PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

W. C. Hooks left Saturday morning for Phoenix and returned Sunday, accompanied by Mrs. Hooks and their three lovely children. Mrs. Hooks had been on an extended visit with her parents in the capital city. Judge and Mrs. Warren Smith.

Approximately 900 head of cattle belonging to the Empire ranch, near Greaterville, passed through town Monday on the way to Mexico, where they will be placed on pasture on the vast estate of Senor Mascareñas.

The Trench mine shipped a carload of ore this week to the El Paso smelter. Two cars are "spotted" for ore shipments by the next freight.

J. F. Johnston, interested with Geo. Elliott in the Dixie mine lease, returned Saturday from El Paso, where he had been on business. Frank Reichert was in charge of the commissary during his absence.

Walter Woodman, who is trapping in the Santa Rita mountains, spent a few days in town this week visiting his wife.

Jim Parker and W. D. Parker, returned Tuesday from a business trip to Phoenix. While in the capital city the former straightened out with the state highway department some business matters pertaining to payment for material and supplies furnished the department on the Nogales-Patagonia highway.

C. L. Northcraft of the Sonota grant sold two horses and two mules recently to Mr. Taylor of Continental, who is planting cotton there.

David Dowd, one of the owners of the Exposed Reef mine, near Patagonia, who has just finished a shaft contract at Kingman, is here for an indefinite visit.

Frank Powers, owner of the World's Fair mine, near Harshaw, was in town Tuesday en route from Tucson to the mine.

Southern Pacific railroad painters are here "doling up" the company's property.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Farley and Miss Ethyl McCormick returned Thursday evening from Phoenix, where they had been for several days.

Senator C. A. Pierce returned Tuesday evening from the western part of the state where he had been to examine a mining prospect for prospective buyers. He left Thursday morning for Mexico on a similar errand.

Miss Ethyl McCormick entertained a small party of friends Saturday evening at the Commercial Hotel, and the time was pleasantly passed playing Bridge Whist.

Mrs. E. B. Byrket was a Nogales visitor Thursday.

Mrs. James H. Reagan returned home Thursday, accompanied by her son, Ernest, after having spent a few days visiting her daughter, Mrs. A. D. Page, in Nogales.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Turner, who had spent several months in Patagonia, left last week for Tucson.

Customs Officers G. L. Stevens and Edward T. Sheehy raided an alleged bootlegging joint in Harshaw and found a cache on the premises containing several gallons of mescal. The place was conducted by two Mexican women, who were taken to Nogales and arraigned before the United States commissioner, who put them under bond to appear before the U. S. court in Tucson for trial.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Farrar and Curtis Salyer were Patagonia and Nogales visitors Tuesday. The men are U. S. immigration inspectors stationed at Benson.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Blabon returned Thursday from Nogales, where Mr. Blabon had been having dental work performed.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Rickwalt of Sonota were county seat visitors Wednesday. Mr. Rickwalt has a dairy near Sonota station.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blabon were Tuesday visitors in Nogales.

* George Armer of Tucson returned Tuesday to Patagonia after a short visit to Texas. He has several hundred head of cattle on pasture on the Sonota grant.

P. M. Etchells, who had a tunnel contract for A. F. Gross of Duluth, Minn., in the Mansfield country, put on a few more men this week.

Messrs. E. E. Bethell, A. S. Henderson, J. F. Johnston and Howard Acner attended the Chamber of Commerce meeting in Nogales last Tuesday night.

The Keno Mining Company, composed of Nogales men, are seeking capital to sink a shaft to a depth of 1500 feet if necessary to discover the large ore body believed to be located in the old Four Metals mine, near Mowry.

General Manager Koerner and a party of Magna Copper officials or superior were in town last Friday and Saturday on business connected with the 3-K mine, near Patagonia, which they own.

Harry Steen of Mowry and Miss May Hazlewood of the San Rafael Valley were Bisbee and Douglas visitors Sunday.

Fred, Carlos and Carolina Valenzuela spent the week-end visiting relatives in Patagonia.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. Woodie Gatlin, Tuesday, February 3, a son.

Word received from John Cady, a former resident of Patagonia, states he is living in San Francisco with his daughter, Mary, who was recently married. His son, Charles, is also in San Francisco on leave of absence from the U. S. navy.

Supervisor Robt. A. Campbell was a business visitor to Nogales Saturday.

Dan Folz of Nogales spent the week-end visiting his family in the San Rafael Valley.

Mrs. Bessie Bass of Douglas is visiting her mother, Mrs. Mary Steen, of Mowry.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan McKinney of Elgin were in Patagonia shopping Saturday.

Ed McFarland was a Patagonia visitor Saturday.

Little Edna Riggs, who had the misfortune to break her arm some time ago, has had the splints removed and is getting on nicely.

Clyde McPherson of the San Rafael Valley was on the sick list several days last week.

Mrs. A. C. Best and son, Ernest, were Sunday visitors at the San Rafael ranch of Miss Grace Van Osdale.

Mrs. Clyde McPherson and Mr. Owen Dierking of the San Rafael Valley were shopping in Patagonia Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Baldwin of the San Rafael Valley were in town Friday for supplies for their ranch.

Fred Krager of the San Rafael Valley was declared insane last week and committed to the state insane asylum.

P. J. Wilson and G. Dunham were Patagonia visitors Thursday.

Mrs. Grace Farrell and Mrs. Richard Farrell were Lochiel visitors Sunday.

Mrs. H. E. Boggs was a Nogales visitor Tuesday.

S. P. PLANS AID FOR ARIZONA FARMERS

Plans for co-operation with ranchers on other agricultural interests for the comprehensive development of farming activities in the southern part of Arizona are outlined in a report just prepared by Hardy W. Campbell, farm advisor of the Southern Pacific company.

The report of Campbell was made following his return to San Francisco from Arizona. He plans to devote much of his time in the future with Southern Pacific officials and ranchers in Arizona for the development of agricultural work in that state.

In his report, Campbell states he has begun a study of conditions in four farming valleys of southern Arizona which contain upward of 500,000 acres of from good to extra-choice land.

"One of these valleys," the report states, "a little east and south of Tucson, near the Mexican border, containing more than 100,000 acres, has ample rainfall for successful farming (records for 10 years show around 17 inches annually), and yet only here and there is a farmer with even modest success. Here are wonderful dairy possibilities.

"This valley should grow large crops of winter or spring wheat, by either utilizing the midsummer rains to prepare the seed bed and start the crop of winter wheat and finish with the winter rain, or utilizing the winter rains to start the spring wheat and finish the crop with the summer rains. The latter plan can easily be worked for all spring crops, including corn, cane, sudan grass—the secret of success being the storing of winter rains in the soil and utilizing it, not only to germinate the seeds sown, but to develop in liberal quantities that much-needed soil bacteria, nature's wonderful fertilizer, that material increases the efficiency of soil water and, brings the big crop.

"The San Pedro Valley is a large valley and has some development in the way of irrigation, but lack of correct method as to seed bed preparation and irrigation has apparently materially retarded development."

The report discusses irrigation conditions in the Sulphur Springs Valley, an arid state:

"This valley is not only susceptible to growing various crops, such as wheat, corn, cotton, onions, potatoes, etc., but is most beautifully adapted to the dairying industry. With the dairy naturally goes the hogs and chickens. From my observation of soil and climatic conditions, there is no question why large yields of corn cannot be grown here every year when proper methods are applied. This, with alfalfa and other feeders that can easily be grown, makes almost any line of farming a possible high success.

"Still farther east lies the San Simon Valley, where I saw several artesian wells with a liberal flow from a very modest depth. In this locality we found some enthusiastic onion growers. Judging from the almost universal ideal soil conditions, I do not believe the high limit of yield in onions has been reached. Here again are found favorable dairy conditions.

"I made a further drive up the Salt River Valley, only to find soil conditions equally favorable. In short, it seems almost a surprise the vast scope of unoccupied, desirable, fertile land that is available at very reasonable prices."

Campbell is a farmer who has devoted much time in developing improved methods of farming. He plans to return to Arizona early in February.

GET-TOGETHER MEETING FEB. 19

Next Thursday, February 19, it is planned to hold a meeting at the Nogales Chamber of Commerce at which time ways and means will be discussed for reviving mining in this county. Not only mining, but every other activity will be taken into consideration, with a view to having all citizens of the county co-operate in the work of advertising our natural and other resources to the world.

Everyone interested in the upbuilding of the county is invited to attend the meeting.

INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS IN THE STATE AT END OF JANUARY

Arizona started 1925 with business in general at a good level. Seasonal influences were noticeable in wholesale and retail lines, as compared to December, but in most sections improvement was apparent over a year ago.

The month brought nothing worthy of note in agriculture. Ginning of last season's cotton crop is finished, total production of 94,000 bales being indicated, and movement of fairly lettuce is practically over, shipments from the Salt River Valley having been more than 1200 cars. Comparative state figures of the department of agriculture give Arizona first rank in average yield per acre of tame hay, winter wheat and alfalfa, and second in barley and grain sorghums, and first place in average value per acre of cotton, hay, wheat and alfalfa, second in barley, sweet potatoes and grain sorghums, and third in oats.

Range conditions remain unsatisfactory, rains being needed not only for spring feed, but to replenish water supplies, which are low in many sections. Market conditions show little change, but increasing inquiries from buyers have given more encouragement for the spring cattle movement.

There have been no important developments in mining, the market for copper dropping a fraction the end of the month after holding the 15-cent level for several weeks. Notwithstanding increased production of the red metal in 1924, which reached 676,000,000 pounds, a new peace-time record, aggregate value of the state's copper, gold, silver and lead production fell below 1923 figures, being $98,216,000 against $104,301,200.

THE BACKWARD STATES

There are a few states that still permit children under 14 years of age (the minimum age of the former federal child labor law) to be employed in factories and these states constitute the "backward states" to which so much reference is made. None of them permit regular employment of those under 14, but do permit employment under exceptions to their law an dthe amount of employment under these exceptions is grossly exaggerated.

Arizona—Boy 10 to 14 may, upon license, work outside of school hours at labor not harmful. (This is the only state that permits a child under 12 to work in a factory.)

Colorado—Child of 12 may work in factory during summer vacations.

Georgia—Child 12 to 14 may work on permit if orphan or has widowed dependent mother. Only 42 such permits issued January 1 to September 1, 1924. (This is the only southern state that permits any child under 14 to be employed in a factory. Such permits will be removed when the legislature meets in July, 1925.)

Washington—Child 12 to 14 may work on permit of superior court judge in case of poverty.

Wisconsin—Child 12 to 14 may work on permit during school vacations.

All other states entirely prohibit the employment of children under 14 in factories.

It is only these five "backward states" that the enactment of the former federal child labor law would remove any child from employment.

Why should these five "backward states" not amend their laws and remove the excuse for the transfer of the control of child labor from the states to a federal bureau?

The laws of the other states are matters of record and absolutely prohibit the employment of children under 14 in factories.

THE CROSS-WORD PUZZLE HELPS EXTEND VOCABULARY

While we are not especially advocating the gentle art of juggling cross-word puzzles, they seem to have promoted in some persons heretofore thought hopeless the thirst for knowledge in quite varied fields, a more general use of the dictionary and other reference books, and they seem to have a tendency to make the family circle more interesting, keeping the "wanderers" home at night.

ELGIN NEWS NOTES

The Vaughn home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Woods was the scene of a pleasant party last week, the following persons being present: Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Gardner and children, Emory Stoddard, Wesley Stoddard, Shirley Stoddard, Otto Craig of Superior, Mrs. W. E. Bower, Charlie Bower, Billy Bower, Billy Anderson, Miss Kerr, Miss Bateman, Miss Pyeatt, Miss Sorrells, Miss Lois Reces, Eddie Fancenkopf, Howard E. Dalton, Howard W. Dalton, Charles Thompson, Chandler Harrison, and Ira Rothrock.

Walker Belue, who has been ill for some time, was seen in this part of the county Sunday. Glad to see you out again, old man.

S. M. Beebe was a Tucson visitor Thursday.

A new auto truck has been added to the many improvements of the Beebe and Fancenkopf ranch. That an old new barn, milk house and milking machine makes this ranch one of the best-equipped dairy ranches in the county. More power to you, boys; it shows what can be done in the Elgin valley.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Collie entertained some guests at dinner Friday evening.

Dr. and Mrs. L. W. Kline were Tuesday visitors at the county seat.

W. F. Neil and wife were Patagonia visitors Thursday evening.

Mrs. O. J. Rothrock was a visitor in Patagonia last week.

Mrs. Nellie Bartlett was a Nogales visitor Tuesday.

M. F. Bossinger was a county seat visitor this week.

It is reported that M. F. Bossinger, a member of the Elgin orchestra, is contemplating the purchase of a new cornet. Why all the style, old man? You can make enough noise now.

Because of "Farm and Home Week" at the University of Arizona, we will not hold the usual Farm Bureau meeting Friday.

Through responsible channels the writer has learned that "Eddie" Fancenkopf has purchased a new band instrument. Has he done it, Eddie? Don't you think there is plenty of noise in the valley now?

All friends are invited to come to the dance to be given at the Elgin schoolhouse Saturday, February 14. A word of warning has been given to the members of the orchestra who may be going away for the week to not disappoint the crowd, as it is hard to appease the wrath of a music-loving dancer. The writer suggests that the musicians govern themselves accordingly.

Why not make Elgin a terminal of a Sunday auto ride? We'd like visitors.

Miss Mary Ellen Trask spent several days with her grandmother, Mrs. O. J. Rothrock, last week.

Mrs. O. J. Rothrock and son, Oliver, were Nogales business visitors Sunday and Monday.

SCHOOL NOTES

(Margaret Fortune, Editor)

The Primary pupils are busy with Valentines.

The A class will prepare booklets on Lincoln.

The boys of the Primary room are learning a concert recitation.

The Chart class has nearly finished its chart again.

Mildred Kane and Ampara Corrales will be ready for Primmers soon.

Ernesta Quiroga and Nina Dawson have the most stars in spelling.

Myrtle Hooks and Miguel Coronado have returned to school after several weeks' absence.

Last week the Third grade had a spelling contest.

The Second and Third grades have started manual training.

In the Third grade the one who has the most hundreds at the end of the year will get a prize.

In the Fifth grade spelling match the following pupils did not miss any words: Elefren Ochoa, Eva Saldaie, Clara Valenzuela, and Jack Pierce.

Fifth grade pupils have been drawing maps of Alaska. Those drawn by the following girls and boys were exceptionally good: Clara Valenzuela, Gabriela P. Perez, Jack Pierce, Frank Siebold, James Sinohui, and Francisco Moreno.

Gabriela Perez received a grade of 100% in the last arithmetic test.

The Fourth and Fifth grades have each earned a "perfect half day" holiday.

The Fourth grade is beginning work in long division.

Lola Hual and Ernest Valenzuela are spending the week in Tucson, as guests of the Farm Bureau organization. Let's wish the trip because of her sewing, and Ernest because of his success with onions.

The basketball girls have started in for some real work.

The court has been marked and the girls and boys are playing with the three division court. The two teams are: Sarah Pierce, Mignon Stevens, Thelma Wilson, Vivian Rangan, Joan Evans, Mary Costello, Doris Siebold, Carmen Sinohui, Alvina Ochoa, Genevieve Amado, Letta Mead, and Margaret Fortune. Our colors are orange and black. Our motto is "Jolly Good Fellows." The uniform we have to wear is black bloomers and a white middie. When we can play real good we are going to play against Elgin and Rain Valley.

YOUR INCOME TAX

No. 4

The revenue act of 1921 provides that the status of a taxpayer relative to the amount of his personal exemptions shall be determined by apportionment in accordance with the number of months the taxpayer was single, married, or the head of a family. Under the preceding act the amount of the exemption to which the taxpayer was entitled was determined by his status as a single person, a married person, or the head of a family on the last day of the taxable year, December 31, if the return was made on the calendar year basis, as most are.

For example a taxpayer married on September 30, 1924, would be entitled to an exemption of $1,375. For the first nine months he is classified as a single man entitling him to an exemption of $750—three-fourths of the $1,000 exemption allowed a single person—and for the last three months he is entitled to an exemption of $325—one-fourth of the $2,500 exemption allowed a married person.

If on June 30 a taxpayer ceased being the head of a family—the support of none household of a relative or relatives being discontinued—he is allowed an exemption of $1,000 granted a single person plus one-half of the exemption of $2,500 granted the head of a family. With regard to the $400 credit for a dependent, the taxpayer's status is determined as of the last day of the taxable year.

During the year, his support of such dependent ceased, he is not entitled to this credit.

CATTLEMEN MAY GET RELIEF THROUGH FREE GRAZING

President Coolidge has promised his support and co-operation in relief of the cattlemen of the west through the waiving of grazing fees in forest reserves according to a telegram received this week in Phoenix from Senator Ralph H. Cameron. Senator Cameron some time ago introduced a resolution in the senate asking for the waiving of grazing fees for 1925 as a means of affording immediate relief for the cattlemen of the west. The resolution has not been reported out in the senate and all interested in the welfare of the cattle industry have been urged to telegraph their support of the resolution to any member of congress they may know. It is believed hundreds of these telegrams have been sent.

Cameron's message says: "Conferred with President yesterday on grazing resolution. Have received splendid co-operation and encouragement."

Owing to the shortness of this session of congress, it is not believed any action will be taken on the agricultural bill for the relief of the farmer or cattleman. This resolution can be brought out and passed with little debate if pressure can be brought to bear on the senate. Telegrams will help to do that.

IRRIGATION TO BE DISCUSSED FARM AND HOME WEEK

"The principals governing the most efficient methods of applying irrigation water to the soil is fundamental in its importance to Arizona farmers. For that reason this subject was featured this week at Farm and Home Week.

W. W. McLaughlin, irrigation engineer with the U. S. department of agriculture, gave some pointers on the practical application of water penetration to irrigation practices. Mr. McLaughlin has worked with irrigation problems in the southwest for several years and has become an authority of wide note on this subject.

Another department of agriculture authority who appeared on this program is J. F. Broezeale. He has delved into vexatious soil and water problems for almost a quarter of a century. His staple for Farm and Home Week was "The Relation of Water Movement in Soils to the Reclamation of Arid Lands."

Professor C. N. Catlin, acting agricultural chemist of the Arizona experiment station, talked on the composition of irrigation waters in the different valleys of Arizona.

Some fundamental facts concerning alkali were handled by P. S. Burgess, agricultural chemist also of the Arizona experiment station.

E. S. Tarville, county agricultural agent of Pinal county, is slated to discuss this work with water penetration in his county.

Measurement of farmers' water supplies will be discussed by H. C. Schwalen, assistant irrigation engineer at the university.

Some very interesting pictures of cotton root rot growing under different conditions were shown and explained by Prof. S. P. Clark, assistant agronomist. The lectures were open for discussion and were on a day's program replete with valuable information concerning irrigation and soil problems.

The Busy Suburbanite

It was the busy hour of 4 When from a city hardware store Emerged a gentleman who bore 1 hoe, 1 spade, 1 large rake. From there our hero promptly went Into a seed establishment And for these things his money spent 1 peck of bulbs, 1 lot of assorted shrubs, 1 quart of vegetable seeds. He has a garden under way And if he's fairly lucky, say, He'll probably have some summer's day

1 tomato vine, 1 eggplant, 1 radish. Exchange.

SPRING MILLINERY APPEARS; SMART SHOES OF PLIANT KID

IN THOSE sunny lands down on the Gulf of Mexico and along the Atlantic to beyond the West Indies, spring has already advanced more than half way toward summer. And there to welcome it and frolic with it, are troops of tourists from everywhere. They include many fashionables from the frigid North, gay butterflies decked out in lovely spring finery, and the vital question before the house is—what are they wearing?

They gather, to see and be seen, at the fashionable rendezvous in Palm Beach, Miami, Havana and many other places. If we were to run in upon them today at afternoon tea, say in the coconut grove at Palm Beach, it is certain the first thing to arrest our eyes would be the millinery that blossoms in that delectable place.

A great name is signed to the three hats at the top of the group. At the Women have gown so exacting in the matter of their footwear that the art of making shoes has become a very fine art indeed. Beauty of line, style and color are as important now in shoes as they are in hats and, in addition, shoes must fit "like a glove." To make them come up to standards that constantly advance in the diversity of the day, designers and manufacturers spare neither themselves nor expense and the exquisite footwear they have launched for spring proves their efforts worth while. There is nothing bizarre about the new styles—they are conservative, but it would be inaccurate to describe them as simple, although they have been so described. This is a compliment to their designers, whose fine and intricate work results in such clean-cut lines that the first impresleft a combination of straw and georgette is trimmed with a large wheel made of the georgette and tiny flowers and there is a broad collar of georgette about the crown. One can imagine the graceful and gracious hat in any of the season's delightful colors, as fuchsia, periwinkle blue, gold, light green, alizarin red or soft yellow. The hat at the top is of hair-braid and owes its commanding position to the very high crown topped with a cluster of flowers. The up-lifting brim is covered with varicolored little blossoms set on separately. At the right, one of the new turbans with wide coronet is made of silk. Narrow braid is applied to the coronet in a floral pattern. Below this a lovely picture hat in straw is shown, with wide facing of silk. The large flat flowers at the front are of ribbon sion is that of simplicity. The same thing is true in millinery and frocks. On account of its pliancy, kid has been chosen for the smart and graceful spring styles in shoes which so adroitly flatter the feet. Shoes, like hats, must "do something" for their wearers—more is required of them than merely to cover the feet. Since women insist on smartness and style, and take comfort for granted, manufacturers have turned to kid skin in order that the three factors of success may be combined.

A survey of the best shops reveals golden brown, beige, gray and, of course, black, to be the most popular colors. There are many shoes in which two colors are combined, as black and beige or black and brown. Occasionally one sees the introduction of a higher color, as strong blue with black centered with beads. Think of it in tan, with facing and trimming of alizarin. No group would be complete without a sports model and at the left we have one of those that belongs to the semi-sports class. It is made of a novelty fabric and faced with plain silk and one may imagine it in many beautiful color combinations, as purple and cerise, orange and red, green and brown, navy and red, and so on. Women were never more beautifully hatted than they are, or soon will be, this spring. Colors and shapes are flattering and there is great diversity in styles, but this group is made up of important and dominating types.

but it is sparingly used in dressy types. The merging of one color into another shows an exquisite craftsmanship. A study of the footwear shown here will give anyone an accurate idea of fashionable types in kid shoes for spring.

Sheer hose in tan, cocoa and "nude" shades, as well as hose to match gray, beige, tan or brown frocks, are fashionable. When the weather is too cold to wear these thin stockings safely women wear fine hose of angora wool under them.

GENERAL

Nineteen Democratic members of Congress from New York have pledged their support to an organization formed in New York to seek repeal of the Volstead act.

Julius Fleischman, millionaire philanthropist, sportsman and president of the Fleischmann Company, said to be the largest yeast manufacturers in the world, died suddenly at Miami Beach, while playing polo. Death was believed to have been caused by heart disease or apoplexy.

Charles R. Forbes, former director of the Veterans' Bureau, and John W. Thompson, wealthy St. Louis contractor, were sentenced to two years' imprisonment to Leavenworth penitentiary and $10,000 fines by Federal Judge George A. Carpenter of St. Louis. They were found guilty by a jury Jan. 30 of conspiracy to defraud the government in the allocation of veterans' hospital contracts and received the maximum sentence.

The United States railroad labor board has granted an increase in the wages of 2,528 conductors and trainmen, totaling some $283,183 a year. Seventeen railroads, which were not covered by the agreement negotiated by the train service brotherhoods in the wage movement of 1923-24, are affected. They are chiefly short lines, but include the Denver & Rio Grande Western system and its subsidiary, the Rio Grande Southern.

One of the greatest dog team races in the history of Alaska, with the saving of the lives of Nome's diphtheria patients as the sweepstakes prize, ended when 300,000 units of frozen antitoxin arrived in Nome from Nenana, where it was shipped by train on the Alaska railroad from Anchorage.

The Chicago Daily Journal, the oldest daily paper in Chicago, was left by John C. Eastman, who died last week, to a group of employees, it was disclosed in the filing of the will in Chicago. Eastman was sole owner. No estimate of the value of the property was made, but the probate judge fixed a $1,000,000 bond for the executors.

A boy of 14 held an audience of 15,000 red-bedecked men and women spellbound in Madison Square Garden New York, while he exhorted them to bring about a fulfillment of the plans of Nicolai Lenin, in whose memory the meeting had been called. Morris Specter, a public school student, received an ovation when he shouted: "Down with capitalism! Down with its system! Up with the soviet republic!" The audience, including 400 boys and girls, rose, waving red handkerchiefs.

The steady advance in the price of oil shares since the first of the year, based on sharp reduction in crude production and a series of gasoline and crude oil price increases, has added nearly $400,000,000 to the quoted value of ten active issues listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Greece severed diplomatic relations with Turkey and Athens buzzed with talk of war, because the Angora government expelled the ecumenical patriarchate, which for seven centuries has represented the Orthodox Greek church at Constantinople.

BRIEF ARIZONA ITEMS

Arizona's 1924 output of gold, silver, copper and lead was valued at $98,216,000.

Inspiration Consolidated Copper Company is pushing the construction of its $6,000,000 leaching plant near Miami.

A $225,000 appropriation bill has been introduced in Congress for construction of a new federal building at Yuma.

The Arizona Wool Growers' Association held its annual meeting in Phoenix, with scores of sheep men from all parts of the state in attendance.

Plans are well under way for the sixth annual state Christian Endeavor convention, which will be held in Phoenix February 19 to 22. In the opinion of workers this will be the biggest and best convention ever held in Arizona.

Dan Rucan, of Los Angeles, and Raymond Sticker, were arrested and lodged in the Tucson jail charged with robbing letter boxes of the Tucson main post office. The arrest was made by Chief of Police J. N. Dyer and Detective Dallas Ford.

The Arizona Legislature completed ratification of the child labor amendment to the federal constitution in spite of the fact that the proposal apparently has been defeated by the action of the Legislature or the referendum in thirteen other states.

Judge William H. Sawtelle, in Federal Court at Tucson, sentenced Walter de Lorraine, who escaped from the Globe jail while awaiting trial on a narcotic act last November, and who was arrested in Los Angeles, to serve two years in Leavenworth.

Governor Hunt declared that the reward of $500 offered by the state several months ago for the arrest and conviction of P. K. Lewis, wanted by Maricopa county officials on several indictments in connection with the closing of the Central Bank of Phoenix, will be withdrawn by the state for the reason that Mr. Lewis has voluntarily surrendered.

The number of births in the state reported for the month of December, 1924, exceeded the total number of deaths reported for the same period by 356, according to a statement of the vital statistics for the month, issued in Phoenix by the State Board of Health. The report, prepared by Mrs. Ruby L. Jacquemin, statistician for the department, shows that a total of 808 births were reported as compared to 452 deaths.

Charges of murder were filed in Prescott against Ramsey Patterson, noted lion hunter, and Ralph Anderson, a young rancher, and the men are held without bail as the result of the death of James Shearer, 73 years old, in a Prescott hospital. Shearer was shot in the thigh. The two men claim that they tracked Shearer forty miles after he had stolen a mule from them, and that Anderson had shot after the aged man had tried to get a rifle from his pack.

Financed by Mrs. William Boyce Thompson, scientists of the American Museum of Natural History of New York have begun work of analyzing the ruins which are in the vicinity of the Craig Ranger Station, midway between Miami and Superior, on the highway connecting the two copper communities. Dr. E. P. Goddard, renowned archaeologist, is in charge of the party, which will excavate ruins to be found in the Lower Gila Valley, including those at Casa Grande, and the cliff dwellings of the Fish Creek district.

A new city is to spring up in Pinal county under the San Carlos project on the new main line of the Southern Pacific, according to an announcement by Judge O. J. Baughn of Phoenix. The new townsite will be about eleven miles from Florence and about nineteen miles from Casa Grande.

After three hours' deliberation a jury in Phoenix found E. J. Woodson, Phoenix service station proprietor, guilty of murder in the second degree. Woodson shot and killed Norman MacKenzie on Dec. 29. The shooting occurred in Woodson's service station in Phoenix when MacKenzie had called there after seeing Woodson with his wife.

Losses in stock on forest ranges have been considerably below expectations due to the recent warm weather according to F. L. Kirby, deputy supervisor of the Tonto National forest, who returned to Phoenix after making a ten days' tour of inspection in the Payson Pine, Roosevelt and Globe areas. Mr. Kirby said he expects much improvement in the stock situation if the warm weather is followed by rains.

Funds for beginning construction on the Mulne-Grand Canyon forest highway under the direction of the United States Bureau of Public Roads were allotted in Phoenix at a conference of officials of the United States Bureau of Public Roads, the State Highway Department, and the forest service. Officials agreed to spend $18,000 for surveys on actual construction work in 1927. The length of the road is sixty miles and when completed it will be an important artery of travel into the Grand Canyon park, officials declared.

TUG RAMS BOAT NEAR VANCOUVER

ACCIDENT MARS VISIT OF JAPANESE TRAINING SHIP

ELEVEN ARE DROWNED

FIVE MEN ARE SAVED; DIVERS RECOVER EIGHT BODIES

Vancouver, B. C.—Eleven Japanese, including five petty officers and six seamen, members of the crew of the cruiser Idzumo, met death in the harbor here when the Pinnacle, in which they were returning to the Idzumo, after enjoying shore leave, collided with the Canadian Pacific tug Nanoose.

The bodies of the officer, petty officer, and five seamen have been recovered. Nine others are still missing.

Five men, including a midshipman, were saved. Diving equipment to recover the bodies and apparatus to raise the Pinnacle were rushed to the scene by the Vancouver harbor commissioners.

The Pinnacle left the dock towing a barge with a number of sailors who had attended a banquet ashore. On nearing the cruiser Idzumo the tug Nanoose, towing a car ferry, approached the Pinnacle. In the mixup of the tug and the Pinnacle, the two barges and the Pinnacle were sunk. The tug was badly damaged.

The Idzumo is one of three vessels of the Japanese navy training squadron here on the last leg of a 20,000-mile tour. The others are the cruisers Asama and Yakumo. The squadron is in command of Vice Admiral Suburo Hyakutake, who was visiting it, Seattle at the time of the accident.

Eighty members of the Idzumo's crew were aboard a barge being towed by the Pinnacle. The Nanoose also had a barge in tow. Owing to the fact that the night was dark, with a heavy rain, neither vessel was seen by the other until too late to avoid a collision. The Nanoose struck the Pinnacle a glancing blow, which caused it to capsize. Seven of the Pinnacle's crew were picked up by boats sent out from the cruisers, but two died before reaching ship.

There was no loss of life among the sailors aboard the barge towed by the Pinnacle. The tow line was broken in the collision and the barge remained upright.

Casper Deputy Sheriffs Strike

Casper, Wyo.—Stepping into a breach caused by a strike of sheriff's officers against a reduction in salaries ordered by the county commissioners, state and federal officers brought assurance of law protection to residents of Natrona county. The walkout of four deputies took place following decision of the commissioners to adhere strictly to the state law in the matter of salary limits. Ten girl employees of other county officers joined in the strike, declaring against acceptance of $100 monthly in place of $125 paid heretofore.

Two Sealed in Freight Car

New York.—Everett Reilm of Billings, Mont., and Jack Reed of Butte, Mont., were taken to Bellevue hospital suffering from starvation because of five days' imprisonment in a sealed freight car en route from Wisconsin to this city. The men were discovered on the arrival of the freight car at the N. Y. C. yards. They were charged with vagrancy.

Gives Up Smuggled Pearls

San Francisco, Calif.—Pearls believed to have been smuggled, valued at about $2,000, recently were seized from Asa G. Candler, Jr., at his home in Atlanta, Ga., by United States customs officials, according to information received by federal officials here. Seizure of the pearls followed the finding in the possession of Max Burian, former purser of the trans-Pacific liner President Cleveland, of papers which revealed that pearls purchased in China had been smuggled into the United States supposedly through the port of San Francisco.

Britain Disapproves Debt Plans

London.—Great Britain's note to France explaining the Baldwin government's viewpoint on the question of the repayment of France's debt to Great Britain proves to be a much shorter document than had originally been expected. It lays down succinctly the principles on which Great Britain hopes France will agree to meet her obligations without going into any details or figures.

Trains Collide; Five Killed

Kansas City, Kan.—Five persons were killed and several others injured, three dangerously, when the locomotive of Missouri Pacific passenger train No. 104, eastbound from Omaha to Kansas City left the rails and crashed into a standing freight train at Neamen, Kan., three miles west of here. The impact of the locomotives was heard for several miles. Farmers who rushed to the scene said they found passengers leaping from the windows of the coaches and women screaming and praying.

Skull Shows Skill of Indian Surgeon

Evidence that skull surgery was successfully practiced by prehistoric people in Michigan has been presented to the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Prof. E. F. Greenman of the University of Michigan. Pointing out that Michigan has been greatly neglected as a field for archaeological investigation, he said:

"In Alpena county, Michigan, several trephined skulls, that is, skulls into which holes were drilled during the life of the patient, have been reported. One of them is in the University of Michigan museum and careful examination of anatomists of repute shows that a healing had begun after the operation and therefore the area of the practice of skull trephining must be extended far beyond Mexico."

Real "Cure" for Cold

A New York newspaper recently compiled a list of prescriptions for an ordinary cold. The readers sent in more than 3,000. And not one was like another. Perhaps the best prescription of all was given by a famous surgeon. He said: "Stay in bed and forget it."

Permanent roads are a good investment—not an expense

Why America Must Have More Paved Highways

Almost every section of the United States is confronted by a traffic problem.

Month by month this problem is becoming more and more serious.

Hundreds of cars pass a given point every hour on many of our state and county roads. Downtown city streets are jammed with traffic.

Think, too, how narrow many of our roads are, and how comparatively few paved highways there are in proportion to the steadily increasing number of cars.

If the motor vehicle is to continue giving the economic service of which it is capable, we must have more concrete highways and widen those near large centers of population.

Every citizen should discuss highway needs of his community with his local authorities.

Your highway officials will do their part if given your support.

Why postpone meeting this pressing need?

An early start means early relief.

Prop Wanted

The colored janitor of a church in St. Louis had a violent temper. He was converted, but sometimes his temper would get the best of his good resolutions. On one occasion when he was repenting of one of his lapses, he made this prayer after he had asked the Lord to forgive him: "O Lord, prop me up on the leaning side."—Christian Witness.

Called in "Expert"

When a case concerning the proper fit of an evening gown came before a London court, Judge Sturges, K. C., said he could not deal with so knotty a problem himself and asked a woman in court to help him. The woman sat by the judge on the bench. At the end of the case Judge Sturges said that he and his "assessor" had both arrived at the conclusion that the gown did not fit, and so he gave judgment against the maker.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

Letters Like This Prove the Reliability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Turtle Lake, Wisconsin.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness, backache and nervousness. I had these troubles for years and had taken other medicines for them, but I have found no medicine so good as the Vegetable Compound and I recommend it to my friends who have troubles similar to mine. I saw it advertised and thought I would try it and it has helped me in all my troubles. I have had six children and I have taken the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before each one was born, for weakness, vomiting, poor appetite and backache, and again after childbirth because of dizzy headaches. It is a good medicine for it always helps me. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for the last eight years for constipation."—Mrs. MABEL LA POINTE, R. F. D. No. 1, Turtle Lake, Wisconsin.

In a recent canvass, 38 out of every 100 women say they were benefited by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

HEROES BORN THIS MONTH

Two national heroes came to this earth in February.

George Washington seems a shadowy figure to young folk now, but his romantic story goes beyond the thrills of fiction. His military skill would have made him a famous general in any age. Greater still was his unconquerable courage. If it had not been for that resolute spirit we might still be serving the English King. Who knows?

When ordinary human nature sank into despair, George Washington began to get into full action. When they told him a thing couldn't be done he began to get thoroughly interested. We can't rise to that level. But if we would follow our best leaders as Washington's men followed him across frozen Valley Forge we would get somewhere in this country.

Abraham Lincoln could direct the fighting armies with his relentlessness of any warrior. But when the fighting was over the beaten man was his brother, to be welcomed back to his old place in the family circle. If his big heart could have guided this country through the tragic reconstruction days the bitter taint of that time could never have saured the relations between North and South.

Lincoln was a plain man. To him the shows and tinsel of the world, its glories and pompousities, were but dust and ashes. If his warm sympathy were leading us now the deep chasm between rich and poor would be obliterated. Men would be ashamed, in the revealing sunlight of that great soul, to strive for selfishly used wealth or to shirk honest toil. The spirit of these great men asks us here in Santa Cruz county for higher civic aspirations. It calls to us from across the years, to manifest Washington's courage and resolution and Lincoln's insight and sympathy, as we enter the unknown future and deal with the problems that lie behind its veil.

MARRIED FLIRTATIONS

After having listened to the dreary story of 10,000 divorce cases, Judge Sabath of Chicago recently wrote a paper on "Marital Harmony." One of his wise counsels was that wives cease teasing their husbands by idle flirtations. Some of us know husbands, who, being a shade too fascinating to women, should ponder this suggestion.

Married men and women are not supposed to be hermits. They are not asked to hide from the other sex for fear of contamination. But their judgment and conscience should say when these friendships become a little too sporty for their health.

Some people who desire to be original think it is smart to cultivate intimacies that provoke remark. People simply have to make a choice. They can either have the highly spiced excitement of these flirtations, ending in a bitter taste, or the sweet satisfactions of a loving marriage. The two can not be enjoyed simultaneously.

President Coolidge does not want to dance at any inaugural ball if they have one, but he could probably tire them all out walking around the hall if they have a grand march.

DEBATING IN SCHOOLS

The Patagonian has noticed with much interest that the public schools of the county are again fostering and developing debating teams and that in some sections the rivalry between teams of neighboring schools is very keen.

There is no one thing which so marks the educated and finished man as the ability to think quickly and express himself easily upon his feet. There is nothing which so fully develops these qualities as debate.

The Q. E. D. of It

One of the East State street medical colony tells this one:

"He was in the operating room when a relative of the victim knocked at the door.

"Can this operation be performed successfully?" he was asked when he faced the relative.

"This is just about what we are to discover," was his encouraging reply.—Columbus Dispatch.

Utility Plus Charm

The business girl, like her sister the college girl or the young matron, likes a smartly tailored utility frock of wool that is guaranteed to give long service without showing fatigue, as silks do.

For that reason, she likes frocks like the one sketched, which hails from the smart Paris dressmaking shop of Marie Louise, for it is an ideal utility frock, made of moosheen, that soft, charming, new kind of mohair which is as different from the stiff, old-fashioned kind of mohair as crepe de chine is from the stiff satins of Grandmother's day.

Dainty lingerie frills, of organdie or pleated georgette, lend the bit of feminine charm necessary to this crisp, good-looking and serviceable model.

A little money from every property owner, saved and invested in some good home industry or utility that builds payrolls and that makes one's state a better place in which to live, is hardly less than a duty.

In view of the girls who are sitting around without partners at the dances, it would be a good idea to insert a little "Male Help Wanted" advertisement in The Patagonian.

Back of the love story, back of all the mystery and excitement of this new story by Rousseau, is a fine picture—a picture of the Northwest and of the part being played in its development by Canada's soldier-police, the Northwest Mounted.

The author, one of the most industrious of the romantic writers of the North, is thoroughly at home in all his scenes and amidst all his characters. He brings the near-arctic to our doors and in this case shows its summer phases.

Sidcar Rider Risks Life on Curve to Win Motorcycle Race

While credit for most motorcycle racing records is due to the drivers, sometimes their helpers and mechanics deserve no little praise. This was true in a race in Ireland not long ago. The machines were equipped with sidcars and each carried a passenger. To help preserve the balance in rounding a curve at a high rate of speed, the occupant of one of the cars leaned far outward, hanging to the side of the seat and dash. A racer roared by, the passenger's head barely missed striking a flag post that had been stuck in the ground to mark the course of the track.

Scientists to Search Sea Jungles in Hunt for Giant Squid

Turning to the sea for one of the most extensive big-game hunts ever organized a party of scientists from the New York Zoological society seeks to plumb the depths of the Sargasso Sea and other mysterious caverns of the ocean for trace of the giant squid and kindred creatures little known to man. The expedition headed by Dr. William Beebe, has fitted the 280-foot steamer "Arctura" with elaborate equipment for scientific research, including hooks, dredges, trays, diving apparatus, complete photographic layout and a radio-broadcasting set, and contemplates a six months' tour. The ship has a cruising radius of 13,000 miles. Short inland trips in remote sections will also be made and collections of bird and animal life will be gathered on shore as well as from the depths of the sea.

Power of Sun Stored by Plants May Solve Fuel Problem

Although their progress is slow and unspectacular, scientists are making dogged attempts to discover a way to make artificial fuels which will replace the diminishing supplies of coal and oil. The process they seek to perform in their laboratories is the marvelous one that nature uses every day in storing up energy in leaves and plants by converting waste material into wood, etc., under the action of sunlight. Solution of the riddle is being sought in California by Dr. Herman A. Spooler and a staff of research workers. A year's consumption of coal at the present time, represents the accumulation of 100 years, he says.

Protecting Young Trees

Young trees can be protected against cold by means of old inner tubes and casings slipped around the trunks as shown in the drawing. In the case of very small trees the tubes can be slipped right over the branches, the latter being squeezed together with one hand. The tube is then tied with twine as shown. For larger trees casings may be used, as shown at the right. In the spring the coverings are taken off. After their removal a rubbery odor will be left on the bark, which insects and other vermin dislike.

Reducing Diameter of Stovepipe

Sometimes it is necessary to reduce the diameter of a section of stovepipe when there is not a tinmith in the neighborhood. However, this can readily be done by anyone at home with materials and tools available almost everywhere. A piece of tongue-and-grooved board, a little longer than the section of stovepipe, is obtained and stuck through the pipe as shown. By means of a piece of flat iron or steel, such as a discarded plane bit or a wide chisel with the edge dulled, and a hammer, the stovepipe is tapped down into the groove as shown in the drawing. The work must, of course, be done gradually from one end of the pipe to the other and the result will be a neat job. If a board of a width to produce the desired reduction in diameter is not at hand, one may be built up of two pieces and then trimmed down to the right size.

A Razor Kink

To the user of an old-fashioned razor who finds it a nuisance to take it to be honed, or too much trouble to do it himself, a method of keeping the tool in shape may prove of interest. One man has kept his razor keen and sharp for a dozen years, by using a trace of flour of emery on one side of the strap. Merely dip one finger into the emery once or twice and rub it on. Start stropping on that side and finish on the other. When the razor gets a little out of condition do it again. No doubt the treatment will have to be varied a little with different razors, but three or four times a year is usually sufficient.

Make a Friend of Your Car

By ERWIN GREER

(President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago)

Get acquainted with the inside of your motor car. Study its characteristics. Get into the habit of looking after it personally as much as possible. By so doing you will get the most out of your automobile and you will find a new satisfaction in owning a car.

Gasoline, oil and square treatment is all that any car asks to give long and satisfied service.

In this day of simplified mechanics the average owner is too often in the habit of allowing the car to take care of itself. As a matter of fact, there is necessity for mechanical knowledge in the actual operation. Expert engineers have so designed the car that women can drive it as well as men. Nevertheless, the owner who simply knows how to start his own car, regulate its speed and then stop it, while he may never be called on for further knowledge concerning its working, is losing a lot of pleasure which he could have at no expense.

There are thousands of owners who pay absolutely no attention to the inside of their car, and run it until it stops, no matter how great a strain the machine is operated under. It is that class of owners who complain about the maintenance cost of their car.

They not only fail to get comfortable riding and they not only lose time while the car is being repaired at some garage, but they lose the keen enjoyment which one should get out of owning a perfect piece of mechanism.

If every owner studied his machine and learned the details of its inside mechanism, he would soon become attached to it as is the average sea captain to his ship or the railroad engineer to his engine.

OAK TREE TARGET FOR LIGHTNING

Trees with wide-spreading root systems or with roots that reach deep into moist soil are relatively good electrical conductors and, generally speaking, are in most danger of being struck by lightning, says the weather bureau of the U. S. department of agriculture. The rodding of valuable trees to protect against lightning is therefore strongly recommended.

No tree is immune; but among trees of the same kind the one standing well above its neighbors is in most danger, even in a dense forest. This may be due to the greater height of the tree or the kind of ground it stands on. Trees growing in the open are in more danger than those in a thick stand of timber, as are also those growing along an avenue or border of woods. Those growing in moist soil along the banks of a stream or lake are better conductors for lightning than those growing in drier soil. Sound trees in general are less likely to be damaged than those with rotten wood. Trees growing in loam and sandy soils are struck more frequently than those in clay, marl, and calcareous soils. Oaks often grow to great height and mostly in loam and sandy soils. Moreover, they are a good example of a starchy tree, which is a better conductor of electricity than an oily tree like the beech. The oak also is a tap-rooted tree, with its root system extending deep into the soil, which constitutes another factor of danger from lightning for it. Studies in various localities, particularly in western Europe, have shown conclusively that the oak is struck more often than other kinds of trees. Elm, ash, poplar, and gum trees are also very susceptible to lightning damage, while those least attractive to lightning are the chestnut, maple, alder, and mountain ash.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

By IRVIN S. COBB

(Copyright.)

As Translated into the English

Sometimes a story takes on added value in the re-telling of it even though the man who repeats it gets it twisted. This doesn't happen often, still it does happen. I recall an instance:

One night at dinner in honor of a distinguished visiting Englishman I was reminded of a yarn which I had from Sam Blythe and when I was called upon by the chairman to speak a few words I told it, and it went very well. It had to do with a prospector in Oklahoma, who, on a Saturday night, bought a quart of moonshine whisky and took it to his lonely cabin, anticipating a pleasant Sunday. But as he crossed the threshold he stumbled and fell, dropping his precious burden and smashing the bottle, so that its aromatic contents were wasted upon the floor. Depressed by his misfortune, the unfortunate man went to bed. As he lay there bemoaning his loss, a mangy, furtive, half-grown rat with one ear and part of a tail, emerged timorously from a hole in the baseboard, sat up, sniffed the laden air and then, darting swiftly to where the liquor made a puddle in a depression of the planking, ran out its tiny pink tongue, took one quick sip of the stuff and fled in sudden panic to its retreat. But it didn't stay; shortly it again appeared, and now a student of rats would have discerned that a transition had taken place in the spirits of this particular rat. Suddenly it had grown cocky, debonair, almost reckless. It traveled deliberately back to the liquor and imbibed again. Seemingly satisfied it started for home but, changing its mind, it returned and partook a third time of the refreshment. Immediately then its fur stood on end, its eyes burned red, like pigeon-blood rubies, and straightening itself upon its hind legs it waved its forepaws in a gesture of defiance and shrilly cried out: "Now, bring on that dad-blamed cat!"

No one seemed to enjoy my little story more than did the guest of the evening. After the party broke up he made me tell it to him all over again. I could tell from his expression that he was trying to memorize it. In fact, he confessed to me that he expected to use it when he got home as a typical example of American humor. Six months later I was in London. I attended a dinner. My English friend was the toastmaster. Perhaps my presence recalled to him the anecdote he had so liked. At any rate, he undertook to repeat it.

His version of it ran for perhaps twenty minutes. He entered into a full exposition of the potency of the illicit distillation known among the Yankees, he said, as "shining moon." He went at length into the subject of the habits of rats, pointing out that inasmuch as rats customarily did not indulge in intoxicants a few drops of any liquor carrying high alcoholic content would be likely, for the time being at least, to alter the nature of almost any rat. At length he reached his point. It ran like this:

"And then, this little rodent, being now completely transformed by its repeated potations, reared bolt upright and, voicing the pot-vol of utter intoxication both in tone and manner, it cried out in a voice like thunder:

"I say, I wonder if there isn't a cat about somewhere?"

"Spoken From the Soul"

Nick was the grizzle-headed factotum of an assembly room in a certain southern town. This story, which has to do with him, possesses one merit if it possesses none other—it has the merit of being true.

According to local gossip Nick was a sorely heupeecked man. It was said that when displeased with him Aunt Effie, his mastodonic wife, had a way of tying his hands behind him and then correcting him with a bed slat. Sometimes she corrected him so thoroughly that he limped for a week afterward and sat down only on cushioned chairs. If there were no cushioned chairs handy he preferred to stand.

Yet Nick bore the secret of his domestic tragedy bravely. He never swore out a warrant for Effie; never publicly complained of the roughness of her disciplinary methods.

But, as the saying goes, the worm will turn, although why it should turn, seeing that a worm is the same on both sides, no one knows. Nick didn't exactly turn, but one time he did bare his inner convictions without exactly going into details.

Some ladies were decorating the assembly rooms for a wedding reception which was to follow the ceremony at the bride's home and Nick was helping them.

"So they's fixin' to have 'nother marriage, is they?" said Nick, half to himself as he unraveled an armful of southern smilax. "Well, seems lak folks will keep on gettin' married." He fetched a soft, pensive sigh under his breath.

One of the ladies overheard him. She knew something of the life Nick was said to lead in the privacy of his home. Mischief led her to speak.

"Why, Uncle Nick," she said, "you surely haven't any grudge against marriage, have you?"

"Oh, none, not fur other folks," said Nick. "But, Miss May, speakin' fur myself in strictest confidence to you, I'll jes' say dis: Ef I wuzn't, I wouldn't."

ARTIFICIAL VOICE BOX

Sufferers from cancer of the throat need no longer fear a radical operation because it involves removal of the larynx, or "voice box"; for science's latest gift to the human race, illustrated here, is the artificial larynx, developed by Dr. John E. Mackenty of New York and Dr. Harvey Fletcher of the Western Electric A. T. & T. laboratories. When the larynx is removed in cancer operation the wind-pipe is provided with an orifice in the front of the neck, to permit breathing, and the victim can make no intelligible sounds. This artificial larynx, provided with a pair of rubber vocal cords, sets in vibration the air forced up from the lungs, and the vibrations are carried through the "pipe stem" to the mouth, where they are modified by lips, teeth, tongue and soft palate as in ordinary speech.

Talking Bullets

"DANGER, nowadays, never seems to lurk in an odd corner and then jump out at a fellow like it used to when you were a boy," little Tommy Radnor was complaining to the captain. As he said these words, Tommy, along with the captain and other nine boys who made up the captain's usual crew of listeners, sat at the sea end of the long, new pier and fished.

No one said anything for a moment. "Boys," then asked the captain, "do you all think you'd like some adventure? Not just a game of some sort, but a few thrilling moments when your lives would be in grave danger?"

Again there was a moment of silence. Then blue-eyed Tommy Radnor broke out impetuously: "Sure, I would. We all would. I would like it fine." And Tommy puffed up his chest and tried to look brave and manly.

"Perhaps," said quiet Bobby Treat. "Perhaps it wouldn't be so much fun as you think."

Quite an argument started. At last some of the boys began to get angry. The captain saw this, so he interfered. "Tommy, Bobby, all of you," he called sharply, "this is no way to get along on the very day your new club is started. If the club is to be worth while you will all have to learn to stick together. Any arguing should be done with outsiders, and even that isn't in the least necessary."

"Let's get in a circle and shake hands all 'round," suggested Bobby. The ring was formed. They started to shake hands—

Whir—z-z-zip! something cut through the air above their heads with an angry hiss. Zip—z-z-zip! something struck the pier and knocked up a tiny shower of splinters. Then they heard the sound of rifle shots. On the shore to their right were tiny flashes.

"Quick! Down behind the logs here!" snapped the captain. There was a ringing note of command in his voice and the boys did as he told them with no questions.

The rifle shots kept up. But the boys were safe, now. On looking out toward the seaward side of the pier, they saw a medium-sized steam launch. Bullets were splashing in the water about it. Evidently the men on shore had been shooting toward the launch without really intending to hit anyone on the pier.

"Look! See what they are doing on the launch!" It was quiet Bobby Treat's voice, and it was steady and clear.

The fact of the matter was that the boat was a revenue cutter with a little one-pound quick-firer mounted in the bow. The revenue men had taken the canvas cover off the gun and made ready to open fire.

Bang! Bang! Bang! went the gun. Shells whistled toward the shore. In a moment the rifle firing was silenced. Then the revenue men stopped shooting, also.

The captain climbed back on top of the pier and waved his hat. "Aho, there is the cutter!" he shouted. "What's up?"

The officer in charge of the revenue men recognized the captain and steered the cutter alongside the pier. "Just some smugglers," he said. "Desperate characters all of them. It's a good thing we were ready. They have stopped at nothing, and only yesterday fired at one of our unarmed launches. We thought we'd fool them this time and brought the little one-pounder along. Some of my men are posted on the hills back of the swamp over there, where the smugglers operate. No one can get through that way and we'll get any who try to sneak away in boats. Good-by, captain, glad none of your crew of boys was hurt." And the revenue men were on their way toward the swamp where the smugglers were hiding.

"Well, you've had quite a bit of adventure today," said the captain. "How does it set with you?"

The captain looked at Tommy Radnor. But Tommy just hung his head. Then Sammy Treat said: "I'll tell you what I think. I think it would have hurt like everything to have had one of those bullets hit you. That's what I think."

Most of the boys nodded their heads in assent to this. And they all agreed, as they started home, that the club had got a real initiation on the day it was founded. Before they separated they all formed a circle and each boy shook hands with every one of the others. The club was a real club now.

Famous Forts in U. S. History

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

"Remember the Alamo!"

What Boonesborough is to Kentucky, the Alamo is to Texas, and both are more than the most famous forts in their respective states. They are monuments to the memory of two great American frontier heroes—Daniel Boone and Davy Crockett—they are national shrines.

The Mission of San Antonio de Valero, commonly called the Mission del Alamo (Alamo being the Spanish word for cottonwood tree) was founded by the Franciscans in 1703 and after various removals was established in its present location in 1722. Soon after the outbreak of the Texan War of Independence in 1835 the Alamo was seized by the Texans.

Its commander early the next year was Lieut. Col. William Barrett Travis, a young Carolina lawyer. Associated with him was Col. James Bowie of Georgia and of Bowie knife fame. They had only about 140 men but in February there came a welcome reinforcement in the person of Davy Crockett, accompanied by some of his neighbors from Tennessee.

On February 23, 1836, Santa Anna, the dictator of Mexico, appeared before the fort and demanded its surrender. Travis answered with a shot from his cannon and a defiant hoisting of his flag. The Mexican leader had more than 4,000 men but he did not care to risk an assault so erected batteries and opened fire.

For eleven days the siege was continued with heavy losses for the Mexicans but without a single casualty among the defenders. In the meantime Travis' appeals for help brought to the Alamo Col. James Butler Bonham, who slipped through the lines of the besiegers, and a detachment of 32 men, led by Capt. J. W. Smith, which cut its way through.

Finally on March 6 Santa Anna ordered a grand assault by a picked force of 2,500 men. Two attacks were beaten back by the desperate Texans but the garrison, weakened by the long vigil and lack of food, could not hurl back the third attempt. The Mexicans swarmed over the walls and for the next few minutes there followed one of the most desperate hand-to-hand encounters ever fought on the American continent. When it ended only five of the 180 defenders were left alive and they were wounded, helpless prisoners. By command of Santa Anna they were killed at once.

But the sacrifice of Davy Crockett and his fellow heroes was not in vain, for the battle cry which swept the field at the decisive battle of San Jacinto, was "Remember the Alamo!"

On a monument in the state capital at Austin commemorating their deeds is this line: "Thermopylae had its messenger of defeat. The Alamo had none."

"Old Shotto's Bloody Rancho."

"Oh, we don't mind the marching. Nor the fighting do we fear; But we'll ne'er forget old Harney For bringing us to Pierrre. They say old Shotto built it, But we know it isn't so— For the man who built this bloody rancho Is reigning down below!"

So sang the veterans of Gen. W. S. Harney's Sioux expedition who spent the winter of 1855-56 there, and this "bloody rancho" which they were executing, was Fort Pierrre, South Dakota's most famous fort. An army legend asserts that it was founded by Peter the Hermit, survivor of the First crusade, who selected this place near the Bad Lands because of its indescribable dreariness and desolation.

More authentic history informs us, however, that it was built on the west bank of the Missouri about three miles above the mouth of the Teton river by Pierre Chouteau, Jr. (of the famous St. Louis Chouteaus), in 1830, and was occupied as a post of the American Fur company in 1832. From that time until 1855 it was the most important post of the A. F. C. in the upper Missouri country and was the center of the vast trade in buffalo robes with the Sioux.

In 1855 the United States bought Fort Pierrre for a military post, but abandoned it the next year and moved all its property to Fort Randall, about 160 miles down the Missouri. But even after the old post was abandoned, its name remained as a landmark for everybody in that region who still spoke of it as though it still existed.

From the day in 1894, when Lewis and Clark held their council with the Teton Sioux on this spot, it was visited every year for the next half century by a succession of noted travelers and explorers. Among them were George Catlin, the Indian painter, Prince Maximilian of Wied and Dr. Nicollet, who was accompanied by Lieut. John C. Fremont, as yet unknown to fame as "The Pathfinder."

The first religious services in South Dakota were held at Fort Pierrre in 1840 by Dr. Stephen R. Riggs.

In 1850 a second or new Fort Pierrre was built as a trading post about two miles above the site of the old fort. Although it never became so important as the older fort, around it grew up the settlement which became the city of Pierrre, South Dakota's capital.

CHAPTER XVII—Continued

Trevors was upon him again, but Lee slipped aside, even rolled over, managed to get to his feet. Again Trevors bore down upon him, a new leaping fire in his eyes. Again, though barely in time, Bud Lee slipped away from him. He drew Trevors' harsh laugh after him and Trevors' questing, eager fists. Lee put up his arm, his right arm, guarding his face, and drew away, back and back. Carson was almost whimpering, calling whiningly:

"Stand up to him, Bud! Oh, go get him, Buddie!"

Still up and down the room they went, Trevors rushing at Lee, Lee taking what blows he must, striking out but little seeking now only to pull himself together, to get his head clear of daze and dizziness.

"Run away, will you?" panted Trevors. "I've got you, d—n you. Got you right."

Lee didn't answer. He was thinking dully that Bayne Trevors was near telling the truth, that Bud Lee was almost beaten—almost. That was as far as a gentleman ever went—just to that desperate "almost beaten." Not quite. No! not quite. Never that.

Both men were nearly spent; Carson saw that while he cursed softly in his corner; Melvin saw it and watched for the end, wondering just how it would come. Trevors should swing for the point of the jaw, put all that was in him into a final, smashing blow, beat through an insufficient guard, do it now, quickly. For both Carson and Melvin saw another thing, a thing which both had sensed at the outset: Bud Lee was harder than Bayne Trevors. Lee, slipping away at every step was getting something back which had nearly gone from him; Trevors was breathing in noisy jerks; save for the vital fact that he now had two hands to Bud Lee's one, Trevors was showing more signs of weariness than Lee.

"Bud'll get him—somehow," whispered Carson. "Good old Bud. Somehow."

What Carson and Melvin sensed Trevors knew. He saw that Lee was having less trouble in eluding him now, that Lee's feet were quicker, lighter than his, that Lee was beginning to strike back viciously at him, and when the blow landed, Trevors' big body rocked, shot through with pain. There came to him the thought which was Melvin's, but it came in Trevors' way: Now, quickly, before Lee was ready for it, must come the end. So, for the third time that day Bayne Trevors, with much at stake, resorted to "what weapons God gave him, what weapons he could lay his mind to, his eyes to, his hands to"—his feet to. Resorting to the old trick which came up from South American ports in disreputable wind-jammers which is known to the San Francisco waterfront, he raised a heavy foot, striking for Lee's stomach, seeking with one low, horrible blow to double up his already handicapped antagonist in writhing pain on the floor.

"An' I gave my word!" bellowed Carson, the sweat on his own tortured brow. "Oh, my Gawd."

But just that one brief instant too late did Bayne Trevors lift his foot. For Bud Lee had expected this, never had forgotten it, had prayed within his soul that the man he fought would use it. Just by that fraction of time which has no name was he quicker than Trevors, and he knew it. Now, as he read the sinister purpose in Trevors' glaring eyes, as he glimpsed the raised foot as it left the floor, he lowered his own head, averted it ever so little, stooped—and his hand closed like locked iron about the calf of Trevors' leg. A stifled cry from the bulkier man, a little grunt of effort from Lee, Lee straining, heaving mightily, and Trevors went back, toppled, fought for his slipping balance, and fell. As he went down Lee was upon him, Lee's arm about his neck, Lee's weight flung upon him, Lee holding his body between a powerful pair of knees which rode him as they rode, daily some struggling Blue Lake colt.

Now Bud's left arm, defying the agony of a broken hand, was around him, Lee's legs were about the frantically fighting body, and at last Lee's right hand went its sure way to the thick, bare, pulsing throat. Trevors' right arm was caught at his side, held there by the body upon him. His left hand beat at Lee's face, struck and battered again only to come back like a steam-driven piston to hammer again. But Bud Lee's pain-racked body clung on, his thumb and fingers sank and sank deeper into the corded muscles of the heaving throat, crooked like talons, white and hard and relentless.

Trevors' eyes were terrible, filled with hatred, red-flecked with rage. He sought, with a great sudden heave, to roll over. But he could not shake off the legs which were like stubborn tentacles about him, could not free his throat of the tensing clutch. He tore at the wrist, smote again at Lee's head, but his own hand to Lee's throat.

In an instant his hand was back at the hand worrying him, but he was unable to drag it away.

His face went white, flamed red, grew purplish. His eyes bulged up at Lee's, his deep chest contracted spasmodically. Lee, summoning all of the force within him, drove thumb and fingers deeper.

"Got enough?" he panted. For the last time Trevors strained with him and they rolled like deathlocked mountain-lions. But still Lee's left arm was about Trevors' neck, his legs about the tossing body, his hand at Trevors' throat. Trevors' breath caught, failed him. . . .

Then and then only did a new look come into the bulging eyes. A look of more than fear, or utter, desperate terror. Trevors threw up his hand weakly, then let it fall so that it struck the floor heavily, a dead weight.

Lee's grip at the strangling throat relaxed. But he did not move his hand.

"Got enough?" he panted again. The answer came brokenly, weakly, almost inarticulate. But it did come and the men drawn close heard it:

"Yes."

"You'll get out of the country?"

"Yes."

Bud Lee drew back and rose, going to the door swiftly. He stooped for his hat and passed out. And as Bayne Trevors got unsteadily to his feet and sank slumping into the chair offered him, two big tears formed in his eyes and rolled down his cheeks. The first tears in many a year, the tears of a strong man broken for the first time in his life.

"Saw did it!" grunted Melvin. "Just saw, Carson."

"I'll stick around" an' see he moves on, Bud," Carson followed Lee to say, "Oh, he'll go. But I'll just tell him how the boys is headed this way by now an' it's tar an' feathers for him if he don't mosey right along. That's something he couldn't stand right now. An', Bud—"

He put out his hands and locked Lee's in a grip that made the sore fingers wince. Then, swinging upon the heel of his boot, he went back to collect a hundred dollars from Melvin and help Bayne Trevors shape his plans.

But Bud Lee did not wait. He was on his horse, swaying a little, an arm caught in a rude sling, glad to be out in the late sunlight.

"Fog along, little horse," he was saying dully. "Fog right along. She's waiting, little horse. Judith is waiting! Think of that. That's right—fog right along."

CHAPTER XVIII

Yes, Judith Was Waiting

At the old cabin above the lake Bud Lee dismounted. His hand in its rude sling was paining him terribly, demanding some sort of first-aid treatment. Tomorrow he could take it to a doctor; perhaps in an hour or so he could get Tripp to look to it; just now he must do what he could for it himself with hot water and strips torn from an old shirt.

Night had descended, serene with stars. He wondered if the boys were back yet from the lumber-camp. He had met them, as Carson had predicted he would, riding in a close-packed, silent, ominous group. He felt assured that they would find no work for them to do at the company's office, that Carson was right and Trevors would "be on his way." But he stopped at the bunk-house.

No, the boys hadn't come in yet. But there was a message for Lee, just received by the cook. It was from Greene, the forester, brief and to the point:

Greene had lost no time in finding the sheriff of the adjoining county at White Rock and in going with him to the cave. They had found Quinton. He was dead, the manner of his death clearly indicated. For he lay at the foot of the cliffs straight below the cave's mouth, his face terribly torn and scratched by a mad woman's nails, the mad woman herself lying huddled and still close beside him. He had allowed the escape of her captive; she had accused him after the two of them had gone back to the cavern, had thrown herself upon him, tearing at his face, and the two had fallen. Mother and son? Lee shuddered, hoping within his heart that Judith had been mistaken. It was too terrible.

But, such is youth, such is love, Bud Lee promptly forgot both Chris Quinton and Mad Ruth as he went through the hills to the house. He remembered how Marcia had flown once to Pollock Hampton when he had made a hero of himself, how again just today she had gone swiftly to him because he had made a fool of himself and because it seemed she loved him. In due time there was going to be a wedding at Blue Lake ranch. A wedding! Just one? Lee hurried on.

Yes, Judith was waiting for him. She was there in the living-room, curled up on a great couch, lifting her eyes expectantly as his step sounded on the veranda. A wonderfully gowned, transcendently lovely Judith; a Judith of bare white arms, round and warm and rich in their tender curves; a Judith softly, alluringly feminine even in the eyes of Bud Lee, no longer theorist; a Judith whose filmy gown clung lingeringly to her like a sun-shot mist, a Judith whose tender mouth was a red flower, whose eyes were Aphrodite's own, glorious, dawn-gray, soft with the light shining in them, the unhidden light of love for the man who came toward her swiftly; the Judith he had first held in his arms and kissed.

He came in quickly, his heart singing. The color suddenly ran up hot and vivid in the girl's cheeks. Standing over her he put out his hand. But she slipped her own hands behind her.

"Good evening, Mr. Lee," said Judith brightly. "Really, you have taken your time in making your first call. Won't you sit down?"

"No," said Bud Lee gravely. "I'll take mine standing, please!"

"Like a man to be shot at dawn?" cried Judith. "Dear me, Mr. Lee, that sounds so tragic. What, pray, are you taking?"

"A new job," said Lee. "I've come to tell you that just being horse-forn doesn't suit me any longer. What you need and need right away is a general manager. That's what I want to be, your general manager, Judith. For life!"

Judith laughed softly, happily. Her hands flew out to him like two little hawking birds, and she followed them—home.

"You'll find your work cut out for you, Mr. Lee," she told him. "It's the kind of work I want," answered Bud Lee.

Then suddenly her arms went about his neck and tears sprang into her eyes and she set her lips to the cut he had sought to cover with his hair, and took his sore, swathed hand tenderly into her own two hands, laying it against her cheek.

"Carson telephoned me," she whispered, her lips trembling all of a sudden. "He told me how Trevors fought . . . and how you fought! And he was half crying over the telephone, he was so proud of you. And I am proud of you! And—oh, Bud Lee, Bud Lee, I love you so!"

From without came the sound of the Blue Lake boys returning, Carson at their head. Riding close together they were singing, their voices floating through the night in an old cowboy song. Mrs. Simpson heard and ran out into the courtyard to listen. Marcia and Pollock Hampton, lost to all save each other in the shadows far down the veranda, listened, and Marcia clapped her hands. The voices were to be heard from afar, the strange voices of a score of men. The strange thing is that neither Judith nor Bud Lee heard; that neither had the vaguest consciousness just then that there were in all the world any other mortals than—Judith and Bud Lee.

The Young Men's Christian association was founded in England by Sir George Williams, a London merchant. Williams' organization grew out of meetings he held for prayer and Bible reading among his fellow workers in a dry-goods business in London, and the association was founded in 1844. On the occasion of its jubilee, its originator was knighted. Similar associations had been in existence in Scotland at a much earlier date. In 1824 David Naismith started the Glasgow Young Men's Society for Religious Improvement, a movement which spread to various parts of the United Kingdom, France and America. Later the name was changed to the Glasgow Young Men's Christian association.

LEGION PROUD OF THIS "GO-GETTER"

One incident in the military life of Peyton H. Hoge, Jr., one of the five national vice commanders of the American Legion, is significant. At one time early in 1918 he was ordered to be in four places at the same time.

This might be taken as merely an instance of the involved winding up of official red tape. It was not just a happen-so, either. It was a natural consequence. It was also a prophecy. The men who issued those orders knew that if any man could be in four places at one time it was Peyton H. Hoge, Jr., and they also knew that if any man would do anything he was ordered to do if it were humanly possible, it was this same jolly Kentuckian with the drawl and the sparkling eye. That, at least, is the explanation which appears most plausible to those who have been associated with him in the

Peyton H. Hoge, Jr.

American Legion and who have known his restless energy and his go-getting enthusiasm.

Hoge was a charter member of Jefferson post No. 15 of Louisville, Ky. He was elected chairman of the post investigation committee in 1920. He decided that the best antidote for Reds was a gigantic patriotic celebration and a public recalculation of the principles of America. A three-day demonstration was participated in by all citizens. More than 25,000 persons attended the dedication meeting on a Sunday night in November, 1920.

As a result of this work Mr. Hoge was appointed a member of the National American commission by Commander Franklin D'Olier, and is still a member. He compiled and distributed for Jefferson post the facts which caused German-American societies to disown the leadership and political power claimed by George Sylvester Viereck, editor of the Fatherland. He was chosen as a member of the committee to combat propaganda for extreme pacifism in colleges and churches.

The new national vice commander was born in Wilmington, N. C., January 26, 1889. At the age of ten years he moved with his parents to Louisville. He specialized in chemistry at Centre college. Since that time he has been engaged in selling life insurance. He was married to Blanche Weissinger Smith and they have two children.

Mr. Hoge was commissioned a captain of infantry on August 15, 1917. He landed in France in the fall of 1918. He was discharged from the service at Camp Jackson on April 5, 1919.

Hospital for Care of Tuberculous Veterans

It is not generally known that the American Legion is conducting one of the best hospitals for the care of tuberculous veterans in the country today. This institution is at Camp Custard, Battle Creek, Mich., and is operated by service men and women for service men and women. It is known as the Roosevelt American Legion hospital and the wonderful success it has attained is due in the main to the co-operation of the Legion posts and auxiliary units of Michigan. The valuation of the property holdings is placed at $1,250,000. The hospital admitted 200 patients for treatment during the fiscal year.

Eternal Punishment

A rich plumber who passed away and went where all plumbers go reported to the devil and was told to go ahead and install the new hot water system.

"All right," answered the plumber. "Give me a helper and I'll start in." "Oh, you'll have to do the work yourself," chuckled Satan. "You don't have a helper. That's the h—i of it." —American Legion Weekly.

THE ENDOWMENT FUND

"THE endowment fund of $5,000,000 which the American Legion is seeking in order to insure the proper care of disabled veterans of the war and orphaned children of veterans is necessary," declared National Commander James A. Drain, of the Legion, in an interview at national headquarters recently. "Experience has shown that. That is why the Legion has started its nationwide campaign for this fund."

"The fund will provide a yearly income," he continued, "estimated at $225,000. This fund will leave nothing to chance. Nothing must ever be left to chance when it comes to a question of the care of the disabled and the orphan."

"The Legion, you know, has used freely its own financial resources in this work. It has from time to time had gifts from groups and individuals. At times it has borrowed money. At other times it has been impossible to see the way clear for a month ahead. The work has gone forward, of course, but its financing can fairly be described only as 'hand to mouth.' Very clearly, such a policy is neither adequate, just nor economical. We cannot go on in that way. This fund will enable us to do the work with assurance that we shall have the means to perform what the Legion desires and seeks to do for these unfortunates."

VETERANS' BUREAU REVIEWING CASES

All cases of disabled World war veterans which were disallowed under terms of laws enacted prior to the Reed-Johnson bill of 1924 are being reviewed by the United States veterans' bureau, according to word received from Washington. This general review involves hundreds of thousands of cases. The review is being made in response to a suggestion presented by the national rehabilitation committee of the American Legion.

General Frank T. Hines, director of the bureau, has set up a special section of the bureau to review these cases. Special attention will be given to see if they are entitled to further consideration and action under the Reed-Johnson bill.

The review has already covered more than 60,000 such cases. Favorable action has been taken or is in contemplation in some 6,000 cases, ten per cent of the number reviewed. In 1,855 cases approval of awards for payment has already been granted.

Among the cases which had previously been disallowed are numerous death cases. Others are disability cases disallowed prior to the decentralization of the veterans' bureau in 1921. No communication or other information had been received concerning them since that time and they had been held inactive at the central office of the bureau at Washington.

When it is found in reviewing these cases that the claimant is entitled to further benefits, letters are at once sent to all addresses of record in an effort to learn the present whereabouts of the claimant. Upon receipt of information concerning him, the case is then sent for examination of the claimant and for final action to the veterans' bureau office in the claimant's own district.

Benefits have already been granted. In the cases on which favorable action has been taken upon review, under practically every new feature of the Reed-Johnson bill. Results so far achieved indicate that this general review will be highly successful and will remedy many injustices which had previously been worked on disabled veterans. It is pointed out that if not more than ten per cent of the cases are found to be entitled to favorable action under the Veterans' act of 1924 (the Reed-Johnson bill), much will have been accomplished in the interest of the disabled.

Oklahoma Veterans to Be in Home Hospitals

Oklahoma disabled veterans hereafter will be hospitalized in Oklahoma hospitals, according to James Hatcher, department commander of the American Legion. Mr. Hatcher returned recently from Washington where, with Ray Weems of the soldiers' relief commission, he had been in conference with Director Frank T. Hines of the veterans' bureau, on the mooted question, "Where shall a veteran be hospitalized?"

"The decision will set the precedent," say Legion officials, of hospitalizing veterans in or near their home state, and will strengthen the policy of making changes in their hospitalization.

Clinic to Aid Disabled

Complete medical examination by a clinic of the best doctors of Nebraska will be provided by the American Legion for all disabled former service men of Nebraska and the ten western counties of Iowa, who make claim to the veterans' bureau for compensation. After obtaining the medical evidence, the Legion will furnish a liaison man to plead the veteran's cause before the rating board. Municipal Judge Frank Dineen will represent the men before the rating board, working under the welfare committee of Omaha post, American Legion.

"Silence" Picture

Scene, Kensington gardens at eleven Armistice day. Two children and an Aberdeen terrier are playing with a ball. The girl, six years old, throws it to the boy, who is about a year younger, just as the silence gun goes.

The boy does not try to catch it and it rolls down the sloping pathway. The Aberdeen retrieves it for his young master, who is standing unaccountably still with his hat in his hand. Tired of waiting, he drops it and looks up motionless and rather puzzled. One fancies one sees a look of wonder come into his great brown eyes, a reflection, maybe, of that in his young master's. So the trio stand, paying not the least touching of the tributes London offered to the immortal dead.—London Post.

So-Called "Singing Sands"

Beaches which emit musical tones or other sounds when the sands are pressed under foot or struck together in a bag occur throughout the world, notably in the Peninsula or Sinai, on the great musical mountain of Jebel Nagous, near Colberg, in Pomerania, on the East Prussian coast, beaches on the Atlantic, on Wisconsin river (near Kilbourne City, Wis.), on the Mississippi opposite Carondelet and on the Pacific coast. Barking sands, where the sand is a mere squeak unless the sand is very dry, occurs in Hawaii, on the southwest coast of Kauai, in Africa (Liberia and West Crialand), Botany bay, New South Wales, and Browns River bay, Tasmania.

When a good intention begins to ravel out, nothing can save it.

LAXATIVES and cathartics provide temporary relief only. Their continued use leads to permanent injury. In time, says an eminent physician, an almost incalculable amount of harm is done by the use of pills, salts, mineral waters, castor oil and the like.

Physicians advise lubrication for Internal Cleanliness

Medical science has found at last in Lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless.

Take Nujol regularly and adopt the habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

WALTER P. CHRYSLER'S TRAFFIC TALKS

REASONABLE RULES FOR HIGHWAY SAFETY

The prize jaywalker.

IN A report to Secretary Hoover the Committee on Traffic Control of the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety recommends that parking should not be permitted where it will endanger or seriously impede moving traffic or prevent reasonable access to the sidewalk for loading or unloading of vehicles. This will prohibit the parking or stopping of cars on any part of the traveled part of a rural highway.

That a single cautionary signal made by extending the arm well out side the vehicle is recommended as preferable to a more complex code. That in cities pedestrians should be required to keep within the boundaries of designated safety zones and crossing places.

Berlin recently sent its traffic commissioner to America and after studying traffic control in various cities he returned to Germany to make use of what he learned. The new order in Germany provided among other things that automobiles should not turn around on streets of the first and second class nor park at the curb; that pedestrians should not jay-walk and that chauffeurs should not toot their horns too often. Berlin doesn't think much of the regulations and there is an interesting conflict going on at the present time between the traffic commissioners of Berlin and various organizations.

The motor vehicle conference committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce recommends that all drivers should be required to take out a license before operating a motor vehicle on the highways, that every applicant for such license should be required to pass an examination showing his mental, physical and moral qualifications.

It is a good sign when various agencies cooperate in solving the problems of motor vehicular transportation. As a community progresses in solving its transportation problems so it moves forward economically. It is to the interests of a community that steps be taken to make it easy for the motorist to drive a motor car and safe for the pedestrian to live where motor cars are numerous.

Don't park on a curve for any reason.

total of $28 cows, tested in the Maricopa County Cow Testing Association during the month of January made an average production of 183 pounds of milk containing 27 pounds of fat. The association cows produced a total of 2,466 pounds of fat for the month, which is equivalent to 28,082 pounds of 80 per cent butter. The average fat test for the month was 3.46.

The mixed grade Holstein, Jersey, and Guernsey herd of A. B. Davies is first among the herds of over 15 cows for the month, with an average production of 42.5 pounds of fat, while the Holstein herd of B. Coman and the Jersey herd of V. L. Wildermuth are second and third, with a production of 40.9 and 35.8 pounds of fat respectively.

The Jersey herd of F. L. Chesney, the Holstein herd of W. M. Painter & Son and the Ayrshire herd of L. A. Johnson are first, second, and third for the month among the herds under 15 cows, with a production of 49, 40, and 37.3 pounds of fat respectively.

All cows in milk were tested in the herds of W. M. Painter & Son, B. Coman and V. L. Wildermuth.

The Holstein cow, Clara 3d, in the herd of W. M. Painter & Son, is first for the month, with a production of 78.6 pounds of fat, while the Holstein cows Johanna and Birthday in the herd of B. Coman are second and third with a production of 68.6 and 67.8 pounds of fat respectively.

Alfalfa and Sudan grass make good summer pasture in the Salt River Valley. Plenty of succulent feed is essential for profitable milk production. It is time to begin planning for next summer's pasture.

OUTLAW HORSE AT BIG TUCSON RODEO, FEBRUARY 21-23

Tucson—Cowboy tradition declares that no horse ever lived that could not be ridden. But Cuff Burrell, owner of Little Jeff, California, snored outlaw gelding, now refutes the statement and backs his judgment with a cash offer to any bronco twister who will make a qualified ride on this horse during the Tucson Annual Rodeo, to be held in Tucson on February 21, 22, and 23.

In a letter received this morning from Mr. Burrell of Hanford, Calif., whose horses have been contracted for the rodeo, he informs the committee that Little Jeff, who heads his famous string of 25 broncos, would be used in Tucson for exhibition rides only. He states that it would not be fair to the contestant to use him in the bucking contest, owing to the fact that the cowboy who draws him would be forced to ride a horse far superior to the average run of bucking horses.

So confident is he of Little Jeff's ability that he has agreed to give any bronco rider $100 who will make a qualified ride any day of the contest. Horse to be ridden with association saddle and be judged according to association rules.

On the other hand, some of the cowboys who are already here for the contest say every horse is ridden some day, and many of them are ready and anxious to try for the $100 offer made by the gelding's owner. who not in school, will be one of the local men to try for the purse. Little Jeff, as his name would lead one to believe, is not a small horse, but a handsome bay, weighing 1450 pounds. He is without a doubt the world's greatest bucking horse today. During the past two years he has thrown 30 and disqualified two of the best bucking horse riders in the business, including one world's champion. However, this famous horse, like Jack Dempsey, will some day meet his master. Will it be in Tucson?

Mass Production Buying and Selling

There are three great economies resulting from the multiple operations of our Stores which assure large savings of money to consumers (to you):

Mass production (first) required because of our mass buying (second) and mass selling (third).

Each of these is an important factor in enabling us to provide you and the millions of people we serve throughout the United States, with needs for the person and home at prices that average far below those ordinarily asked.

These savings are continuous—not occasional!
