The Andes Mine May Be Another Local 'Bonanza'

A mine of great promise that has not been in the limelight much lately, but which comprises a vast body of highly mineralized ground in the Andes. An immense amount of development work has been done under the supervision of Mr. Ed Bollinger, who has developed the property for its owner.

of a 90-foot shaft and about 600 feet of drifts, cross-outs and raises. Five carloads of ore averaging 9 per cent copper have been shipped from the upper workings. The lower tunnel, which is a cross-cut affair, has been driven 1500 feet, with lateral workings, drifts and cross-outs. The lower tunnel strikes the ore body at a vertical depth of 600 feet, which proves that the work done at depth in this district produces results not obtainable in shallow workings.

Gossip of Mines In This District

AMERICAN PEAK SHOWING GREAT PROMISE Mr. Ed J. Bollinger came in Wednesday evening from Harshaw, where he has been directing development work on the American Peak mining claims, owned by himself, Col. R. R. Richardson and Herman Bender.

AUTO LICENSES FOR 1922

Persons who have not secured their 1922 automobile license should do so at once and avoid the possibility of being penalized for neglect. Some things not generally known in connection with licenses for 1922 are: Apply to the county assessor, instead of the state treasurer; have the number of your engine and car; the model and year of manufacture, and the rated horsepower.

WE LIKE TO BE NOTICED

Letters like the following makes an editor feel as though he was of some use in a community: The Nogales Chamber of Commerce, Nogales, Ariz., Jan. 18, 1922. Mr. Howard Keener, Patagonia, Ariz. Dear Sir:

HARSHAW MINERS IN FROM CAMP

Mr. John Combs and Herman Bender of Harshaw were in town Tuesday, and report mining in that district as progressing very satisfactorily. Mr. Combs is interested, with Tony Clyde, in a Harshaw property, where they have done over 1500 feet of development work, having shipped considerable ore in the past.

R. D. HALL DROPS INTO TOWN MONDAY

Mr. R. D. Hall, partner of J. J. Farley in a lease on the Bender group of claims adjoining and belonging to the Harshaw Mining Company's property at Harshaw was in town on business Wednesday. He reports that the new strike on their lease is developing very satisfactorily. The ore shows some high-grade in the extensive low-grade ore body.

PAYMASTER BONDED TO ED FARLEY

Col. R. R. Richardson has bonded to Mr. Ed Farley the Paymaster mine, which lies 3 miles west of the Mowry, in the Patagonia mountains. This is a gold property carrying values of approximately $20 per ton gold, with some silver and copper. The minerals are found in a large ledge of granite extending over 6 claims and running into the old Provo mine, which is well known in this district. The Paymaster is heard from again, and we predict a bright future for it.

J. J. FRALEY OF HARSHAW IN AGAIN

Mr. J. J. Farley was in town Wednesday and Thursday. He says the ore body on the Bender group is some 200 feet in extent with about 30 feet of ore running about 30 to the ton, and that the proposition is getting too big to be handled by himself and partner, R. D. Hall. The leases may make a deal whereby the Harshaw Mining Company will develop the property, buying out Farley & Hall.

GOVERNOR VISITS PATAGONIA

Governor Thomas E. Campbell passed through Patagonia Tuesday on his return trip to Phoenix, after attendance upon the gold roads conference held at Nogales Monday and Tuesday of last week. While his stay was of short duration, we appreciate the fact that the chief executive honored us with his presence.

EDITOR'S AUNT TO RESIDE HERE

BARBER'S BROTHER ON WORLD TOUR

William Fessler, local barber, has an interesting collection of letters and post cards which he received from his brother, who has been on a tour of the world with his family. The missives include postmarks from nearly every country on earth. The brother spent Christmas in Jerusalem. They now are in Europe, the latest letter received by Mr. Fessler having a Rome, Italy, postmark.

MISS VALENZUELA RETURNS TO PATAGONIA

Miss Lucy Valenzuela, the popular bookkeeper of the Patagonia Commercial Company, who has been in Phoenix in attendance at her sister's, Carolina's, bedside, during a severe illness, has returned to Patagonia. She arrived Monday evening, and is again in her accustomed place at the store. She reports her sister as much improved.

GATLINS SELL CATTLE

A deal has just been closed, according to Albert Gatlin, whereby the Sorrels' brothers become owners of all cattle formerly owned by ex-Supervisor Gatlin, his sons, Albert and Jess, and Lawrence Sipe, brother-in-law of Albert Gatlin. The roundup was held this week and the cattle checked up. The exact number of cattle involved has not been learned, but it is understood that the herd is large. The Gatlins have been in the cattle business in this neighborhood for many years, and their retirement from the industry indicates that cattle raising has lost its attractions for them.

GREENWAY SAYS COPPER MINES TO OPEN CAUTIOUSLY

That a month from now would see the copper mines of the state starting operations on a cautious scale, was the statement made Sunday by Col. J. C. Greenway, general manager of the Calumet & Arizona Mining Company and the New Cornelia Copper Company.

Local Chamber of Commerce Men Attend Meet

The Patagonia Chamber of Commerce and Mines was represented at the Grand Bonds convention in Nogales by Messrs. A. S. Henderson and C. A. Pierce. This meeting was well attended, and, thanks to the southern counties being represented in sufficient numbers, the original routing of the Bankhead highway was not changed. It is officially located, beginning at Douglas and passing through Bisbee, Tombstone, Benson, Tucson, and thence to the coast. This Tombstone, Fairbank, Patagonia and Nogales portion of the highway is now officially located as a portion of the highway.

RESUMING WORK AT CANANEA

The Greene Cananea company at Cananea, Mexico, has about 1000 men of work, according to a telegraphic report, getting the mines and plant in shape for the resumption of operations on a large scale.

LOCAL NEWS NOT PLENTIFUL

It is difficult for the editor to get around to see everyone who may have news of interest to Patagonia and the county generally, and we would appreciate it very much if those who have items of importance, or any social or local news, would either send them in to the office or mail them, as we are anxious to give all the news. By doing your part to assist the Patagonian in this matter you help Patagonia get out a paper that is of interest to its readers.

Mystery, Romance, Adventure, Character and Humor

The Girl a Horse and a Dog By FRANCIS LYNDE

THE clever author of "The Wreckers" and other great railroad tales, has turned his attention to a different theme. It is of the West, matchless in its expression of the out-of-doors, with charming human types and an absorbing and fascinating wealth of incident.

You Must Not Miss It! The telephone becomes a household necessity as soon as the young crowd get old enough to make dates.

Mining Properties Active In Vicinity of Patagonia

A number of near-by properties now are being actively developed. One shipment is coming in from the Eureka, the Jefferson, and the Royal Blue. Other properties are developing ore bodies, but will not start shipping until the copper smelters are down in and the freight rates take another drop.

Reports continue to come in from Duquesne and Washington Camp to the effect that the Duquesne properties have been sold to one of the large copper companies. It will probably be impossible to get confirmation of this deal until all legal formalities have been settled, which may take some time.

KEEP FAITH WITH MINERS

The Pittman act was passed in the main to enable Great Britain to meet her Oriental exchange obligations. The only place she could get the silver was in the United States, and then the only way to get the amounts required in short order was by melting American silver dollars in our treasury.

Local Items of General Interest

Wilson & Bradlee received this week a carload of excellent alfalfa hay, which arrived at a propitious time, as there was not a pound of that forage crop in town at the time the car reached Patagonia. The hay is selling fast, as this is the time of year cattlemen must feed stock to keep them in good condition to withstand the severe winter weather.

MR. AND MRS. NORTHCRAFT GO TO WEST COAST

Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Northcraft left Monday for Guaymas, Mexico, for a stay of some length. Mr. Northcraft, who is manager of the Sonoma grant, has not been in the best of health for some time, and believes the warmer climate of the West Coast of Mexico will benefit him. ## NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Briand Resigns, His Arrangements With Lloyd George Being Opposed.

CANNES PROGRAM IS UPSET

Poincare Invited to Form New French Ministry—May Fight German Moratorium—Senate, By Close Vote, Seats Newberry of Michigan, With a Rebuke.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

FRANCE spilled the beans last week. Briand and his cabinet are out. Poincare is forming a new ministry with himself as its head. All the doings of the meeting of the supreme council at Cannes are nullified, at least for the present. Plans for the economic and financial conference have to be revised. The Germans probably will be called on by the French to make the reparations payments when they are due or suffer the penalty.

Lloyd George at Cannes had agreed that Great Britain would make a treaty guaranteeing France against attack by Germany, provided, however, that the French ministry of marine and the British admiralty should reach a complete agreement on submarines and other naval craft, and provided also that the French and British governments should make their foreign policies conform, especially in the near east. He required, too, that France co-operate in restoring world economies and finances and agree to deal with Soviet Russia. These conditions all meant yielding by France to British policies and at once a storm of opposition arose in Paris. Briand hurried to that city and after telling the cabinet all about what he had done and engaging in a heated controversy with President Millerand, went before the chamber of deputies and presented the entire program, telling its members they could take it or leave it. Then he bluntly announced the resignation of the ministry without waiting for a vote.

Poincare, the main point of whose policy is "Germany must pay," was invited to form a new cabinet and got busy at once. It was understood that Count Lasteury would be minister of finance. He recently investigated conditions in Germany and believes the Germans can pay the reparations without Is properly balanced and sufficient taxes are imposed to bring their taxation totals up to the level of those paid in France.

In all the European capitals and in Washington there was something akin to consternation when the news from Paris was received. The conference at Cannes automatically came to an end. The American government, which had not decided whether or not to accept the invitation to take part in the Genoa conference, halted consideration of the question until there are further developments. The German cabinet saw the chance for a moratorium fading and was correspondingly despondent. The English were reticent but plainly indignant and relations between them and the French, severely strained for several years, were not improved.

THE allied supreme council decided that an economic conference to deal with the restoration of Europe should be held in Genoa in March, and that both Germany and Russia should be invited to send representatives. No sooner did this news reach Moscow than the soviet government hastened to accept the invitation that had not been formally extended. Foreign Minister Tchitcherin wired the council that the central executive committee would proceed to select the delegates and would give them the most extended powers. Of course there was no doubt that Germany would accept the invitation of the council, and the Japanese delegates to the Washington conference announced that Japan also would be represented. Already steps have been taken to start the rehabilitation of Europe. The economic committee of the supreme council has decided upon an international corporation with a capital of $2,000,000 (about $8,000,000) with its seat in London and with a board of directors nominated by affiliated companies in each interested country. These countries, including the United States, will organize corporations for promotion only, with a combined capital equivalent to £20,000,000 (about $80,000,000). These corporations will serve as mediums for credit transactions and to facilitate the activities of private enterprises in all countries where the business field now is obstructed by lack of credits and disorganized finances. This plan presupposes the organization of affiliated companies in Germany as well as in the United States.

FINAL formulation of the naval limitation agreement in the Washington conference was delayed by several matters. One was a difference of opinion as to the methods of scrapping the 68 capital ships that are to be given up by the United States, Great Britain and Japan. Six optional methods are prescribed, and Mr. Balfour objected to the proposition of Mr. Hughes that the bulk of the retired ships be destroyed absolutely. The British were not willing to say yet what tonnage of the eliminated vessels they would convert to peace time uses. No doubt was felt that this dispute could be adjusted amicably. Another cause of delay was Baron Kato's desire to get further instructions from Tokyo concerning the agreement to maintain the status quo of Pacific ocean naval bases and fortifications. The question was as to what Japanese islands should be excluded as comprising "Japan proper."

Negotiations regarding Shantung were resumed last week by the Japanese and Chinese delegates and it was predicted an agreement would be reached before long. Consequently the delegates of all nations in the conference began drawing up a high-power treaty dealing with far eastern affairs and especially with Chinese questions. It is believed this will delay the adjournment of the conference until the end of the month.

DAIL EIREANN having accepted the Irish peace treaty, the parliament of southern Ireland last Saturday completed the action by formally ratifying the pact, and the Irish Free State is in process of being constituted. Eamon de Valera resigned on Monday as president of the Irish republic and his re-election was moved. The motion was lost, 58 to 60, and for a few moments De Valera appeared as a really great man, declaring he would loyally accept the decision, would do all he could to avoid embarrassing the new government, and would even help it when that was possible without sacrificing his principles. Later the Sinn Fein irreconcilable women persuaded him to modify this generous position, and the chances of unity in the ranks faded away.

Next day after a message of congratulation to Ireland from the pope had been read, it was moved that Arthur Griffith be elected president of the Dail and a hot debate ensued. Finally De Valera and his supporters walked out of the hall and the 45 remaining delegates unanimously elected Griffith. The new president at once announced that his cabinet would be as follows: Minister of finance, Michael Collins; Foreign minister, Eamon J. Duggan; Local government, William Cosgrove; Economic affairs, Bryan O'Higgins; Defense, Richard Mulcahey. These, then, are the men who will constitute the provisional government of the island to which the conduct of affairs will be turned over by the British authorities as rapidly as possible. The bolters returned in the afternoon and De Valera stated, though he considered Griffith's position impossible, he would do nothing to hamper him so long as he did not appear to be subverting the republic. Later De Valera told a correspondent that he would refuse to recognize any government but the Irish republic even if it was set up by vote of the people of Ireland, because he was satisfied that such a vote would not be free, but would be taken under coercion of a threat of war.

TRUMAN II, Newberry is rightfully United States senator from Michigan, but he spent too much money in winning the place. Such is the decision of the senate, reached by a vote of 46 to 41. The Democrats were solidly against Newberry and nine Republicans voted with them to oust him. But the day was saved for him by the addition of a clause to the resolution sending him, criticizing the acknowledged expenditure of $195,000 in his behalf and condemning the lavish use of money in political campaigns. This brought into line a number of Republicans who had been wavering. Senator La Follette of Wisconsin intimated that he would reopen the case at some future date.

Mr. Newberry appeared to speak in his own defense, breaking the silence that he had maintained for the three years since his election. He read a carefully prepared address, the substance of which was that when the Michigan primary and election were held he was absent from the state performing his duties as a lieutenant commander in the navy; that he had no personal knowledge of the expenditure of money by his friends in his behalf, and that he was astonished and grieved when later he learned that about $195,000 had been spent in securing his nomination and election. He closed thus:

"As God is my witness, I am not to this day and hour conscious of having done, in connection with either the primary campaign or the general election in 1918, a single act that was or is in any way unlawful, dishonorable, or corrupt, and this I say to the senate without reservation or qualification."

SENATOR PENROSE'S seat has been filled by the appointment of George Wharton Pepper of Philadelphia, and this selection by Governor Sproul has met with general approval. Mr. Pepper, who is a lawyer of distinction, has been prominent in the councils of the Republican party, but has not before held public office. He will be a candidate for election for the complete term in November.

In accordance with the rule of seniority, Senator McCumber of North Dakota has been made chairman of the senate finance committee to succeed Penrose, and the vacancy on that committee was filled by the selection of Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey. That committee is still working on the tariff measure, especially the American valuation feature. A delegation of southerners appeared before the committee to tell it that southern business men had become convinced that prosperity was possible only under a high tariff.

CHAIRMAN FORDNEY of the house ways and means committee announced the administration's plan for a soldiers' bonus. It provides for the payment of cash bonuses from the interest on the $11,000,000,000 allied debt to the United States as soon as it, or part of it, is refunded into long term obligations. If the interest is not sufficient, the proceeds of the sale of part of the securities to the public will be used for the purpose.

ONE of the most important court decisions ever won by labor was that rendered by Justice Wagner of the New York supreme court, enjoining the garment manufacturers from combining to enforce a 49-hour week and a piece work system. This was the first time a labor union has invoked legal action to restrain employers from breaking a contract. Suits for several million dollars, representing wages lost by the garment workers who have been on strike for two months, will be begun at once.

Other declines were: Indianapolis and Salt Lake City, 17 per cent; Detroit, Louisville, Milwaukee, Minneapolis and Washington, 16 per cent; Omaha, 15 per cent; Bridgeport, Dallas and Philadelphia, 14; Manchester, 13, and New York, 12 per cent.

Decreases during the month ending December 15 were listed by the bureau as follows: Indianapolis and Salt Lake City, 3 per cent; Washington, 2 per cent; Bridgeport, Louisville, Mobile, Omaha, Philadelphia and Savannah, 1 per cent.

FOOD PRICES COMING DOWN

Figures Given Out by the Bureau of Labor Statistics Are Gratifying to the Consumer.

Washington.—Retail prices in 16 principal cities in the United States decreased 12 to 18 per cent in the 12 months ending December 15 last, the bureau of labor statistics of the Department of Labor announced. The bureau's figures show that prices prevailing last month in 13 of the cities from which 1913 statistics were available had increased since that year from 33 to 59 per cent.

During the month from November 15, 1921, 12 of the cities reported decreases in food prices, two reported increases and the two others, Manchester, N. H., and Minneapolis, Minn., reported a decline of 13 per cent for the year.

Mobile, Ala., and Savannah, Ga., had the highest percentage of decrease in prices for the 12 months period, each reporting an 18 per cent decline.

DIDN'T IMPRESS THE COURT GENTLE TAP OF FAN FATAL

Just a Possibility That Motorist Laid Flattery on a Little Bit Too Thick.

"Fine town you have here, Judge," said the motorist who had been haled before Squire Witherbee on the charge of exceeding the speed limit. "Yes," said the squire. "We think so."

"A fine, progressive little city; broad streets, attractive homes, imposing public buildings and an air of prosperity everywhere. I dare say you have an excellent school system, pure drinking water and all that sort of thing. And Constable Perkins here, who arrested me, is one of the most alert public officials I've ever seen. If I may say so, in the circumstances it's a pleasure to make the acquaintance of a man who has such keen sense of duty and to appear before a Judge whose intellectual powers and integrity I could never question after one look at his honest yet kindly features."

"A fast rate piece of oratory," said the squire dryly, "but if you're quite certain you've finished I'll just slip on the fine an' adjourn case. It's pretty close to my lunch hour an' I'm hungry."

Man Dreaming of the Days of the Guillotine Died When His Wife Touched His Neck.

Arthur MacLaughlin of Detroit is responsible for this story sent me by my friend, Leo D. Brown, of the Cosmopolitan Book corporation: "A Reno gam had, on a Saturday night, become very much absorbed in 'The Tale of Two Cities.' Particularly was he impressed with the description of the guillotine and the misfortunes upon whose necks it descended so devastatingly. The vision preyed upon his imagination.

"Next day his wife insisted that he accompany her to church. He drowsed during an unordinarily long prayer and dreamed that the guillotine was about to descend on his bent neck. Wife, upon resuming her seat when the prayer was over, noticed that her husband was asleep and still leaning forward, his head resting on his hands on the pew ahead. And so, with her fan, she tapped him lightly upon the back of the neck. Whereupon the gent fell dead."

Will your "Good Morning" last all day?

Easy to start from the breakfast table with zest and enthusiasm, but how easy is it to keep on? Does ambition last, or lag, as the day develops?

The afternoon "slump" is a factor to be counted upon, in business or social life.

Usually, there's a reason.

Nerves whipped by tea or coffee won't keep on running, and they won't stand constant whipping.

Many a man or woman who has wished the afternoon would be as bright as the morning has simply been wishing that the nerves wouldn't have to pay the natural penalty for being whipped with the caffeine drug.

Postum gives a breakfast cup of comfort and cheer, without any penalties afterward. There's no "letting down" from Postum—no midday drowsiness to make up for midnight wakefulness; no headaches; no nervous indigestion; no increase of blood pressure.

Think it over. There's full satisfaction in Postum—a cup of comfort for anybody (the children included), any time.

You can get Postum from your grocer or your waiter today, and probably you'll begin to have better tomorrows, as so many thousands have had, who have made the change from coffee to Postum.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

Rail Workers Manage Road

Station Agent and Conductor Get Possession of Bath and Hammondsport.

ON VERGE OF DISSOLUTION. Once Prosperous Branch of the Erie Railroad is Undergoing an Experiment—Did Big Business in Grapes.

Hammondsport, N. Y.—It is not the good fortune of many station agents and train conductors to step overnight into the jobs of managers and operators of a railroad.

The line is a subsidiary of the Erie system. It is but eight or nine miles in length and connects Hammondsport at the head of Lake Keuka with the main line roads at Bath, Messrs. Ahey and Jaycox have been employed on it for years and probably never thought of assuming the responsibility for its operation until some country editor a year or so ago made the comment that if the Erie would turn the road over to one or both of them they could restore its waning prestige and finances.

Before the adoption of the eighteenth amendment and the enactment of the Volstead laws the Bath & Hammondsport railroad carried thousands of tons of grapes from the 20,000 acres of vineyards that grace the hillsides surrounding Lake Keuka.

Aided by Airplane Business. As the airplane business conducted by Glenn H. Curtiss at Hammondsport gained prominence and the number of its employees ran up into the thousands, the business of the Bath & Hammondsport gained further impetus, both of passengers and freight.

RED CHIEF WRITES INDIAN BIBLE

Indian Who Claims Chieftainship Over 4,000 Redmen of Northwest Compiles "Indian Bible"—Makes Unique Statement.

Portland, Ore.—An "Indian Bible," the compilation of an Indian chieftain of the Pacific Northwest, is in course of preparation, and the work has reached the point where the compiler, Chief C. B. Suszen Timentwa of Okanogan, Wash., has sent printed announcements of the forthcoming "Bible" to the Indians located in Portland.

In these piping times of attempted disarmament and plans for universal peace, Chief Suszen Timentwa sounds the prevalent keynote and indicates that the tomahawk and scalping knife are to become simply relics of bygone times, for he says: "My desire is if we will help in this business now we will have no more world's war in the whole world."

'COPPER—KING OF METALS'

Copper is indeed king of all metals. Doesn't it convey our voices here, there and everywhere over the telephone, making us on big little family? Doesn't it light our streets and homes at night? Doesn't it harness our water powers and generate and distribute electrical energy over wide areas?

Today copper is playing a larger part in the development of the world, making life more agreeable, doing more of the world's hard work, than ever before.

COPPER SITUATION

An important announcement affecting the copper situation, is that the Copper Export Association will, on February 15, retire not only the $6,000,000 in notes due on that date, but $7,000,000 of the issue due in 1923, a total of $13,000,000 to be retired of a total of $40,000,000 in notes issued.

This would indicate that the sales by the Copper Export Association have been for in excess of the general estimate. The copper surplus, available for export and domestic uses, has been estimated at around 400,000,000 pounds.

Copper is due for an advance and copper companies are alive to the situation as evidenced by the resumption of operations at the Montana, Arizona and Utah properties.

PULL MORE THAN YOUR SHARE

In Forbes' Magazine of recent issue is found this paragraph: "It may be true that the willing horse gets the heaviest load. But once in a while he gets the most oats."

Quite often one hears a fellow remark, "I'm the easy guy. I do all kinds of things around here, and the more I do the more they hand me. I can't see where I'm going to come out on this kind of a deal."

Well, that fellow is simply shortsighted in one respect. If his superiors didn't think he could handle the job they'd never give it to him. If they didn't think he could handle additional jobs they'd never give them to him.

A writer compared the dress of the girl of today with that of the girl half a century ago to the discredit of the former. But is that quite fair? Do any of our men readers, for instance, ever take a look at their kid pictures in the family album?

WHAT HAS WINTER IN STORE?

Amateur weather prophets, especially those who predicted a long and hard winter, are beginning to doubt the patency of the signs on which they based their observations.

Nevertheless, say the amateurs, all signs point to a long and hard winter. But there is one comforting note. Many of the birds delayed their migration until later than usual and occasionally a straggler that evidently is disposed to make the best of it, is seen.

Strictly on results to date, it begins to look as though the forecasters who decided against the long and severe winter have better chances of being sustained by the elements, whatever fur, fin, feather and corn husks may dictate to the contrary.

PROCLAMATION OF ARBOR DAY

The custom of observing Arbor Day has become an established and beneficial practice among our people, tending as it does, to increase the beauty of our surroundings and the earning power of our unused land.

It is of particular importance that advantage be taken of this day to instruct the pupils of our public and private schools in silviculture and the beneficial results of forestation.

In accordance, therefore, with the mandate contained in our statutes and with the earnest hope that the day may be spent in the planting and cultivation of trees which will materially add to the beauty of our state and will be a patriotic contribution to the pleasure and welfare of future generations,

In urging the observance of these Arbor days, I do so in the confident expectation that they may be marked by appropriate exercises in all our schools and that through general recognition of their important meaning thousands of young trees will be started on their future growth to bless us in the years to come.

POPE BENEDICT ENTOMBED AT ROME

ROME, Jan. 26—Pope Benedict XV. was entombed with a solemn, impressive ceremony this afternoon.

The body, enclosed in three caskets and dressed in pontifical robes, lies in a crypt under the great basilica of St. Peter.

The historic and beautiful ritual was witnessed only by members of the Sacred College, members of the pontifical household and papal nobility, and diplomats accredited to the vatican.

The great bronze doors of St. Peter were closed at noon cutting off a stream of humanity which for more than three days was passing before the catafalque where the body lay in state.

MINING NEWS

(By Charles F. Willis, editor Arizona Mining Journal)

COPPER SITUATION: The U. S. G. E. reports for January 1, 1921, showed stocks of refined copper totaling 659,000,000 pounds. Refinery production for 1921 was 996,000,000 pounds. Domestic consumption during the year was 572,000,000 and exports 587,000,000, leaving the copper surplus on January 1st, 1922, at 496,000,000 pounds. Of this $20,000,000 is pooled for export thus leaving the small amount of 176,000,000 pounds available for domestic consumption.

DOUGLAS: The force at the Copper Queen smelter has been increased from 50 to 200 in the past six weeks and there is evident haste in making the smelter ready for production.

RAY: While there has been no announcement coming from Ray as to when the Ray Consolidated will resume operations, a report that 50 carloads of coal were on the road to that property looks as though the announcements may be expected shortly.

HUMBOLDT: The property of the Consolidated Arizona Smelting Company will be formally transferred to the Southwest Metals Company on February 16th in accordance with the orders of the Federal Court.

KINGMAN: A sensational strike has been reported from the Dean mine where a 4 1/2 foot vein running 250 ounces in silver has been opened according to statements from reliable sources in that district.

WHITE SIGNAL: There is a deal pending for the control of the radium properties at White Signal, N. M., that promises continuous operation of those properties on a large scale is consummated.

DOS CABEZAS: The new electric ore locating device was testing by the Arizona Bureau of Mines at the property of the Central Copper Company where they were able to make it work satisfactory over a distance of 1 1/4 miles underground locating the Elmo Ore body from the Mascot workings.

PHOENIX—The report of the State Tax Commission shows that the mines of the state are to pay 50.73 per cent of the taxes for 1921.

Catarra! Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists. 75c. P. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

FROM a silver-spoon and soft-mattress existence, Stanford Broughton suddenly is confronted with the alternative of looking for a job or another kind of quest, try and locate a mysterious legacy left him by an eccentric grandfather. He does not know the character of the property, but the grandfather's directions say that it is somewhere between the 105th and 110th degrees of longitude west from Greenwich, and the 35th and 40th degrees north latitude. When he finds it he will be able to identify it by the presence of a girl with brown hair and blue eyes, a small mole on her left shoulder, a piebald horse and a dog with a split face—half black and half white. He is game and he starts to look for the combination. The troubles he has in locating it and the adventures and dangers through which he passes in securing possession of the property, also the romantic incidents in which the girl is a figure, make up this very fascinating narrative. It is Mr. Lynde's habit to tell stories like this, and there are readers in multitudes who would be sorry to have him depart from the custom. READ IT AS A SERIAL IN THESE COLUMNS

FUNDS SOUGHT FOR NOGALES EXPOSITION IN 1923

The annual convention of the Arizona Good Roads Association adjourned this afternoon at 3:15 o'clock after transacting considerable business.

Douglas was chosen as the 1923 convention city. This was done after a resident of Douglas offered the hospitality of the "smelter city" to the road boosters.

Parker Re-elected
O. C. Parker of Tucson was re-elected president of the association by a unanimous vote. H. J. Robinson, an attorney of Douglas, nominated Mr. Parker. Mr. Parker is very active in road work and his understanding of the needs of the association was appreciated as was shown by the honor bestowed upon him for the second term.

Harry Welch was chosen secretary for the ensuing year. Mr. Welch is a Phoenix man and is secretary of the Phoenix Chamber of Commerce.

Directors of the association were chosen as follows: Apache, Gustav Becker; Coconino, Fred Garing; Cochise, J. J. Bowen; Gila, L. D. Van Dyke; Graham, not represented; Greenlee, not represented; Maricopa, A. J. Chandler; Mohave, not represented; Navajo, C. E. Owens; Pima, Monte Mansfield; Pinal, Sam Bailey; Santa Cruz, L. W. Mix; Yavapai, C. C. Stuckley; Yuma, not represented.

Ask For Funds
A resolution was adopted this afternoon by the Arizona Good Roads Association asking that the United States government appropriate funds to the extent of $100,000, to meet the proposed appropriation of the states of Sonora, Sinaloa, Nayarit and the Federal government of Mexico, for the holding of an international fair at Nogales in 1923. Copies of this resolution will be forwarded to Arizona's senators and representative in congress.

The International Fair project has been pushed vigorously during the past year by Alejandro Villaseca of Nogales, Sonora.

Special Meeting
Before adjournment today President Parker stated that he would call a special meeting of the association at Phoenix on April 23rd, the day preceding the national convention of the Bankhead Highway Association.

Resolution Tabled
A resolution pledging the support of the association to any movement that will remove the constitutional prohibition within due bounds upon bonds, for the construction of roads and bridges in the state of Arizona, was tabled. Many of the delegates after adjournment left for their homes and others will remain in this city overnight.

MINORITY REPORT ADOPTED BY CONVENTION

The minority report submitted by five of the eleven members of the committee on resolutions, was adopted by the convention.

The resolution, presented by the minority, requesting the state highway department to designate the Bankhead route through Arizona as a primary interstate highway, was adopted by a vote of 100 to 49.

The minority resolution urging the state highway department to designate the Ajo road for federal aid to be expended when Pima county matches its share of the cost of the highway, was adopted by acclamation.

Minority Report
A minority report asking that the state highway department designate the Bankhead route through Arizona as a primary interstate highway, was submitted at 11 o'clock today to the annual convention of the Arizona Good Roads Association.

The report was signed by five of the eleven members of the committee on resolutions, and was read to the convention by L. D. Clark, Cochise county member of the committee on resolutions. The other four who submitted the report with Clark were George H. Fiedler, Santa Cruz county; O. T. McCoombe, Yuma; W. W. Lane, Pinal; and Monte Mansfield, Pima.

The resolution reads as follows:
"Resolution No. 6.
"Whereas the Arizona Interstate Highway, designated as the main route of the Bankhead National Highway running from Rodeo, New Mexico, (ence to Douglas, Bisbee, Tombstone, Benson, Tucson, Florence, Chandler, Mesa, Tempe, Phoenix and Yuma is of primary importance to the state of Arizona and to the government of the United States and

"Whereas this highway traverses five of the fifteen counties of the state in which they are located sixty and three tenths per cent of the entire population of the state, paying taxes on an assessed valuation of fifty-two and three tenths per cent of the total taxable wealth of the state; and connecting the majority of the most important cities of the state with a total population of approximately 100,000 people and

"Whereas this highway is nearly completed, having more miles of constructed highway than any other interstate route, therefore

"Be it Resolved that the member of the Arizona Good Roads Association call upon the highway department of the state of Arizona to immediately designate this route as a primary interstate highway and urge the early completion of all unconstructed sections and

"Be it Further Resolved that the officers of this convention petition the Bankhead National Highway Association to retain the main route as designated in their constitution as the Bankhead National Highway in the state of Arizona."

Ajo Road
A minority report was also submitted by the same five committeemen on the following resolution:

"Resolution No. 8.
"Whereas there is a patent need of a highway connecting the county seats of Yuma and Pima counties, direct, by way of Ajo, on account of the great industry that will be served in such connection and of the advisability of securing a highway that more closely parallels the international boundary between the said county seats, and

"Whereas Assistant Secretary of War J. M. Wainwright has stated that the war department believes that the completion of the road in question is of sufficient national importance to justify construction of the section through the Papago Indian Reservation from Federal funds appropriate to aid the states in the construction of post roads" and that "a similar statement to the above has been sent to the secretary of agriculture by the secretary of war," now therefore,

"Be it Resolved that the Arizona Good Roads Association urge the state highway department to designate the road for federal aid, to be expended when Pima county will match its share of the cost of the highway."

Minority Report Opposed
A discussion followed, as soon as Clark finished reading the minority report. L. D. VanDyke, member of the resolutions committee from Gila county, led the forces opposing the minority report.

State Engineer Tom Maddock took the floor and from his address it could be seen that he was also opposed to the convention adopting the minority report. Maddock explained the road work program by the state and federal governments in Arizona, and was on the floor for sometime, during which he answered questions from delegates.

Thank Nogales
The committee on resolutions submitted a report, and which was adopted by the convention, pledging support of the Arizona Good Roads Association, to the conventions of the Bankhead Highway Association and United States Good Roads Association at Phoenix this spring, thanking the citizens of Nogales for assisting in making the present convention a success, thanking the officials of the association for their work during the past year, commending the class of construction of road work completed by the state highway department, urging more detailed traffic laws particularly with reference to the equitable taxation of state and track lines, and urging the federal government to more fully investigate the condition of highways through forest reserves and Indian reservations.

A resolution was also passed urging the state highway department to report to the association the project and unit costs of all work undertaken by it and asking that such reports be made available to the various counties and their respective highway authorities.

The resolution committee is composed of Gustave Becker, of Apache county; Charles E. Larsen, Coconino county; L. D. Clark, Cochise county; L. D. Van Dyke, Gila county; G. W. Silverthorn, Maricopa county; G. T. West, of Navajo county; Monte Mansfield, Pima county; W. W. Lane, Pinal county; G. H. Fiedler, Santa Cruz county; R. E. Donovan, Yavapai county and O. T. Coombs, of Yuma county.

Soon the thunder of the many rifles became almost a steady roar. The air was filled with the pungent odor of burning powder. Bill Dale emptied the magazine of his repeater, and sank behind the big chestnut to fill it again with cartridges from his belt. Bullets now whined on both sides of him; they cut greenish white furrows in the bark of both sides of the tree, and knocked up little spouts of black earth to his right and to his left; they cut off twigs within an arm's reach of him. A dozen Balls were now firing at him, seeking to avenge the death of their kinsman, the Gollath. John Moreland's strong voice came to him through the din and roar: "Don't show no part of yourself now, Bill; if ye do, ye'll shore be hit!" Dale fired again, pumped a fresh cartridge into the chamber of his rifle and slipped another into the magazine, and arose behind the chestnut.

"Down, Bill!" cried John Moreland. If Dale heard, he gave no sign of it. He fired four shots rapidly, and before the wind had carried away the blinding smoke he was behind another tree and smoking toward the Balls again. Soon there came a short, loud peep of laughter from his left; he turned his head and saw Ben Littleford taking a careful aim at a long angle toward the side of a boulder. Then Littleford fired, and a puff of stone dust showed that his bullet had gone true to its mark.

"What's that for?" demanded Dale. "We haven't any ammunition to throw away!"

"Why, Bill," replied Littleford, "didn't ye never bounce a bullet off a rock and make it go toward a man abind of a tree?"

It lasted hotly for two hours, but the casualties were comparatively few, because there was so much cover available. From the beginning the Balls and the Turners had the worst of it, which was due to up-hill shooting, white whisky, and lack of the iron that makes real fighting men. The cartridges of those below were giving out; they had fired too many shots needlessly.

"It's about time to rush them," Dale said to John Moreland, who had crept up beside him.

"Just give the word," Moreland nodded.

A few minutes later, Bill Dale sent the wings of his line down the mountainside, forming a half-circle of his force once more; then the whole line rushed, surrounded the enemy and called for a surrender.

But the Balls and their kinsmen wouldn't give in yet. They left their cover and started to run, found themselves facing Morelands and Littlefords in every direction, clubbed their rifles and fought. It was not true courage that prompted them to offer resistance thus; it was utter desperation; they had never been givers of mercy, therefore they did not expect mercy. Dale's men forebore to fire upon them, which was at Dale's command, and met them with clubbed rifles. The woodland rang with the sound of wood and steel crashing against wood and steel. Everywhere there were groans and threats and curses from the losing side, victorious cries and further demands for a surrender from the winners.

Bill Dale, ever a lover of fair combat, threw down his repeater to grapple with a big North Carolinian whose clubbed weapon had been knocked from his hands. The two fell and rolled down the mountainside, locked in each other's arms.

winking at Ben Littleford. "I had planned out to hang 'em all on a big green hemlock as a Christmas tree for Bill! Some devilish rough Christmas eve ye're a-havin', Bill, old boy, ain't it?"

"Rather," smiled Dale. He closed his eyes. His head ached, and he was somehow very tired. Within the hour he went to sleep, and when he awoke it was daylight on Christmas morning. Ben Littleford, half dressed, was stirring the coals to life in the wide-mouthed stone fireplace. Dale felt better than he had expected to feel; he greeted Littleford with the compliments of the season, arose and dressed himself.

Littleford had just gone with a handful of kindling wood toward the kitchen, when there was a low, light tapping at the outside door of Bill Dale's room. Dale arose from his sheepskin-lined rocker before the cheery log fire, went to the door and opened it. Before him stood a slim, barefooted boy in the poorest of rags; in the pitifully slender arms there was something wrapped rather loosely in crumpled brown paper. Dale did not remember having seen the lad before, but he knew it was no Littleford.

"Come in, son," he invited cordially—"come in and warm yourself. My goodness alive, it's too cold to go barefooted like that! Haven't you any shoes, son?"

"Shoes?" muttered the boy, queerly. "Shoes?"

He was shivering from the cold. His thin face looked pinched and blue, his eyes big and hollow. Dale stooped, picked him up bodily, carried him to the old rocker he had just vacated, and put him into it with hands as gentle as any woman's.

"H—!" began the boy, staring hard—"what—?"

"Now stick your feet out and warm them, son—that's it," and Dale chafed the poor little, dirty, half-frozen feet and legs.

"Son," he went on after a moment, his heart throbbing out of sheer pity, "you go to the commissary clerk and tell him to dress you up like the crown prince of England, if he's got it, and charge the same to the account."

"So You're Bill Dale. Well, D— My Soul!"

Bill Dale. It will be my Christmas gift to you, little boy. What's your name?"

The lad turned his surprised black eyes upon the face of the big and sun-browned man.

"Are you Bill Dale?"

"Yes."

That which the boy said next struck the big and sunbrowned man with all the force of a bullet.

"So you're Bill Dale. Well, D— my soul!"

"Don't, buddy, don't!"

The boy went on: "My name, it's Henry. I come here with a Christmas gift for you." He pointed a dirty forefinger toward the bundle in his lap. "But you ain't a-goin' to git it now."

"Do you know this boy, men?" "It's Lays Ball's boy," answered Littleford, puckering his brows. "What's he a-doin' here?" "He brought a Christmas present for me," said Dale, "but he has decided that I shan't have it."

"The only Christmas present you could git from a Ball would be a bullet," frowned Ben Littleford.

He stepped to the rocker and took the bundle from the boy's lap; he took away the crumpled brown paper, and there in his hands was a loaded and cocked revolver.

"By George," exclaimed Bill Dale, "Wain'd I tell ye?" smiled Ben Littleford.

An hour later Dale and a score of Littlefords and Morelands entered the big downstairs room of the office and supplies building. The defeated Balls and Turners lounged here and there, sullen and silent, on the rough-board floor of their temporary prison.

Dale walked into their midst and addressed them quietly.

"You'll admit, won't you, that I've got what you fellows call 'the dead-wood' on you? And that it lies in my power to send every single one of you to the state penitentiary?"

"I reckon so," admitted Adam Ball's father. He was pretty well cowed, and so were the others.

"But I've decided not to do it," went on Bill Dale. "I can't forget that this is Christmas day. You may have your liberty as a present from the man you've tried so hard and so unjustly to kill. After the doctor gets through with Little Tom and Saul Littleford, he will come here to dress all your wounds; then our guards will give you back your rifles, and you may go home. I'm not asking you to promise me anything, you understand, I'm simply trusting the human heart, and I don't believe I'll be disappointed."

Dale turned to John Moreland. Moreland's rugged face wore a puzzled, displeased smile.

"If your brother David was here," Bill Dale demanded with a bare shade of anger in his voice, "what do you think he'd do about it? It's Christmas day, isn't it?"

The old Moreland chief's countenance softened; his grey eyes brightened. "Yes," he said, "it's Christmas day, Bill." He looked toward the Balls and Turners.

"Merry Christmas, gentlemen!" he said.

Adam Ball's father immediately asked him for a chew of tobacco.

CHAPTER XIX.

A Perfect Cross.

On the floor of the richly-furnished library of the Dale home, near a west window, Miss Elizabeth Littleford sat reading by the fast fading light of an early March afternoon. Somehow she liked to sit on the floor, and always she liked to read; for one thing, books helped her to forget that she was lonely.

There were footsteps behind her, soft footsteps because of the thick velvet carpet; then a low voice inquired: "Aren't you afraid you will injure your eyes, Elizabeth? Better have a light, hadn't you, dear?" The old coal king turned toward the switch on the wall.

"No," she answered quickly. "I'm through reading for today, and I like this twilight."

Her improvement in speech and in manners had gone on at a surprisingly rapid rate. She rarely spoke with any old to the simplest words, but she never fell into anything more than bare semblance of the old drawing hill dialect unless it was while she was under the stress of some strong emotion.

She closed the book and looked up with eyes that were like the first stars in a summer sky. Her beauty was wonderful; it was finer and sweeter than it had ever been before.

Old Dale stood looking thoughtfully into her upturned face. He was a little pale, and he seemed troubled and uneasy.

Elizabeth shook her head. "You're worrying again!"

He dropped into a nearby chair, leaned slowly forward and let one hand fall gently on her thick and silky chestnut-brown hair.

"I wish," he said as though to himself, "that I had a daughter like you."

He took his hand from her head, lay back wearily in his chair and closed his eyes. Then he bent forward again.

"The Morelands, Elizabeth—they've moved away from the settlement, haven't they?"

"Yes," Bill Dale has done wonderful things for them! The girl answered. John K. Dale was silent for a moment, after which he said suddenly: "I want to see my son; there is something I must tell him. Will you go with me, Elizabeth?"

"Of course, I'll go with you."

She thought she knew what it was that stirred him. By intuition, supplemented by Bill Dale's occasional cryptic utterances, and pieced out by hill tradition, Elizabeth Littleford gradually had come into possession of the old coal man's grim secret.

Nether of them knew that John Moreland was then visiting his beloved old hills for the sake of some shooting.

The following day John K. Dale and Elizabeth Littleford alighted from a northbound passenger train at the Halfway switch. The mountains were covered with three inches of snow, and the hemlock and pines bore heavy burdens of the beautiful white stuff; but the air was still, and it wasn't very cold.

marked the last resting place of David Moreland's young wife; it had been lettered by David Moreland himself, and it was a crude but sincere tribute to womankind.

On the face of the other great slab of brown sandstone were chiseled other ill-shaped letters and misspelled words. The hands of John Moreland had done this. Old John Dale stepped unsteadily closer and read:

HEAR LAYS DAVID MORELAND THE BEST MAN GOD EVVER MAID KILLED BY JOHN K CARLILE MAY GOD DAM HIS SOLE

It was a living curse, a breathing curse—a terrible anathema. If dead David Moreland himself had arisen from the tomb and uttered it, it would not have struck John K. Dale with greater force. He grew weak, as though with a fatal sickness. He sank to his knees in the snow, and his iron-gray head fell forward to his breast. Elizabeth Littleford knelt in the snow beside him. She tried to find comforting words, for she loved him and was sorry for him, but no words would come.

There was a slight sound, the muffled breaking of a dry twig in front of them. Elizabeth Littleford looked up to see the giant figure of John Moreland, whose face was white and whose eyes were filled with the fire of hate and anger, who held a rifle in his cold, bare hands. The rifle's hammer came back, and the fine trigger caught it with a faint click.

Moreland took another step forward and leveled the weapon across the pathing.

"If it was any use for ye to pray, Carlisle," he said, and his voice was shaking and hoarse and choked, "I'd give ye time. But it ain't no use at all. Look up. Face it. Try to be a man for one second in your low-down life."

Old Dale raised his head, saw David Moreland's brother, and realized all there was to realize. His eyes widened a little; then a look of relief flitted across his heavy countenance.

"Shoot and even up the score," he said bravely, and his head was high. "According to your code, it is just. And I'll be able to forget at last, at last. So shoot and settle the account."

"I've thought much over it, and just now I've decided. When I decide, it's for all time! you know that, don't you?"

A great gladness filled Elizabeth's heart. It did not occur to her to ask how, in what manner, he was going to take care of her people; it was enough to know that he was going to take care of them. He put a father's arm lightly around her shoulders. She tried to speak, choked, and couldn't utter a word. But it didn't matter. John K. Dale understood perfectly.

Then he took his arm away, faced to the right, and drew his hat rim low over his eyes. For two minutes he stood there and looked for the little old cabin door near the foot of the north end of the mountain, and he failed to find it. His mind had gone back once more to that awful night that had cut his life in twain. He remembered plainly waking in the early morning with an aching head and with the rankling taste of much dead whisky in his mouth. Remembered seeing David Moreland, with a bullet hole through and through him, lying on the floor beside him. Remembered his horror, his smothered cries of anguish, and his hurried flight.

He had wondered, he remembered, why the law made no attempt to track him down. He had not known that the mountaineer's code of honor demands that which he is due in tones so low that Elizabeth barely heard, "where is David Moreland buried?"

He had turned, and stood facing her. She pointed to the southward.

"They buried him out on the crest of the mountain a little ways, on the highest place, by the side of his wife. That was always a touchin' thing to me, that he buried his wife on the very highest point of his own mountain. You know why, don't you? David Moreland believed in God and a hereafter, and he believed that heaven was up. He wanted to get even his wife's ashes as close to heaven as he could."

"I— I'd like to go out there," John Dale said, his voice almost a whisper. "I'd like to see the place."

"I wouldn't," replied Ben Littleford's daughter. For she knew—oh, she knew.

"Yes, yes, my dear—I must see the place," declared John K. Dale, hoarsely whispering—"let's go out there."

There was never any disobeying him when he was determined, and he was determined now. It is strange, that dread human thing that drew him—

Elizabeth turned and started out the snowy crest of the mountain, winding her way here and there between clumps of snow-heavy laurel and ivy and under snow-heavy pines. After a quarter of an hour of this somewhat difficult traveling, the two drew up before a small inclosure made of round oak posts and round open railings and hand-split and pointed oak railings as high as a man's shoulders, all of which were gray and weather-beaten. Elizabeth knew the spot well. She swung the gate stiffly open on its wooden hinges and stepped inside. Old Dale, trembling in every fiber, followed her. His face was very pale.

Before them were two snow-covered mounds bordered with the dead stalks of flowers of another year—marigolds, pretty-by-nights, zinnias. Near the two graves there grew bare-branched wild honeysuckle and redbud, and green-leaved laurel, which in the summer time were covered with beautiful and fragrant blossoms of golden yellow and purple, and waxen white. At the head of one mound a great, roughly-shaped slab of brown sandstone marked the last resting place of David Moreland's young wife; it had been lettered by David Moreland himself, and it was a crude but sincere tribute to womankind.

On the face of the other great slab of brown sandstone were chiseled other ill-shaped letters and misspelled words. The hands of John Moreland had done this. Old John Dale stepped unsteadily closer and read:

HEAR LAYS DAVID MORELAND THE BEST MAN GOD EVVER MAID KILLED BY JOHN K CARLILE MAY GOD DAM HIS SOLE

It was a living curse, a breathing curse—a terrible anathema. If dead David Moreland himself had arisen from the tomb and uttered it, it would not have struck John K. Dale with greater force. He grew weak, as though with a fatal sickness. He sank to his knees in the snow, and his iron-gray head fell forward to his breast. Elizabeth Littleford knelt in the snow beside him. She tried to find comforting words, for she loved him and was sorry for him, but no words would come.

There was a slight sound, the muffled breaking of a dry twig in front of them. Elizabeth Littleford looked up to see the giant figure of John Moreland, whose face was white and whose eyes were filled with the fire of hate and anger, who held a rifle in his cold, bare hands. The rifle's hammer came back, and the fine trigger caught it with a faint click.

Moreland took another step forward and leveled the weapon across the pathing.

"If it was any use for ye to pray, Carlisle," he said, and his voice was shaking and hoarse and choked, "I'd give ye time. But it ain't no use at all. Look up. Face it. Try to be a man for one second in your low-down life."

Old Dale raised his head, saw David Moreland's brother, and realized all there was to realize. His eyes widened a little; then a look of relief flitted across his heavy countenance.

"Shoot and even up the score," he said bravely, and his head was high. "According to your code, it is just. And I'll be able to forget at last, at last. So shoot and settle the account."

WOMAN CRITICIZES HER SEX

Australian Writer Seems to Hold the Opinion That Women as a Whole Are Unreasonable.

"Women," says the average man in his moments of irritation, "are unreasonable. They drive a fellow mad."

And the same man is instantly swept by such a hurricane of abuse as to make him sorry once more that he has spoken.

There is no charge which the modern woman resents more than that of unreasonableness. She prides herself on her cool head and capable judgment. She expresses contempt of her sister of other times—an unbalanced creature, with no mind of her own about anything, nor desire to develop one. Yet, despite her professed common sense, one wonders now and then whether the modern woman is actually as reasonable as she imagines.

We stand up for our rights nowadays. We claim complete equality with man; freedom to enter all his employes, and even to govern them if we feel disposed. Yet we aren't content with what we get.

He makes way for us; he gives us our chance to rival him in all that he does; he mostly manages to curb his tongue when it would cry out follies too loudly. All this we consider our due and give no thanks for it.

AS TO FACTS AND FIGURES

Nature Seems to Have Laid Down Some Rules to Which She Rigidly Adheres.

Why do tall persons have narrow noses? There are many exceptions, but this is the rule.

The type of nose that we call "aquiline" is much more common in tall people than in those of short stature. On the other hand, short people are much more apt to have flat or snub noses.

Tall men are usually long-headed, while most short men have round or broad heads.

Tall persons usually have small mouths. It is the short people who mostly have big mouths.

Short people in a great majority of instances have short or round faces. Long faces go more often with superior height.

This is not at all surprising. Tall people have a tendency to lowness throughout their anatomical structure. Usually their noses are long. Their arms and legs are long. The height of most very tall persons is mainly in their legs. Short people, on the other hand, are apt to be short in all parts of their physique.

HE WAS WELCOMED BY FOCH

St. Paul Janitor, Former Comrade of the Noted Generalissimo, Is Granted Long Interview.

"Dji-Allah Laquat!" These mystic words meant something that caused Marshal Foch of France to receive an unusual janitor in his rooms at midnight.

The incident occurred during the generalissimo's visit to St. Paul, Minn., as a guest of the American Legion. It is still being talked about. It was the longest interview Foch granted during his tour of 42 states.

The Arabic legend, written on a postal card by the janitor, one Charles Schweitzer, was an open sesame.

The words formed the name of two engagements in which the janitor, then a sergeant, and Foch, then a lieutenant, fought with units of the First Colonial regiment in Algiers in 1877. It was learned. Foch remembered the names, and knowing that only a comrade of his Algerian regiment would know them, sent for him forthwith.

"The marshal is the same kindly man and good soldier that he was in Algiers," the janitor said, after his visit with the generalissimo. "Who knows? I might have been a general if I'd stayed in the army with him."

HIGH HONORS TO CARLSTROM

Veterans of Three Wars Appreciate Work of Head of Spanish-American Organization.

Veterans of three wars honored Oscar E. Carlstrom, Illinois. He is national commander-in-chief of the United Spanish War Veterans.

He was one of the 50 men who organized the forerunner of the American Legion in Paris in 1919. He is a member by adoption of the G. A. R.

Mr. Carlstrom was a private in the war with Spain, serving in the Philippines. Later he was captain in the National Guard of Illinois. He commanded a battery of field artillery in action in France.

At Minneapolis last year he was elected chief of the Spanish War Veterans. He was one of the 50 men chosen to represent the two million members of the American expeditionary force in France to organize what later became the Legion. Company C, One Hundred and Second Infantry, G. A. R., of Illinois, adopted him as a member. Mr. Carlstrom is a lawyer.

NATION'S LOVE FOR LEGION

"They Like Us—But" Is Attitude of Public, According to National Commander MacNider.

"They like us—but" is the attitude of the nation towards the American Legion, according to Hanford MacNider, commander of the Legion in the first address of his speaking tour at Philadelphia.

"We have to build up a spirit in the Legion and do the right thing always, and in time we will have the confidence of the people," Mr. MacNider continued.

"Men who offered all they had to the country have a right to the confidence of that country. They should have a voice in its affairs, for they never would want to do a thing contrary to the country's interests."

By building up a "spirit" among the members of the Legion and creating a comradeship with "our companions in arms in England, France, Italy and the other countries," more can be done for peace than in any other way, the speaker claimed.

To Aid of French Friends

To save from the almshouse a family in a French village in which his battery had been billeted, William B. Follette, formerly of Oregon but now living in Paris, recently appealed to members of his old command to send him contributions. The family was known to all the men of Mr. Follette's battery and they liberally responded to keep their French friends from want.

To Lose Canal Zone Jobs

More than 700 service men of the World War may be thrown out of employment in the Panama canal zone, following the government's sweeping reduction in personnel, according to a report filed by the American Legion at Washington. The number of civilian employees in the canal zone has been reduced 40 per cent since March 4, 1921.

Liquid or Solid?

"Any excitement today?" asked the bootlegger's bride fondly.

"Why, yes," returned her husband as he put on his carpet slippers and drew a paper from his pocket. "I ran plump into a federal agent."

"My, my," she ejaculated, all of a flutter; "did he take anything?"

The bootlegger donned his gold-rimmed spectacles and stroked the cat.

"Only a couple of shots, my dear," he answered.—American Legion Weekly.

LEGION MEN KNOW HER WELL

"Ma" Burdick, Famous for Doughnuts and Pies, Still Trying to Serve World War Boys.

"As we tried to serve the boys while under shell fire, so we are trying to meet their needs of today," says Mrs. Eugenia F. O. Burdick of the Salvation Army, recently elected national chaplain of the American Legion auxiliary.

That Mrs. Burdick did serve "the boys under shell fire," thousands of the A. E. F. will testify.

"Ma" Burdick to the men, her doughnuts and pies were known to the last of Pershing's army.

Mrs. Burdick, who is sixty years old but doesn't show it, arrived in France in December, 1917, with "Pa," her husband. With a stove which Mr. Burdick also an ensign of the Salvation Army, rigged up, and a sewing machine which she found and repaired, "Ma" cooked for the boys as they came from the lines, mended their clothes and made new ones out of salvaged material.

"Ma" and "Pa" were godparents of the first aviator, and from December of 1917 until the armistice Mrs. Burdick baked her pies and made her doughnuts in every sector of the western front, as close up to the fighting lines as they would allow her. The war over, the couple were transferred to Brest, where they ministered to the soldiers until they sailed for home in April, 1919.

Mrs. Burdick, a resident of Wichita Falls, Tex., is in charge of hospital relief work for disabled ex-service men for the Legion auxiliary of Texas in addition to her duties as national chaplain and ensign of the army hosts.

ACTRESS HEAD OF AUXILIARY

Miss Thais Magrane Is Elected President of the New York State Organization.

A tribute to the stage and to those actors and actresses who gave freely of their time and talents to keep men happy during the war was paid by the American Legion of New York in the election of Miss Thais Magrane as president of its state women's auxiliary.

With her brother in active service in the navy, Miss Magrane spent little of her time behind Manhattan's footlights and most of it with sick and wounded soldiers returned from France and quartered in Polyclinic hospital. She later assisted in the organization of the auxiliary of S. Rankin Drew post of the Legion, composed of Broadway's actors, writers and producers who were in service.

Miss Magrane is a native of St. Louis, Mo. She was "discovered" while playing in a stock company in Los Angeles. She played the title role in "Everywoman," and her engagements have included the leading stock organizations which have toured the country.

Carrying On With the American Legion

Neely ex-service men of New York city are being provided for by a municipal fund under direction of the Legion.

Boy relatives of members of the Eleventh Minnesota post of the Legion have been organized into a boy scout troop.

The Home Guard company of Fairmont, Minn., has turned over its war fund of $400 to furnish the building of the Legion post.

War vessels tied up at Seattle, Wash., may be used to billet unemployed former service men. If the plan of the Hanter-Noble post succeeds.

The old City club of Champaign, Ill., has been absorbed by the American Legion post there. The post will erect a community home, open to the public.

A fourth of the freshmen law students at Vanderbilt university are ex-service men receiving vocational training and belong to a Nashville post of the Legion.

The world's only shimmying chicken was billed in the "Joy Day" celebration of Hendrick (Ia.) post of the Legion. The post claims the chicken was "horn that way."

Half of the money for the erection of the community memorial building to be erected by the American Legion post at Sturgis, S. D., has been pledged by its members from state bonuses.

Midst regimental honors glories and major general ruffles, Hanford MacNider, national commander of the American Legion, was received by his old regiment, the Ninth Infantry, stationed at Houston, Tex. A loving cup was given him by the men.

Fifty prairie chickens were the "piece de resistance" of a community feed at Mouchard, Minn. The celebration was fostered by the American Legion post, which bagged the game and furnished the hall.

Delegates from every state in the Union attended the American Legion convention as well as from Africa, Alaska, Chile, England, Canada, China, Cuba, France, Guatemala, Hawaii, Japan, Mexico, Panama, Peru, Porto Rico, Palestine, Turkey and the Philippines.

FRANCIS LYNDE

Francis Lynde is another example of "When a Man Comes to Himself," the title of an excellent little book which ex-President Wilson wrote for young men some years ago. He was born at Lewiston, N. Y., in 1856, went to Denver as a young man, got him a job on a railroad, married a nice young woman and sailed along in obscurity until he was thirty-seven years old. Then he took up and took his pen in hand. What he had to say didn't stir the nation appreciably during the first five years. In 1898 he wrote three novels within 12 months, each one of which was a ten-strike. After that it was easy. Mr. Lynde has romanticized the railroads of the West and written many other fascinating tales of that region. We have been fortunate enough to secure his late story, "The Girl, a Horse and a Dog," as interesting as its title implies, for social reproduction in this publication. You must read it!
