PULLING TOGETHER

Two fool jackasses—say, get this dope—
Were tied together with one piece of rope.
Said one to the other: "You come my way,
While I take a nibble from this new mown hay."

"I won't," said the other, "you come with me,
For I, too, have some hay, you see."
So they got nowhere, just pawed up the dirt;

And, oh, by golly! that rope did hurt.
Then they fagged about, these stubborn mules,

And said: "We're acting like human fools.
Let's pull together, I'll go your way."

"Then come with me and we'll both eat hay."
Well, they ate their hay, and liked it, too.

As the sun went down they were heard to say:
"Ah! this is the end of a perfect day!" —Anon.

GREATER WEST VISUALIZED

The encouragement of industrial development in the west is receiving very stimulating support. Executives of operating industries realize that the future success of their business depends upon the part they play in this great forward movement.

George Pepperdine, president of the Western Auto Supply Company, in a recent address, said that "if it were possible for one to look into the future of the west and see the actual conditions and happenings of a few generations hence, he would have a vision of a great agricultural, manufacturing and industrial center with several times its present population. The picture would show a series of great cities located in positions to serve commercially about two-thirds of the world's population living in nations bordering on the Pacific, and whose needs and purchasing power are rapidly increasing."

"As a background to the picture he would observe the richest and most powerful nation on earth, with its superior strength in gold, silver, and other metals, petroleum, agricultural products, manufactured goods, raw materials, transportation systems, hydroelectric power, and, above all, a nation the most advanced intellectually—developed under our system of political freedom and religious liberty. He would observe harbors which are rapidly becoming the gateways to the world across the great Pacific ocean. "It is, therefore, to everyone's advantage to think and study a little on the future of far western America."

"HOW THE KINGDOM OF ISRAEL WAS WRECKED"

The California Tax Digest, published monthly under the direction of Dr. Milbank Johnson in the interest of taxpayers, in its May issue, contains a remarkable article by James Gregory, a Tacoma, Wash., manufacturer. The article is entitled: "How the Kingdom of Israel Was Wrecked." As a preface, Dr. Johnson says:

"History reveals the downfall of all governments in the past has been preceded by an era of excessive taxation; people have toiled long ages under insult, oppression and the burden of special privilege; but whenever taxation has become so extortionate as to take from them the natural fruits of their own labor, they have eventually risen and spoken their minds in no uncertain terms."

In succeeding paragraphs, Mr. Gregory says:

"Solomon was crowned king of Israel in 1015 B. C. His reign was characterized by exceeding brilliant and great building enterprises. He laid upon the people a very heavy burden of taxation—tribute it was called in those days."

"In 975 B. C. his son, Rehoboam, ascended the throne. The continuance by Rehoboam of excessive and even increased taxation wrecked the government."

Mr. Gregory's article quotes the Bible, showing the activities carried on by Solomon, and the immense

FROM PALETTE TO MORTAR BOARD

Young women artists turn from their jars of color and paint brushes to assist plasterers in setting ornaments in place atop huge pylons which adorn the main entrances to the Palace of Agriculture and Food Products, of the vast exhibition buildings which form a part of the great Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition being staged in Philadelphia from June 1 to December 1 to celebrate the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Climbing ladders and walking along rickety scaffolds is nothing new to these young ladies, but each time they do it they get a thrill.

amount of the people's tax money which he spent lavishly in gratifying his own desires. "And Solomon had 1400 chariots and 12,000 horsemen, and in other ways exhibited a disposition of liberal expenditure, even to the extent that he had 700 wives."

When Rehoboam ascended the throne he heaped heavier taxes upon the people.

"The rest of the story is sad, indeed. Whereas, King Rehoboam might have had a loyal people, willingly supporting the government upon a basis of reasonable expenditure and reasonable progress, they turned from such loyalty and the kingdom was disrupted."

"There is nothing mysterious or hard to understand in this Bible story, if we apply to our own affairs the principles and events and the public policies which characterized the reigns of Solomon and Rehoboam. The people—once aroused to a consciousness that their property was being taken from them, and the normal fruits of their labors devoted to unnecessary public uses, sounded the knell of doom for public officials who had brought to pass such a deplorable fiscal and uneconomic situation. "And so there is a lesson for public officials in the first Book of Kings."

ASCERTAIN THE FACTS, OUTLAW WAR

In a prominent magazine of recent issue, Owen D. Young outlines the ideals and aims of the Walter Hines Page School of International Relations, which is being founded at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore. In part, he says:

"Once you arm the public with facts, the area of each international dispute narrows down within limits that readily suggest peaceful means of settlement."

"A great reservoir of facts on subjects that cause irritation between nations could be assembled and placed at the disposal of the public as well as those who have to deal with those problems in the administrative field."

"I believe it is possible to establish an institution for fact finding. There are no higher credentials than the truth. Such a school should achieve three things:

"1. Develop a science of international relations;
"2. Ascertain the facts so far as they can be found in any particular problem;

"3. Produce a continually growing body of men trained in that science and available for service in the fields of education, government and business."

"Evenually there should be at least five or six such schools, preferably 10 or 12, in as many different countries."

"People inflamed by fear or injustice, no matter how groundless their information, will still fight, even though they hate war. We must have facts, localize the problems, and solve them while they yet remain in the narrow area of their origin."

RELIGION SHOULD BE KEPT OUT OF GOVERNMENT

There are at present four, more or less drastic Sunday closing bills befor the national legislature. These bills are intended to penalize the residents of the District of Columbia for carrying on their regular work or employment on what those who drafted the bills call "the Lord's day, commonly called Sunday."

It has been openly stated by the proponents of the measures that these bills are a model and they hope to have Congress enact them for Washington and thus set a pace for the entire country.

Determined delegations representing the Lord's Day Alliance and other blue law groups have gone before the congressional committee having the measure in charge and have urged their passage. Their arguments have all been from a religious standpoint. This leads one to wonder just how much regard these perhaps well-meaning but certainly short-sighted people have for the national Constitution. Have they forgotten the First Amendment: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

Sunday is an establishment of religion. No informed person questions that. Well, then, Congress is forbidden to legislate regarding it. Religious people should have a regard for the fundamental law of the land. The enactment of a Sunday law is a movement toward a union of church and state. It is at least an appeal from the church to the state for assistance to enforce one of its dogmas.

The Supreme Court of Ohio once said:

"When Christianity asks the aid of government beyond mere impartial protection, it disowns itself. Its essential interests lie beyond the reach and range of human governments. United with government, religion never rises above the merest superstition; united with religion, government never rises above the merest despotism; and all history shows us that the more widely and completely they are separated, the better it is for both."

UNIFORM TRAFFIC REGULATIONS FOR ALL THE WEST

Sunset Magazine advocates a public safety conference in which all the western states would participate for June issue of Sunset reads as follows: the purpose of drafting a uniform set of all-western traffic regulations.

An editorial on this subject in the

The California Public Safety Conference has made as its chief objective for 1926 the establishment of uniform traffic regulations in all communities of the state. This is something needed not only by California but by every state west of the Rockies. Traffic regulations should be uniform, not only in the various cities of each state but also in the neighboring states. Traffic problems are identical in the different western states. What Sunset would like to see is a public safety conference in which all of the western states would participate for the purpose of drafting a uniform set of all-western traffic regulations.

There has been entirely too much of halting and trapping of motorists by local authorities, out to catch fees or to fill the local treasuries with proceeds of fines, at the expense of the visiting motorist. Sunset has no plea for the reckless driver who screeches through the small towns, endangering lives and frightening pedestrians. He ought to be "pinched," and not only fined but jailed as well. What does make us hot under the collar, though, is a lot of home-made, antiquated regulations, administered by some local highwayman wearing a constable's star and out to make a killing. Uniform regulations, applying to all state-built highways, would put an end to that.

LEGION AND POLITICE

Attention of all post commanders within the state of Arizona has been called to Article II, Section 2, of the National Constitution of the order, which follows:

"The American Legion shall be absolutely non-political and shall not be used for the dissemination of partisan principles nor for the promotion of the candidacy of any person seeking public office or preferment. No candidate for or incumbent of a remunerative public office shall hold any office in The American Legion or in any department or post thereof."

The above provision was interpreted by resolution and unanimously passed at the sixth annual convention held at St. Paul, September 15 to 19, 1924, as follows:

"Reaffirming that The American Legion is non-political in character and expressing the sense that the National Constitution of The American Legion prohibits all officers, employees or representatives of the national, departmental and post organizations from taking any part whatsoever in the affairs of a candidate for political office, and calling upon the national officers and the national executive committee of the American Legion to be vigilant in preventing the violation of such non-political character."

THREE ACRES DISHES; ¼ MILE FOR A PIE

Drying three acres of dishes a year, walking a quarter of a mile to bake a lemon pie, and pumping 15 tons of water in a year are some of the domestic feats performed by the average rural housewife who does not follow good methods of home management. Recognizing this as a condition which can be improved, workers at the annual Western States Extension Conference held last winter emphasized the need of giving more attention to home management.

Without a water system in her house the rural housewife, they say, carries an average of 20 tons of water a year and travels 200,000 steps in doing it. It requires 20 days' union time to carry the water in and 10 days to carry out the waste water, or a total of 30 days a year spent in crarrying water. Ten days' work could be saved, say the extension workers, by having a drain to carry the water out, even though a complete water system were not installed.

A dish drainer eliminates drying about three acres of dishes a year; experiments have shown that the housewife can save one and one-half hours a day in doing the dishes. A dish drainer, wheel tray, and similar conveniences will save this time and give the housewife more time for rest, reading, or other pleasures.

Scientific experiments have proved that three-fourths of the steps taken in preparing three meals a day can be saved by having supplies and utensils grouped conveniently. To walk a quarter of a mile in baking a pie is not uncommon. One Montana woman, by wearing the pedometer before and after her kitchen was remodeled, found that she saved 1½ miles of walking each day in doing her regular kitchen tasks; by more convenient grouping she also saved one and a half hours of time daily.

In future extension programs attention will be given to two major problems of home management—the use of the housewife's time and energy and the management of income and material resources. "The dominant idea in the home-management program," says the United States Department of Agriculture, "is to encourage farm families to make the most of what they have; the stimulation of interest in the constant improvement of the farm home and making possible sufficient leisure for recreation, intellectual development, and out-of-the-home interests."

A Recommendation

We are taking the liberty of reprinting a letter received from a transient customer:

"Army Store,
Nogales, Ariz.
Gentlemen:

Whilst in Nogales last September I bought a pair of shoes from you with a composition sole, moccasin style toe, and I would like to get two pairs for my partner, size 10 of the same shoe. I do not remember the name of the shoe, but these shoes are so good that you will no doubt know which I mean. I've worn them since September in rough mining work, and that is almost eight months; they are still good for another few months. You can either send them C. O. D. Express or by someone coming down here.

"Yours truly,
