific of livestock loading pens at Patagonia was taken up and discussed. The secretary was instructed to correspond with Mr. W. Wilson, general superintendent of the Tucson division of the railroad, and place the case before him for consideration.

Many thousands of cattle are shipped from this district each year, and must be driven either to Calhoun or Sonoita to entrain for points of destination. Shippers suffer great loss by this method, as scales are made on the weight boxes at present, and the shrinkage is an item not to be overlooked. Added to the loss of weight is the additional cost of handling on the longer drive, extra feed and time.

All present were emphatic in their request that an earnest effort be made to have pens built at Patagonia or as close to this town as space could be obtained.

Patagonia is an ideal location for the pens, and, if built, will add greatly to the income of cattlegrowers.

Cattlemen and other shippers of cattle are requested to call at the First State Bank of Patagonia as soon as possible and sign a petition addressed to the general manager of the Tucson division of the Southern Pacific Railroad requesting that loading pens be constructed at Patagonia for their convenience and profit.

William H. Brophy Drowns in Gulf of Lower California

Up to a late hour last night, searching parties, scouring the coast of the Gulf of California in the vicinity of Guaymas, had been unable to find the body of William H. Brophy, prominent Arizona banker, who was swept overboard Monday night while on a fishing trip with a number of Nogales men.

The Nogales Morning Democrat was advised at midnight from Guaymas that the search would be resumed at daylight this morning, and that the captain of the port has notified all fishermen, about the drowning of the well known man, and that a search is being made for many miles along the coast.

James Douglas of Douglas, capitalist, and lifelong friend of the deceased, is one of the main parties directing the search, and has offered a liberal reward for the recovery of the body. Douglas passed through Nogales Tuesday, enroute to Guaymas, following receipt of word of the tragic death of Brophy.

Attorney Leslie Harly, E. M. Mather, Robert C. Howell, all of Nogales, and Ferd Van Mourick of Los Angeles, who were among members of the fishing party, arrived in Nogales yesterday morning. Mr. Harly gave The Democrat the following story of the death of Mr. Brophy:

"There were eight of us in the boat, 'The Rambler' they were Brophy, Mather, E. B. Sloan, Van Mourick, Otto Herold, Dr. V. A. Smelker, Howell and myself. The accident happened about 25 or 30 miles south of Guaymas, and about five miles from the Point Lobos Lighthouse.

"It was about 6:45 o'clock Monday evening. Everybody on the boat, including the crew, were seasick. Brophy and Bob Howell were right at the stern of the boat, at the rail, and had pulled in a little fishing line. Howell and Brophy got up from their chairs, and just at that time, the boat lurged and listed to the left and threw Brophy against the rail and over into the sea. As the boat drew up from the water, it carried him on further into the sea.

"Howell and Mather first discovered that Brophy was gone. Mather was at the cented of the boat, on the cabin. He saw Brophy swept overboard but it was so dark, he wasn't sure at first who it was. An alarm was immediately given and the engines were reversed and we backed up to the place where we approximated Brophy was. All the members of the party went to the stern deck of the boat, part of them bracing themselves against the rail of the vessel, and the remainder holding onto their legs. We had life lines and life preservers to get to Brophy if we could. We thought the boat was going to capsize.

"We called Brophy's name as loudly as we could, at frequent intervals so as to give him our location, and he answered back five time, 'hey.' We never could see him in the water. The last time he answered our calls it was very indistinct. The sea was so high we could only see the rough of the wave next to us.

"We cruised around in the vicinity of where Brophy had drowned, for an hour and a half, and decided that further night search was futile. We left the scene of the accident about 8 o'clock Monday night and arrived in Guaymas about 5:30 Tuesday morning."

Mr. Hardy said that Brophy arrived in Guaymas from Nogales Monday morning, and that the party left Guaymas on the fishing trip at 1:30 Monday afternoon, the accident occurring five hours later.

The vessel, "The Rambler," from which Brophy was swept into the sea, is about 60 feet long and 20 feet wide, and resembles a tug boat.

Dabbles in Art to Rob Churches

Italian, Supposed to Be a Dilettante, Turns Out to Be Professional Thief.

SPECIALIZED IN CHURCH ART

Recovery of Priceless Triptych by Roman Police After Year's Search Brought About in a Curious Way.

Rome.—The triptych by Puccinelli, which was stolen from the church of San Francesco more than a year ago and recovered by the police recently, will be returned to the church of San Francesco as soon as it has been carefully pieced and reframed. It represents Santa Anna, with the Virgin and Christ child in the center panel, and S. Lorenzo, San Domenico, St. Simon and Thaddeus on side panels.

Although the police had been searching for twelve months for some trace of the missing triptych no light was thrown either on the way the theft was accomplished or where the painting had been taken. Probably it might still have remained a mystery had not a certain Signor Contini, an amateur art collector, read by chance a description of the triptych which, at least in regard to the central panel, coincided in every detail with a painting of Santa Anna, the Virgin and Christ child, which he had recently bought from an antiquarian in Bergamo and for which he had paid 25,000 lire.

Find Stolen Panels. He notified the Director of Fine Arts, who sent up to Contini's private gallery an inspector, who carried the painting to the Department of Fine Arts. It proved to be the center panel with a new frame. Once the police were on the track of part of the triptych it was only a short time before they found two of the figures of the side panels.

The donor at Bergamo gave the authorities the name of the private individual who had sold him the painting. Other antiquarians supplied the name of the artist who had sold them the side panels and a search was started. This artist was Arturo Carobbi and was in prison awaiting trial for the theft of certain antique relics in the church of St. Agostino at Arezzo. After a severe inquiry he confessed that he had stolen the triptych one night in May, 1921. He had hidden at dusk, behind a confessional, and awaited for night to come before admitting his accomplices. They helped him to remove the large frame which was carried to a waiting motor car and taken to Genoa. The town of Feasia is very quiet, where every one goes to bed early, so their movements were in no way watched.

Specialized in Paintings. At Genoa they removed the frame, carried the side panels with the four figures to a carpenter and asked him to cut each panel into two, so that each saint formed a separate painting. Carobbi was an artist, with a studio at Bernago, and was considered a dilettante who imitated ancient paintings and decorations. He apparently made his living selling these pseudo antiques, for which he received a good price from visiting American and English tourists.

The frame also was divided into separate sections, which formed two frames. All these pieces were sold to antique dealers in various cities in the north. Carobbi admitted that, though he was supposed to be a dilettante, he was really a professional thief who specialized only in church paintings and sacred objects, for which he received very high prices. He had made about 10,000 lire from the triptych, as he was forced to sell the various parts in a hurry, as he feared that the police were on his track. The dealers each made five and six times that amount on each purchase, which they bought without asking any questions, as they thought he had imitated an original.

The thief refused to give the names of his accomplices, as he says that he alone was responsible for the planning and execution.—Agnes R. MacKenzie in the New York Tribune.

TWO WILD BOYS CAUGHT BY POSSE

Fight Like Animals When They Are Captured.

Small Boys Have Grown Like Jungle Animals, Without Education or Knowledge of Anything Outside Hills and Forests.

Calro, Ill.—Two small boys, about eight and ten years old, are feeling the touch of civilization after passing the greater part of their lives in the manner of prehistoric cave-men.

They were caught after a running and scratching battle by a sheriff's posse, which trailed them into the forests and hills of Putaski county, near here. Both surrendered only after exhausting their infant strength in a biting and scratching conflict with the men.

That the boys were existing in a primitive manner was first discovered by county authorities when a woman, living in the northern part of the county, asked for aid for her father, who, she said, was suffering from tuberculosis.

The boys ran away when she went into the forests for her father and took him to her home, she said. They were grandsons of the sick man, she told the sheriff. Several attempts were made by the sheriff to find the place described as the abode of the two children, but because of the wildness of the country these attempts failed. The place was finally located only after a systematic combing of the forests. When the posse arrived the boys fled deeper into the woods, climbing through the thick underbrush and into trees with surprising agility, the sheriff said. The posse then surrounded the hut and waited until night, when the two boys returned and were seized.

Fighting like wild animals, they dug their teeth, fingers and toe nails, which were like long claws, into the flesh of the sheriff and his deputies. One got away and climbed a tree like a monkey. In trying to swing to another tree he fell and was recaptured. How long the lads have lived in the woods officials do not know. They have grown like jungle animals, without education or knowledge of anything outside their hills and forests. They lived in a little hut made of hay and subsisted on wild roots and forest animals. They were dressed in furs, the older one wearing a pair of tattered overalls and the other having but a torn coat which hung in strips from his shoulders almost to his knees. They were unable to tell their names and had difficulty in talking in even the most rudimentary terms.

Beggar is Richer Than Judge. New York.—Magistrate McGeehan sentenced Harry Sher, a mendicant, to 30 days in the workhouse, finding him guilty of begging in front of a local hotel.

"You have more money in the bank than I have," announced the magistrate after a probation officer had reported Sher's savings as $1,000, with a quantity of miscellaneous cash found in his home and various pockets.

Harding Receives Report by Wire. Washington.—Surrounded by members of his cabinet, several high officials of the administration and a half dozen close personal friends, President Harding received election returns in his study in the White House. Bulletins recording the count of ballots were received at the executive offices over a special wire and sent directly to the President. Other wires brought reports from Republican leaders in the various states, all affording the President information as to the measure of support he might expect from Congress during the final half of his administration.

Johnson Elected in California. San Francisco, Calif.—Republican and Democratic candidates alternated in the lead in several Far Western states so rapidly that early figures were hardly to be regarded as conclusive. An exception was California, where United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson (R.) took an early lead with his Democratic opponent, William J. Pearson, and retained it. Republican leaders predicted that he would have a plurality of 300,000.

63 Bodies Recovered from Mine. Spangler, Pa.—Thirteen additional bodies were taken from the mine of the Reilly Coal Company here, bringing the total dead recovered to sixty-three. All are in the temporary morgue. Thirteen more bodies were in the mine, rescuers said, and thirty-two injured were in the miners' hospital. An explosion entombed the men. Mine rescue experts said they had explored all but two of the headings and did not expect to find any more bodies.

Accused of Poisoning Four Matons. Chicago.—Investigation of the career of Mrs. Tillie Klinek, who, according to the police, is believed to have poisoned at least four husbands, was extended to include other late relatives of the woman. Her present husband, Joseph Klinek, is dangerously ill from poison. He recently had his life insured. In the body of Frank Kenipek, another husband, was found enough poison to kill four men, according to a coroner's physician.

Policeman Weds Motorist to Stop Her Wild Driving. Cupid rode on the radiator of Miss Fern Connors' automobile as she raced down the streets of Stone City, Ia., patrolled by Carl Nyberg, motorcycle policeman. Miss Connors and the officer eloped recently. The policeman said his wife drove so recklessly and he had to stop her so often that he decided to marry her and teach her how to drive the car properly.

DEMOCRATS GAIN NATIONAL VOTE

IMPORTANT FIGURES IN REPUBLICAN ADMINISTRATION GO DOWN TO DEFEAT.

G. O. P. MAJORITIES CUT

MEMBERS CLOSE TO PRESIDENT HARDING LOSE SEATS IN HOUSE AND SENATE.

New York.—Democratic gains in the national elections continued to pile up steadily as belated returns came in from all parts of the country. Democratic gains in the House of Representatives accumulated without counter gains for the Republicans in a single congressional district. The great majority rolled up for the Republicans in the Harding landslide of two years ago was gnawed into by the Democrats in districts in all debatable states until there seemed a chance that it virtually might be wiped out or at least reduced to a slender working force for the administration.

Some important figures in the Republican administration went down to defeat and some members of the Senate and House personally close to President Harding will return to private life with rising Democratic tide. The Republican forces failed to break into the Democratic ranks in the South and lost one congressional district which they have held there for years—the Ninth Virginia. Speaker Gillett was re-elected; Uncle Joe Cannon passed on his seat from Illinois to a Republican. Miss Alice Robertson, Republican, of Oklahoma, the only woman in Congress, was beaten by a man—the Democrat whom she defeated two years ago—and the present House got an additional woman member, a Republican, in Mrs. Winifred Buck, a daughter of the late William E. Mason of Illinois, who had served in both Senate and House.

In Iowa, Smith W. Brookhart, Republican, running to fill the unexpired term of former Senator Kenyon, leads on the face of the returns.

In Missouri, Senator Reed, Democrat, was leading.

In New Jersey, where prohibition was largely an issue, Governor Edwards, Democrat, running on a wet platform, was slightly ahead of Senator Frelinghuysen, Republican, running with prohibition indorsement.

Representative Fess of Ohio was leading Senator Pomerene, Democrat, on whom a hard fight had been conducted by the labor element for his vote on the Esch-Cummins transportation law and the senator's stand in the recent railway strike.

In Pennsylvania, Senators Reed and Pepper appeared to have been elected, and in Rhode Island, Senator Gerry, the Democrat incumbent, was ahead. In Tennessee, too, the Democratic incumbent, Senator McKellar, was running ahead of his opponent, and in Texas, where a Democratic nomination is equivalent to election, Earle B. Mayfield was leading.

In Utah, Ernest Baumbarger, Republican, was on the face of early returns, running ahead of Senator King, Democrat. Senator King is a Mormon, but Senator Smoot, who is a power in the Mormon church, campaigned for Mr. Baumbarger.

In Vermont, Representative Greene, Republican, had a large lead in his race for a seat in the Senate, and in West Virginia, Senator Sutherland, Republican, was ahead of his Democratic opponent. In Wisconsin, Senator LaFollette, Republican, was declared elected.

Pretty Home-Made Gifts

Among Home-Made Toys

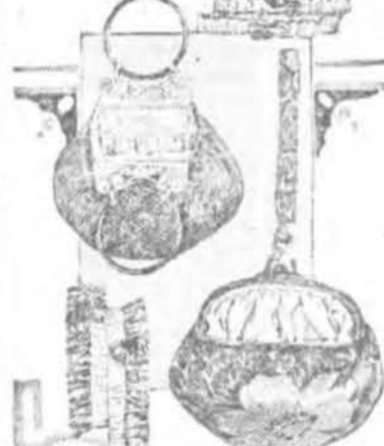

Among the things that delight little folks are dolls and small animals made of old-fashioned flannel or Turkish toweling, and painted with water color paints. The doll and dressed-up kittle pictured here, are among them. The doll's face may be made of a piece of ribbed stocking and the kittle's face and clothes are painted on.

To Frame Fair Faces

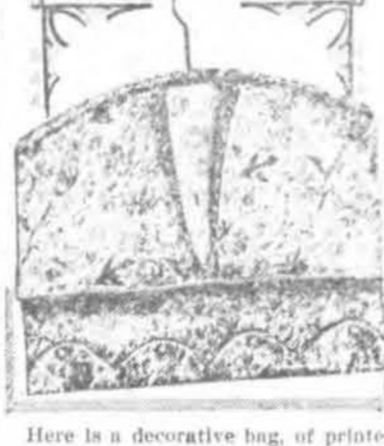

Every Christmas brings new breakfast cups. Here are three of them made of net, lace and ribbon in different shapes and decked with tiny ribbon flowers. Each has a short, elastic tape set in a casing across the back, to fit it to the head, and they are among the welcome gifts that can be made by their donors.

Lovely Ribbon Gifts

Some one you know is hoping to find a new pair of garters or a rich ribbon bag in her Christmas stocking and here are garters and bags that are guaranteed to please. One pair of the garters is made of narrow silver ribbon finished with tiny ribbon roses. Satin ribbon and narrow black lace make the other pair. Black more ribbon with silver filigree mounting and ring handles serve for the handsome long lined with rose colored satin. The other bag uses black and silver brocade with a tortoise shell mounting.

Things That Men Like

Here is a decorative bag, of printed cotton chaille 25 inches long and 17 inches wide. A scalloped edge turns up over a straight edge at the bottom and each scallop has a buttonhole, fastening over a glass button. The bag is supported by a coat hanger, faced at the top and bottom with plain chaille and French knots made of heavy zephyr decorate it. Hung in the closet it makes a handy receptacle for soiled collars and handkerchiefs, which are thrust in at the top and fall out at the bottom when the bag is unbuttoned. Men like such conveniences.

FOR THE CENTER OF THE TABLE

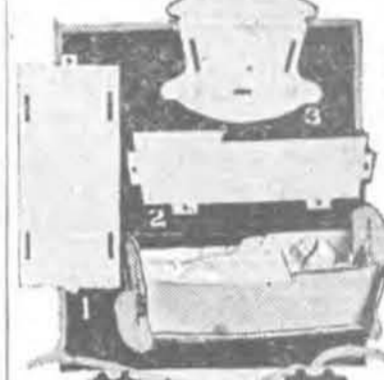

Make a Santa Claus scene for your Christmas dinner centerpiece. A doll's house (a ten-cent pasteboard one will do, bought ready-made), provided with a "bought" Santa or a small doll dressed for the occasion. Make a gold-leafed bag for Santa, stuffed with anything, but showing a few toys. Put Santa with his bag on the roof, ready to descend into the snowy depths of the chimney. Do some landscape "painting" a few twigs of evergreen

Pretty Neckwear Sets

Every woman loves dainty neckwear and it is twice welcome when the donor herself has made it. There are many pretty sets this year made of white or colored organdie and other sheer fabrics. A collar, vestee and cuff set is shown here of white organdie cross-barred with black. Little flowers in red, green and purple shades are embroidered on the pieces in lacy daisy stitch. For girls Peter Pan collars and cuffs to match are made of checked tissue gingham, edged with ready-made, scalloped trimming of plaited organdie, or other edging.

Cardboard Doll Cradle

Little girls get much joy out of dolls' furniture. A Dutch cradle and the pieces that make it are shown here, in heavy cardboard. The tabs on the side pieces (Fig. 2) are perforated and slip through slots in the bottom piece (Fig. 1) and through the head and footboards (Fig. 3). Little wood pegs, thrust through the perforations, hold the pieces together. Fig. 1 is 8 1/2 inches long and 4 inches wide. Fig. 2 is 9 1/2 inches wide at top, 8 1/2 inches at bottom, 2 1/2 inches wide at head, 2 1/2 inches at foot. Fig. 3 is 5 1/2 inches high and 5 1/2 inches wide. The rocker measures 6 1/2 inches across. The cradle may be finished with painted decorations.

A Graceful Lantern

No decoration will be more effective in dressing up the house at Christmas than lanterns and candle shades of crepe paper and tinsel. A graceful lantern is illustrated here, made on a wire frame over which the paper covering is pasted and cut-out figures are pasted to the sides. The long tasseled may be of tinsel or crepe paper. Festoons of flower petals, strung on cords, finish this pretty decoration.

Rich Table Scarfs

Very handsome scarfs for the library table are made of black velvet with an applique of white brocade ribbon down the center. They are a little shorter than the table and have fish-tail ends with a silk tassel pendant from each point. Filling. One-half cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 tablespoonful cornstarch, 1 cup of milk. Roll in double boiler until it is thick enough to spread between layers. For the top of the cake plain white frosting, garnished with walnuts.

Jasper, Minn.—"I saw in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and took it because I was having such pains in my stomach and through my back that I could not do my work. I had tried other medicines, but none did me the good that your Vegetable Compound did. Now I am able to do all my work alone while before I had my daughter staying at home to do it. I have told a number of friends what it has done for me and give you permission to use my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. JESSIE PETERSEN, Route 1, Jasper, Minn.

I am forty-two years old now and my health is very good, tho' when I think I need a medicine I get the 'Favorite Prescription', as it is the only medicine I ever got that did me any good. Dizzy Spells Are Usually Due to Constipation

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. LOSE 36 PER CENT OF THEIR CORN

Only 64 Bushels of Every 100 Possible Are Realized.

One Out of Every Three Acres Planted Does Not Produce Grain, Agricultural Experts Say—Various Causes Given.

Washington.—Of every 100 bushels of corn that farmers set out to grow, only 64 bushels are realized, according to figures compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture over a period of 13 years. The difference between the potential crop and the quantity harvested is due to weather conditions, insect and animal pests. For every bushel of corn harvested, somewhat over one-half bushel fails to reach harvest. Were it not for these elements that tend to reduce the size of the crop, the average crop for the 13-year period would have been about 4,374,000,000 bushels, instead of the 2,805,000,000 bushels actually harvested, provided the same acreage had been planted. The department points out, however, that if these elements did not exist and corn growers were certain of 100 per cent results, the corn acreage probably would have been greatly reduced, so that the final outturn might not have been a larger crop than that actually harvested. It would mean simply that the farmer could get from two acres the crop he now harvests from three.

The largest potential corn crop was one of about 5,000,000,000 bushels in 1917, although the actual harvest of 3,065,000,000 bushels in that year was exceeded in the three years 1912, 1920 and 1921, the largest harvested crop being 3,200,000,000 bushels in 1920. A large crop of corn is due to a relatively low prevention of production by the many causes by which it is limited, but of course production is also related to acreage, the department records show. During the 13 years the lowest degree of prevention was 23.5 per cent of a potential crop in 1920, and the highest was 44.5 per cent in 1918. Within the period covered, from about one-fourth to nearly one-half of a potential production has failed to be realized.

Policeman Weds Motorist to Stop Her Wild Driving

Cupid rode on the radiator of Miss Fern Connors' automobile as she raced down the streets of Stone City, Ia., patrolled by Carl Nyberg, motorcycle policeman. Miss Connors and the officer eloped recently. The policeman said his wife drove so recklessly and he had to stop her so often that he decided to marry her and teach her how to drive the car properly.

RICKETS LAYS 18-CENT COPPER

"Copper ought to be bringing 18 cents a pound today. I look for the price of copper to rise from its present level, 14 cents a pound, but I can't guess how soon. There are practically no surplus copper stocks in the country. I know copper ought to be worth 4 cents a pound more today than we are getting for it." Such was the recent forecast of Dr. L. D. Ricketts, consulting engineer for the Inspiration Consolidated, and an international authority on copper.

It has been predicted that the order of mining revival will be gold, lead, silver, and copper.

Whatever the order, the west will profit by every bit of mining revival that takes place and every westerner should favor movements looking to such revival.

APPING OUR TAX RESOURCES

President Harding thinks this country ought to put an end to tax-exempt securities, and it is understood the administration will favor the passage of a bill designed to this end.

A great financial menace to this country today is the growth of tax-exempt issues, especially those issued by states and municipalities.

The result of issuing these securities cuts two ways—tax burdens are heavily increased as the result of accumulating public debt, but worst of all, every dollar of tax-exempt securities issued relieves the holder of these securities from paying any taxes on the income derived therefrom.

Thus the public pays taxes to cover the mortgage it has placed against its property and it also must make up the taxes lost through exempting holders of tax-exempt securities from paying their just share of the cost of government.

The latest figures given at the recent convention of the Farm Mortgage Bankers Association of America show an outstanding amount of tax-exempt securities estimated at nearly $30,000,000,000.

A wealthy man can put his money in these securities and escape all taxation burdens. Should such a law remain unchanged?

OIL INDUSTRY'S GROWTH

When Colonel Edwin L. Drake, the oil pioneer, drilled his first well in this country and produced a maximum of 25 barrels of oil a day, the world was using fats and greases for illuminating and lubricating purposes and the automobile was unknown.

Today there are more than 14,000 oil producers in the United States, operating more than 275,000 oil wells. Their production is at the rate of more than 1,500,000 barrels a day.

Upwards of 11,000,000 automobiles and thousands of tractors, oil-burning ships, airplanes, submarines, motorboats and portable engines depend on oil and its products for power and lubrication.

The oil industry, under the impulse of the demand created by the internal combustion engine, has attained a great growth, necessary to satisfy the demand for its production on a foundation of commercial and economic freedom.

When Colonel Drake started to drill his well he found no ownership of oil, no combination of interests, no impediment on the holding of lands which would block his efforts to produce oil. So the situation stands today.

The entire country is open to the prospector and there is none to say who may or may not produce oil.

The California woman who killed a man for $7 evidently held life pretty cheap.

THE GALVESTON STORM

September 8, 1900

(Published by request.)

Come, listen to the story
I am now going to tell;
Tis about a noted city
You all remember well.
Twas on a southern island
Where the tide and waves rolled high,
A fine commercial airport
Beneath a sunny sky.

On the eighth day of September,
One awful stormy night,
The storm swept o'er the country
With dreadful power and might.
It blew the waves all over
The city everywhere,
And many of the people sank
To nevermore appear.

The tide came o'er the island
And hid it from our sight,
And many a father and mother
Were drowned that awful night,
And buried in the ocean
Beneath the briny deep,
To remain until the angels
Awake them from their sleep.

The storm was raging wildly,
The waves were dashing high,
And many of the people saw
They surely must die.
But they couldn't leave the island,
For there was no retreat,
The flood was raging angrily
And water filled each street.

The storm was drifting northward,
And struck our southern coast,
And spread death and desolation
At every street and post.
It shook the very island
On which the city stood,
Reaching from coast to country
With a dreadful raging flood.

Some places in the city
The people were all drowned,
And not a trace of some of them
Will evermore be found,
Until the great Archangel
Comes from the other shore
And says in thunder trumpet tone
That time shall come no more.

It fills my heart with sadness
While thinking of that time,
While many thousand people
In that fine southern clime
Were swept from earth forever
And buried in the deep,
And some poor child and mother
Are left on earth to weep.

Aha for poor Galveston,
The storm has hid her low,
And many of her people
This place will no more know.
They have gone from earth forever,
Their graves are in the deep,
Where thousands of her people
In the ocean waters sleep.

This fine commercial city,
The pride of our great state,
Will evermore remember
Its sad and awful fate.
When rolling waves were dashing
And houses falling down,
The cries of many people
Were heard throughout the town.

This story now is finished;
I have told you all I know
About the storm at Galveston,
Where the dreadful wind did blow,
The deadly waves of water,
With the awful overflow,
And down so many people
In the Gulf of Mexico.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLIES TAKE NOTICE

Present election returns indicate one thing clearly, namely, that the people are against new forms of taxation and are strongly in favor of candidates who show a willingness to consider applying business methods to public affairs and who have made unqualified pledges to reduce the overhead burden of taxation.

Managers of private industry have had to reduce the cost of production to meet changed conditions and managers of our public affairs who expect to stay in office must reduce the cost of producing good government and maintaining the same.

It is no harder to reduce political overhead than it is to reduce business overhead under proper executive direction. Tell people have cast a vote which unmistakably shows their wishes for a reduced political overhead.

"Death Valley" on Island of Java.

California is not alone in the distinction of having a "Death valley." On the island of Java is an oval-shaped hollow, near the summit of a mountain, about 35 feet in depth and half a mile wide, which, from the deadly nature of its atmosphere, is known as the "Valley of Death," or the "Poison valley." The atmosphere is loaded with carbonic acid gas, and though not at once fatal to human beings, proves so to dogs or fowls.

The valley has seldom been explored much beyond the borders, as from there it is seen that the surface of the ground is strewn with the bones of tigers, pigs, deer and all kinds of birds, and also human beings.

Raleigh's Tobacco Box.

St. Walter Raleigh was no niggard of his tobacco, if one may judge from the size of his box. It was cylindrical in form, about seven inches in diameter, and thirteen inches high; the outside was of gilt leather, and in the inside was a cavity for a receiver of glass or metal, which would hold about a pound of tobacco. A kind of collar, connecting the receiver with the case, was pierced with holes for pipes.

QUEER LIKES AND DISLIKES

Have Been People Who Hated the Smell of Roses, and to Some It Was Fatal.

The ancient writers tell us some wonderful stories about queer likes and dislikes, and some of the most amazing of these are about people who dreaded to see or smell a rose, says London Tit-Bits.

According to Sir Kenelm Digby, one of the ladies of the bedchamber to Queen Elizabeth had her cheek blistered by placing a rose against it. She was Lady Henneage. Afterward, whenever she saw a rose she would fall into a swoon.

Cardinal Don Henrique de Cardona became faint and ill if he entered a room where roses were placed; and it is said that Laurentius, bishop of Cratistavia, was killed by the smell of a rose. Cardinal Oliverius Carasso lived in fear of roses. He would not have a rose brought into his palace, and dreaded to approach any person who had a rose about him.

The smell of a rose was considered fatal by all the members of the noble Venetian family named Barbarici. Doctors warned them to remain at home in the rose season, as if they went abroad they were in danger of being overcome.

AS TO TURKEY IN EUROPE

Question Involves Not Geographical Matters but the Introduction of the Famous Bird.

There is a turkey question. It is not of capital moment and it is certain that the fate of Europe is not involved in its solution, but it is still curious, because it raises a point in gastronomic history.

At what epoch did the turkey make its first appearance on the European continent?

Anderson and Cruzy assert that the first turkey eaten in France was at the marriage of Charles IX, l. e., in 1571. Now, a document has been discovered of 1499 where mention is made of the Indian fowls of Charles VIII, two years before Columbus' first voyage, although this precious bird had come from America.

Until now it was thought that the first turkeys raised in France were in Bourges in 1518. On the other hand, it is confidently declared that these birds were introduced somewhat later in Spain, whence they were taken to England in 1524.

A grave problem indeed. Who will furnish the solution?

The Child and the Animal.

Everyone knows how quickly the child's interest is aroused in the presence of an animal. He takes to it much more naturally than to one of his own kind. This seems to be instinctive in childhood, and within reasonable limits parents should encourage it. Children brought up with animal pets are bound to show the influence of that companionship throughout the rest of their lives, but it is of great importance that parents and others should teach young children how to handle these pets of which they really become so fond. They should be taken up not by the nape of the neck, with all the rest of the body left dangling down, but picked up carefully in the arms, so the whole body gets some support; if they should not be squeezed and mauled about and their lives made unhappy by such usage, which, while it may denote affection, often grows into carelessness as to the animals' welfare.—Our Dumb Animals.

Tarantula Commits Suicide.

A. S. Lanier tells of his experiences with a tarantula he had captured, says the Adventure Magazine.

"Placing the tarantula in a bottle, I started walking toward my office, holding the bottle in front of me and watching him. After about four attempts to climb the sides of the bottle he either threw himself or fell on his back. I stopped walking and, holding the bottle where the bright sunlight would strike full upon him, I saw a thick milky looking substance coming from his mouth. He then raised his two front 'legs' that are located directly in front of his head, and proceeded to dip his 'fangs' up and down, not sideways like other spiders, into the secretion. His fangs were curved just like those of a rattlesnake and, after dipping them several times, he pulled the two little legs over them and seemed to stick his fangs into them. He repeated this three times or possibly four and in less than a minute was stone dead. He had committed suicide.

Roman Woman First Nurse.

Fabiola, the first nurse recorded in history, was a Roman woman who established a hospital and convalescent home for the poor after her conversion to Christianity, about A. D. 380. She inaugurated a society of rich women and had them trained as sick nurses.

Nurses, who are addressed as "sister" on account of the old religious traditions associated with their work, lost their professional dignity in 1544, when 12 women were engaged at St. Bartholomew's hospital, London, to nurse the sick and perform menial work.

From that time nurses were untrained until the doctors at the New York hospital began to lecture them on "scientific cleanliness" in 1780.

Language of Telegraph.
According to the results of a special study among telegraph operators, government investigators have determined that each operator has a telegraphic language of his own, differing in various particulars from the typical form, although all can, of course, understand one another.
The greatest number of words known to have been sent in one minute by the Morse code is 49. The average sending rate per minute is from 20 to 24 words of four letters each. Skillful operators can usually receive faster than they can send, but with beginners the case is reversed.

Why Girls Don't Throw Straight.

It has always been an interesting fact that girls cannot throw straight. There are two reasons. First, a girl's clavicle or collar bone, being shorter than a boy's, gives her a smaller play of forearm. Second, direction in overhead throwing depends chiefly upon the shoulders and chest being carried forward with the swing of the arm.

With a boy this is the heaviest part of his body, but a girl is heaviest at the hips. Consequently, instead of the girl's body swinging straight forward, it frequently turns around at the waist, thus completely spoiling the aim.

Women and Words.

A student who has given the matter some study says that it is a perfectly natural trait of femininity to engage in small talk and quick talk. Woman is quicker to understand, quicker to answer and quicker to utter what is in her mind and is habitually variable. The cause of this difference between the speech or talk of two sexes lies far back into the occupational history of each, but some great social changes now in progress may modify the present condition.

MAKE EVERY SHADE OF TOOTH

Modern Dentist Able to Supply Every Color of Molar That May Be Demanded.

The manufacture of sets of jet black false teeth represents an out-of-the-way side of British enterprise. It will be news to most people that there is a definite trade in black teeth between England and the Orient, rendered necessary by the practice, so popular east of Suez, of chewing betel nut. As a masticatory the betel nut leaves chewing gum far behind, for it is reckoned that one-tenth of the human family indulge in it, but it stains the teeth of its votaries black as ebony. Hence, when they need artificial teeth to replace losses, those teeth must be black.

A definite side of modern dentistry is represented by these black teeth. No longer is it necessary for clients to accept teeth which stand out in challenging distinction to their neighbors and proclaim their artificiality to the world. Every shade and shape is now matchable. Even the boy who for thirty years has been "rolling his quid" can be supplied with teeth bearing the counterfeited stains of tobacco juice. The ordinary person has 25 different shades at his disposal, and shapes seem to be innumerable. Even teeth with make-believe gold fillings are supplied.

RECOGNIZED POWER OF MUSIC

In All Ages the Value of Sweet Sounds Has Been Acknowledged by the Wise.

A leading educationalist has this to say concerning the value of music: "I cannot think of an ideal home without music, for it would surely be very incomplete without it. To me, the beauty of music cannot be described in words. There seems to be no state of mind that one can be in which music is not welcome. Even in the Bible we read that David played on the harp for Saul to quiet his troubled mind. We need music every day in our home more than any other place, for the good of our mind and body.

The benefits of music are also reaching the hospitals, the homes of the sick, and busy people after a hard day's work find it refreshing to come home and hear its soothing strains. "We also enjoy music in our homes of learning—the schools. The school orchestra and the songs we sing in assembly make us feel like starting out on the day's study in an excellent mood."

American "Molly Maguires"

The first organization known as the "Molly Maguires" was formed in Ireland, with the object, it is believed, of generally harassing process-servers and others engaged in the prosecution and eviction of tenants, and was composed of young men who, in some localities, assumed women's clothing, blackened their faces, and otherwise disguised themselves, the Detroit News remarks.

It remained, however, for the American "Mollies" to terrorize whole counties and leave a blood-red trail behind them in the coal regions of Pennsylvania from 1854 to 1877. The murders and outrages they committed were numbered by the hundreds, and the victims in most cases were well-known and respected men.

Finally the secrets of the order were revealed and many of its members were brought to justice.

How Much Gold Has 14-Karat Ring?

One often speaks of a ring being 14-karat gold or of 22 or 18-karat watch cases or jewelry, but not all know just what is meant by 14, 18 or 22 karat.

Gold is divided into 24 parts—that is, pure gold is said to contain 24 karats—the karat being just a measurement term. A ring of watch case marked 14k or 14k means that 14 or 18 parts of it are pure gold, the balance of the 24 karats being some sort of alloy, copper being generally used.

If articles of jewelry were made of pure gold they would not wear well, as gold is a very soft metal, and it is, therefore, necessary to mix the gold with some harder substance.

Cowboys Fear Rattled.

On cattle ranches of the Southwest it was quite common to hear references to a horse as loco—the Spanish for crazy—and to a horse being rattled. In such cases the belief was current that the animal's wild eccentricities were caused by its eating wild rattled. I have seen possibly half a dozen such horses in cowboy groups and once used one of them myself. But whether the crankiness was caused by rattled or by early mishandling I am unable to say. That rattled makes race-horses crazy is a common belief among the greasers and most of the older white range riders of the far West.—New York Sun.

Folklore or Fact?

A very strange sea monster is said to have been off the coast of Ireland and it is claimed to be quite familiar to the inhabitants of the coast of Connemara, Mayo and Donegal. The inhabitants do not, however, often speak of these mysterious animals to visitors, whom they know to be incredulous. As the creatures leap principally by night they are not often seen. They can leap to a great height, and woe to the belated gammer upon which they once set their eye, even though it be flying at a height of a hundred feet above the surface of the sea. One who has seen the animal says they follow it like a sleuth hound, and when they get within striking distance launch themselves through the air, and, gliding by the aid of their large wing-like fins and guided by the swinging of their tail, they strike it and bring it down with unerring aim.

Economy is an often used word, but still a lot of people don't know what it means.

NO VOICE IN THE MATTER

Psychoanalysis Theory Fell to the Ground When Owner of Flaming Hat Gave Testimony.

The explanation and for that matter was interested in psychoanalysis, was riding in the subway together. Their attention was drawn to a poor phlegmatic woman who wore a most inappropriate hat of flame-colored tulle, trimmed with a gold tassel.

"It is always a mystery to me," said the scholar, "why it is generally 'why' people select to wear the way last thing in nature that was ever destined for them. What, for instance, could have inspired that sad, sad choice to don a hat like that?"

"There's my dear," cried her friend, "the exactly when you touch the subject of psychoanalysis, any lack of the proper degree of her own energy she is bound to possibly indulge in some eccentricities. She knows that she is out but the urge is there."

"You mean that something subconsciously has forced her to select that hat?"

"Certainly. However, she undoubtedly would give you a convincing reason if asked just for argument's sake. Do you wish to ask her?"

"I don't know. I'm sure she'll say something to you."

The friend turned forward and spoke.

"I see your reason for wanting to know, but we have been admiring your hat. Won't it be wonderful color that made you choose it from all the others in the shop?"

The pale woman stared, stiffened, then relaxed as though too weary to be annoyed.

"I don't do so choose of this hat," she said, finally. "It was given to me." New York Sun.

INDIAN LEGEND OF TOBACCO

Believed to Be Gift of Spirit to Whom Their Hunters Had Been Censorous.

An Indian tradition as to the first appearance of tobacco in North America is to the effect that a Swedish hunter who took occasion to inform the chiefs of the Susquehanna Indians, in a kind of sermon, of the principal facts on which the Christian religion is founded, was thus answered by an old Indian orator:

"What you have told us is very good; we thank you for coming so far to tell us those things you have heard from your mothers; in return we will tell you what we have heard from ours. In the beginning we had only flesh to eat, and when they had eaten we starved. Two of our hunters having killed a deer and broiled a part of it, saw a young woman descend from the clouds, and seat herself on a hill hard by. Said one to the other: 'It is a spirit, perhaps, that has snatched our venison; let us offer some of it to her.' They accordingly gave her the tongue. She was pleased with its flavor, and said: 'Your kindness will be rewarded; come here thirteen moons hence, and you shall find it.' They did so, and found maize growing; where her left hand had been, kidney beans; and where she had sat they found tobacco."

HE WHO PROVIDES IT ALL

William G. Sumner Gave Credit to the "Forgotten Man" for His Patent Industry.

Wealth comes only from production and all that the wrangling grantors, lawyers and holders get to deal with comes from somebody's toil and sacrifice. Who, then, is he who provides it all? Go and find him, and you will have once more before you the Forgotten Man. You will find him hard at work because he has a great many to support. Nature has done a great deal for him in giving him a fertile soil and an excellent climate, and he wonders why it is that, after all, his scale of comfort is so moderate. He has to get out of the soil enough to pay all his taxes, and that means the cost of all the jobs and the fund for all the plunder. The Forgotten Man is delving away in patient industry, supporting his family, paying his taxes, casting his vote, supporting the church and school, reading his news paper and cheering for the politicians of his admiration, but he is the only one for whom there is no provision in the great scramble and the big divide. Such is the Forgotten Man. He works, he votes, generally he prays—but he always pays—yes, above all, he pays.—William G. Sumner.

Sunset Joy.

What a sunset! How golden! how beautiful! . . . The sun just disappeared, and the narrow line clouds, which a few minutes ago lay like soft vapory streaks along the horizon, lighted up with a golden splendor that the eye can scarcely endure. . . . Another minute and the brilliant orb totally disappears, and the sky above grows every moment more varied and more beautiful as the dazzling golden lines are mixed with glowing red and gorgeous purple, dappled with small dark spots and mingled with such a blue as the eyes of the hedge-sparrow. To look up at that glorious sky, and then to see that magnificent picture reflected in the clear and lovely London water is a pleasure never to be described and never forgotten. My heart swells and my eyes fill as I write of it and think of the immeasurable majesty of nature and the unspeakable goodness of God who has spread an enjoyment so pure, so peaceful and so intense before the meannest and the lowest of His creatures.—Mary Russell Mitford.

Three Cities in One.

Peking is really three cities in one. There is an inner or Manchou city and an outer or Chinese city. The inner comprises the imperial city, which, in turn, contains the "Forbidden City," or the purple forbidden city, inside the walls of which again is the imperial palace. Peking itself is one of the oldest cities in the world, being known to exist in the Twelfth century before Christ, but although it is of immense size, being 25 miles in circumference, much of the space within the walls is unoccupied.

Asoka Sovereign of Ancient India.

Asoka of Magadha, whom H. E. Wells selected as one of the world's greatest men, was a sovereign of India who reigned 255 to 233 B. C. over the whole of northern India. He embraced Buddhism and forced his subjects to do likewise. Many temples and "stupas" in India are attributed to him. He wielded a powerful influence and was the "nursing father" of Buddhism, as Constantine was of Christianity.

Business Is Business.

A dozen or more men were waiting for arraignment in the detention pen of a New York city court. Among them was an old man who had been arrested for peddling suspenders without a license. He had a pile of suspenders hanging over his shoulders but he was not sitting down with the rest of the prisoners. He was busily trying to make a safe among them; in fact he did manage to get rid of one pair before he was called before the judge.

BEST TO FACE FACTS BRAVELY

In the End, Nothing Possibly Can Be Gained by Dodging the Recognized Truth.

People who deal in true facts often get the reputation of being cynics. It is an almost universal human failing to dodge truths which are unpleasant. The tendency of most of us is to color our facts to suit our own pleasure or convenience, and we are apt to be annoyed with the person who offers an obdurate variance with our own. If his portrayal of facts is not favorable to our interests we put him down as a pessimist. Later on we realize that it would have been more to our advantage to have accepted the truth even if it was unpleasant.

Fooling oneself is a dangerous pastime which can lead one into serious trouble. It serves to lighten the mind of worry in regard to some impending disaster, but the trouble is apt to be more complicated when it does arrive, because by blinding ourselves to the truth we have missed the chance of trying to do something to relieve the situation. It is like an engine plunging into danger because we did not heed the warning signals.

The only sound foundation on which to build your life is not only to face and accept the truth, no matter how distasteful it may be, but also to diligently seek it. It is not necessary to join the list of those who always seem to take pleasure in announcing unpleasant facts and who feel that the truth should be uncompromisingly spoken at all times. It would be difficult to argue that there are not occasions when it is best to deceive people for their own good, but do not allow yourself to get into the habit of doing it to yourself. Face facts; don't bludge yourself.

THREE ATOMS IN MOLECULE

Division of Water, Small in Itself, Is Made Up of Still Smaller Particles.

When a great scientist named Sir William Thomson was asked about the size of a molecule, he replied: "If a drop of water were magnified to the size of the earth, the molecules would each occupy spaces greater than those occupied by cricket balls." And yet molecules are made up of even smaller particles, called atoms. An atom is the smallest division of anything known.

A molecule of water is made up of three atoms. Evaporation of water consists of the movement of these atoms in such a way as to make the liquid change into a gas. Freezing a water into ice is caused by making the molecules, and in turn, the atoms, stick to each other. It takes a great deal of power to separate the molecules in water, and for this reason water was long regarded as something which could not be divided; or in other words, a basic element, such as the oxygen of the air.

Prospecting for Gold.

Sometimes gold shed from reefs is obtained near the surface of river beds; at other times the gold is found near rock bottom, or again the precious metal may even occur in an old river bed now covered with lava, as in the case of the "deep leads" of California and Victoria.

The method of discovering an alluvial deposit is obvious, but if the prospector is searching for a reef he follows the gold upstream by repeated "panning" until he ceases to obtain any "colors" (particles) of gold. Then he strikes inland from either hand until he "strikes" (meets) a reef or the gold ceases.

In the latter case the reef may be covered up, and so the prospector, by a series of "pannings," decides upon the "strike" or course of the reef and cuts a trench at right angles down to solid "country" rock in its original situation, when the reef will be "out" or exposed.

The true prospector is an optimist—who never tires of trying again.

Why Girls Don't Throw Straight. It has always been an interesting fact that girls cannot throw straight. There are two reasons. First, a girl's clavicle or collar bone, being shorter than a boy's, gives her a smaller play of forearm. Second, direction in overhead throwing depends chiefly upon the shoulders and chest being carried forward with the swing of the arm.

With a boy this is the heaviest part of his body, but a girl is heaviest at the hips. Consequently, instead of the girl's body swinging straight forward, it frequently turns around at the waist, thus completely spoiling the aim.

MAKE EVERY SHADE OF TOOTH

Modern Dentist Able to Supply Every Color of Molar That May Be Demanded.

The manufacture of sets of jet black false teeth represents an out-of-the-way side of British enterprise. It will be news to most people that there is a definite trade in black teeth between England and the Orient, rendered necessary by the practice, so popular east of Suez, of chewing betel nut. As a masticatory the betel nut leaves chewing gum far behind, for it is reckoned that one-tenth of the human family indulge in it, but it stains the teeth of its votaries black as ebony. Hence, when they need artificial teeth to replace losses, those teeth must be black.

A definite side of modern dentistry is represented by these black teeth. No longer is it necessary for clients to accept teeth which stand out in challenging distinction to their neighbors and proclaim their artificiality to the world. Every shade and shape is now matchable. Even the boy's who for thirty years has been "rolling his quid" can be supplied with teeth bearing the counterfeit stains of tobacco juice. The ordinary person has 25 different shades at his disposal, and shapes seem to be innumerable. Even teeth with make-believe gold fillings are supplied.

RECOGNIZED POWER OF MUSIC

In All Ages the Value of Sweet Sounds Has Been Acknowledged by the Wise.

A leading educationalist has this to say concerning the value of music: "I cannot think of an ideal home without music, for it would surely be very incomplete without it. To me, the beauty of music cannot be described in words. There seems to be no state of mind that one can be in which music is not welcome. Even in the Bible we read that David played on the harp for Saul to quiet his troubled mind. We need music every day in our home more than any other place, for the good of our mind and body.

"The benefits of music are also reaching the hospitals, the homes of the sick, and busy people after a hard day's work find it refreshing to come home and hear its soothing strains. "We also enjoy music in our homes of learning—the schools. The school orchestra and the songs we sing in assembly make us feel like starting out on the day's study in an excellent mood."

American "Molly Maguires."

The first organization known as the "Molly Maguires" was formed in Ireland, with the object, it is believed, of generally misusing process-servers and others engaged in the prosecution and eviction of tenants, and was composed of young men who, in some localities, assumed women's clothing, blackened their faces, and otherwise disguised themselves, the Detroit News remarks.

It remained, however, for the American "Mollies" to terrorize whole counties and leave a blood-red trail behind them in the coal regions of Pennsylvania from 1854 to 1877. The murders and outrages they committed were numbered by the hundreds, and the victims in most cases were well-known and respected men. Finally the secrets of the order were revealed and many of its members were brought to justice.

How Much Gold Has 14-Karat Ring?

One often speaks of a ring being 14-karat gold or of 22 or 18-karat watch cases or jewelry, but not all know just what is meant by 14, 18 or 22 karat.

Gold is divided into 24 parts—that is, pure gold is said to contain 24 karats—the karat being just a measurement term. A ring or watch case marked 14k or 18k means that 14 or 18 parts of it are pure gold, the balance of the 24 karats being some sort of alloy, copper being generally used.

If articles of jewelry were made of pure gold they would not wear well, as gold is a very soft metal, and it is, therefore, necessary to mix the gold with some harder substance.

Cowboys Fear Rattlesnaked.

On cattle ranches of the Southwest it was quite common to hear references to a horse as loco—the Spanish for crazy—due to a horse being rattlesnaked. In such cases the belief was current that the animal's mad eccentricities were caused by its eating wild rattlesnake. I have seen possibly half a dozen such horses in cowboy groups and once used one of them myself. But whether the crankiness was caused by rattlesnake or by early mishandling I am unable to say. That rattlesnake makes horses crazy is a common belief among the greasers and most of the older white range riders of the far West.—New York Sun.

Folklore or Fact?

A very strange sea monster is said to have been off the coast of Ireland and it is claimed to be quite familiar to the inhabitants of the coast of Concomera, Mayo and Donegal, and is known as the gormmooloch. The inhabitants do not, however, often speak of these mysterious animals to visitors, whom they know to be incredulous. As the creatures leap principally by night they are not often seen. They can leap to a great height, and woe to the belated gannet upon which they once set their eye, even though it be flying at a height of a hundred feet above the surface of the sea. One who has seen the animal says they follow it like a sleuth hound, and when they get within striking distance launch themselves through the air, and, gliding by the aid of their large wing-like fins and guided by the swinging of their tail, they strike it and bring it down with unerring aim.

Economy is an often used word, but still a lot of people don't know what it means.

NO VOICE IN THE MATTER

Psychoanalysis Theory Felt to the Ground When Owner of Flaming Hut Gave Testimony.

The defendant and her friend, who was interested in psychoanalysis, were riding in the railway together. Their attention was drawn to a peculiar-looking woman who wore a most inappropriate hat of flame-colored tuff, trimmed with a gold tassel.

"It is always a mystery to me," said the defendant, "why people select to wear the very last thing in vogue that was ever designed for them. What, for instance, could have inspired first and foremost a woman to don a hat like that?"

"There is no doubt," replied her friend, "that the woman who you touch the subject of psychoanalysis, may have had some peculiar idea of her own personality, and she probably indulged in some eccentricities. She knew perfectly well that but the price is high."

"You mean that something within her has forced her to select that hat?"

"Certainly. However, she undoubtedly would give you a convincing reason if asked. Just for argument's sake I've gone to work her."

INDIAN LEGEND OF TOBACCO

Believed to Be Gift of Spirit to Whom Their Hunters Had Been Generous.

An Indian tradition as to the first appearance of tobacco in North America is to the effect that a Swedish hunter who took occasion to inform the chiefs of the Susquehanna Indians, in a kind of sermon, of the principal facts on which the Christian religion is founded, was thus answered by an old Indian orator:

"What you have told us is very good; we thank you for coming so far to tell us these things you have heard from your mothers; and we return we will tell you what we have heard from ours. In the beginning we had only flesh of animals to eat, and if they failed we starved. Two of our hunters having killed a deer and broiled a part of it, saw a young woman discovered from the clouds, and seat herself on a hill hard by. Said one to the other: 'It is a spirit, perhaps, that has smelt our venison; let us offer some of it to her.' They accordingly gave her the tongue. She was pleased with its flavor, and said: 'Your kindness will be rewarded; come here thirteen moons hence, and you shall find it.' They did so, and found maize growing; where her left hand had been, kidney beans; and where she had sat they found tobacco."

HE WHO PROVIDES IT ALL

William G. Sumner Gave Credit to the "Forgotten Man" for His Patient Industry.

Wealth comes only from production and all that the wrangling grabbers, loafers and robbers get to deal with comes from somebody's toil and sacrifice. Who, then, is he who provides it all? Go and find him, and you will have once more before you the Forgotten Man. You will find him hard at work because he has a great many to support. Nature has done a great deal for him in giving him a fertile soil and an excellent climate, and he wonders why it is that, after all, his sense of comfort is so moderate. He has to get out of the soil enough to pay all his taxes, and that means the rest of all the jobs and the fund for all the plunder. The Forgotten Man is delving away in patient industry, supporting his family, paying his taxes, casting his vote, supporting the church and school, reading his newspaper and cheering for the politicians of his admiration, but he is the only one for whom there is no provision in the great scramble and the big divide. Such is the Forgotten Man. He works he votes, generally he prays—but he always pays—yes, above all, he pays.—William G. Sumner.

Sunset Joy.

What a sunset! How golden! how beautiful! . . . The sun just disappearing, and the narrow lily clouds, which a few minutes ago lay like soft vapory streaks along the horizon lighted up with a golden splendor that the eye can scarcely endure. . . . Another minute and the brilliant orb totally disappears, and the sky above grows every moment more varied and more beautiful as the dazzling golden lines are mixed with glowing red and gorgeous purple, dappled with small dark specks and streaked with such a blue as the eyes of the hedgesparrow. To look up at that glorious sky, and there to see that magnificent picture reflected in the clear and lovely Lodon water is a pleasure never to be described and never forgotten. My heart swells and my eyes fill as I write of it and think of the immeasurable majesty of nature, and the unspeakable goodness of God who has spread an enjoyment so pure, so peaceful and so intense before the meek and the lowliest of His creatures.—Mary Russell Shford.

Asoka Sovereign of Ancient India.

Asoka of Magadha, whom H. E. Wells selected as one of the world's greatest men, was a sovereign of India who reigned 255 to 233 B. C. over the whole of northern Hindu India. He embraced Buddhism and forced his subjects to do likewise. Many temples and "stupas" in India are attributed to him. He wielded a powerful influence and was the "nursing father" of Buddhism, as Constantine was of Christianity. Asoka is often called "the king beloved of the gods" by natives of India.

Business Is Business.

A dozen or more men were waiting for arraignment in the detention pen of a New York city court. Among them was an old man who had been arrested for peddling suspenders without a license. He had a pile of suspenders hanging over his shoulders but he was not sitting down with the rest of the prisoners. He was busily trying to make a sale among them; in fact he did manage to get rid of one pair before he was called before the judge.

Best to Face Facts Bravely

In the End, Nothing Possibly Can Be Gained by Dodging the Recognized Truth.

People who deal in true facts often get the reputation of being cynics. It is an almost universal human failing to dodge truths which are unpleasant. The tendency of most of us is to color our facts to suit our own pleasure or convenience, and we are apt to be annoyed with the person who offers an obdurate variance with our own. If his portrayal of facts is not favorable to our interests we put him down as a pessimist. Later on we realize that it would have been more to our advantage to have accepted the truth even if it was unpleasant.

Three Atoms in Molecule

Division of Water, Small in Itself, is Made Up of Still Smaller Particles.

When a great scientist named Sir William Thomson was asked about the size of a molecule, he replied: "If a drop of water were magnified to the size of the earth, the molecules would each occupy spaces greater than those filled by small shot and smaller than those occupied by cricket balls." And yet molecules are made up of even smaller particles, called atoms. An atom is the smallest division of anything known.

BEST TO FACE FACTS BRAVELY

In the End, Nothing Possibly Can Be Gained by Dodging the Recognized Truth.

People who deal in true facts often get the reputation of being cynics. It is an almost universal human failing to dodge truths which are unpleasant. The tendency of most of us is to color our facts to suit our own pleasure or convenience, and we are apt to be annoyed with the person who offers an obdurate variance with our own. If his portrayal of facts is not favorable to our interests we put him down as a pessimist. Later on we realize that it would have been more to our advantage to have accepted the truth even if it was unpleasant.

Fooling oneself is a dangerous pastime which can lead one into serious trouble. It serves to lighten the mind of worry in regard to some impending disaster, but the trouble is apt to be more complicated when it does arrive, because by blinding ourselves to the truth we have missed the chance of trying to do something to relieve the situation. It is like an engine plunging into danger because we did not heed the warning signals.

The only sound foundation on which to build your life is not only to face and accept the truth, no matter how distasteful it may be, but also to diligently seek it. It is not necessary to join the list of those who always seem to take pleasure in announcing unpleasant facts and who feel that the truth should be uncompromisingly spoken at all times. It would be difficult to argue that there are not occasions when it is best to deceive people for their own good, but do not allow yourself to get into the habit of doing it to yourself. Face facts; don't beat yourself.

Isn't It The Truth?

"Mother?" "Yes, dear." "Tell me a juicy story before I go to bed, will you?" "Well, till your father comes home tomorrow, and he'll tell us both one.—E. K.

Rev. B. M. Bridges Gives Facts in His Case

It is doubtful if there has ever been a medicine endorsed by so many ministers of the Gospel as has Tangle. Indeed, there is scarcely a faith, creed or denomination in all the land in which one or more of the clergyman has not publicly expressed their indebtedness to the Premier Preparation for the benefits they have derived from its use.

One of the latest to speak out in this connection is Rev. B. M. Bridges, a widely known and beloved Baptist preacher, residing at Mooreboro, N. C., whose statement follows:

"Tangle has given me a good appetite, toned up my system and renewed my strength in such a gratifying way that I am glad to recommend it to anyone who is in a run-down condition. For ten years past I have had such a severe case of indigestion that I could not find anything to eat that agreed with me. Finally I became very nervous and could get but very little sleep or rest.

"It seems that I took nearly everything trying to get myself right, but nothing helped me until I ran across Tangle. My nerves are so much better now that I enjoy my meals and have also gained weight. I can say from experience that Tangle is a splendid medicine and tonic, for it has built me up wonderfully."

Tangle is sold by all good druggists.—Advertisement.

Fascisti in Complete Control of Italian Government With Mussolini as Premier.

JUGO-SLAVIA TALKS OF WAR

America Declines to Participate in Near East Conference but Names Her Interests—Turkish Nationalists Dethrone Sultan—Marriage of Former Kaiser Wilhelm.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

THE United States has declined the invitation to participate in the Near East peace conference at Lausanne, Switzerland, but will be represented by observers who will keep tabs on "certain subjects of particular American concern." Do you think the United States could or should do anything more than this in the settling of the tangled affairs of the Near East?

NO VICTORY could be more complete than that won by the Fascisti in their peaceful revolution in Italy. They are now in absolute control of the government and their chief, Benito Mussolini, is premier and minister of foreign affairs and of the interior. Glottiti declined the premiership, so Mussolini at the invitation of the king took the place and promptly announced the new cabinet. Most of its members belong to the Fascisti, but several places are given to the Nationalists, one to the Democrats and one to the Catholic party. From all over the country the Black Shirts flocked to Rome where 100,000 of them paraded before the king and premier, and then, at the order of their leaders, they dispersed to their homes to resume their vocations.

Italy seems to have supreme confidence in Mussolini, believing that he will put an end to the conflicts of political factions that have sadly hindered its development during the last three years and that under his rule economic prosperity will be restored. He is young, vigorous and unpretentious and already has buckled down to hard work. Once he was a revolutionary Socialist and was expelled from Switzerland and from what was then the Austrian Tyrol. But he broke with his old associates when in his paper, Popolo Italia, he urged Italy to enter the war on the side of the allies. To the world at large the victory of Mussolini and his Fascisti is most important because it was a victory over the Communists, radical Socialists and "Reds" generally. These forces of disruption and disorder were so badly whipped that the Communist party in Italy has announced its own dissolution, which presumably means that the Communist deputies will resign from the chamber.

Mussolini, denying that his program has any chauvinistic plans, said: "Italy needs peace at home as well as abroad. I never believed in a bellicose attitude, and therefore no clash is possible between Italy and Jugo-Slavia or any other power. We want to prove that our sole ambition is to make the country a true friend toward friends and of a people strong, fair and laborious, a people worthy to live alongside the greatest nations." Nevertheless Jugo-Slavia was greatly excited by Mussolini's triumph and talked wildly of mobilization and war. Her frontier guards were re-enforced and some fighting was reported. In Rome it was said the alarm of the Serbs was groundless.

EXHIBITION OF DAIRY WORK

Expert Satisfied That Excellent Results Will Follow National Show Recently Held.

Urbana, Ill.—The importance of training boys and girls to do definite things in farm work better than anyone else can do them was one of the object lessons coming out of the national dairy show recently held at St. Paul. In the opinion of W. J. Fraser, professor of dairy husbandry at the by "observers." We were invited to full participation, but Secretary Hughes declined, stating:

"The conference proposed for the purpose of drawing up a treaty of peace with Turkey will have primarily to deal with the problems resulting from the state of belligerency between the allied powers, Turkey, and Greece. The United States was neither at war with Turkey nor a party to the armistice of 1918, and does not desire to participate in the final peace negotiations or to assume responsibility for the political and territorial adjustments which may be effected."

At the same time Mr. Hughes said his observers would keep watch over the disposition of "certain subjects of particular American concern."

Soviet Russia was invited to take part in that portion of the conference which has to do with the Dardanelles, and while she is indignant at the limitation, she probably will accept.

THE Angora national assembly has declared, the sultan of Turkey de-throned and also has condemned to death the Turkish signatories of the treaty of Sevres and the members of the cabinet of former Premier Damad Ferid Pasha. Time sovereignty of the nation is declared to rest in the hands of the people, and the name Ottoman Empire is changed to the State of Turkey. This is virtually the proclamation of a republic, but another sultan may be elected later.

EXCEPT among the German monarchists, the marriage of the former kaiser and Princess Hermione of Reuss on November 5 has caused only amusement. Really it is entirely unimportant, but Wilhelm spread himself so far as he could, with ludicrous pomp and proclamations in which all his lost titles appear. The ceremony was performed at Doorn and was attended by a considerable number of the faithful, including George Sylvester Viereck, the notorious pro-German American journalist. Wilhelm wanted to take his bride for a honeymoon trip outside of Holland, but the allies and the Dutch government wouldn't permit that. The "queen of Prussia," as Hermione now styles herself, seems to be a determined lady and she has announced that she will spend several months each year away from Doorn which would be too dull for continuous residence. But hubby must remain there.

ATTORNEY GENERAL DAUGHTERY, who has been attacked repeatedly because of his alleged slowness in prosecuting the "war swindlers," has announced that preliminary investigation into 425 wartime contracts has disclosed evidence on which the government will take action. In every one of these cases, he says, either civil or criminal suits or both must be brought by the government. "Legal civil action will be taken in every case in which it has been discovered that fraud, collusion, or dishonesty was practiced," said the attorney general. "While great numbers of cases indicate on their face the worst kind of fraud and thievery, the government cannot, of course, go into court until it has established absolutely on the face of records in its possession that its case will stand the acid test. The government must be fair to itself, and fair even to those whom it would brand as crooks and profiteers, yet, every single individual, firm, or corporation involved in the cases now in the possession of the department, must satisfy the government's claims to the last penny."

PRESIDENT HARDING celebrated his fifty-seventh birthday last Thursday by going through with his usual round of official duties. The day was not forgotten, however, for telegraphic greetings came from many rulers and leaders of other countries and from innumerable friends in America. The President spent the evening quietly with Mrs. Harding, who, though recovering from her recent severe illness, is still confined to her bed.

FINAL balloting for the elections this week denominated much attention from Americans during the week just closing. To predict results would be foolish. Down in Texas there was a seemingly inextricable tangle that, it was believed, would leave both University of Illinois. The demonstrations put on by teams from the boys' and girls' clubs, he said, had a direct bearing on the dairying of the future.

"Many little children in the audience sat fascinated at this exhibition given by their country friends," said Professor Fraser, "and curious of their animal playmates. These teams were chosen from clubs in their respective states, which included many thousands of boys and girls of all ages."

major parties without any candidate for the United States senate on the ballot. The Democrats had G. E. B. Paddy, fusion candidate, barred from the ticket because he participated in the 150,000 Texan vote for Harding. Then charges were brought against E. B. Mayfield, Democratic candidate, because he was said to have been a member of the Ku Klux Klan. This has resulted in a legal complication which at this writing seems likely to keep Mayfield's name off the ballot. The fight may be carried to the senate.

MUNICIPAL elections in England, which were taken as indication of the results in the coming general election, turned out very badly for the laborites, usually classed there as Socialists. They lost 143 seats which they had held in London and about 100 seats they had held in 80 boroughs outside the capital.

Cuba also had elections and the Liberal party scored a sweeping victory, increasing their representation in the lower house of congress so much that the administration majority is imperiled. It is worthy of note that no disturbances were reported.

PRESIDENT OBREGON of Mexico got rid of one of his most dangerous enemies last week. General Murgula, leader of the latest revolt, was caught asleep in a church at Tepic, hunted and within a few hours had been court-martialed, condemned and executed by a firing squad. The haste was explained by the fact that he was seeking legal restraints to prevent an immediate trial. It was felt in Mexico City that Murgula's death brought appreciably nearer the general pacification of the country.

THREE notable men died last week. Father Bernard Vaughan, famous Jesuit preacher and brother of Cardinal Vaughan, passed away in England. Thomas Nelson Page, well-known American author and former ambassador to Italy, died in Virginia. Thomas DeWitt Cuyler of the Pennsylvania Railroad company and chairman of the Railroad Executives' association, was found dead in a private car at Philadelphia.

THE mixed claims commission, named to adjudicate war claims between the United States and Germany, is now busy in Washington. At the first sessions, with Justice Day presiding as umpire, the working system for presenting the claims was settled. The American commissioner is Judge Edwin B. Parker and the German commissioner, Dr. Wilhelm Klesselbach.

RECENTLY the federal railway labor board rendered a majority opinion rejecting "the living wage" theory advanced by spokesmen for railway unions. If given strict application, it would give common laborers a minimum wage of about 72 cents an hour, and as a step toward this the maintenance of way men asked a 48-cent minimum. The labor board, increasing the prevailing rate 2 cents an hour, granted a minimum ranging from 25 to 37 cents an hour. It was in connection with this decision that the living wage opinion was given, the board asserting that the wage theory of labor if given application "would wreck every road, and if extended to other industries, would carry them into commercial ruin."

Samuel Gompers, Edsel Ford and William Randolph Hearst all assailed this view. Their attacks rolled Ben W. Hooper, chairman of the board, and he retaliated with a stinging statement. He gave Mr. Gompers credit for sincerity, marveled at the attitude of the Hearst papers and poked fun at young Ford. He continued:

"One of the expert economists who presented the matter to the board for the employees stated that this would 'throw a monkey wrench into the industrial machinery' and that the theoretical living wage should not be established all at once, but the minimum should be made 48 cents per hour. This would likewise create a deficit of several hundred million dollars."

"The swelling tide of prosperity in our country cannot be hastened by methods of this kind."

utes in which to give its demonstration. One member of the team showed exactly how to select a good dairy heifer, having such a heifer on the platform to use as an example. Another member of the team showed how calves should be fed at different ages, having samples of the different feeds and showing how to mix the ration for different ages. Another team used milk and utensils in demonstrating how milk should be handled in a clean manner from the cow to the consumer."

CHAPTER XI -16- The Gangsters.

Gramont left the covert and walked forward. He was thinking about that odd mention of Jachin Fell—had Chacheard of. He stood motionless, knowing that this typed sheet of paper in itself was damning evidence against the whole gang of workers. What was more to the point, that paper could be traced; the typewriting could be traced to the man higher up—doubtless Memphis Izzy himself! These men ran in cars by the wholesale, probably from states adjacent to Louisiana. Here, at this secluded point on the bayou, they changed the cars completely about, in number, paint, style of body, and then probably got rid of the new product in New Orleans.

Gramont stood motionless. Surprise had taken hold of him, and even a feeling of slight dismay. This was not at all what he had hoped to find there. He had thought to come upon some traces of the lottery game—

"Seen all you want, boy?" said a voice behind him. Gramont turned. He found himself gazing directly into an automatic pistol over which glittered a pair of blazing eyes. The man was a stranger to him. The place had not been deserted, after all. He was caught.

"Who are you?" demanded Gramont, quietly.

"Me?" The stranger was unsmiling, deadly. In those glittering eyes Gramont read the ferocity of an animal.

He walked straight in upon the barn. It loomed before him, closed, lurid in the level rays of the western sun. The doors in front had been only loosely swung together and Gramont found them unlocked. He stood in the opening, and surprise gripped him. He was held motionless, gazing with astonished wonder at the sight confronting him.

Directly before him was a small room, one which he remembered to have seen Jachin Fell using; in this car, doubtless, Ben Chacchere had driven from the city. He recalled the fact later, with poignant regret for a lost opportunity. But at the present moment, he was lost in amazement at the great number of other cars presenting themselves to his view.

They were lined up as deep as the barn would hold them, crammed into every available foot of space; well over a dozen cars, he reckoned swiftly. What was more, all were cars of the highest class, with the exception of Fell's roadster. Directly before him were two which he was well aware must have cost close upon ten thousand each. What did this mean? Certainly no one man or group of men, in this back-country spot, could expect to use such an accumulation of expensive cars!

Gramont glanced around, but found no trace of machinery in the barn. Remembering the motor that he had heard, he turned from the doorway in frowning perplexity. He strode on toward the long shed which stood closer to the house. At the end of this shed was a door, and when he tried it, Gramont found it unlocked. It swung open to his hand, and he stepped inside.

At first he paused, confused by the vague objects around, for it was quite dark in here. A moment, and his eyes grew accustomed to the gloomier lighting. Details came to him: all around were cars and fragments of cars, chassis and bodies in all stages of dismemberment. Still more cars!

He slowly advanced to a long bench that ran the length of the shop beneath the windows. A shop, indeed—a shop, he quickly perceived, fitted with every tool and machine necessary to the most complete automobile repair establishment! Even an air-brush outfit, at one end, together with a drying compartment, spoke of repeat jobs.

Comprehension was slowly dawning upon the mind of Gramont; a moment later it became certainty, when he came to a stop before an automobile engine lying on the bench. He found it to be the engine from a Stutz—the latest multi-valve type adopted by that make of car, and this particular bit of machinery looked like new.

Gramont inspected it, and he saw that the men had done their work well. The original engine number had been carefully dug out, and the place was carefully filled and leveled with metal. Beside it a new number had been stamped. A glance at the electrical equipment around showed that these workers had every appliance with which to "run out the most finished jobs.

As he straightened up from the engine Gramont's eyes fell upon a typed sheet of paper affixed to the wall above the bench. His gaze widened as he inspected it by the falling light. Upon that paper was a list of cars. After each car was a series of numbers plainly comprising the original numbers of the engine, body, radiator and other component parts, followed by another series of new numbers to be inserted. That sheet of paper showed brains, organizing ability, care and attention to the last detail!

Here was the most carefully planned and thorough system of automobile robbery that Gramont had ever

To Gramont's astonishment the pistol was lowered instantly. It was well that he ceased speaking, for what he had just said proved to be open to misconstruction, and if he had said any more he would have spoiled it. For the man facing him was staring at him in mingled disgust and surprise.

"You're in partnership with the boss," came the astounding words. "Well, why in h— didn't you say all that in the first place, instead of heading around? That's no way to hutt in, and me thinking you was some dink on the job! Got anything to prove that you ain't pullin' something cute on me?"

"Do you know Fell's writing?" asked Gramont, with difficulty forcing himself to meet the situation coherently. Jachin Fell—the boss!

"I know his mitt, all right." From his pocket Gramont produced a paper—the memorandum or agreement which he had drawn up with Fell the previous afternoon, relating to the oil company. The other man took it and switched on an electric light bulb overhead. In this glare he was revealed as a raty little individual with open mouth and teeth hanging out—an adenoidal type, and certainly a criminal type.

It crossed the mind of Gramont that one blow would do the work—but he stood motionless. No sudden game would help him here. The discovery that Fell was "the boss" paralyzed him completely. He had never dreamed of such a contingency. Fell, of all men!

Jachin Fell the "boss" of this establishment! Jachin Fell the man higher up—the brains behind this criminal organization! It was a perfect thunderbolt to Gramont. Now he understood why Chacchere was in the employ of Fell—why no arrest of the man had been possible! Now he perceived that Chacchere must have told the truth about coming here on business for Fell. Reaching farther back, he saw that Fell must have received the loot of the Midnight Masquer, must have turned it over to Lucie Ledanois—

Did she know? "All right, Mr. Gramont," The raty little man turned to him with evident change of front. "We ain't takin' no chances here, y'understand. Got quite a shipment of cars comin' in from Texas, and we're tryin' to get some o' these boats cleaned out to make room. Bring out any orders?"

Gramont's brain worked fast. By overcoming this guttersnipe he might have the whole place at his mercy—but that was not what he wanted. He suddenly realized that he had other and more important fish to fry in New Orleans. Gumberts was there, Fell was there. What he must do demanded time, and his best play was to gain all the time possible, and to prevent this gang from suspecting him in any way.

"Did you see Ben Chacchere?" he countered. "Oh—uh—seen him just after he come. Gumberts will be out day after tomorrow, he said. The boss is framin' some sort of deal on a guy that he wants laid away—some guy name of Hammond. Chacchere is running it. He flazers on gettin' Hammond on account of some car that's been hunted up—"

Gramont laughed suddenly, for there was a grin humor about the thing. So Jachin Fell wanted to "get something" on poor Hammond! And Chacchere had seized the golden opportunity that presented itself this afternoon—in the theft of a car, Chacchere had coolly fastened murder upon him!

"Ben is an smart man; I expect he thinks the gods are working for him," said Gramont, thinly. "So you don't know what happened today, eh? Well, it's great news, but I've got no time to talk about it. They'll tell you when they get back—"

"Where'd they go?" demanded the other. "Houma. Now listen close! Chacchere did not know that I was in partnership with the boss, get me? I didn't want to tell all the crowd in front of him. Between you and me, the boss isn't any too sure about Ben—"

"Say, I get you there!" broke in the other, eagerly. "I tells him six months ago to watch out for that Creole guy!" "Exactly. You can tell the boys about me when they come back—I don't suppose Ben will be with them. Now, I've been looking over that place next door—"

"Oh!" exclaimed the other, suddenly. "Sure! The boss said that one of his friends would be down to—"

"I'm the one—or one of them," and Gramont chuckled as he reflected on the ludicrous aspects of the whole affair. "I'm going to Houma now, and then back to the city. My car's over next door. Mr. Fell wanted me to warn you to lay low on the lottery business. He's got a notion that some one's been talking."

"You go tell the boss," retorted the other in an aggrieved tone. "to keep his eye on the guys that can talk. Who'd we talk to here? Besides, we're workin' our heads off on these here boats. Memphis Izzy is attending to the lottery—he's got the whole layout up to the house, and we ain't touchin' it, see? Tell the boss all that."

FOUND HIS PROBLEM WAS SOLVED

Stroke of Luck Said to Have Come to Man at Work on Idea of Un-sinkable Boat.

Among the "accidental" inventions may be mentioned the lifeboat. In the course of a country stroll William Roughton, the inventor of the self-righting lifeboat, came across a woman who asked him to help in lifting a heavy vessel of water just drawn from the well. On the surface of the water there floated the broken half of a wooden bowl.

Wouldhave been drawn into conversation, and like many another man who cannot keep his hands quiet while he talks, he idly toyed with the floating piece of wood. Naturally he turned it over and found to his surprise that it immediately righted itself. He inverted it again, with the same result; and since he was at the time actually at work on the problem of an un-sinkable boat he immediately realized the importance of his chance discovery.

It is an experiment that anyone can readily make for himself. All one requires is the fourth part of a hollow "porlate spheroid"; or to put it more homely language, the quarter of a coconut shell split from end to end. Put the shell in a bowl of water and you will find that it will not remain emplaced, but will return at once to an even keel. In scientific language it will float only with the convex surface downward.—New York Times.

THE LEGION OATMEAL COOKIE

Recipe Submitted by Mrs. Frederick Gehlman, Springfield, Ill., Wine International Contest.

Mrs. Frederick Gehlman of Springfield, Ill., presents the national cookie to the country. Of the 400 recipes which have been pouring into national headquarters of the American Legion Auxiliary during the past two months, the Gehlman "Oatmeal Cookie" has been selected to fill the jars in military hospitals throughout the United States.

Although no prize whatever was offered in this unique contest, recipes came in from every state in the Union and from Hawaii, Alaska, Canada and Paris besides. So it was really an international contest, but the winner hailed from our own Middle West. The judges selected Mrs. Gehlman's cookie recipe for use in the hospitals, because it best combines food value with little fat content. It makes a mighty good tasting cookie, too. Here it is:

2 cupsful sugar 1 cupful raisins
2 cupsful flour (cut with scissors)
1 teaspoonful soda 1 cupful lard or 2 teaspoonfuls bak- butter
ing powder
1 cupful rolled 1 cupful sour milk
oats (ground) 1 egg (well beaten)

Process: Flour the raisins. Cream the fat in a mixing bowl, adding the sugar gradually. Add the egg, then the milk, then the dry ingredients after sifting them together, then the oats, and lastly the floured raisins. Using a teaspoon, put onto a greased and floured baking sheet. Put into a fairly hot oven (350 degrees) and leave 10 to 15 minutes.

Mrs. W. J. Marks of Indianapolis, widely recognized domestic science expert, and the members of her "flour" class acted as judges for the contest. They selected as an alternate to the Gehlman hospital cookie, another "oatmeal cookie" which they would recommend for general use. It contains a larger percentage of fat and no milk. Mrs. A. O. Wiggin, Lima, Ohio, sent it in.

The vote gave Mrs. Mary B. Snodgrass of Highland Park, Mich., second ranking without a rival. She sent in an "orange cookie" recipe.

The judges selected as the third ranking recipe a "cream cookie" with small fat content, sent in by Miss Mary E. Robinson, Walla Walla, Washington.

Mrs. Herbert Pinnell of Indianapolis is shown mixing the dough for the National Cookie. She was one of the class of judges and—secret—she hasn't been mixing dough for Husband Pinnell so very long.

OHIO LEGION MAN MISSING
Clair A. Anthony is Being Sought by Toledo Post, No. 319—His Family Needs Him.

Joseph Baker Post, No. 319, Toledo, O., is seeking the whereabouts of Clair A. Anthony, who has disappeared from his home in that city, and whose wife and children are in destitute circumstances. Anthony is described as twenty-nine years old, five feet six inches in height, weight 180 pounds, ruddy complexion, dark hair, blue eyes. He walks with a slight limp in the left leg.

Anyone having information concerning Anthony is asked to communicate with Leiland M. Beatley, commander of the post, 4112 North Haven street, Toledo, O.

Circumstantial Only. On the complaint of a farmer, old Ephraim had been haled into court charged with chicken shooting. His lawyer had made a fairly good case for him and for a clincher had the plaintiff recalled, hoping to make him contradict his own testimony.

"See here," said, scowling savagely, "will you please tell me what Ephraim who's charged with chicken shooting, 'I won't swear to it, 'I'm a man. What makes you suspect him?" "Wal, I saw him in the chicken yard with a gun, then I heard the gun go off, and then I saw him putting the chicken into a bag—and it didn't somehow seem sensible to figger the bird committed suicide."—American Legion Weekly.

BUSINESS TIDE ON RISE.
Monthly Review Shows People Are Now Buying.

Cleveland, Ohio.—The business tide is rising; the receding tide has carried out most of the wrecks of business and the incoming tide is raising the tide line of business, according to the monthly business review of the Fourth Federal Reserve bank, issued recently.

"Were it possible to sum up in four words the expressions of our many correspondents in the district they would say: 'We are buying now,'" the review says.

An analysis of seventy-six basic materials shows that forty-eight are higher now than they were a year ago, according to the review.

There are many instances which justify the belief of a rising tide of business, the review says.

The head of one of the largest textile mills in the country, with general offices in the Cleveland district, says orders now on their books are sufficient to carry them at full capacity until February 1.

The purchase by the railroads of rails for 1923 delivery, immediately preceding the advance in prices on October 1, are estimated to have totaled 1,500,000 tons, the largest rail-buying movement in a given time in the history of the steel industry.

Harding "Porch Quilt" Sold.
Marion, Ohio.—The Harding "front porch" quilt, which was made by the Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters at Marion, with the assistance of Mrs. Harding, was sold to a cabinet member, whose name was withheld, for $150.

The money will be used to establish a bed in the city hospital, it was announced.

The quilt contains the autographs of fifty-four prominent people who visited Marion during the 1920 presidential campaign and others whose autographs were sent the ladies. Among the signatures are those of President and Mrs. Harding and former Presidents William Howard Taft and Woodrow Wilson.

No Change in Tourist Rates.
Chicago.—The executive committee of the Western Passenger Association, meeting in Chicago, adopted a resolution to continue the same railroad tourist rates next year as were in effect this year from Chicago to Colorado, the Rockies, Yellowstone and Glacier National parks, and all points through to Spokane, Seattle, Portland and the Northwest and Pacific coast regions generally.

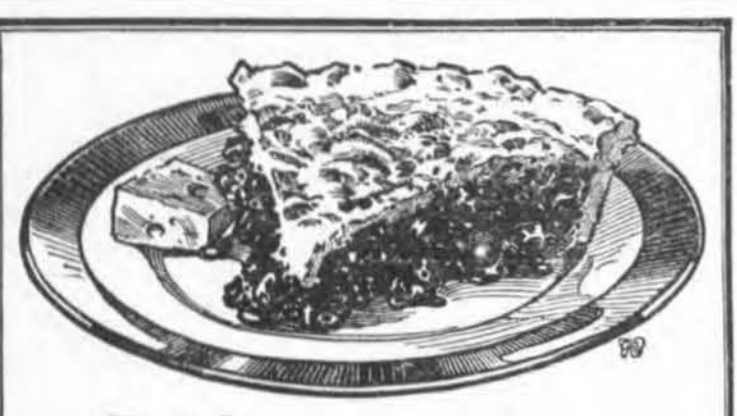

Will Not Maintain Frs. Bureau.
Denver.—Due to the decrease of unemployment in Denver and with all indications pointing toward a normal and prosperous winter season, Mayor Bailey issued the statement that Denver will not maintain a free employment bureau this year as has been the custom for the last three years. Municipal jobs such as the 31,000,000 Park Hill storm sewer, and the Broadway and Sixteenth street viaducts, will afford employment to all men in Denver who are jobless.

Permits Show City's Growth.
Denver.—Denver is catching up with itself in a mercantile way while advancing creditably as a distribution and manufacturing center—at least that is the story told by an analysis of the building permits of a business nature issued during the first nine months of the year.

Jail Closed Three Years, Reopened.
Dover, N. H.—The Stratford county jail, closed three years for lack of prisoners, reopened with sixteen inmates. The superintendent said his institution had become necessary once more "because of the widespread manufacture of illicit booze."

Transportation Eats Up Profit.
Breckwood, Wis.—Joseph Schutrap of Washburn shipped a bushel of apples to Minneapolis with the intention of shipping his crop there if he considered that a reasonable profit could be made. He received a letter later that the apples were satisfactory and that he would be paid 75 cents a bushel. Transportation costs were 72 cents on the bushel and postage paid to make the deal was 2 cents, a total of 74 cents.

Makes Ocean Trip Minus Helmsman.
New York.—A mechanical steering device supplanted the hand of the quartermaster of the Munsion liner Montargio on her last voyage from eastern Cuban ports to New York, Captain Andrew Ashburn of the Montargio declared a few days ago. The vessel, which docked in New York recently, was the first American passenger ship to make an ocean voyage without a helmsman, company officials say.

CHANGED IN TIME'S COURSE

Formation of Quotation Marks Not Always Exactly as They Are Seen Today.

The use of quotation marks dates from about 1550. They were not common in books of the eighteenth century in England, and when they were introduced the English printers refused to accept the French form, which consisted of two parentheses at the beginning and end of the quotation.

When the English printers decided to use quotations, they substituted two inverted commas for the beginning and two apostrophes for the end of a quotation. Later, quotation marks in imitation of those necessitating the setting of merely one type instead of two, were cast by certain foundries.

In his "Præctise of Typography," Theodore L. DeVinne in the chapter on "Correct Composition" uses nothing but quotation marks beginning with tails up and closing with tails down. He illustrates the use of the French method of double parentheses.

The introduction of quotation marks with tails down at the beginning of a quotation as well as tails down at the end is a comparatively recent innovation due to our appetite for novelty to create new forms.

In the old Ben Franklin type the beginning quotations had their tails up; in the Bodoni type of today the quotations have their tails down. The standard of American typographical practice as reflected by the trade publications as well as books treating of the subject shows in the beginning quotations have tails up and ending quotations have tails down, but the craft cannot prevent the introduction of idiosyncrasies.—Literary Digest.

USE FIREFLIES AS ORNAMENTS

Cuban Ladies Employ Them for Adornment—Give Light for Domestic Purposes in Haiti.

The most brilliant fireflies are found only in the warmer regions of the world. The ordinary firefly gives off a very much brighter light if placed in warm water. Fine print can be read by the light of one kind which is found in the West Indies. In Cuba the ladies have a fashion of imprisoning them as dress ornaments, and in Haiti they are used to give light for domestic purposes, eight or ten confined in a vial emitting sufficient light to enable a person to write. The fireflies seen so often on summer evenings in America are similar to the species of beetle called the glowworm in Great Britain, although the glowworm there does not give as much light as the firefly in America.

It is really only the female which is the firefly, for the male is not equipped with any lighting power. She seems to possess the power of moderating or increasing the light at will.

Houghton and Copper Industry.

Up to ten years ago the little shed in which Douglas Houghton made the experiments in metallurgy which later resulted in his demonstrating the copper possibilities of the upper peninsula of Michigan was standing in Fredonia, N. Y.

Houghton, son of a judge who was a pioneer of the town, was regarded as a phenomenally bright boy, and established a chemical and metallurgical laboratory when in his teens. Old residents tell of his once producing an explosion which nearly ended his career.

He became an instructor in chemistry in one of the colleges of the state at twenty-one, and was less than thirty years old when he was drowned in Lake Superior, after having been the means of establishing a mining industry that brought untold millions to Michigan.

Wideawake Snoring.

A group of women were in the dressing room of the Pullman, laughing good naturedly over having been kept awake all night by the snoring of their own husbands and the husbands of each other. The whole car had resounded with the mighty chorus throughout the night.

As they were making their way back to their seats again they heard their husbands talking.

"Didn't sleep a wink last night," one said.

"I never do on a sleeper," said a second.

"I knew every time the train stopped," said a third. (The train had made but one stop.)

And all agreed to a sleepless night, while the wives, poor dears, took comfort in the fact that no one husband was more truthful than the other.

Maryland Names.

Maryland cities and towns received their names largely from Indian tribes, their lodges once dotting the shores of Maryland's fine streams. The Maryland Academy of Sciences mentions the following tribes which have left their imprint on the state, although the names now in use have been changed somewhat: The Seco, wocconoes, the Patapscoes, the Pama, cacacoes, the Yawacoconoes, the Patuxentes, the Wighconoes, the Nanticookes and the Delawares.—Baltimore News.

Polite to Make Noise While Eating.

When an Abyssinian and his guest sit down to the table a woman is stationed on each side of them, not to dine, but to see that they get plenty to eat. These women cut the food and cram it into the mouths of the men with as much speed as possible.

To show their appreciation of the food which is set before them, the Abyssinians must make as much noise as possible in eating. The man who can manage the largest bites and make the most noise while doing so is held in high esteem by his fellows, and considered quite well bred.

The women vie with one another in trying to see who can feed the Abyssinian men the swiftest, and express keen pleasure when their particular charge makes the most noise while eating.

HAVOC IN HOUSE OF DEAD

Egyptian Mourners for Departed Break All Mirrors and the Choicest of the Chinaware.

When a member of an Egyptian household passes away, every mirror in the house is taken out and smashed, together with the choicest of chinaware to be found in the home. It is always the women who do the breaking, while the men sit quietly in a room on the lower floor of the house and smoke.

Professional wailing women go to the home which has suffered a loss as soon as the news reaches them. They are not invited, but go of their own accord, taking with them drums, upon which they beat a loud tattoo. When the family, the professional mourners and the friends are all assembled at the house of mourning, the preparing of the house in honor of the dead begins. All of the pictures are turned face to the wall, the furniture is carried into the yard, the mirrors are taken out and smashed against a stone, and the choice china suffers the same fate.

While the women wail and break the mirrors and china they beat their faces until they are black and blue, and tear their hair until they are completely exhausted.

During all of this time the men have been silent, not even shedding a tear.

FAMOUS AS ANIMAL'S FRIEND

Irishman Father of Law Which Aimed to Put a Stop to Their Ill Treatment.

Richard Martin introduced into the British parliament in 1822 an act providing punishment for the "ill treatment of cattle," and by the force of his personality forced its passage as a law.

"Humanity" Martin, so named by King George IV because of his introduction and support of the law, was an Irish nobleman with immense estates in Galway.

Less than a year after Martin's death at Boulogne, France, in 1834, his original act was amended, and bull and bear baiting and cock fighting were prohibited throughout the British Isles.

Two years after the passage of the act Martin organized the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Queen Victoria later giving her approval to the addition of the word "Royal" to the title. From this society originated the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Hook and Eye Becomes Popular.

In the sixteenth century the manufacture of silk, which had formerly been imported from the East, was taken up in Italy, and the vogue of this lighter material created a demand for smaller and lighter dress fasteners. The hook and eye became more popular. Their manufacture was also made easier now by the application of water power to wire drawing, and from that time until the present day they have been continually in use.

The first modern improvement on all these fasteners of old were the attempts at spring fasteners made for the cross-fitting gloves when they succeeded the gannet. About 1800 a sewed-on fastener with a spring was successfully tried out on all sorts of clothes, and the making of these little snaps has now become a world industry.

They have their place in the museum at Prague, but what a long road leads back through time from the snap fastener to the bone pin of the caverns in the Pyrenees!

Elk Teeth as Ornaments.

Indian braves decorated themselves with necklaces made of claws taken from the most ferocious animal in America, the grizzly bear. Only the squaws wore elk teeth as decorations, and they used only those from the animals killed for food and clothing. Now the white men are following the fashion of the squaws, but are paying a price that tempts the lowest characters to slaughter and waste the elk for these really worthless trinkets.

A fuller understanding of the history and significance of the custom of wearing elk teeth should have an influence in deprecating the market for them and thus removing the incentive for this wanton destruction of our noblest and most valuable game animal.—Exchange.

set aside by our forefathers as a time for devotion and thanksgiving—often loses its significance in this day of hurry and bustle. To the rank and file of us it has come to mean merely a coveted holiday.

It is a human fallacy to forget the spirit of an occasion while remembering the letter of it. Yet we have so much more to be truly thankful for than our courageous ancestors.

An hour might be worse spent than in thinking over our advantages and opportunities. Thinking about them makes us appreciate them more, and appreciating them more induces us to make the best use of them.

Bobby Burns' Snuff Box. Robert Burns was never happier than when he could "pass a winter evening under some venerable roof and smoke a pipe of tobacco or drink water gruel." He also took tobacco in the form of snuff. Mr. Bacon, who kept a celebrated posting-house north of Dumfries, was his almost inseparable companion. Many a merry night they spent together over their cups of foaming ale or bowls of whisky toddy, and on some of these occasions Scotland's great bard composed several of his best-loved convivial songs. The bard and innkeeper became so attached to each other that, as a token of regard, Burns gave Bacon his snuff box, which for many years had been his pocket companion.

Somewhat Odd Phrases. "We use many phrases very glibly," said a college professor, "which have an entirely different meaning from the one we intended. We all speak, for instance, of a man being a scholar and a gentleman. It's supposed to be highly complimentary. Now I have spent the most of my life trying to be a scholar and I hope I am a gentleman, but why should we make the distinction? Another phrase insists a much larger class. It is the use of the word 'but' in the phrase, 'poor but honest.' This is a confession, of course, that it is a remarkable thing for a poor man to be honest."

Ancestry of Birds. Evolutionists believe that man arose from the basic stock that produced the apes. The ancestry of birds can be traced still further to none other than the lowly reptile. Fossil birds, to which we must look for our evidence, are almost as scarce as fossil men. Extinct reptiles and mammals have been preserved for us in abundance, but the very power of flight, which raised the bird above its reptilian ancestors, has done much to cheat us of avian remains. Cumbrous, awkward creatures, without this magic gift, chance caught in sticky pitch or the treacherous mud of some lo-goon, are unable to escape its grip. But the light-bodied, quick-winged bird is seldom trapped in such a way.

Chinese Idea of Goldfish. It is said that there is a universal belief among the Chinese that the finer kinds of goldfish are raised from the eggs of the silk moth. According to the belief of the Chinese the silk moth lays its eggs on a fresh brick or tile, and this is placed in shallow water and exposed to the sun. In several days, they hatch out minute larvae and are fed on pond slime, developing rapidly into gorgeous goldfish.

Great care has to be used in the preparation of the water, but the process may be abetted by an intervening thundercap, which sometimes makes such havoc with the eggs that they hatch out frogs or scorpions instead of the much desired goldfish.

The worst thing about elections is having your friends beat—next to being beaten yourself.
