HIGH COST OF REACHING VOTERS

The following editorial from the San Francisco Chronicle is a fair statement of the expense of conducting a modern primary campaign:

"Twenty-two cents is a fair average cost of appealing to the individual voter. Given 2,500,000 voters, as there are in Illinois, that means $550,000 as the cost of legitimately addressing the voters in one campaign. That is why it is figured out by Allen F. Moore, campaign manager for Frank I. Smith, who won the Republican nomination for senator from Illinois.

"Ask any one who has ever had any experience in conducting any kind of a campaign where a large number of individuals had to be reached. The amount of money that may be spent legitimately is, in a large state, enormous if the campaign is complete.

"What will twenty-two cents do? A circular letter addressed to each voter in the state costs from 5 to 8 cents apiece, according to the size and number of enclosures. Would the candidate be satisfied with firing one postal volley? If not, he must repeat the expenditure. And then there is the expense of halls hired, of brass bands, campaign buttons, clerical workers, publicity men, billboard and other forms of advertising, transportation and getting on the air. It all mounts up.

"When money is so used legitimately it is not the spending of it that is vicious. The vicious element is the system which makes it impossible for any man to make an intensive campaign before a large number of voters without spending a lot of money. That is one of the weaknesses of the primary system. It needs to be cured or the sentiment of the public is likely to be turned back to the convention system as a lesser evil."

Paternalism is a python skinning and swallowing our free institutions in the shining jaws of officialism.

"State, federal, city and county now maintain official bureaus to merely record the birth of a child, and draw salaries for doing it. The latest wrinkle is a birth certificate mailed from the department of commerce, bureau of census. The citizen is warned of its great importance in all future affairs of life.

We are following in the wake of the most highly paternalistic country in the world. Germany was backed by militarism and officialism that kept a record of the individual from the cradle to the grave.

How far the children's bureau of the census under the department of commerce will carry its supervision of the family no one knows.

The history of nations shows that the python of self-extending officialism grows by what it feeds on. Is it crushing the free, independent citizenship of our country in its shining folds?

WILL THE FARMERS HELP?

To combat the ever-growing waste by fire on farms of our country, the agricultural committee of the National Fire Waste Council was organized July 14.

Farm fire losses aggregate some $155,000,000 a year, to say nothing of the vast economic wastage which is a by-product of these losses. Professor G. I. Christie, at whose instigation the agricultural committee was appointed, says:

"Individual action by farmers is the chief solution of the fire problem on our farms and practically the only solution unless inventions and developments make fire fighting apparatus more useful than they now are with the sparse settlement and limited water supplies of the country districts. Farmers should realize that they are paying an enormous tax annually through this loss and that they have it within their power to reduce the amount of this tax considerably. It is important that their attention be called to methods that they can use to prevent a large part of this enormous destruction. Some good work has already been done along this line by insurance companies and others, but that the present work is not adequate is shown by the fact that the loss goes on in increasing volume."

IS THE BOY TO BLAME?

Said the son to the father: "I would like a new aluminum finished roadster. I need three new suits of clothes, a new set of golf clubs, some new sports shoes, a couple of bats and a new fishing outfit to go on my vacation."

"Sure," said the father, "go downtown and buy these things and charge them to me."

The following month the bills came in together with a few others, which were necessary to round out the boy's equipment for his holiday. The father raised the roof with his complaints. Naturally he got no sympathy, as the wise ones said it was his own fault for encouraging his family in such extravagance.

Along comes an election, and candidates for office or proponents of special measures tell us, as taxpayers, that they would like a few thousand dollars for this office, a million or two for a new commission, ten million or a hundred million for some state enterprise, a few more motor cars for that bureau and dozens of extra jobs to pay political debts, not to mention several hundred new laws to be passed by the state legislature.

We say, "Sure, that's all right," and vote for the program. A year later the tax bill comes in and then we raise the roof about the increasing cost of government.

But do we deserve any sympathy? Are we any different from the indulgent father?

GRASS

(Written by the late John J. Ingalls, U. S. Senator from Kansas.)

Next in importance to the divine profusion of water, light, and air, those three physical facts which render existence possible, may be reckoned the universal beneficence of grass. Lying in the sunshine among the buttercups and dandelions of May, scarcely higher in intelligence than those minute tenants of that mimic wilderness, our earliest recollections are of grass, and when the fitful fever is ended, and the foolish wrangle of the market and the forum is closed, grass falls over the sea which our descent into the bosom of the earth has made, and the carpet of the infant becomes the blanket of the dead.

Grass is the forgiveness of nature—her constant benediction. Fields trampled with battle, saturated with blood, torn with ruts of cannon, grow green again with grass, and carnage is forgotten. Streets abandoned by traffic become grass grown, like charred lanes, and are obliterated. Forests decay, harvests perish, flowers vanish, but grass is immortal. Belieged by the sullen hosts of winter it withdraws into the impregnable fortress of its subterranean vitality and emerges upon the solicitation of spring. Sown by winds, by wandering birds, propagated by the subtle horticulture of the elements which are its ministers and servants, it softens the rude outlines of the world. It invades the solitude of deserts, climbs the inaccessible slopes and pinnacles of mountains, and modifies the history, character, and destiny of nations. Unobtrusive and patient, it has immortal vigor and aggression. Banished from the thoroughfares and fields, it bides its time to return, and when the vigilance is relaxed or the dynasty has perished it silently resumes the throne from which it has been expelled but which it never abdicates. It bears no blazonry of bloom to charm the senses with fragrance or splendor, but its homely hue is more enchanting than the lily or the rose. It yields no fruit in earth or air, yet should its harvest fail for a single year famine would depopulate the world.

THE REASON WE PROSPER

America is on the highest plane of living the world has ever known. The wants of the people are enormous, and to supply those wants, industry and business all around the circle are active.

The fundamental cause of our prosperity has not been the activity of any one industry or group of industries, but the great increase of per capita production which has made it possible for each worker to share in a larger way in the return from industry (high wages and steady employment) and thus maintained consumption on a level equal even to the higher level of production. This general state of well-being, together with the growing diversification of industry, has contributed to increased stability and has made business less susceptible to shocks at any given point, says the National City Bank.

Foreman—Now, Mike, what about carrying some more bricks?

Mike—I ain't feeling well, boss. I'm trembling all over.

Foreman—Well, then, get busy with the sieve.

"NEWS and PROGRESS" No. 2

FROM NEWS LETTER TO NEWSPAPER

JOHN CAMPBELL, Postmaster of Boston, was an unusual official. Being not fully occupied by the duties of his position, he looked for something else to do, and, all unconscious of the consequences of his act, took a step that has profoundly influenced the development of America. John Campbell lived at the beginning of the Eighteenth Century, which was a time when letters were infrequent, postage high and the mails but lightly burdened. His office was the natural center for the "freshest advices" of that great world lying outside of the little New England town, as these were received by sailing boats or horse-drawn diligences. Being a kindly gossip, he desired to share his news with others.

Therefore, he hit upon the idea of sending an occasional letter to the Governors of the New England colonies, in which he summarized the current news of the times. At first, his letters appear to have been sent as sealed communications, but presently he came to realize that there could be no harm in leaving them unsealed in order that others might read them by the way. Each was literally a "news letter," and they came to be so much in demand that it is not surprising to find him deciding to issue them weekly in printed form for general circulation.

Thus "The Boston News Letter," first published on Monday, April 24, 1764, became the pioneer of American newspapers, although it may be mentioned in passing that, on September 15, 1760, one Benjamin Harris, of Boston, published a single issue of a little sheet called "Public Occurrences," which was promptly suppressed by the Governor.

The "Boston News Letter," however, was "published by authority," and was stood ready to serve the material as well as the less tangible interests of the people.

The simplicity of life in the America of John Campbell's day stands out clearly in contrast against its present complexity and completeness. By the opening of the Twentieth Century, the railroad, the telegraph, the cable, the typewriter, the telephone, the multiple press, the linotype, the stercorator, the photograph and the half-tone plate, had given the newspaper a freedom from drudgery and delay which made possible its extraordinary progress in the past quarter of a century. To these facilities, in that time, have been added others, including the automobile, the airplane, the radio and the wire and wireless transmission of pictures.

If we accept as true the declaration that "every substantial increase in the efficiency of the means of communication marks a new epoch of civilization," new light is shed upon the influence of "civilization's common medium of communication," the modern newspaper, whose efficiency has been so marvelously increased.

Beginning as a collector and distributor of news from the other colonies and from distant lands, the American newspaperist contained little except accounts from the foreign press and occasional correspondents. Its community was small and the members knew what their neighbors were doing. Therefore, little space was devoted to local affairs. In fact, practically all the local news consisted of "paid notices," or advertisements. A merchant would announce the arrival of fresh goods from abroad, or an employer would warn others that his apprentice had run away, or that a slave had escaped or was for sale. Thus, nearly two centuries before advertising had come to be recognized as one of the greatest economic forces of modern life, newspaper advertising was looked upon simply as one form of news.

(Next article, "What Is News?")

Two centuries of American progress are reflected in the columns of the newspaper.

Now the Morning Glory, J. W. Kelley, the Hoxey, and several others promise to bring us prosperity on a scale never before known here. Results will follow quickly from now on, we believe, and our patience will have not been in vain.

IT PAYS TO ENCOURAGE MINING INDUSTRY

For the next several years or longer the mining industry will be one of the main factors in western prosperity. There is not a western state that is not humming with new mining activity and new ore discoveries are being made daily.

Payrolls of the mines are a big part of western prosperity. Legitimate mining also affords the small investor a real opportunity for good profits.

Patagonia is about to receive its ward for patience. Several large companies will be operating here within the next few months, besides the ones already started toward big things.

WAS SOLOMON WISE?

Solomon has always been advertised as a very wise man, but if the history of his life and that of his son, Rehoboam, is correct, they wrecked their power and their people by excessive taxation.

Citizens in practically every city, county and state in the United States are facing much the same problem as did the people under Solomon. Enormous expenditures are being made for all kinds of public undertakings. Local taxes have been constantly increasing. All of these taxes are added to the cost of living through increased prices and rents. The ultimate consumer and day laborer cannot pass the taxes on to the other fellow. They pay them all.

Taxes and debts have wrecked more governments and impoverished more nations than all the wars of history. At the height of our prosperity it is a good time for us to check up on our debt and tax situation. The family that spends more than it can afford is headed for trouble, and the nation which overcrows the tax payments is following the same path.

KEEPING FIT WITH FAMOUS AMERICANS. Hudson Maxim, inventor and author, uses a punching bag as his favorite exercise. HUDSON MAXIM, inventor, author and King Neptune of the Atlantic City Beauty Pageant, takes enough exercise every day to supply the needs of a training fighter. In a special room of his home at Lake Hopatcong, N. J., Mr. Maxim has a punching bag and exercising machine. Every morning he massages the former and works the latter. For outdoor sport he plays a fast game of tennis and walks over his big estate. "I am quite an omnivorous eater and vibrate a lot between over-eating and new resolutions. All three meals are fairly full meals," states Mr. Maxim. With the exception of a cup of weak coffee at noon and once in a while a cup of tea in the morning, Mr. Maxim avoids such beverages. "My wife is a generous, joyous creature, and a glory forever. My cook is a Southern mammy about sixty years old, has a good sense of humor, is filled with the joy of living and always a mass of beaming smiles. And she can cook, believe me." Which may account for Mr. Maxim's staying from his resolutions. "Mrs. Maxim and I generally walk about three miles toward the evening of every day to help jolt down and digest what we cannot help eating during the day."

SILK OR RAYON BLOOMERS BEST

CONFIRMING the trend toward richer silk weaves, moire is being launched as one of the forthcoming important fabrics for the coming season. Like everything else in this twentieth century program of progress, modern moire features "latest improvements." That is, instead of being of formal-like and austere "stand alone" quality as in days of old, the new moire silk is the place of one or more trunks. Does it not provoke a smile to think of the yards and yards of embroidered flannel, or stiffly starched petticoat our grandmothers, no, not our grandmothers, for they are keeping pace with the younger generation, but let us say our great grandmothers, carried about with them, and the heavy-boned atrocious cage called a corset, and—well, what's the use of re-

as supple almost and about as light-weight as chiffon. As to colors! Not one of the beautiful shades on the fall and winter color card are missing. A "thing of beauty and a joy forever" is moire silk in the entrancing carot shade, which is now so ultra-smart. Then there is Chanel red, mulberry, aubergine (eggplant purple) to be added to the list of reds, also there are infinite shades of blue, outstanding among which are navy and royal. Jungle green and jungle brown are also new and stylish to an extreme, not forgetting that beige is taking on a greater prestige. The trimming of black with delicate pink has proved so successful, the combination is being repeated in the calling things so foreign to our present common-sense idea of dress? We of this age and day are learning to clothe ourselves healthfully and joyfully. This is why we are choosing our underwear of fine Italian silk and if we cannot quite afford that, then of rayon, which is a most delightful substitute. It is why we prefer bloomers like the picture shows to petticoats, it is why we are so interested in the new three-in-one garments which include corset and all the necessary undergarments. These slenderize the figure, weigh but a few ounces, can be put on in less time than it takes to tell about it. There was a time when the word "silk" carried a note of exclusiveness

The KITCHEN CABINET

(©, 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)
"Only the possessions which we use are of present value to us. A man may have a money fortune and yet be poverty stricken in the very things which that money would buy him. The money is his all the time, but it is of little or no value to him because he lets it alone."

HOT WEATHER DISHES

During the warm days when all work seems a burden and play so inviting, is the time to rest on a shady porch or doorstep, or pack a basket for a day of rest and recreation by a stream or lake. If this is not possible make the meals as simple as possible and eat out on the porch or in the back yard. The children will think it fun to do all the carrying and setting of table. When preparing fruit and vegetables, as this is the time when much of that work must be done, choose a cool and shady spot out of doors to shell the peas and pick over the berries. Being out of doors makes the work seem like play. Salads, jellies and such dishes as can be prepared early in the day are in order.

If the family enjoys pie, prepare the pastry the night before and place it on ice, using the following recipes:

Hot Water Pastry.—Take one cupful of lard, add one-half cupful of boiling water, a teaspoonful of salt, stir until dissolved, then add three cupfuls of sifted flour. When well mixed set into the ice box. This will make two covered pies and one open crust. When lining the pan, fill the crust into the tin as this kind of pastry seems to shrink more than the cold water pastry.

Peachcrino.—To one cupful of peach pulp (ripe peaches put through a sieve) add a cupful of sugar or less if the peaches are very sweet, a tablespoonful of lemon juice, three beaten egg whites and a cupful of whipped cream. Freeze. Baked as a soufflé this makes a delightful dessert, using the cream to serve on it.

The various jellies and gelatins are good hot weather dishes, as they keep for a day or two.

Grape Nectar.—Put a cupful of sugar and a quart of water to boil. Cook ten minutes, then add the juice of three lemons, two oranges, one-half a can of crushed pineapple, and a pint of grape juice. Let stand three hours, then serve with sliced orange on top of each glass.

Caramel-Almond Ice Cream.—Mix one-half cupful of flour, one cupful of sugar, one-eighth of a teaspoonful of salt, and two cupfuls of hot milk with one and one-half cupfuls of caramel and cook in a double boiler for twenty minutes, stirring constantly. Cook and freeze. When partly frozen add two cupfuls of cream and one cupful of ground almonds. Make the caramel by melting one and one-half cupfuls of boiling water and boil fifteen minutes. This flavoring is good for puddings, sauces, gravies, chop suey and other dishes where such flavoring is used.

Fruits and Vegetables.
Vegetarian schools have great faith in tomatoes as medicine for biliousness and for all forms of liver trouble. This is because of the vegetable calomel in large quantities which is found in that vegetable fruit.

Rhubarb when cooked is a good laxative, while its agreeable acid is cooling and stimulating. The tender green leaves are used with other greens as food.

Lettuce is considered a good remedy for insomnia and nervousness. Shakespeare was conscious of its virtue for he remarks: "Did I eat lettuce to supper last night that I am so sleepy?"

Watercress, "that cheap but wholesome salad from the brook," contains sulphur in such a form that it is ready to be assimilated into the blood.

Dandelion greens carry a high percentage of iron, while the tender young leaves make excellent salads. Mixed with potato salad it improves it.

Spinach, which has been called the broom of the blood, stands at the head of vegetables in percentage of iron. This vegetable has a most healthful action on both bowels and kidneys.

The onion, too often snubbed and abused by those who would be ultra fine, holds high place as a flavor vegetable; it is stimulating, laxative and generally purifying to the whole system.

Beets are a nerve tonic and enrich the blood. The Greeks hold the beet as ideal for brain workers.

Cucumbers are rich in potassium and phosphorus; even in ancient times they were used as complexion beautifiers externally as well as internally.

Carrots rank high these days with the beauty specialist. One a day, eaten raw, is said to cure a muddy skin and paint the cheek with roses.

Cherries stimulate the gastric juices. Peaches are rich in iron and are highly recommended for anaemic people.

Pumpkins are rich in salts and are a fine laxative.

An insect belonging to the fly family that spends its whole life in salt sea water is the strange find reported to the Royal Society of England by F. W. Edwards and Dr. P. A. Buxton, who recently returned from a voyage to Samon, found the insect associated with related forms whose larval or infant stages are spent in the water, but whose adult life is lived in the normal aerial surroundings of most insects. This is said to be the first recorded case of an insect going through its whole life cycle in sea water.

newer modes. The stunning frock pictured is of black moire with ravishing touches of pink disposed in facings of collar and cuffs matched to the graceful front panel which is buttoned from neck to hemline.

The last word from Paris is expressed in the styling of this dress. Note the flowing cuffs such as grace the coats of the gay envailleurs who courted the ladies in the days of romance "when knighthood was in flower." That this frock opens in red-tinge fashion is also indicative of the reigning mode. The belt treatment, too, verifies the report that belts and girdles find favor in the designing of the majority of present-day frocks.

With this de luxe costume, mildy wears a chapeau of compelling style, the same being a fine imported velours of the much exploited vagabond type. Women do not carry nearly the amount of baggage about in their travels as formerly. It is a fact, and statistics prove it. Expressmen and transfer companies are complaining of a considerable falling off of business because the week-end bag or at least a capacious suitcase is taking and extravagance. Not so in this day of enlightenment; we have come to consider it a matter of economy to invest in silken night robes, and costume slips, bloomers, vests and "step-ins." Aside from excellent wearing quality and ever-fresh appearance, the bothersome matter of laundering is vastly simplified. This, together with the fact that dozens of dainty silken garments can be packed into small space without crushing, makes traveling an unalloyed pleasure.

By the way, color contrast is the latest item in regard to new silk lingerie for this fall and winter. A flesh-colored garment bordered with pale blue, or green or maize is fashion's latest whim.

Life-Giving Air
Fresh air is as essential for good health in cows, horses, hogs and other stock as for the physical wellbeing of human beings. Ventilation in barns and other buildings in which stock are kept is just as necessary as in homes, schools and factories. The

Size Up Each Ear
The best way to select seed corn is from the stalks standing where they grow. As soon as the crop matures and before the first hard frost, go through the field with a picking bag and husk the ears from the stalks that have produced the most good corn without having had any special advantages, such as excess of space, moisture or fertility. Avoid late-maturing ears which are heavy because of excessive sap and ears from down, smutted or otherwise diseased plants. Select seed from normal, healthy plants that have produced most heavily in competition with a full sized stand of vigorous plants, and from plants that are neither early nor late maturing for the conditions where the corn is to be grown.

Sprout Trees
If a new growth of sprout hardwood timber is desired to replace that being removed, it is advisable to cut the trees during the winter or very early spring, as stumps sprout best. Sprouting is most vigorous from low stumps. Sprout regeneration is especially applicable to young hardwood stands, particularly those to be cut over every 20 to 30 years for posts or fuel. The majority of hardwoods do not sprout vigorously beyond 60 years of age. Basswood and chestnut are exceptions, since as a rule they sprout well from healthy stumps up to 100 years of age.

WHAT IS A GOOD PRODUCT?

Who judges your products at the fair? What points decide the prize winners? How do the judges know what these points are? What is a good product?

These questions have been in the minds of contestants' fair authorities, an extension workers in many places for a long time. They have been met in different ways, such as by organizing stock-judging clubs among farm boys, to give them the points of desirable animals at which they should aim, or by training demonstration teams of club boys or girls who would show the accepted practices and standard products as widely as possible. Until recently, however, it has been necessary to depend on public-spirited citizens who would give their

A new and more efficient way of approaching this problem is to conduct "judging schools" especially for the purpose of training those who are to act on fair committees in assigning awards. This work has been carried on in various states, and especially in Oklahoma, among the women's home-demonstration clubs. A report received by the United States department of agriculture describes seven two-day training schools in judging canned and baked products and clothing. One hundred and three women from 26 counties, and 26 home demonstration agents attended these training schools and completed the work. The judging schools grew out of a demand for trained judges at community and county fairs, and also out of requests from farm women for a discussion of what to look for in good losses when the germs are present. Clean, wholesome milk can be had only from healthy cows. Poor ventilation also causes damp or wet barns. In the colder sections of the United States unventilated barns are frequently found in which the roofs and ceilings are dripping wet with condensed moisture. This condition results in molding of feed and hay stored in such buildings. Proper ventilation aids in the prevention of spontaneous combustion in haymows and granaries.
