MINERS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Gus Amado and another man narrowly escaped death this week when a ladder they were climbing to get out of a shaft at the Patagonia Placer Mines broke when they were near the top and precipitated them into the shaft. A round of shots had just been completed, the fuses attached and lighted before the men started to leave the shaft. When the ladder broke, letting them down into the hole, Gus tried to find the fuses and extinguish them, but could not find them because of water. The men climbed as far up the shaft as possible, which was about 12 feet above the bottom, when the shots went off. That both men were not killed outright is a miracle. Gus is pretty badly bruised and the other man is seriously injured, it is said.

Double Doubling Results In Pairing to Make One

Where'd you get those eyes? Where'd you get those lips? Where'd you get those dimples, honey?

Conductor and Comedienne, Playing in Two Ziegfeld Shows Marry

New York City.—A romance that grew out of a double doubling in Ziegfeld shows last year has ended in one of Broadway's happiest marriages. The principals in this romance are Ethel Shutta, described by critics as the world's funniest comedienne, and George Olsen, famous orchestra leader and night club owner.

ELLIS SAYS THERE'S OIL IN THE YAQUIS ASKED TO RETURN TO NATIVE LAND

In our last week's issue we told of a rumor to the effect that some persons had visited the Elgin oil well and let down a bottle with a long twine and brought the bottle up filled with oil. Now comes Ed Ellis of Vaughn, who says he was one of the parties that made the "discovery." Here's his letter:

"Mr. Editor: In reference to your article on page one, column one, in The Patagonian of May 20, 1927, 'And let some one else tell one,' I wish to say that I was present at the well when oil was taken out, and have some of the oil at this time, and it has been shown to oil men who understand their business, and it is pronounced of a paraffine base and of extra good quality. And now the question is: Did the Nogales people know that oil sands were struck before the hole was plugged? When the tools were pulled out the last evening of drilling they were stained with what is claimed to be oil, and rumor has it that the tools were lost and later, it my understanding, it was only a bit that was lost and that had been dropped in the hole with the expectation of being able to take it out later. But I understand it was not done."

"Probably the fellows who spoke glibly of young females as 'chickens' a few years ago imagined that they were using up-to-date slang. But Ed Howe points out that Samuel Johnson's dictionary, published in 1755, gave one of the definitions of chicken to be 'a term for a young girl.'"

Those Chicago bandits who robbed a glue factory were no doubt expert and slick men.

every evening and usually they jumped into each other in the scramble. Their courtship began with smiles and "beg your pardons" and ended—
"Well, maybe it's too soon to say that it ended with us both living happily forever after," says Mr. Olsen, "but that's the present status. Miss Shutta gave up the stage and settled down in our home on Long Island. She won't keep a maid because she is so crazy about housework and how she can cook—boy!"
"Every day she has a new offer at a higher figure from some producer to go back to the stage, but always she refuses. We've been married going on a year now and she still refuses, but I am beginning to feel selfish. After all, would any husband to allow his wife to give up a career when

PAINE WHITNEY DIES

Manhasset, N. Y., May 25.—Payne Whitney, financier, philanthropist, sportsman, and one of the richest men in the United States, died suddenly today of heart attack while playing tennis at his country estate, Greentrees.

Mr. Whitney was 52 years old. He was a brother of Harry Payne Whitney, son of the late William C. Whitney, secretary of the navy under Cleveland; son-in-law of John Hay, secretary of state under McKinley, and brother-in-law of Senator James W. Wadsworth.

People in all walks of life should be able to jump quickly and far.

she was such a wonder at it? That's what I ask myself. So pretty soon, I may urge my wife to come out of her kitchen."
Miss Shutta, who is pretty as well as funny and just brimming over with what is vaguely called personality, isn't sure she will want to come out of the kitchen.
"Did you ever bake biscuits and funny little things called popovers?" she inquires. "And did you ever have an appreciative husband? He's quite as good for applause as an audience, you know."
Mr. Olsen leads the orchestra at Hotel Pennsylvania and is a radio favorite. Also it's conceded that the number he plays most effectively is "Where'd You Get Those Eyes?" which, by the way, he always plays to Mrs. Olsen, no matter who else the audience may be.

KELLY FOUND GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Los Angeles, Calif., May 25.—Paul Kelly, debonair husky screen juvenile actor, was found guilty of manslaughter today by a jury of eight women and four men in connection with the fatal beating of Ray Raymond, musical comedy star. The verdict carries a prison term of one to 10 years. The jury deliberated 24 hours. Kelly seemed to wince when the guilty verdict was read, but continued to stare ahead.

Sentence will be passed May 31. Defense attorneys have announced they would ask for a new trial.
Raymond died in his Hollywood bungalow on April 20 after a fight with Kelly over the affections of beautiful Dorothy MacKaye, widow of the chain actor, according to the testimony.
The prosecution based its case largely on testimony of a negro maid and a Japanese houseboy who told of the beating and many "gin and jazz" parties.

CHURCH SOCIETY DENOUNCES PROHIBITION LAW

New York, May 25.—The surprising scope and vigor of the attack launched against prohibition by directors of the Church Temperance Society of the Protestant Episcopal church was revealed Tuesday in the text of their ultimatum resolution denouncing the 18th Amendment and the Volstead Act.

The amendment itself, the Episcopal society said, "has blemished the Constitution," an enforcement of the law has been a failure which has resulted in increased drunkenness and the use of opiates.

The resolution not only scores prohibition, but pledges the society to a nation-wide campaign to appeal to the laity and clergy of the Episcopal church in behalf of "true temperance" and to appeal to state and national lawmakers "in behalf of speedy adoption of moderate regulatory measures to replace the 'impractical and harmful law.'"

Among the churchmen's charges are:

"That the 18th Amendment has blemished the Constitution and rights which had been purposely safeguarded to the states and to the people are now exposed to fearful jeopardy.

"Enforcement of the prohibition act has, in the judgment of the church temperance society, been a failure resulting in increased drink and drunkenness and use of opiates and fostering political corruption.

"It is inimical to the life of any nation to retain laws which are not or cannot be enforced.

"A law of this character tends to promote bitterness and strife among people, fosters dissension and encourages hypocrisy.

"The temperance should not be made subject to the same restrictions as the intemperate.

"Enforced sobriety is of very doubtful value.

"The promotion of true temperance is an educational rather than legislative problem, within the proper functions and duties of the church."

CONGRESSIONAL MEDAL MAY BE GIVEN TO LINDBERGH

Washington, D. C., May 25.—Secretary of War Davis "will do everything in his power" to have a congressional medal of honor or distinguished flying cross awarded to Charles Lindbergh, New York to Paris flier, he declared today.

Paris, May 24.—Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, when he starts back to America, will start from France, but he has not decided yet whether he had better accept President Coolidge's offer of passage on a warship although he expressed gratitude for the invitation.

Lindbergh was guest of honor at a dinner given by Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, given Tuesday evening. He wore evening clothes and seemed to thoroughly enjoy the glittering embassy dinner at which covers were laid for 30 notables.

Preceding the festivities, a card had arrived from Marsellaise from the mother of the missing Captain Francis Coll. It read:

"Despite maternal grief, I congratulate you sincerely in your magnificent exploit."
To Madame Coll, Lindbergh telegraphed at once:

"If it were possible, I would go to Marselles. I express heartfelt homage to your intrepid son whose name is graven high in the annals of aviation."
There is no point in the world which cannot now be reached by air if the flight is properly prepared. Lindbergh said in talking to reporters. "If a man can fly a plane over the ocean alone at night, without particularly feeling the results why could you not fly two nights without being completely exhausted?"

PRESENT MODEL FORD CAR HAS BEEN DISCONTINUED

Detroit, May 25.—Ford automobile number 15,000,000 was assembled by the Fordson company here today.

The Ford Motor Company has announced "early production" of a new Ford car, but withheld details of the new model until a later date. A complete description, it was said, will be given out within the next few weeks. Assembly of the present model will be discontinued, but production of parts will be continued for some time.

SECRET CODE OF SOVIET FOUND BY BRITAIN

London, May 25.—Rumors of an exciting character are circulating in London as to the discoveries made in the police raid on Arcos, Ltd., the Russian trade organization.

It is insistently reported that the names of several members of Parliament are on the lists of persons to whom money has been paid by the Soviet trade delegation, and the debate in the House of Commons tomorrow on the question of breaking off all relations with Soviet Russia is awaited with breathless interest by an expectant public. The fervent hope is expressed that the government will release more information about the discoveries.

The police are believed to have found Soviet codes which make it possible to decode messages exchanged between Moscow and the Soviet officials in London over a long period, including the time of the general strike.

There is much speculation, too, as to whether France, Italy and other countries having diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia will be influenced by Great Britain's action, and the man in the street apparently is convinced that England, France and Italy have reached an understanding regarding their attitude toward Moscow.

The Socialists and the Daily Herald (a labor paper) are charging that the documents on which the government bases its action are forgeries, and insists that there is a general world plan to renew the economic barriers around Soviet Russia.

Emphatic denials of Premier Baldwin's espionage and other charges, as announced yesterday in the House of Commons, were made today by M. Rosenzweig, the Soviet charge d'affaires in London, in a statement issued through Tass, the official Soviet news agency. M. Rosenzweig takes the stand that the British prime minister has been misled, not only concerning espionage, but with regard to other accusations he made when announcing the government's decision to break off diplomatic relations as well as denounce the trade agreement of six years' standing.

"We cannot but express our amazement and deep regret," says M. Rosenzweig, "that such an important decision has been reached by the British government on such flimsy premises, and that such doubtful arguments have been used to justify its action."

$20,000,000 LOSS ADDED TO STATE OF LOUISIANA BY NEW BREAK

New Orleans, May 25.—Ten villages and 10 square miles of farm land in northwestern Point Coupee parish will be inundated within 24 hours, engineers predicted today as the flood waters from the break in the river levee continued to advance. Relief headquarters at Baton Rouge reported no loss of life, although the flood rushed at a terrific speed over the parish. Most of the threatened area has been evacuated. Fleet coast guard launches are ready to patrol the area as soon as the flood reaches sufficient depth.

New Orleans, May 25.—The third great bottomland region of Louisiana, by far the most fertile and densely populated, began to feel the encroachment of Mississippi flood waters Tuesday night, as they tumbled through a crevasse on the Atchafalaya river and into Point Coupee parish.

Texas Basin, with its vast cotton plantations, the western Atchafalaya Basin and now the eastern Atchafalaya Basin, have successively become part of that great lake.
To the 250,000 homeless in this state must now be added 150,000 more as the flood streams southward through the crevasse at McCrea. To the estimated $40,000,000 in total property damage must now be added $20,000,000.

Engineers say the total extent of inundation will be increased by 2,000,000 acres, 6,000,000 now are under water.

Highway Re-fused Gas Tax Funds
Phoenix, May 25.—The state's 3-cent gasoline tax became the center of a controversy here yesterday, when J. C. Callaghan, state treasurer, credited only $469.56 of recent collections to the Arizona highway department, which amount completed the $1,550,000 fund appropriated by the Sixth legislature to that department to be raised through the gas tax.

were found guilty of manslaughter by a jury in Superior Judge Hardy's court here late Tuesday.

MEMORIAL DAY

The beautiful and patriotic custom of decorating the graves of soldiers, which arose shortly after the Civil War, is now more widely observed, perhaps, than ever before.

National Memorial Day (or Decoration Day) comes on May 30. It was first instituted by an order issued on May 5, 1868, by General John A. Logan, then commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. Later it was made a legal holiday by practically all the states.

Confederate Memorial Day is April 26 but other dates are observed in a few southern states. Before the World War the national holiday, on May 30, was little observed in the south, but through the influence of the American Legion and other patriotic organizations its celebration has become more general. In most of the southern states both Confederate and National Memorial days are observed.

In 1867 it came to the attention of F. M. Finch, a New York jurist and poet, that many women of the south had decorated impartially the graves of Confederate and Federal soldiers alike. This inspired his famous poem, "The Blue and the Gray," the last stanza of which follows:

No more shall the war cry sever,
Or the winding rivers be red;
They banish our anger forever,
When they laurel the graves of our dead.
Under the sod and the dew,
Waiting the judgment day;
Love and tears for the Blue,
Tears and love for the Gray.

THE JOLT COMES ON PAY DAY

Taxation increases are inevitable while people clamor for new and expensive services from government. Long legislative sessions, the inspector systems, the school frills, the enforcement of new regulatory and prohibitory laws, all come at a price.

In theory, people do not object to paying for these things. But that is only to use long as the projects are in the realm of argument. When the tax bill comes for the new services, it comes with a sickening jolt. It eats into savings. It makes good ventures look like doubtful ventures. It flattens the family pocketbook.

THE LURE OF DANGER

Some men seem to be irresistibly attracted to enterprises fraught with danger. And when the spirit of high adventure gets into the blood, its craving is seldom satisfied.

This phenomenon is well illustrated in the case of Charles A. Lindbergh, the intrepid young American aviator, who has just flown from New York to Paris in one non-stop flight under conditions which invited disaster.

During his seven years' experience as an aviator in army camps and the United States mail service he had faced almost certain death on four occasions, in each of which he saved his life by coolly jumping overboard with his parachute, landing in safety.

Lindbergh's utter contempt of death was shown over and over again. He accomplished a feat never before completed—one that will live in history for all time. Many more airplanes probably will cross the Atlantic ocean, but Lindbergh's successful flight will ever be remembered.

The remarkable feature of the flight is that he went alone, braving sleeplessness, which is the bugbear of all long-distance flyers. The odds were 10 to 1 against him and he was perfectly conscious of the fact.

But the lure of adventure gripped him. He was successful, and the world is at his feet.

GROW NEW FORESTS

In the past, lumbermen have been criticized for depletion and waste of the country's forests, and it may be that much timber has been cut without proper regard for future needs.

At present, however, the lumbermen appear to be keenly alive to the necessity for conservation of timber and reforestation of cut-over areas. In fact, such a movement among the lumbermen has been under way in several states for quite a while.

At its recent convention in Chicago, the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association commended the interest in reforestation being taken by the government and by the forestry departments of many states. A resolution adopted by the convention said:

"We urge continuance of this interest and cooperation, both public and private, to bring about sound conditions for perpetuating our forest industry."

Better means of fire protection in existing forests were also recommended as well as favorable tax measures to encourage private forest-growing enterprises.

The recent floods have further emphasized the importance of reforestation as an aid to flood control. It is fortunate that this matter is engaging the attention of the country at large to a greater extent than before. No natural resource is more essential to our national welfare than our forests.

A certain species of Australian apple tastes like a cucumber, which confirms our suspicion that the Garden of Eden was not located in Australia.

"LOOK BEFORE YOU LEAP"

The recent squabble over the action of the Nogales school trustees in trying to save the city taxpayers useless expense in connection with the conduct of schools was started by a few disgruntled politicians, who did not consider the consequences of their acts. In trying to discredit the trustees some very disastrous results will be felt in future. The mass meeting held in the Firemen's Club was prearranged—the stage set for a great expose and a "get 'em while they are all hot up over something they know nothing about." Their purpose was frustrated by one of the city's prominent citizens who used his brains to overcome the effects of the cut-and-dried program of character assassination that had been framed. Some of those opposing the school trustees were really honest in their belief that "something was wrong" because they had heard so and so. By merely asking questions the man with the brains so confused the intentions of the leaders of the "big show" that one of the audience arose to remark that "it wasn't fair to bring one of the greatest criminal lawyers of the state there to confuse them" and break up their little playhouse (or words to that effect).

Two things are certain to result from the thoughtless little piece of politics that was attempted: discipline has been ruined in the high school for some time to come and good teachers will fight shy of signing contracts to teach there. Another thing is certain—lawsuits will be forthcoming as the result of accusations against a young lady, charging dishonesty. "Won't the young lady who told me that please stand up?" Somebody's goat is running wild and it will be hard to get it back. If you don't believe that, ask almost the first person you meet on your next trip to the county seat.

PUT BUSINESS INTO FARMING

Almost any locality can make its own place in national or international life. Petaluma, Calif., did it with White Leghorn hens. Tillamook, Ore., did it with cheese. Jericho, Utah, does it with the great Jericho wool pool that sells only top wool in one prize sale. Idaho Falls, Ids., does it with potatoes. Kenathee, Wash., apples are internationally famous, and so on through a long specialized list.

In every case the profits result from high-grade uniformity. The producers do not trust to luck, nor to individual idiosyncrasies; they agree on a standard, and enforce it. The "independence" of the farmer becomes a myth in every one of these high-priced specialty products; independence, that is, to produce freak stuff by freak methods. But they become independently rich; which is better than mere license to do foolish things in a foolish way.

A grain company that was urged to buy in one of the most fertile sections of the mountain west refused to buy grain there. "We want standard grains," they were told, "and no two of you raise the same kind of stuff. Your wheat is mongrel; your oats are all the way from white or red to black; your barley is plebeian and will not grade in any market. We'll go on of business before we'll buy in such a district."

MINING, OIL AND CAPITAL

At one time, one oil development company had a 2560-acre lease on the Mesquite in Moffat county, Colo., but gave up most of it because of unfavorable showings. Recently a 65-acre tract of what they turned back was sold for $4000 an acre.

Big holdings do not insure prescience; the big owner may guess as poorly as the shoeing claimant or the original nester. But in the end, it is the big aggregations that have to take the burden of expensive development, like oil exploration or the opening of big low-grade ore mining camps. The giant corporation is as necessary for business as the steam shovel, the electric motor that multiplies the power of man's hand, the telephone or the radio that extend man's communication.

Without big, united capital, oil would never be in common use as it is today, and copper, lead and zinc would not be considered necessities in every line of building and manufacture.

The Pons-Winnecke comet will approach within 3,500,000 miles of the earth on June 27, according to astronomers, but if it comes considerably nearer there is no cause for alarm. We passed through the tail of Halley's comet in 1910 without any noticeable discomfort. Comets are not as dangerous as they look.

WALTER P. CHRYSLER'S TRAFFIC TALKS

PLAYING FAIR

One of the facts which is encouraging to the student of street and highway problems is that pedestrians are coming to realize more and more that street and highway regulations are just as much for their safety and convenience as they are for the motorists.

Street and highway regulations and signals are for the purpose of moving traffic, pedestrian and vehicular, safely, first of all, and secondly, with as much rapidity as safety will permit.

Throughout the country there is a growing appreciation of the fact that when a motorist is given the signal to go he is obliged to go by law and when the motorist is required to go the proper place for the pedestrian is on the curb.

When the pedestrian is given the signal to go he should be permitted to go without having to hurry by the approach of vehicles coming around the corner.

We have heard not a little about pedestrian control. It is somewhat of an unfortunate expression because it seems to carry with it the implication that the pedestrian is deprived of some right. Asking the pedestrian to refrain from darting in front of moving motor vehicles is certainly not depriving anyone of any rights. It is asking what is sensible because it is the safe thing to do. It is a practical step in the direction of the further conservation of life and limb.

In America, a country of more than twenty million registered motor vehicles, we have motor-wise car owners and pedestrians. The wise driver is ever alert, always careful, never takes chances, is thoughtful and considerate. The wise pedestrian is always alert, always careful, watches his step and never takes chances.

The critter that sprouted the first appendix probably never knew what a legacy he left to the surgical profession.

Jabots

THE woman who likes the simplicity of her gown served without severity will welcome the frock sketched above. Here the smart jabot drape, hanging from the left shoulder, champions the cause of femininity, while the twin jabot cascading from the left hip furnishes that soft and uneven hemline that fashion has found so alluring this season. The cuffs, neck and draperies are bound with self-material, which might well be satin crepe, crepe de Chine or satin-back moiré. With the omission of sleeves and with a slight deepening of the neckline, this model is extremely good for evening wear in a light metallic fabric.

What New York-Paris-Flyers Eat

Mrs. Lloyd W. Bernard left and Mrs. Clarence D. Chamberlin preparing their husbands' food for the flight.

Their Courageous Wives Prepare Their Food

At Garden City, Long Island, within sight of the aviation field chosen by their husbands for their hop-off to France, the courageous young wives of the pilots of the Itanica plane, "Columbia," prepared the food for their husbands' daring venture. Mrs. Chamberlin is slender, winsome, of very domestic inclinations and gave the provisioning of her husband's flight the most scientific care, as also did Mrs. Bernard, a beautiful girl and something of an aviatrix herself having been married in a plane in the air, four years ago.

Unperturbed by a battery of camera men, the devoted wives of the aviators painstakingly made up the rations for the overseas trip. Beef, bacon and peanut butter sandwiches, coffee in vacuum bottles, chocolate and non-salted crackers and the indispensable peppermint chewing gum were items selected from the provisions presented by Mr. Parrott Arkell, President of the Beech-Nut Company and donor of a $5,000 cash prize to their husbands in the event of their successful flight to French soil. "For emergency rations we are selecting cork and lemon non-salted beef, peanut butter, an especially nutritious food, and of course a supply of unsweetened chocolate, a plentiful supply of water and some oranges," said Mrs. Chamberlin, who remarked that her husband's life were perished after his record making endurance flight over Long Island because of lack of good water. "An aviator flying from New York to Paris must have food of the most nutritious value," said Mrs. Bernard, "and that has been our problem—eat about the same as people at home, but in considering both flight rations and emergency provisions we were obliged to eat food of the greatest strength giving value—a balanced ration—and that has guided us in our selection of foods approved by the army dietitians, as well as by our husbands' taste."

ADVERTISING VALUE OF WEEKLY

National advertisers are becoming more and more convinced of the value of the weekly press as a medium for reaching the public with their sales messages.

Among those who have been "sold" on the importance of the live community newspaper is Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors Corporation, who recently paid them this tribute:

"I believe in the country weekly newspaper. I believe that no printed matter in the United States is more thoroughly read, or has more influence than the pages of these hometown newspapers."

That Mr. Sloan's expression is not merely a pleasing compliment is evidenced by the fact that General Motors is rapidly extending its advertising to the weekly newspapers of the country.
