Burning Memory

As June had slipped by, so did July and August. On Blue Lake ranch life towed smoothly. Men were too busy with each day's work to sit into the lights prophesying trouble ahead. and in truth it seemed that if Bayne Prevors had ever actively opposed the niccess of the Sanford venture he had sy now accepted the role of inactivty forced upon him by circumstance. He was with the Western Lumber company, as director and district suserintendent, seemingly giving all his lynamic force to the legitimate aftairs of the company.

But there were those who placed no mith in the obvious. Bud Lee kept n touch with Rocky Bend and learned that Quinnion had not come back; that no one knew where he had gone. Quinnion's friends had also gone from Rocky Bend, like Quinsion leaving behind them no sign to show where they had gone.

Knowing Quinnion as he did, and naving his own conception of the sharacter of Bayne Trevors, Bud Lee sald to himself that too great a quiet portended strife to come. If Quinnion was the man to carry in his breast the bate that drove him to the murder of Judith's father, then he was the man te remember the humiliation he had suffered at Lee's hands, to remember and to strike back when the time was

He imagined her contempt of her lips to wed his; he pictured her scorn, her growing hatred. He told himself that he should go, rid the ranch of his presence, take his departure without a word with her. With that he whirled his horse, and was gone. Carson, with puckered brows, stared after him.

But orders were orders, and Carson though the heart was sore, barked out his commands to his herders to turn the cattle back toward the lower fields. He had been converted to the new way, he had grown to dream of the fat prices his cow brutes would fetch in the winter market, he knew that prices now were rock-bottom low, that Doan, Rockwell & Haight were close buyers who before now had cut the throat of the Blue Lake ranch in sacrifice sales when Bayne Trevors ran the outfit.

Long ago he offended Judith, and she had waited until now to repay his rude insult with this cool little slap in the face. She had not consulted him, she had not mentioned a sale to him, and now she sent Hampton and did not even come to him with a word of explanation. It was quite as if she had said:

"You are just a servant of mine,

> "I'll not keep her walting," answered Lee quietly. And with a quick touch of the spur he whirled his horse straight to the plateau.

> "Round 'em up, Tommy," he said sharply. "Every d-n hoof of them. They go back to the corrals."

> Though quick questions surged up in Tommy's brain, none of them was asked just yet, for he had seen the look on Lee's face.

> It was early in the afternoon when Hampton carried his messages to Carson and Lee. It was after dark when Lee, his work done, his heart still sore and heavy, came into the men's bunkhouse. It was very still, though close to a dozen men were in the room. Lee's eyes found Carson and he guessed the reason for the silence. Carson was in a towering rage that flamed red-hot in his eyes; under the spell of his dominating emotion, the

Junior Farmers Need Club Leaders

That club leadership must be increased properly to train the boys and girls of the nation who decide to remain on farms and become the bulwark of American agriculture is shown in a survey of the club work of the junior farmers just completed by Benjamin H. Darrow, director of the boys' and girls' club work of the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation.

According to the report of the Foundation, based on a count by the Department of Agriculture, 722,408 projects were begon in 1923 by 459,074 boys and girls, a number which is less than 6 per cent of the farm youth of the naof the enrolled girls finished their projects, while only 52.9 per cent of the boys completed theirs. The high point reached in 1918, as shown by accompanying chart, was due to the expansion of club work in connection with the slogan of the day: "Food will win the war." After the crisis was over there was retrenchment and club work suffered.

"Many of the 8,000,000 bays and girls engaged in club work hape to leave the farm," said Darrow, "but 80 per cent of them will remain in the country, experience has shown. All who stay on the farm should have the benefit of the inspiration and training club work affords. #### CARE FOR ORPHANS AND DISABLED MEN

The American Legion will raise a fund of $5,000,000 or more for or phaned children of the World war and indigent and disabled former service men in a nation-wide campaign to be launched soon, it was announced at national headquarters of the Legion recently. President Coolidge, at the July 24—Palmer Cox. author of request of National Commander James "Brownie" stories for children. A. Drain of the Legion, accepted the honorary chairmanship of the Legion's national committee to raise the fund. The endowment fund program was given authorization by the sixth national convention of the Legion at St. Paul, pending approval of the plan by the finance committee, which was given at a meeting of the committee at national headquarters.

The urgent need of raising the fund Immediately was pointed out by Mark T. McKee, Detroit, Mich., who is a member of the Legion's child welfare committee. He declared that the existing facilities of the Legion for caring for the orphaned and helpless children of former service men who were killed or died as a result of their war service are overcrowded. At this time the Legion maintains a children's billet at Otter Lake, Mich., and has one under construction at Independence,

"There are 5,000 children of dead World war veterans who need care right now," Mr. McKee said, "out of a total of 35,000 war walfs. As time goes on there will be more. These are other day a man left four children at the veterans' bureau, children of a deceased war veteran, with a request that they be cared for. The bureau turned the children over to us. Somepresent facilities will stand for no expansion." In referring to the proposed fund, Commander Drain declared: "The Legion's endowment fund campaign will be a success; we will raise more than the set amount and the campaign will Oct. 7-Charles L. Hutchinson, Chi- have a greatly beneficial effect upon the morale of the Legion and increase our membership for the coming year to a million members. We must look close to home and see the great underlying misery caused by the great conflict. We must help the disabled man, He is our first obligation and he needs us now. The American Legion must keep faith with its fallen comrades by seeing that the helpless children are not deprived of the opportunities that thers were killed fighting for their country. 'Bind up the wounds of the disabled and care for the widows and

The Legion will petition congress to make a technical change in the recently passed adjusted compensation act to the effect that former service persons may allot their compensation congress, the money to be used for child welfare and disabled veteran care. The Legion would use such a fund toward their endowment program if congress sanctions the proposal, Le gion officials declared.

From School Grounds

When the local school board proposed that captured war trophles presented to the city of Montclair, N. J. Michael Gavrilovich, Yugo-Slavian in 1920 by the government be removed from the school grounds as "unfit objects for the children to see," American Legionnaires voiced objection to the proposal to city commissioners, declaring: "These trophles were pre-Nov. 9-Henry Cabot Lodge, United sented to Montclair in memory of 69 Montclair men who fell on the battlefields of France; they are a lesson in patriotism to the school children who pass them daily. If these trophles are removed, remove the busts of Washington and Lincoln from the schools and take down the flag that waves above them." The commission ordered the trophies left on the school grounds.

Proper Use and Honor to Flag to Be Urged

Defenders of the flag in '64 and '17 will introduce a bill in the next session of the legislature of Connecticut making compulsory the teaching of the proper use and respect of that flag, it was revealed when representatives from both the American Legion post and the G. A. R. post met and framed a bill to that effect. A resolution concerning the bill was passed at the last state convention of the Legion which extended an invitation to their venerable comrades to include their sentiments in the flag etiquette legislation.

Where "The Man Without a Country" Originated.

Fort Adams, in Wilkinson county, Mississippi, deserves a place among the historic forts of the United States because it gave to us the greatest story on patriotism ever written-Edward Everett Hale's "The Man Without a Country." It was from a letter written by Gen. James Wilkinson, commander in chief of the American army in the early days of the republic, at Fort Adams, that Hale got the name Philip Nolan for the hero of his story and many of the scenes in the book are laid in and about Fort Adams.

Although Hale's story is purely fiction, there was a real Philip Nolan, who was in fact a "man without a country" but not, as Hale wrote it. because he cursed the name of his native land. This real Philip Nolan was an Irish political refugee who had not been in his adopted country long before he was joining Aaron Burr in a conspiracy against it and eventually was killed by the Spanish governor of

The site of Fort Adams has long been a historic one. . The first white man to visit it was Father Davion, a Frenchman, who erected a cross there and called it Roche a Davion. It was later called Loftus Heights, after a British major who with 400 men was ambushed there by the Tunica Indians

During President John Adams' administration the government bought this site from Francis Jones, who held it under a Spanish grant, and built there Fort Adams, named in honor of the President. There Lieut. Meriweather Lewis was stationed for a while before going to the capital to become President Jefferson's secretary and from there Governor Claiborne and General Wilkinson started for New Orleans for the formal ceremony of receiving the Louisiana Pur-

In its early years Fort Adams was one of the most important military posts in the Middle West. It was at this fort that General Wilkinson negotlated with the Indians for opening a road from the fort through Natchez to Nashville and that part of the road between Natchez and Nashville became the famous "Natchez Trace."

There is a good story told about one of General Wilkinson's subordinates at the fort. The general had lost his queue and ordered all of his officers to have theirs cut off. Maj. Richard Butler not only refused, but told Doctor Carmichael, the post surgeon, that in case of his death he wished to have a hole bored in his coffin and his queue pulled through it so that the general would know that he defied him even in death!

Grant's "Unconditional Surrender" Note.

"No terms except an unconditional and immediate surrender can be accepted. I propose to move immediately upon your works," That laconic dispatch is famous in American history, Written to Gen. Simon Bollvar Buckner, the Confederate commander at Fort Donelson, Tenn., by Gen. U. S. Grant on February 16, 1862, it gave to the Union commander the nickname of "Unconditional Surrender" Grant.

At the opening of the Civil war the Confederates built Fort Donelson on the Cumberland river and Fort Henry on the Tennessee to protect Nashville, the very heart of the Confederacy, from an invasion from the north. Erected on a hill 120 feet above the river, surrounded by two and a half miles of rifle pits and protected on the river side by three great batteries, Fort Donelson with its garrison of 18,-000 men was one of the most important posts in the Mississippi valley.

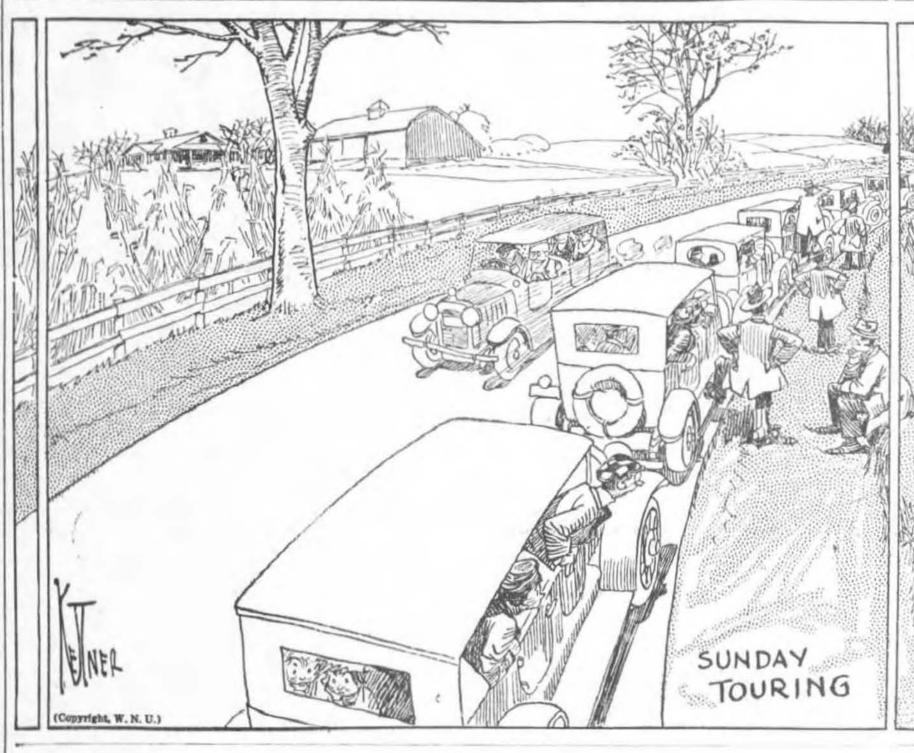

On February 6 Fort Henry fell before the cannon of Commodore Foote's flotilla of gunboats, but when that commander moved to attack Fort Donelson he was speedily repulsed. Meanwhile General Grant had moved against Donelson and for three days a flerce battle raged during which each army lost more than 2,000 men. On February 15 the garrison tried to cut its way through Grant's lines but was driven back into its stronghold.

The next day Buckner sent a message under a white flag asking Grant what terms he would give if the Confederates gave up the fort. Grant's historic reply was the result. When Fort Ponelson surrendered the first great Union victory of the war was won and 14,500 grayjackets marched out and laid down their arms, the largest number of men ever captured up to that time in any battle on the American continent. The victors also took possession of 57 pieces of artillery, although one great prize in the persons of Generals Floyd, Pillow and Nathan Redford Forrest, the dashing cavalry leader, slipped through their hands when these officers escaped across the river.

MAKING GOOD IN A SMALL TOWN

Real Stories About Real Girls

to a common little garden-variety cur, however dear to her heart a "houn' dawg" may be, the girl who raises dogs professionally cannot afford to select unpopular and too-cheap anilarge proportions.

"Start with the breed that sells," Shep, because blue-blooded varieties sell better. Buy a brood matron about one year old, since at this age the dog is nearly full-grown, and you can tell just how desirable a type she is."

The novice, in selecting a mother on which she is planning. Occasionally it is possible to get a brood matron free of charge, by communicating with breeders in the vicinity who have large kennels; for such breeders often have more broad females than they can properly keep, and are glad to part with one, if it is to be well caredfor, with the understanding that the offspring will be shared.

Boston terriers, toy Spaniels, Pomprices. The Pomeranian is one of the Star most widely kept as a toy, and it is bardler and more active than are most small dogs. I'ekinese seem to be fashonable as a "sleeve" dog. The toy eyes and long, wavy coats, are especially appealing.

Whatever the chosen breed, if the of-doors, kennels, rain-proof and wellventilated, without being draughty. should be provided. Plenty of exercise is a necessity for every dog. But exercising the animals should not be left to a mere caretaker. If a girl is unable personally to look after this part of the handling of her dogs, she should not go into the business.

On a small scale, dog-ratsing may be carried on in an ordinary back yard, but the girl who wants to engage in it extensively should have plenty of space. Her town should be, preferably, within commuting distance of a large city, where there are plenty of private customers, as well as pet shops through which her dogs can be annoled.

The fundamental thing is to have good dogs to sell. Admirable as is the sentiment, "They've got to quit kicking my dog around," it does make a decided difference if "he is a hound" when it comes to marketability,

THE PEANUT LADY

COME girls not only think that the "devil made the small town," but that he was in a particularly vicious mood when he made their particular small town. The "peanut lady" of a small village, settled snugly in the hills of New York state, however, didn't think that.

"I didn't think, as many people do that even a nearby town is better than the one in which you've alway. Hved; or that it's a handleap to work in the place where everybody calls you by your first name," she explained, "In fact, It's an advantage to be known; if I were to start my peanut industry all over again, I'd start it right here in the little old town where I was

This woman prepares her product right on her own premises. She made the nuts, in the first place, in her arge shn-lit kitchen-nud ran righ round the corner to leave the few sacks at the drug store. Now, since the public has tasted and approved. and the fame of her nuts is assured and their demand immense, she works in a big, rambling shed she has had constructed, right in her own hig back yard, for the purpose. She employs a large number of women workers and she no longer runs 'round the corner with her nuts-she sends them forth a ton a day.

Now, making good in a large way in a little town isn't easy. But the peanut business is a profitable one. particularly if the prospective "pegnot lady" is willing to stay in "her own back yard," or at least in her own home town. It's an asset to her to be known, and to have people realize that her peanuts are sure to be clean. pure and home-made.

Peanuts are cheap; that's one resson why the profit on them is good, Some day she may have to build a factory for her "strictly home-made nuts," but there's time for that after she wins the title of "The Million Dollar Pennut Lady,"

NEW YORK'S INSTRUCTIONS TO MOTORISTS

New York City has the most serious traffic problems in the world. Her chief instructions to motorists should be of value everywhere: 1. Study regulations for street traffic.

2. Before leaving the garage examine brakes, and see that car is in running condition. See that lights are in good condition.
3. Learn hand and directional signals.

4. Don't try to sutguess the other fellow; a wrong guess may mean

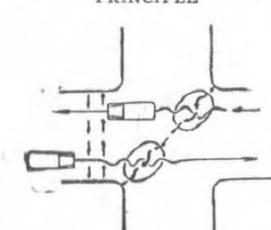

Avoid left turns as much as possible.

Don't cut in or out of traffic; keep in a line. Cross grade crossings in second speed to avoid stalling. Slippery pavements are dangerous; drive slowly, use chains.
 Remember that pedestrians have rights in the street.

WHERE ACCIDENTS OCCUR Most accidents occur at street intersections. Approximately 68 per cent of traffic in Eastern cities turns from one street into another inside or to the left of the center of the intersection, showing that traffic will follow the lines of least resistance despite 'all regulations. At street intersections a short left-hand turn, which can be made without reducing speed, is a course of least resistance, but gets on the wrong side of the two streets and unexpectedly intersects all other traffic and pedestrians at an acute and dangerous angle.

Street intersection accidents can be greatly curtailed by correctly placed obstructions which make the proper course the only convenient onc. and the one of least resistance. Then the regulations and the driving inclination are in harmony. These obstructions must be signalized; for both signals and obstructions must be used to get the best results.

ILLUSTRATING A TRAFFIC PRINCIPLE

TRAFFIC IN LONDON

In New York City there is a meter vehicle for every seven persons while in London there is one for every 75. London's problem is to get rid of its horse-drawn vehicles which seriously slow up motor traffic.

Lendon has not yet come to oneway streets and synchronized troffic. When tax burdens are lightened, the English people will undoubtedly buy cars like the Americans do. Good four-wheel brakes are of great use in England because of high hedges along highways, which prevent the motorist from seeing around the slightest of curves. There are more than eighteen mil-This principle—that if traffic meets lion motor cars in the world and more at a right angle there is no confusion than fifteen million of these are in -is illustrated by the safety of those the United States. The Accident Statistics Committee of the Public Safety Council of the National Safety Council, after an exhaustive study of traffic, concludes that traffic accidents are due to general conditions such as carelessness lack of traffic discipline, and to conditions, local to troublesome points which usually invite accidents.

CHART ACCIDENTS

The only way to correct accidents is to find out where they occur and why. Cities know their accident points, but how many accidents and what caused them is rarely recorded

TRAFFIC CONFUSION

If traffic meets at a right angle there is no confusion. If it intersects at an acute angle, as shown by diagram, the confusion area multiplie as the angle and speed increase.

(President Greer College of Antomotive Engineering)

The cost of building the average private garage exceeds one thousand dollars, hence it cannot be called a cheap structure. The man spending a thousand dollars would give gustained and serious thought to his heating problem for there are at least three freezing cold months in every year.

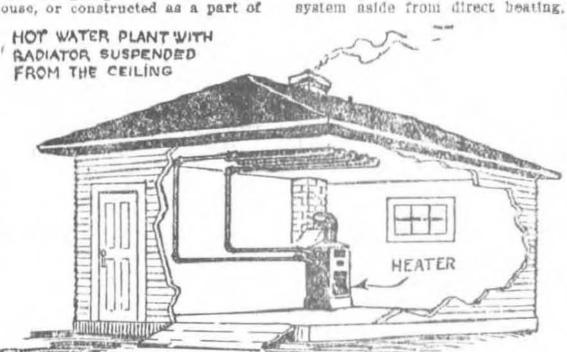

Will you use your car all winter, that is, more or less continnally, or will you use it but a part of the cold months-say on bright, clear Sundays? Is your garage located close to the house or is it set back so far from the house that it must have individual heating apparatus?

If the garage is close to the house, or constructed as a part of ous, as to also carbon monexide of the exhaust, this ventilation is especially important, for in the cold menths the garage would be kept closed even when working on the car. Hot air then should have double consideration and in a general way it is the lowest priced the house, the heating problem is a matter of simple connections running from the house heating system, and the necessary radiators, etc But if the garage is a separate unit-quite a distance from the house, why then it leaves only the internal unit.

Insurance regulations are very strict against any open flame or open heater being in the same compartment with gasoline or oils. Consequently, one must figure on a garage heater that will not interfere with insurance companies'
