SCHOOL NOTES

(Frank Seibold, Editor)

School will be closed Armistice Day.

Eight cases of books for all grades are in the school. They are in pamphlet form and have linen covers.

Mr. Woodman trapped a small animal resembling a coon in the Patagonia mountains. He brought it to school and showed it to the children. We found later that it is called "coati." They are rarely found here, as they live in Mexico.

Mrs. Swyers is making fun and vegetable charts for the first grade.

The fifth grade is making House charts for the first grade.

The fourth grade had a perfect room in spelling Wednesday.

The fourth grade is learning the table of nines and playing games with them.

Mary Louise Etchells has finished writing the chart about turnips.

The beans planted by the second and third grades have pods on them now.

The second and third grades wrote sentences about dolls this week. Carrie Valenzuela, Mary Louise Etchells and Tootsie Lamma brought their dolls to school.

The fifth and sixth grades have nearly finished their color charts and some are working on a Japanese poster.

Mrs. Carter's room is working on a scene in black and white cut work.

Mrs. Gatlin's room is using harmonious colors in cut work.

We are glad to welcome Ralph Waycott back to school. Maria Loza has also returned.

The A class is earning to write sentences and Fred Dawson and Marvin Analia have had the most 100's.

Jean and Dale McDonald went to Nogales today to have their tonsils removed.

The Parker children have left school as they are moving to California this par of next week.

Stupidity of the Public

The demagogue's secret of success has been revealed at last. Arthur Brisbane declares that the late Tom Watson of Georgia once confided to him that "the whole secret of success in politics is to remember that it is impossible to exaggerate the stupidity of the public." The bunk which certain politicians are able to make a majority of the voter believe convinces us that old Tom was more than half right.

ALL OPPOSITION OF OBREGON'S PRESIDENTIAL BOOM GONE

Having Removed All Gomez Leaders, Calles' Attention Turns to Yaquis Who Recently Surrendered

Mexico City, Nov. 8.—Having executed General Arnulfo Gomez and six other leaders of the revolution in the state of Vera Cruz, the government today held captive 600 Yaqui Indians who recently surrendered in the state of Sonora.

The small bands of Yaqui Indians remaining in the field will soon be exterminated, the government announced, since the backbone of that revolt has been broken. Scouting parties in Vera Cruz under General Escobar were pursuing closely the two remaining rebel leaders there, General Alameda and Medina.

General Francisco R. Manzo, military commandant in Sonora, arrived here with 600 Yaqui Indians, who recently surrendered in Sonora, led by Chieftains Ignacio Matus and Manuel Espinosa.

The Yaqui revolt in Sonora, which has been the scene of fighting between the Indians and government troops for nearly a century, is considered ended since Matus and Espinosa had the largest number of followers. The government has now turned its attention to wiping out the small bands which remain.

Since Saturday seven Gomez leaders have faced the firing squad. The first to die was Gomez himself. Fernando Reyes and Sylvano Garcia were to last. Their capture and execution was announced by the government last night. Reyes had a long career as a revolutionist, having fought with Villa. Garcia had led outlaw bands in the hills of Vera Cruz for 10 years. Four other revolutionists were captured with Gomez and executed.

I. C. C. APPOINTMENT NOT YET MADE BY PRESIDENT

Washington, Nov. 8.—Business is taking a great interest in the selection of a successor to Henry C. Hall of the interstate commerce commission, who has informed President Coolidge that he desires to resign.

Influence is being exerted upon the president to name a man who holds "a national viewpoint" on transportation problems rather than one who would be governed by the needs of his particular section of the country. This argument has found the chief executive sympathetic.

It has been generally regarded that since Commissioner Hall lives in Colorado, Mr. Coolidge will select a resident of one of the Rocky mountain states, but he does not feel himself bound to do so, if he should find no one there whom he considers qualified. It has been said at the White House that while the president would like to name a western man, he would not hesitate to go elsewhere for the commissioner he wants.

There has been no information as to the exact date on which Commissioner Hall will resign. It is considered probable that he will withhold his resignation until the president has decided upon his successor. Among those who have been mentioned are A. A. Betts of Arizona, David J. Howell of Wyoming, James P. Shaughnessy and Dan V. Stephens of Nebraska, but there is nothing to indicate that Mr. Coolidge has limited the field to these.

"TREATED LIKE CRIMINALS"
Los Angeles, Nov. 10.—Recommendation that the El Retiro School for Girls at San Fernando be closed immediately unless conditions there are improved, was contained in a report of the county grand jury Tuesday.

The grand jury report was the outcome of an investigation instituted several months ago when 30 girls fled from the institution because they "were treated like criminals."

El Retiro is a county institution for homeless girls. It is not a corrective school.

ANT BEAR CAUGHT HERE

An animal, called by one of our natural history authorities here as an ant bear was caught Monday night in a trap in the Patagonia mountains. It is the first one of its kind to be brought to Patagonia in many years. The animal measured about 4 1/2 feet from tip to tip and was black in color. Its hind feet resembled those of a bear in shape, while the front feet were like those of a badger. It had a long, sharp nose and long tail.

Walter Woodman, who caught the animal, has the hide at his place on the Valley road.

SNOW HANDICAPS FLOOD RELIEF IN NEW ENGLAND STATES

Boston, Nov. 9.—Although handicapped by bitter cold, relief workers were pushing into Vermont last night with clothing and food for residents of the flooded areas.

Caravans of motor trucks were moving into the flood zone with much-needed supplies. Roads had been cleared into most of the flood-affected towns, but train service was still crippled.

General Preston Brown, commander of the First Corps area, was directing relief work from a temporary headquarters at Burlington. An emergency flying base will be established there. Planes now employed to drop supplies to a few inaccessible towns will take off from that city.

General Brown reported snow was interfering with transportation in some quarters but that contact had been established with most communities.

No outbreak of disease had been reported as yet, but it was pointed out that the incubation period of the typhoid germ was about two weeks.

Newport, where flood conditions were reported still bad, was reached for the first time since the beginning of the flood, yesterday. Property damage was found to be severe but no lives had been lost.

Because snow made travel over the roads to that town difficult, a large army transport plane was used to carry in a supply of food and medicine.

SHOOTS WIFE, DAUGHTER AND VISITOR IN HIS HOME

Phoenix, Nov. 9.—J. A. Marsh, 50, is in jail here for the shooting of his wife, Mary Marsh, 36, his daughter, Gertrude, 15, and a visitor, Edward Mahan, 22.

Marsh returned to his home last night, and upon finding his wife and daughter in an upstairs room with Mahan, became enraged and shot the trio, according to the report from the sheriff's office.

Mrs. Marsh has a gunshot wound in her right lung and probably will not live according to the hospital report. The others are not so seriously wounded.

Bullet made of iron were first used about the year 1550.

KENTUCKY ELECTS REPUBLICAN GOVERNOR; MISSISSIPPI A DEMOCRAT; LATE NEWS

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 9.—Racing interests in Kentucky appeared to have won their biggest political battle, with incomplete official returns indicating Flem D. Sampson, Republican, had defeated J. C. W. Beckman, Democrat, for governor.

Two murders in the Kentucky hill country, a close race for the governorship in that state and the victory of important proposals endorsed by Gov. Al Smith in New York marked the results of an otherwise dull off-year election in several states Tuesday.

Friends of Smith claimed to see a significant portent in his victory in New York, some viewing it as a test of his strength as a possible candidate for president next year.

In Mississippi, former governor Theodore G. Bilbo, Democrat, who broke the Ku Klux Klan when he refused to oppose Al Smith for presidential nomination, was elected governor.

The Philadelphia mayoralty election was considered significant. Harry A. Mackey, who had the support of Senator-elect William S. Vare and his Republican organization, was elected mayor over J. Hampton Moore, Independent.

The country's outstanding woman candidate, 24-year-old Gwendolyn Jones, the university graduate who thought she could outdo a former cop for the mayor's chair in Concord, N. H., failed to do so. Mayor Fred N. Marden, the former policeman, was re-elected.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 9.—John C. Lodge, grand uncle of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, was elected mayor of Detroit, noosing out his wet opponent by 9000 votes.

Columbus, O., Nov. 9.—The Ohio Anti-Saloon League smarted under its first rebuke by an electorate in nine years today. The Marshall bill to re-establish justice of peace courts on a fee system, favored by the drys as an enforcement measure, was crushed in yesterday's balloting by a majority expected to approximate 30,000.

San Francisco, Nov. 9.—Mayor Jas. Rolph Jr. was returned to office for the fifth term by an overwhelming majority, complete unofficial returns from yesterday's balloting showed. He won over two opponents.

T. E. HEADY ELECTED TO P. U. H. S. BOARD OF EDUCATION

Election returns from the Patagonia Union High School district, canvassed November 5, show T. E. Heady received 32 votes, the highest for any candidate and was therefore declared elected. The vote follows: Patagonia—T. E. Heady, 20 votes; Frank Neil L. Robert Keaton 1, Mrs. Ed McFarland 1.

Elgin—T. E. Heady 9, Willard Roath 1, Robert Campbell 1.

Vaughn—John McCarty 5, W. H. Anderson 1, T. E. Heady 3, Frank Jolly 4, Mrs. C. L. Everhart 1, Earl Vary 1.

No returns were sent in from Rain Valley, Parker Canyon, Alto, Canille, Lochiel, Harshaw, Washington Camp, Soncila, or Red Rock.

J. R. COLLIE, Clerk.

PATAGONIA BOYS JUDGE LIVE-STOCK STATE FAIR

The P. U. H. S. livestock judging team, composed of Billy Anderson, Charlie Tompson and Ralph Riggs, were among the contesting teams at judged cattle, sheep, swine and horses Monday morning at the State Fair at Phoenix.

Billy Anderson lacked but two and a half points of being in the team which will go to Kansas City for the national honors. Four boys will go to the Kansas City show, two from Yuma, one from Snowflake and one from Peoria. The Patagonia boys had a grand time at the fair, although they lost the honor of being among the winners for the Kansas City trip.

The boys got one grand thrill when they went up in an aeroplane.

Easterners Want Sonora Divorce
Nogales, Sonora, Nov. 9.—Avis Lowry, said to be a New York society woman, and Edward Wells, known as a eastern art critic, have signed petitions here for Mexican divorces under the lenient Sonora divorce laws.

They were accompanied here by Arturo del Toro, New York attorney.

ARIZONA BUSINESS CONDITIONS AT END OF OCTOBER

Phoenix, Nov. 10.—Business in general followed an upward trend in October. Improvement in retail trade did not come up to expectations in many cases, but on the whole conditions compared very favorably with the corresponding period of last year, and the outlook for the winter is good. Mining sections have remained somewhat quiet, but agricultural communities show increased activity, while opening of what promises to be a record winter tour season also has been of benefit.

The agricultural situation in the state has been materially strengthened by returns from the cotton crop, one-third of which was gained prior to November 1, and the gradual revival of the dairy industry has been particularly encouraging for the future. Lettuce acreage this season is larger than ever before, totaling about 17,000 acres. Movement from Duncan has already started, and Salt River Valley shipments will begin between the 20th and 25th.

Conditions in the livestock industry have continued favorable, with ranges good and stock in excellent shape. The bulk of fall cattle movement is reported over, and feeder prices have been held up some years. Mining, however, shows little change, with production maintaining about the same rate as during the summer, but with considerable activity in new development.

Construction of all kinds has remained especially active over the state. Building permits in Phoenix and Tucson for the first 10 months of this year exceeded all previous records. During the month a new $200,000 hotel was completed and opened at Prescott; another is nearing completion at Mesa; a third is under construction at Nogales, and a fourth is being started at Douglas, with rapid progress also being made on another, of seven stories, in Phoenix. Among the large developments, the Lake Pleasant dam, which will irrigate the 39,000-acre Beardsley project in Maricopa county, being developed by the Pacific Development Company, will be formally dedicated on November 19. Pouring of cement under way on the Colidge dam of the $5,500,000 San Carlos project, which will irrigate 109,000 acres in the Florence-Casa Grande Valley, and canal construction for the Roosevelt irrigation district of 40,000 acres west of Phoenix has been begun.

Reflecting the steady improvement in banking conditions which has been apparent for the last several years, a report of the state banking department covering the condition of all banks as of October 10 showed total bank deposits in the state as $73,567,263.57, compared with $61,674,419.27 three years ago, the last year in which a report was issued on the same date. Loans and discount amounted to $42,411,309.16, against $45,763,323.99, and total resources aggregating $35,507,905.05, compared with $74,034,400.23 in 1924.

Checking transactions in principal cities of the state, as reported to the Arizona Industrial Congress, were above those for September in every case except one, and also were generally above those for October of last year.

THE CHAMPION "DADDY"

Some time ago candidates for the title of "champion father" bobbed up here and there, several attaining considerable notoriety on account of the large number of their children. Andrew Jokoff, a Russian 113 years old, who recently applied for an old age pension, appears to have some claim to recognition in the fathering line. He told the authorities that he had reared 54 children in Siberia and that his "oldest boy" was teaching school in Omsk at the age of 80.

MRS. ELEANOR BLACKLIDGE DIES

Mrs. Eleanor Blacklidge, wife of Frank Blacklidge, a former resident of Patagonia, died in a Phoenix hospital Tuesday morning from heart trouble, from which she had suffered for some time, although her death was unexpected.

Deceased is survived by her widow and two small children.

Johnnie Goodman, an orphan boy who won the Trans-Mississippi golf championship at the age of 16, will be sent to college by a group of Omaha clubmen, who believe he will be another Bobby Jones.

VISIT CASA GRANDE PAGEANT

Last Sunday the boys making up the livestock judging team at the State Fair, accompanied by Professor R. H. Zimmerman, attended the Casa Grande Pageant at the old Casa Grande ruins.

The play was given by the Arizona Pageantry Association, and represented the Indians and Spaniards exploring the country in the days of Father Kino.

The Spanish explorers were hunting for the seven cities of Spiffola. The scene was lighted with beautiful lights that made the play and background wonderful to behold. The play started about 6 p. m. and continued for about three hours.

The spectacle was given on three succeeding days and was attended by large crowds. The historical events pictured will long be remembered by the spectators.

COSTLY "PROTECTION" FOR BIG BOOTLEGGER

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 10.—Testimony that it cost $1000 a month to be "protected" from arrest and carry on his unlawful liquor business unhindered, was offered in federal court here by Winfield Haggett.

Haggett, testifying for the government in the Gray's Harbor rum trial, declared he paid eighty officers $50,000 in three years that he was in the bootlegging business at Aberdeen, Wash.

(At first it was $25 0a month, then it was raised to $500 a month, and finally $1000 a month," the witness testified.)

AFTER NINE YEARS

Armistice Day, marking the ninth anniversary of the end of the World War, again recalls the stern realities of that titanic struggle, which altered the map of the world.

The significance of the events which have occurred since November 11, 1918, may be variously interpreted, according to the viewpoint from which we see them. To some it will appear that great progress has been made toward universal peace, while to others the trend of events will imply grave danger for the future.

Even a single individual must often be imbued alternately with hope and fear—hopeful when some felicitous occurrence seems to draw the nations closer together; fearful when an outbreak here or there threatens to undo all efforts for concord and understanding.

No one is wise enough to foretell the future. Was the "war to end war" the last great clash of nations, or was it only the prelude to more frightful laughter and destruction to come.

Only time can give the answer, but in the meantime it behooves all right-thinking persons, and particularly those in positions of influence and responsibility, to exercise whatever they may possess of tolerance, forbearance and the will to do justice to their fellowmen.

An Uncommon Appetite

An X-ray examination of a demented woman at Cambridge, Del., revealed her uncommon appetite for assorted hardware. A photograph of her stomach disclosed, among its contents, one teaspoon, six metal hair curlers, six safetypins, three of them open, 12 buttons, six wire hairpins and a door key. These, together with a dose of poison self-administered, made her quite sick to several hours.

In Mexico it seems that presidential candidates must not "choose to run" if they choose to live.

It is said that Tunney and Dempsey may fight again. Well, Gene has formed a habit that is hard to break.

A cannibal probably originated the idea of living off one's neighbors.

THE ROLL CALL

Newspapers and the public have become rather tired of campaigns, drives, special weeks and the like, of which we have had more than enough during the last few years.

But there is one annual effort which should enlist the hearty support of everyone, whatever he may think of the rest. We refer to the Red Cross Roll Call, held each year between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving.

This year the event has an unusual significance, in view of the magnitude of the work performed by that great humanitarian organization during the last 12 months, in which nearly a million persons, victims of 77 different disasters, have had the benefit of its kindly ministrations.

The outstanding disaster of the year was the Mississippi Valley flood, where more than 607,000 unfortunates were given sorely-needed relief during the emergency period, and because of which further assistance is still being rendered.

So well known and so highly esteemed is the invaluable service performed by the Red Cross, always promptly and efficiently, that no extended argument for its support is necessary. The 5,000,000 members set as its goal for this year should be secured without difficulty.

It requires only one dollar to respond to the call of this great roll, which is indeed a roll of honor.

What a Woman Can Do

A lady caused it all. Father J. K. Boyland, Catholic priest of Oklahoma, forsook his vows last May (became a house-to-house brush salesman, joined the Methodist church, studied for its ministry and has now become pastor of the First M. E. Church at Puxico, Mo.). In the meantime he married Miss Lois McReynolds of Tulsa, whose charms changed the course of the minister's life.

David R. Davies, a teacher of England, celebrated his 93rd birthday by instructing his classes as usual.

Miami—Miami Copper Co. has added nearly 1000 men to mine force by expert business management.

Mussolini has banned speeches in Italy, which is just as well, as he does all the talking that is heeded, anyway.

Mr. Lowden suggests a "mixed commission" to work out Mississippi flood control plans. The plans appear to be pretty well fixed already.

The wife of a Cincinnati baseball pitcher got a divorce in 10 minutes, thus demonstrating that she was onto his curves.

THE VALUABLE HEN

The growing importance of the American hen is pointed out by Dr. John R. Mohler of the department of agriculture, who states that the poultry industry now reaches an annual value of more than a billion dollars. American hens, collectively, lay about 760 eggs a second, or two billion dozen a year, and poultry ranks third among the various branches of the livestock industry, being exceeded only by dairying and swine.

More than one-third of the world's supply of poultry and eggs is produced in the United States. Even with the great amount of poultry raised, chickens and eggs are often scarce in many localities.

There appears to be further great possibilities for the expansion of the poultry industry, and an increasing number of farmers are finding it a profitable side line, particularly when purebred stock is raised with proper care.

A BACHELOR'S FAMILY

While on a naval mission to Russia in 1920, Rear Admiral Newton A. McCully of the United States navy ran across seven orphan children whose plight appealed to him. Then he did a most unusual thing. He brought them to America and adopted them.

Being a bachelor with a large independent income, the admiral satisfied the immigration authorities that his wards would be provided for and would not become public charges if admitted to the United States, although they were temporarily held up at Ellis Island.

Since that time Admiral McCully has been devoted to his adopted children, the oldest of whom is now a student at the Staunton Military Academy in Virginia. He recently took the other six with him to Brazil, where he was temporarily on duty.

One might wonder whether he sometimes regrets having assumed the responsibility of conducting such a private orphanage. If so, the answer may be found in his own words: "My orphans are proving themselves an increasing delight."

And it is safe to say that there will not be a Communist or Bolshevik among them when they grow up.

Bears in Yellowstone Park

There are 248 bears in Yellowstone Park, according to a census taken recently under the auspices of the department of the interior, of which 174 are black and brown bears, and 74 are grizzlies. One grizzly mother had four cubs, three mothers had three cubs each, three others had two each. Anyone who disputes these figures may count them for himself, a job not as dangerous as it would seem, as most of these bears are quite tame, through long contact with rangers and visitors to the park.

Making Pie With a Garden Rake
Making pie with a garden rake is a rather unusual proceeding, but no ordinary kitchen implement could suffice to mix the ingredients of a monster apple pie recently baked in Seattle in celebration of Apple Week. The pie contained a ton of apples, 200 pounds of flour and 100 pounds of sugar. Under the circumstances the use of a rake was highly appropriate and necessary.

Tiers Make a Hit

Belt

For no good reason we are somehow surprised to find tiers anywhere but in a skirt, much as we are vaguely disturbed to see a canary outside of a birdcage. But we see at once from the charming and unusual frock above that tiers have decisively made no mistake in moving up. The straight skirt, plaited on the left side in the newest manner, is attached to a bodice top, as are also the two tiers above the belt. The short upper part of the frock hangs over this, giving a clever combined effect of a third tier and of a bolero. The frock is here made in crepe satin with the shiny side used for the bindings of cuff, belt, tiers and smart V neck, and also for the gay little bow. (Copyright, 1927, by Butterick)

FIFTH ARIZONA EGG LAYING CONTEST SURPASSES RECORD

(By Harry Embleton, Supervisor)

The final results of the Fifth Arizona Egg Laying Contest are by far the best ever obtained in any previous Arizona egg laying contest, and will rank well up with any in the United States.

The entire contest averaged 214 eggs per bird, which is 58.7 per cent production. This is 2.3 per cent better than the results obtained in last year's contest.

The winning pen, owned by A. C. Wrenn of Florence, Arizona, laid 2734 eggs. The pen included ten birds, while means that each bird laid 273 eggs during the 365-day period. The highest pen in any of the contests in the United States laid but 3 eggs per bird more than did this pen. The best pen in any Arizona contest had averaged 252 eggs prior to the fifth contest.

A. C. Wrenn also has the honor of owning the best individual producer. His White Leghorn hen No. 186 laid 319 eggs in 365 days. This is 11 eggs better than the production of the highest bird in last year's contest. Mr. Wrenn also had the second best individual, his White Leghorn hen No. 360 laying 293 eggs.

H. L. Schornick of Tempe owned the best producing pen in the heavy class of birds. His Rhode Island Red pen of 10 birds produced 2355 eggs, an average of 235 eggs per bird, during the 365-day period. He also was the first, third, fourth, and fifth best producing individuals in the heavy class, their production being 280 eggs, 269 eggs, and two with a production of 267 eggs, respectively. John Moer of Tempe owned the second best individual, which produced 272 eggs.

It is interesting to note that the light breeds had a 60.2 per cent production for the year, while the heavy breeds had a 54.1 per cent production.

Fourteen of the 20 pens entered produced an average of 210 eggs for the 12-month period. One hundred nineteen birds of the 194 that finished the contest averaged more than 200 eggs.

The results are more remarkable when it is considered that all breeders entered in this contest are from within the boundaries of Arizona.

Carl Slater of Coolidge had the second and fourth best pens in the contest, while Lee Apel's entry of Meas took third place. H. L. Schornick's entry of Rhode Island Reds took fifth place.

Two of Carl Slater's individuals tied for third place with a production of 281 eggs each. H. L. Schornick's hen No. 19 took fourth place with 280 eggs.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Jury Scandal Causes Mistrial in the Falls-Sinclair Case.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

MISTRIAL in the case against Albert B. Fall and Harry Sinclair in Washington was declared by Justice Siddons and the jury was discharged, because of alleged attempts to fix one or more of the jurors and because they all had been subjected to shadowing by operatives of a detective agency. Both the prosecution and the defense agreed that a continuation of the trial with the present jury was improper. The grand jury immediately began investigation of the matter and it was expected that several indictments would be returned.

The fixing charges were based mainly on seizures made in a raid on a hotel room where 16 Burns detectives assigned to shadow the jurors had had headquarters since the trial started, and on affidavits attributing to one juror, E. L. Kidwell, statements that he would come out of the trial "with a car a block long" and that the jury would not agree on a verdict. The raid disclosed that reports were made daily by the detectives to A. Mason Day, head of the Sinclair Exploration company. Mr. Day refused to testify before the grand jury on the ground that he might incriminate himself. Kidwell, waiving immunity and declaring the charge against him was a "frame up," told his story to the grand jury Fall issued a statement to the effect that neither he nor anyone acting in his behalf had any knowledge of or connection with the alleged attempts to tamper with the jury.

Collapse of the trial came when the government had practically completed its presentation of a strong chain of circumstantial evidence to prove that Sinclair paid Fall $230,500 in Liberty bonds for the Teapot Dome lease and had traced by a score or more of witnesses the passage of the bonds from the treasury of a company in which Sinclair was interested into Fall's bank account. It was thought unlikely that the new trial could begin before January 1, owing to the necessity for reassembling the government's witnesses from all over the country.

SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY MELLON, backed up by Undersecretary Mills, presented to the house ways and means committee his plan for a tax reduction program, making recommendations that would result in a cut of approximately $225,000,000. His specific recommendations were:

A reduction of the tax on corporate income from 13 1/4 to 12 per cent. Amending those provisions of the law that apply to the tax on corporate income so as to permit corporations with net income of $25,000 or less and with not more than ten stockholders to file returns and pay the graduated individual income tax as partnerships at their option.

A readjustment of the rates applicable to individual incomes that fall in the so-called intermediate brackets, the effect of which would be to cut taxes for all persons with net incomes of $18,000 and more.

On succeeding days the committee heard from various business groups which urged a more extensive tax reduction than Mr. Mellon recommended, and from agriculture, as represented by the American Farm Bureau federation, objecting to even so much of a cut as favored by the treasury and advocating applying surplus funds instead to the retirement of the public debt. The majority of the committee seemed in favor of the Mellon program.

AGRICULTURAL leaders from the corn belt and the Southwestern states held a two-day conference in St. Louis and before adjourning adopted resolutions strongly indorsing the McNary-Haugen farm relief measure and condemning every one who opposed it. Those attacked by name were President Coolidge and Senators Borah of Idaho, Bruce of Maryland, Reed of Missouri and Fess of Ohio. Presidential possibilities were freely discussed by the speakers, and though no one was named as the farmers' choice, the name of Frank O. Lowden was frequently and warmly applauded. There was talk of a third party, but it was not mentioned in the resolutions.

Besides asking for the passing of the McNary-Haugen bill or one similar, the conference requested members of the house from the West to "insist upon the adoption of a house rule under which 175 members can by petition take any measure from any committee and place it upon the calendar for a vote." This was an effort to prevent the death of farm legislation in the house.

Demands also were made upon the Republican and Democratic parties to carry out their national platform pledges adopted in 1924, with respect to farm relief.

DWIGHT MORROW, the new ambassador to Mexico, seems to be making a good start toward settling amicably the troubles between that country and the United States, and President Coolidge shows a disposition to do all he can to assist in the process. One day last week Calles took Mr. Morrow out to his hacienda at Los Reyes for a breakfast of ham and eggs and they were said to have spent several hours discussing the most serious questions in American-Mexican relations. Mr. Morrow's exceeding good humor on his return to the capital indicated that the negotiations started suited him, and it was said he and the President would have other informal conferences. It is understood in Mexico City that the ambassador will undertake to negotiate a new treaty of amity and commerce to replace the one rescinded several months ago. Many Americans already have presented to him matters which have been pending since the departure of former Ambassador Sheffield.

AFTER a fight of several years to adjust salaries so they would be proportionate to expenses, the Southern Pacific railroad has won a victory before a Mexican federal arbitration committee, which will prevent workmen from tying up the operations of the company.

The committee issued a decree declaring the strike of the Bolshevik railway union at Empalme, where the Southern Pacific has its large shops, to be illegal and ordering the men to resume work within three days or be dismissed. The decree also applied to the shops at Mazatlan. It authorized the reduction of the working week in the shops to five days of eight hours each.

GOVERNOR ADAMS of Colorado sternly warned the striking coal miners out there that they must cease picketing under penalty of arrest, so the I. W. W. leaders who are conducting the strike decided to abandon the illegal practice. For it they substituted the holding of mass meetings of the idle men near the mine shafts at the times when workers were coming off shift. The operators and citizens objected to this as merely another form of picketing, which would intimidate the miners who wished to work, but at this writing the governor had not stated what action he would take, further than to say that he does not yet contemplate issuing an order calling out the National Guard. In the southern field the operators said many men were returning to work.

JAPAN started off the week with a review of the entire naval forces of the empire by the emperor in Yokohama bay. On board the great battleship Mutsu, the ruler passed through eight long lines of 172 vessels, ranging from superdreadnoughts to submarines and hospital ship and including the new airplane carrier Akagi, displacing 27,000 tons. No planes took off from the latter, but swarms of them from the Yokohama base flew over the fleet.

Comparisons showed that since the Washington treaty of 1922 the fleet is less powerful for offense, but is stronger and more efficient in everything except capital ships and is well adapted to its task of defending the empire. Its light cruiser strength has increased from 127,000 tons to 195,000 tons.

The British government, according to the London Daily News, is soon to let contracts for eighteen naval vessels which will cost more than $55,000,000. These are to include nine destroyers, three cruisers and six submarines. This is part of the greatest British program of warship building since the armistice.

ALL records for traffic and tolls on the Panama canal were broken in October. There were 567 transits, and the amount collected was approximately $2,360,000. These figures do not include naval vessels. Congressman Madden of Chicago has been inspecting the canal and announces that work will begin as soon as possible on the Alhajuela basin project, which will create additional water storage of about 22,300,000,000 cubic feet. This will cost $10,000,000, and when it is completed an additional lock at each lock station will be built at a cost of about $100,000,000.

While not openly severing relations with the Nationalist government, the Canton group declares itself the highest Kuomintang authority and issues an invitation to other Kuomintangists interested in the establishment of civilian rule and not dominated by militarists, to go to Canton and ally themselves with the Canton regional administration.

CHICAGO mourned last week the loss of one of the city's most eminent men, John J. Mitchell, banker and philanthropist. He and Mrs. Mitchell were killed in an automobile accident. Other notable victims of death were Maximilian Harden, German editor and foe of the former kaiser; Archbishop J. G. Hardy of Omaha; John Luther Long, author and playwright; Miss Elizabeth Harrison, pioneer in kindergarten work, and Florence Mills, negro theatrical star, who had become so popular in the United States and Europe.

TERRIFIC storms swept the coasts of Great Britain and Ireland and scores of persons, mostly fishermen, were drowned. The property damage was heavy, being estimated at nearly $30,000,000.

Final figures of the loss in the sinking of the steamer Princess Mafalda off the coast of Brazil put the number at 314. Of the first-class passengers 55 per cent perished; of the officers, 45 per cent. The crew lost only 16 per cent of its members.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE is making plans for his trip to Cuba to attend the Pan-American congress that opens in Havana January 16. He has named Charles Evans Hughes to be head of the American delegation, the other members being: Ambassador Fletcher and Ambassador Morrow, who will come, respectively, from Rome and Mexico City for the meeting; former Senator Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama; Morgan J. O'Brien, lawyer of New York; James Brown Scott, author of several books on international law; Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Leland Stanford university, and Dr. L. S. ## Slaughter of Whales Has Brought Protest

Wholesale slaughter of whales by Norwegian fleets in the Ross sea is being protested by naturalists and scientists of Australia and New Zealand, who say that continuation of the practice will mean the extinction of whales.

A proposal to call an international convention to regulate the killing is being considered.

It is reported that two Norwegian ships operating from Stewart Island in the Ross sea in the latter part of 1926 and the early months of 1927 captured 700 whales, yielding $2,500,000 worth of oil, and that another ship, with Hobart as its base, took about 50,000 barrels of whale oil to Norway.

It is estimated that 1,500 whales were killed in the last year. The territory is under the jurisdiction of New Zealand, which receives a royalty on the oil.

Satin Frock for Afternoon Wear

ULIA BOTTOMLEY

The new satin frocks are adorable—each one more winsome than the one before in the record so far this season. In its fashioning the spirit of "beauty unadorned is adorned the most" impels the stylist to set forth the loveliness of satin by letting it be a self-trim sufficient unto itself. So it is that satin in the new modes glimmers and gleams in all its natural

Celery Fritters With Lamb

With cooler weather one may think again of hotter and richer food than has been served during the warm summer months. Fritters in any form must be served piping hot, and because of the deep fat in which they are fried, they add considerably to the richness of the meal. These celery fritters, for which the bureau of home economics supplies the recipe, would be particularly good with a menu consisting of cold sliced lamb and spinach. A fruit dessert would be good.

2 cups celery, finely cut
1 egg
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup milk
1/2 cup oil

Sift together the flour, salt and baking powder, add the beaten egg and milk, then the celery. Fry by spoonfuls in a well-buttered skillet. Drain on absorbent paper, and serve hot.

Clothes for the Stout Woman

The woman who is somewhat inclined to stoutness, especially if she has white or gray hair, needs to give very careful attention to the selection of her clothes with a view to emphasizing her dignity and correcting the appearance of size. She must avoid fussy styles, lines crossing the figure horizontally, shiny fabrics, vivid colors, large patterns, tight belts, and short skirts. In these two illustrations of the same person posed by the United States Department of Agriculture, the desirable dress has long vertical lines from shoulder to hem, made by the flat plaits and the long flat tie, the plain set-in sleeves, and the correct length of the skirt. The distance of the hemline from the floor is appropriate for a woman of heavy build. The material is gray crepe relieved only by the simple groups of buttons and varicolored banding on the collar.

In the other dress there is a mistake in every detail. The dark blue satin is combined with a large figured chiffon. The shiny satin seems to make the figure stouter than it actually is. Belting it in at the waist brings out the fullness of the bust and hips need-lessy, and interferes with the air, making the general impression one of untidiness. The large puffy kimono sleeves are inappropriate on fleshy arms and by wearing the skirt so short, a ridiculous chopped-off appearance is given to the figure.

beauty. Unburdened by superfluous trimming details, it achieves distinction through artful drapes and folds and circular treatments.

Just now interest centers about the modish chestnut brown colorings for satin. For her autumn afternoon frock that charming screen actress, Barbara Worth, chooses satin in this very shade. The picture herewith shows Miss Worth gowned to perfection—a study in chestnut brown. Note the exquisite simplicity of this little model. Concerning the lace at throat and wrists, "a touch of lace" for the velvet or satin frock is inevitable this season, according to the dictate of the mode.

At luncheon and afternoon tea the smartest women are wearing dresses of black crepe satin made along conspicuously simple lines. These are frequently developed with slightly bloused lines and side draperies, sometimes caught with a metal ornament.

Not infrequently one glimpses a beige satin frock in the assemblage of society's fairest. A bit of gold in the way of a belt or bracelet and necklace usually shines resplendently forth on either the beige or black satin gown.

The same simplicity of styling which characterizes the satin frock is repeated in the handbag of the new simple moire silks, these, by the way, coming in to divide honors with velvets and satins.

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A filling for brown bread sandwiches is a layer of cream cheese and one of prepared mustard.

It is not necessary to make ice cream to give the family a "cool treat," for sherbets and ices are good, too.

Hot Lunch for School Children

Serving Hot Lunch Cafeteria Style.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

It has been found that children who must go some distance to school and either carry lunch from home or get part or all of it at school are much better off when at least one hot dish is provided, such as soup or cocoa, or an entire hot meal, usually served cafeteria style. Not only do the children feel better and do better work in the afternoon session when they have had hot food for lunch, but in many instances the food provided at the school is a valuable lesson in food selection. In some instances the preparation of it is turned over to the older girls, so that it becomes a part of their home economics training. In other cases various mothers take turns in coming to the school to prepare the lunch. Still another plan is for the children to bring their own food ready for heating and to appoint several children to help the teacher in doing so.

In practically all cases the children gradually absorb ideas about food selection and preparation, and often this is the entering wedge to a better knowledge of food in the child's home, and to greater interest in the subject of nutrition. The relation between good health and the right food is brought out when the school lunch is properly directed and planned by a group or committee. Cleanly habits of eating are learned, too, and the children are usually better off when lunching in an orderly way under supervision than when left to their own devices.

The United States Department of Agriculture suggests that in communities which do not at present have a hot dish at the school lunch, a group of mothers might get together and see how the matter could be arranged. If the children are to pay for what they get, rather than bring the food, the price charged must be within the reach of all, usually only the cost of materials and fuel.

ORANGE, LEMON SHERBET IS REFRESHING DRINK

Orange or lemon sherbet is easy to make and very refreshing as a seasonable dessert. Pure fruit juice should be used in making it. The bureau of home economics gives the recipe below:

Orange Sherbet.
1 1/2 cups orange juice
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/4 teaspoonful salt
2 cupfuls milk and
1 cupful cream or 3 cupfuls rich milk
2 tablespoonfuls lemon juice

Heat one cupful of milk and add the sugar. Stir until the sugar is dissolved. Add the other ingredients. Use a freezing mixture of one part salt and four to six parts of ice, and turn the crank of the freezer slowly. After freezing, remove the dasher, pack the freezer with more ice and salt, and let the sherbet stand for an hour to ripen in flavor.

Lemon sherbet may be made in this same way by omitting the orange juice, and using enough lemon juice to give the desired flavor.

Train the Children Not to Waste Food

Family prejudices about foods may defeat the most earnest efforts to set an economical table. Sensible training when children are little will prevent the formation of many of these prejudices. Even if adults do have faulty food habits, they can often be reasoned out of them.

Get everybody in the family to see the need for economy and to recognize the fact that no good food should be wasted after it once enters the kitchen. The high cost of the table is sometimes traceable to the full garbage pail. Admit that some flavors are more tempting than others, but convince the family that there is now such a wide variety of acceptable flavors that each one can be pleased a large part of the time. Show them that in selecting foods to the market you have to be guided by what is available, by what will be different from yesterday's menu, and tomorrow's, too, and most important of all, by what will make up a balanced diet.

KIDDIE BEDTIME STORY

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Theresa was ten. She loved stories and there were many stories which she wanted to hear and she had many ideas of the subjects about which she wanted to hear.

But first on her list was Dreamland. She wanted to hear about "dreamtime stories of little boys and girls."

Now the Dreamland King heard of this and it made him very happy. "I've been in the Dream business for a good many years," he said, "and I am glad to hear how the customers still want to be served.

"I wouldn't want the Dream business to become too quiet, for though I send out the dreams when the customers are quiet I don't want the business itself to become too quiet.

"Oh, no, I don't want that to happen at all. "I want to keep the customers happy and satisfied and pleased."

So the Dreamland King was very much pleased about this new customer and the first thing he did was to get hold of Fairy Wondrous Secrets. "Fairy Wondrous Secrets," he said, "how are your workers? Are they too busy to help me?"

"Never too busy to help you, Dreamland King," said Fairy Wondrous Secrets.

So the Dreamland King came down from his favorite cloud, where he reclines and rests and sends his beautiful dreams, yes, he came down from Sleepy Cloud and talked to Fairy Wondrous Secrets.

"I'd like some of the finest dreams wrapped up—and I'd like to have some of the wonderful secrets you have to give put in with the dreams.

"I'd like to have some of those secrets of happiness you have in large supply. I'd like some of those secrets of fun and joy and love and affection. "I'd like lots of your help, you see."

So the Fairy Wondrous Secrets got to work where they kept all the wonderful secrets they had to give.

And they did up the loveliest and most beautiful of secrets and then the Dreamland King went back to his Sleepy Cloud and sent out the packages by means of the night workers of the Breeze and Wind Company.

Into the rooms of little girls, into the rooms of little boys, went the beautiful secrets and the wonderful dreams.

Oh, the dreams that were there! Dreams of great journeys, dreams of wonderful adventures, dreams of gorgeous parades, dreams of beautiful music, dreams of fascinating fairies and magical trips, dreams of gardens filled with flowers, dreams of everything that any one could imagine.

And the Dreamland King smiled to himself as he heard the report of the night workers of the Breeze and Wind Company as they came back.

They all said the children had looked so happy as the dreams had been wuffed to them and as the packages of wonderful secrets had been scattered in their rooms.

They had smiled as they slept, so the night workers of the Breeze and Wind Company said.

And the old Dreamland King closed his eyes then and slept, for his great dream of the evening had once more come true.

The dreams that he had sent had been liked and enjoyed and even loved!

FOODS THE FAMILY WILL LIKE

By NELLIE MAXWELL

A hot soup is always a welcome dish for luncheon or supper. There are such numbers from which to choose that we may have a different one for every day.

Chicken Soup With Rice.—Remove all the meat from the bones of roast fowl and cover the bones with cold water. Simmer for two hours, add a bit of celery and onion. Add one cupful of cooked rice to the minced meat and pound together to a pulp. Strain the broth and stir into this the rice and meat. Bring to the boiling point and add one cupful of cream or the same of milk and a beaten egg; season to taste and serve at once.

Boiled Tongue With Spanish Sauce.—Cook the tongue as usual and serve after removing the skin, with the following sauce: Take two tablespoonfuls of butter, one of olive oil, a half teaspoonful of salt, one chopped onion, one clove of garlic also chopped, one-half a green pepper chopped; brown all together and add a pint of tomatoes, season well and serve.

Braised Calf's Liver.—Make small slits with a knife in the liver and insert small strips of bacon, using two ounces of bacon to a pound of liver. At the same time add a bit of minced onion. Brown three tablespoonfuls each of fat and flour and lay in the liver, roll until well seared in the fat and flour. Place in a hot casserole, add a sliced carrot, a bit of bay leaf, salt, one-half cupful of strained tomato, a cupful of hot water or stock and bake two and one-half hours.

Scalloped Tomato and Green Pepper.—Measure tomato and take half the bulk in crumbs. Melt one-fourth of a cupful of butter, take two tablespoonfuls and mix in a saucepan with a slice of onion thinly sliced and one-half of a sliced green pepper; stir and cook until softened. To the melted butter add one cupful of crumbs, stirring until well blended, add the onion and pepper and mix well. Arrange the tomatoes and prepared crumbs in a baking dish, sprinkling each layer with salt and pepper. Cover with buttered crumbs and bake 20 minutes.

Medford Steak.—Pound round steak with a wooden potato masher until thin. Cut into small pieces, lay on a bit of bacon and a little chopped onion; season well, roll and tie up. Put into a baking dish with enough water to keep from burning and bake one hour. Veal is very good cooked this way, using milk instead of water. Thicken the gravy and pour around the meat.

When the meat allowance is small, peas, beans and lentils will take their place and may be used with such foods as beets, cabbage or turnips.

Costly to Railroads

In 1926 the railroads of the country paid more than $8,000,000 in settlement of claims for damage to fresh fruit and vegetables in transit. This amounted to an average of nearly $8 a car, while damage claims on all other commodities averaged about 50 cents a car.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwinski of 526 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and run-down that she was not able to do her household work. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. ## CHAPTER IX—Continued

"A home . . . a home!" repeated the other, moody eyes on the pipe which he rubbed in his broad palm. "It doesn't mean anything to me, John."

"Yes, I know," and Skene looked pityingly at his chief. Then voices on deck straightened them in their chairs. A sailor thrust his head through the door of the cabin.

"There's an Injun, here with some news."

"Send him down!" The Cree interpreter entered the cabin, followed by a hunter whose face was alive with excitement, as he chattered to the Cree.

"What's on his mind, Michel?" demanded McDonald.

Shutting off with upraised hand the stream of Cree from the mouth of the Indian, the interpreter replied: "Joe Mokoman sees dead!"

"What?" McDonald rasped. "Dead? How do you mean? Killed?"

"Found dead on de Canoe Riviere, wid hees 'tread ripped out."

"Well, I'll be d—d! Who found him? This bird?"

"No, he see some Cree crossin' ice at de Beeg point—day tell him."

With a quick movement, McDonald reached and drew the interpreter to him. "You say some of the Indians are crossing to the mainland?"

"For a space the harsh phonetics of the Cree tongue filled the cabin."

"At Beeg point, yesterday, he see many dog-team from de nord' cross de ice. A Canoe Riviere hunter say he fin' Mokoman dead in snow by riviere shore."

"But where's old Souci? Didn't he make his medicine on the Canoe?"

"Yes, he say Souci mak' beeg medicine two sleep back—all de hunter eed nord of island' come."

"Good! Souci is bringing them down the coast."

But as the interpreter continued to interrogate the Indian his eyes widened in surprise, which swiftly gave way to consternation. Turning excitedly, he cried: "Souci tell dem Cree dat de devil ees een de ship here! He scare dem crazee—tak' dem all ovr de ice to Elkwan!"

McDonald and Skene were on their feet. "What?" roared the free-trader. "He's taken them — to Elkwan? Stunned, the white men sought each other's faces."

"Souci, he come here to fool us," went on Michel. "He work all tam' for de Hudson's Bay."

"Whipped!" And McDonald's bulk slid limply into his chair.

"The old beggar! He fed it to us like a lot of schoolboys!" spluttered Skene, wagging his grizzled head. "He sure put it over in style."

"Played like a pair of fish!" McDonald suddenly brightened. "Skene, for two cents I'd cross the ice and get that fur. It's ours—they stole it."

Skene looked hard into the blue eyes of his chief. "First, we'd have a handsome row to get it, that man with the scar, and his half-breed will fight; second, the police would be up here before we were out of the ice. Foolish talk!"

McDonald's twisted features relaxed. "You're right, John, right. It can't be done. We've got too much at stake."

Skene looked suggestively at his chief, as he added: "We have—and you have."

The other shifted his gaze as he muttered. "Yes—that's only too true."

"But Mokoman! What'd you say happen'd to him?" Skene asked Michel.

"He was killed by de dog—hees 'tread tore."

"Killed by his own dogs—queer! Might have been wolves."

"No, de dog follow shoe tracks back to de trail. No wolf do dat."

"Well, so much for Mokoman! Small loss—never liked him."

"Does he know how much fur they had—these hunters who crossed?" asked the mate.

"They have mooch fur—bout one funder skin."

"Half of it silver and black, probably. A small fortune! H—h!" In his chagrin Skene crashed his hand flat on the table.

"You're a judge of men, John. That fellow sure licked us." McDonald admitted ruefully. "Now we've got no time to lose with the southern hunters."

"—Michel!"

The Cree leaned to hear the whisper of the free-trader. "You keep this Indian on the boat—fill him up and lock him in, forward. If he got loose among the southern camps with this devil talk, they'd follow the others. Breakout ought to know, but the Lord knows where he is."

Shortly two dog-teams left the ship bound for the camps in the south half of the island in a mad rush to save the skins yet untraded.

The Christmas mail from Albany was approaching on the river trail below Elkwan. From the upper Elkwan and the Shamattawa, from the Wink and the Raft, for days the hunters had drifted in to the post, dog harness gay with colored worsted and jingling with bells. There old Souci, elated by his stratagem and proud of the praise which Garth had given unstintingly in the privacy of his tent, had led the Akimiski hunters to their valuable fur-packs. In the trade-room Garth and Etienne were busy preparing for the trade which had not yet begun, for an Indian makes a ceremony of his Christmas visit to a post and in contrast to the speed with which he pushes his dogs over the river trails on the way in, is the deliberation with which he proceeds to barter his hunt when he has reached the fur post.

It was a happy pair that were opening bundles of blankets, getting out sugar and flour, tea and tobacco, from the store-room—filling the shelves with the trade-goods of the company.

"Ah-hah! 'Wat goin' on out dere?" Etienne looked from a window. "De mail ees comin'!" he cried, and slipping on his parka, went out followed by Garth.

The Albany mail! Garth Guthrie's thoughts were a medley of surmises, questions, hopes. Letters from home! There would be little for his family—Ethel, that would bring cheer to an exile's Christmas. But the letter which a girl on the moonlit shore of the Albany had promised to send him—had she remembered? As he passed the tips on his way to the chattering people on the shore, his heart was quick with expectation—hope. After the disappointment—reproach, of home letters, the letter from Joan Quarrier would come like the sun breaking through the cloud canopy of the bay. But if she had forgotten? As he joined Etienne and Marie, the possibility of there being no letter on the sled behind the four Ungava huskies galloping in to Elkwan to the shouts of the Crees, made him set his finger nails in the palm of his hands.

Up at his quarters, the little Christmas spruce waited on a table—for her letter—his Christmas. Should it wait in vain?

In the trade-room Garth opened the mail bag with nervous fingers. Clara's familiar hand, company mail from Cameron, two from Ethel, pale blue—He heard the hammering of his heart as he fumbled for, and drew out, the last envelope in the bag. One from an old army friend, another from his colonel, a third! Slowly he slid the folded paper from the one beneath—the last, as he doubtfully shook his head, numb with disappointment.

He looked! A strange hand—a woman's! Hers! She had kept her word to the exile.

In his joy Garth sought the privacy of the rear of the counter to read Joan Quarrier's letter. Then he remembered. He had said it was to hang from the tree, to be read last, on Christmas day. Tucking it into the shirt beneath his coat, he put the others in a pocket and joined Etienne and the hungry dog-runner, who waited for Marie's dinner.

After all, it was to be a happy Christmas. A trade beyond his hopes; triumph over the schooner which lay thirty miles away over the ice—and word from the girl who faced so dauntlessly with those unwavering dark eyes. A Merry Christmas for Garth Guthrie, come what might from Charlie and Clara—and Ethel. From Ethel, what?

On Christmas eve he stood in his living room with old Anne, before the little spruce, brave with worsted and colored paper and bits of lighted candle. On the tree hung colored bags and at its foot were small parcels tied with gaudy Christmas ribbon. On the topmost twig was a letter.

"You told them, Anne?" he asked the grinning squaw, proud in her best wool dress, her raven hair coquettishly circled by a huge pink ribbon—a gift of Garth's, cherished for ceremonies like the present.

"Ah-hah," chuckled the faithful Cree. "Dey come soon, now. Marie, she rub dem chil's face till dey shine lak de moon."

Garth paced the floor, his lean, dark face beaming in anticipation. Then laughter, giggles, shouts of children, followed by stern reproof in a woman's voice, announced the arrival of the guests, the eight Savanues.

Garth and Shot simultaneously sprang to the door to welcome the comely Marie, leading her excited brood of six, with the grinning Etienne as rear guard.

"Merry Christmas, Marie! Jean! Yvonne!" he cried, fairly dragging the giggling and embarrassed children into the house. "Ah, Monsieur Etienne Savanue, friend of McDonald! Ha! Ha! Is also with us tonight."

With his audience seated, Garth proceeded to divide the gifts he had ordered the previous year from lower Canada. For each of the children was a bag of candy, which was opened with wide-eyed curiosity and grins of delight. And, as the sweet tooth of grown-ups is also highly developed in the North, Marie and Anne, who had not been forgotten, swiftly evidenced their appreciation of good candy by joining the children in their munching.

Then the toys in packages marked with the children's names were given out. There remained a dress each for Marie and Anne, and a Ross sporting rifle for the delighted Etienne.

In the heart of the Santa Claus of Elkwan, the pleasure lighting the dark faces of his friends at his unexpected gifts reacted manifold. Besides, at the top of the tree, his own Christmas waited his eager eyes.

When with much bustle and chatter his friends returned to their cabin and old Anne left him, Garth sat down to read the letters from home. The first opened was his brother's, which ran as follows:

"If I had been told that my own brother was to disgrace himself as you have seen fit to do up there on James bay, I should have knocked down the liar who said it. We understand now your strange refusal to return home, your indifference to Ethel and the business. Professor Quarrier has given me the whole shameful story. A white woman would have been bad enough—but a squaw! Pah!"

Guthrie's lean face set hard as he read the first lines. Slowly the blood pushed up under the wind-burned skin.

"A white woman would have been bad enough—but a squaw!" Reading no further, he crushed the letter in his hand and let it fall.

"Poor Linda!"

The letter from Clara was a medley of hysteria, reproach, and unmistakable evidence of a sincere affection for her erring brother-in-law. His eyes softened as he followed the misguided woman's effort to appeal to his sentimentality to his old love for Ethel.

"Of course she knows, Garth. That Quarrier man spend it all over town. But I am sure, in spite of it all, she still loves you—would forgive, if you asked her. Oh, Garth! You're the only brother I have, and I've always doted on you. Won't you, for my sake, come back this spring—for your own, for Ethel's sake. I don't know what she's writing you, but you mustn't take it seriously. She's terribly hurt, of course—but I know she'll forget it all, if you come back."

"Poor old Clara," said the man aloud. "Poor, simple Clara! She can't see yet that it's brother Charlie who counts with Ethel, not I."

So Quarrier had had his revenge, Quarrier, her brother. It was not strange after the snubbing he got. But she? What did Joan Quarrier think of the tale her brother had brought to Charles Guthrie?

Then he opened the two letters in the blue envelopes. One was dated a month earlier than the other and he read that first.

"I imagine your life in France," ran the letter, "was similar to that of the last year on James bay. I have learned much of what went on over there. Was it a French girl or an army nurse?"

She had unwittingly hurt him in the only way it was now possible for Ethel Falconer to reach the man who had once loved her. Army nurse! What had Ethel done for Canada to qualify her as a critic of the women who had toiled and dared behind the lines, that stricken men might live?

He read on: "Of course, Garth, this is your answer. I was willing to forget the slight, the neglect, but when we learned how you had been living, my love died. To share your affections with an ignorant, immoral squaw was asking a little too much, Garth."

The man who read laughed outright. "Your love died, my poor child, on the wharf at Quebec, when you saw what the Huns had done to your soldier boy," he said aloud.

"Well, why the postscript?" he went on. "She throws me over in the first letter, horse, foot and dragons; why continue the agony?"

Opening the second envelop, he read: "When I wrote you, Garth, dear, I did not understand that she had died, but Mr. Quarrier tells me that his sister helped nurse her. Of course, it was all a horrible shock, but now that it is over and you may come home, I am willing to forget the past—if you want me to."

Rising in disgust, Guthrie paced the floor. "Merciful heavens! She's willing to forget the past! Poor, shallow, scheming Ethel! Rather than lose brother-in-law Charles, you cry-fish, eat humble-pie, grovel on your knees. 'Was it a French girl or a nurse?' he quoted scathingly. 'Ready to swallow that, too, are you, my dear?'"

Guthrie finished the letter. So Ethel Falconer waited with open arms for the prodigal lover. But, unlike the son of the tale, the prodigal lover was not returning.

Picking up and finishing the crumpled letter of Charles, Garth learned that, inasmuch as he had disgraced the family name and ignored the family wishes, the Guthrie family would proceed to try to forget its black sheep.

With a smile of contempt Garth opened the door of the sheet-iron stove and tossed in the letters. Clara's he would answer—good-hearted, well-meaning, old Clara, who alone had sensed his condition and his unhappiness, on his return home. Then raising his arms and expelling a deep breath of relief, he said: "Thank God, that's over! And now—"

He took the letter of Joan Quarrier from the tree and eagerly opened it.

"Dear Mr. Exile: 'Have you kept your promise? Is this the last letter to be read? I wish you a very happy Christmas, but just how that would be possible up there on your frozen west coast is difficult to imagine. However, I hope you will not be lonely with thoughts of home and what you have so stubbornly turned from.'"

Garth's brows knotted in thought. "Of course," he surmised, "she must know about Ethel since her brother had met Charles—had heard of the engagement and his strange actions. But if she thought him still engaged, why did she write?"

Joan continued: "My winter has been an active one, working in a school for homeless children. Poor things! They need all one can give them. It has not been as uninteresting as it sounds. Everything is so new and strange."

"But you, when are you coming back to your kind, Mr. Exile? You must be wonderfully well after two years—and they are still waiting for you."

"Again my deepest gratitude for your hospitality to the shipwrecked."

Garth finished the letter with a groan of disappointment. "She's heard a fine tale from the family, and her brother's version wouldn't help it any," he muttered. "Doesn't speak of meeting them, though. She, in a school for homeless children—"

It was evident to Guthrie from the reserved tone of Joan Quarrier's letter that she had heard of his engagement to Ethel, and it was also quite clear that she was ignorant of the color of the story Quarrier had retailed to Charles. To this, he realized, Joan Quarrier would give instant and flat denial but she was not even in Montreal—would never meet the Guthries. And after all, what did it matter? He was through with them—his smug brother, and the girl who had lost him when she stared in horror at his scarred cheek that day when the Royal Mounties came home.

He replaced the letter in the pocket of his shirt to be reread again and again with increasing disappointment—chagrin. He had hoped for something more personal—something of the Joan Quarrier he had known for five short days in September. But it was evident that she thought the factor of Elkwan not a free man. Well, he was now. Quarrier had done him an unintentional kindness in that lie—had forced Ethel's hand. Now he, Garth, could accept her release. Then what?

Far into the night Guthrie sat and smoked, but when he blew out the candle, he was no nearer a solution of his problem. Joan Quarrier had been right when she feared that a lonely Christmas awaited the exile at Elkwan. It did—a Christmas gray because a thousand miles of forest separated Garth Guthrie from a girl whose hair the moon once touched with silver dust on the cliffs of the Albany.

Linemen Wear Big Shoes at the University of Illinois

Lloyd Burdick, Illinois Sophomore Tackle.

Football shoes worn by linemen at the University of Illinois average one to two sizes larger than the footgear of the backs. Despite the constant wall that the "foot" is being legislated out of football, the size and formation of a gridman's feet are most important.

The uncanny ability of Red Grange to keep his feet in spite of mud, tacklers and critical angles is attributed in great part to the fact that he had well-proportioned feet. He wore a size 8 3/4-D football shoe.

The biggest feet on the squad belong to Lloyd Burdick, sophomore tackle from Assumption. He wears a 12-EE shoe ordered specially. Gordon, Burdick's sophomore tackle mate, and Les Harriner, veteran lineman, require size 11, while Hubbes Mitterwaller wears a half size smaller.

Blair French, quarterback, wearing a 7-D shoe, while Jud Timm, Idaho halfback, wears a 7 1/2. Frank Walker's pedal extremities require shoes a size larger and Mills takes a 9. Butch Nowack, fullback, wears a 10-E, but Butch was a lineman in high school and during his first two years in college.

The largest shoes issued in the memory of Ben Crackle, veteran steward of the Illinois supply room, were size 13 1/2, given to a freshman candidate who tasted only a couple of weeks.

Vincent Richards is professional tennis champion of the United States, in which role he will attract nearly as much attention as the champion horsehoe pitcher, whoever he is.

Johnny Hennessey, the Indianapolis youth, has caused American net hopes for 1928 to rise with his brilliant victory over Henry Cochet, great French ace, in national tennis play.

Among the leading institutions who have obtained the services of rugby experts to teach their football squads in the use of the lateral pass are Harvard, Notre Dame and Rutgers.

The lowest percentage ever recorded by a team in the major leagues at the end of a season's play is that of the Cleveland Nationals, who finished the 1880 campaign with a mark of 129.

Game Fishermen Turned to Battling Swordfish

Battling the swordfish in its native haunts has become the favorite diversion of game fishermen at Honolulu, following several large-sized catches recently.

The favored fishing grounds for the fighters are the warm waters just off the Kona coast of the Island of Hawaii. Parties of Honolulu fishermen who made the pilgrimage have come back with large catches and larger stories about the battles waged from the decks of the fishing boats.

The most spectacular catch was made a short time ago when Davis O. True, a tourist from Chicago, succeeded in landing a 175-pound swordfish following his first attempt at big game fishing. True, who had done considerable trout and bass fishing on the mainland, was lured by the stories of local fishermen regarding the fiery fights put up by swordfish.

Won't Fight Indoors

Tex Rickard and Jack Dempsey have emerged from a business huddle with the announcement that the former heavyweight champion will not do any fighting for Rickard this winter. Rickard said that Dempsey is too good an attraction to be wasted on indoor bouts, and that he had just about reconsidered altogether his plan to send the Manassa Mauler against a half dozen or so aspirants.

Thinkers Have Ever Seen Trouble Ahead

We are all more or less nervous at times—especially when something goes wrong with us—about what is going to happen to the human race. The psychiatrists are particularly apprehensive. Dr. Max Shlapp, for instance, told the Academy of Medicine, at New York that he feared that the whole race of tomorrow would either be grossly damaged or lowered in general efficiency as a result of the high tension lives we lead—though, to be sure, all of us don't lead that kind of lives. "Twas ever thus. Greece saw trouble ahead; so did Rome. Those who watched the moths flutter round the Louis XIV candle in France were gravely apprehensive, and so were those who frowned on the gables of the court of Charles II in England. Trouble was ahead then as it is now. Some pretty bad messes followed, but humanity survived, and, on the whole improved. But trouble is always ahead. We never catch up with the direst of it. Surely there is comfort in the thought that the worst is yet to come—and probably will never get here.—Indianapolis News.

"The Father of American Artillery"

THE NEW STATUE OF KOSCIUSZKO by Theo Ruggles Kitson

T. Kosciuszko.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ALL the events in 1927 which have marked the one hundred fiftieth anniversary of the critical year of the Revolution, few have commemorated more appropriately the world-wide significance of the American struggle for freedom than those in which the name of Thaddeus Kosciuszko has figured.

His name and fame were revived last summer when press dispatches carried the news that the bronze urn containing the heart of this Polish patriot and friend of American freedom had been reclaimed by his native land. They were revived at the Saratoga celebration in New York last month when a horse was paid, among others, to this youth whose organizing work won for him the title of "Father of American Artillery," and who selected and planned the fortification of Bemis Heights which had such an important part in Burgoyne's defeat.

It was at the Saratoga celebration, too, that there was launched a nationwide campaign among teachers and school children of America to raise funds for the endowment of a scholarship, to be known as "The George Washington Scholarship of the Kosciuszko Foundation," which will provide $30,000 for the education alternately of a student from Poland at an American university and of an American student at a Polish university. Thus will be perpetuated not only the oft-repeated wish of Kosciuszko, "Let us give our children a good education with the virtues of justice and honor," but also the memory of the splendid friendship between him and the leader of the Continental army, who once declared "to his care and sedulous appreciation, the American people are indebted for the defense of West Point." For it was Kosciuszko who planned the fortifications on the Hudson and who, when it was later decided to found a training school for future American officers, urged that West Point be chosen as the site.

But most impressive of all the events which have served to recall the name of Kosciuszko was the celebration on October 16 when a new statue of him was unveiled in the Public Garden in Boston. The statue was the gift to Boston of the Polish people of New England, who raised a fund of $25,000 for that purpose, and on that day more than 15,000 Americans of Polish ancestry marched in the parade, at the head of which were carried both the Stars and Stripes and the national colors of Poland, to the site of the statue where the unveiling and dedication took place in the presence of many distinguished guests.

This memorial is the work of Mrs. Theo. A. Ruggles Kitson of Framingham, Mass., noted for her own sculptured pieces, including "The Volunteer" at Newburyport, Mass., another at Vicksburg, Miss., the Spanish war student at Minneapolis, Minn., and Schenectady, N. Y., and the Bickerdyke statue at Galesburg, Ill., as well as for the fact that she is the wife of Henry H. Kitson, creator of the "Lexington Minute Men" and the Robert Burns statue in the Fenway.

The date (Sunday, October 16) of the unveiling of this statue was especially significant. It was on October 17, 1917, that the Polish champion, then at the age of seventy-one years, met his death by a fall from his horse, an event which the poet Campbell has made historic with his

Hope for a season bade the world farewell
And Freedom shriek'd as Kosciuszko fell!

The date, however, was selected more particularly because it was on October 18, 1776, that Kosciuszko landed in New York with the French expedition to aid the colonies. So the one hundred fifty-first anniversary of his beginning a new fight for freedom and the one hundred tenth anniversary of the end of his long struggle in the cause of liberty saw a great patriotic gathering to honor him.

The whole career of Kosciuszko was dedicated to the single purpose of human liberty. Like Kosuth, the Hungarian, Lafayette, the Frenchman, and others, he was far in advance of his time. He was born February 12 (the birthday of another great exponent of freedom). In the year 1746, in a remote part of Lithuania. It was at a time when Poland was exhausted by wars, not wars for the betterment of the peoples of Europe, but conflicts between ambitious sovereigns. His father was a man of noble birth and large estates. The young Kosciuszko attended the Jesuit college in his home town and in 1764 entered the corps of cadets in the Royal School of Warsaw. During his vacations at home he talked with the peasants on his father's estate, learned of their discontent and in his mind the seed of protest against tyranny began to grow.

Later he went to France where he studied military engineering, especially fortifications, a study which was to bring him fame. At the age of twenty-eight he returned to Poland to find the family fortunes in the hands of a spendthrift older brother and rapidly disappearing. In the meantime the first partition of Poland had taken place and Polish estate were being confiscated by the Russians, who were overrunning the country. Having heard of the rebellion of the American colonies against the British king, Kosciuszko resolved to cast his lot with them. He arrived in Philadelphia soon after the signing of the Declaration of Independence, having mortgaged his patrimony and borrowed 450 ducats to get there. He seems to have made the acquaintance of Franklin, either in France or after his arrival in Philadelphia, for we next hear of him presenting himself and a letter of introduction from Franklin to His Excellency, George Washington, in October, 1776.

"What can you do?" asked Washington, according to the familiar story. "Try me and we shall see," was Kosciuszko's response. So Washington made him a colonel of engineers and from October, 1776, to April 1777, he was busy fortifying Philadelphia, continuing the work there that he had undertaken before his services had been accepted. Then he joined Gates' army in the North and performed the services at Saratoga and West Point already referred to. Later he was of invaluable assistance to General Greene as chief engineer in the southern campaign, and it is said that Greene's escape from Cornwallis during his memorable retreat was due largely to the work of the Polish officer in constructing pontoon bridges which allowed Greene's army to cross rivers before the British could overtake it.

At the close of the Revolution Kosciuszko returned to his native land and had a prominent part in the stormy times which preceded the second partition of that unhappy country. In his fight for the liberty of his country he was finally wounded in battle and captured by the Russians, who held him prisoner for two years. Then he was released upon his request to visit America once more. After his second visit here he settled down in Paris and then removed to Switzerland, where he was living at the time of the fatal fall from his horse. As he lay dying at Solothurn, Switzerland, he requested that his heart should not be taken back to his country until the day "when Poland was free." So it was removed from his body (which was taken to Cracow and buried in the cathedral there), embalmed and placed in a bronze urn which was kept at Zugzwilf. It remained there until some thirty years ago. Then it was removed to the little chapel of Chateau Rapperswil, near Zurich.

During all these years Poland had been a political football for the powers of Europe. But the end of the World war found it an independent state at last. So the heart of Kosciuszko has gone back to his native land to be placed in the cathedral at Cracow, there to be honored by his countrymen for his struggles in their behalf. And in America, where he also fought for freedom, monuments are being erected, and in his home town in Washington, D. C., at West Point, in Humboldt park in Chicago, and his latest one in Boston stand as constant reminders of the debt we owe to this "great champion of human liberty."

riods of vital energy when the physical and mental capacity is at its height, and it is then that success may reward our undertakings.

Age No Help

The prospective tenant had inspected the bathroom, electric bell, coal cellar, and all the other conveniences of the flat, and expressed himself satisfied.

"Have you any children?" asked the porter.

"I have."

"Then you can't have the flat."

"But you don't understand. My youngest child is thirty years old, married and lives in Australia, and the other two are in America."

"That makes no difference," said the porter. "I have orders not to let this flat to anyone with children."

Beliefs About Moon

The Greeks regarded a full moon as favorable for great enterprises. This belief has a basis of physiological truth, because it is now known that the nervous system is influenced by the lunar cycle. Hence there are pe-

Heavily Charged Wires

High-power electric cables on pole lines carry electricity at pressure up to 220,000 volts and engineers are experimenting with even higher transmission voltages, but the largest underground cable in the world carries 132,000-volt current six miles under a part of Chicago.

Hoist Egg Profits

If you can manage your flock so as to get one-fourth of the year's lay between October first and February first, you'll hoist your profit "way up," say the Ohio Agriculture folks. Seven Ohio farmers who have done that for five years got an average year-around price for their eggs of 38.7 a dozen, compared with 30.5 cents for eight other farmers who sold only 4 per cent of their eggs in the four high-priced months.

Surrounded by Dangers

Before birth the young animal is fairly well protected from shock, injury, and infection. It has practically a uniform temperature, and under normal conditions has an adequate and suitable food supply. But once launched into the world it is surrounded with dangers—infectious organisms; extremes of temperature; the possibilities of inadequate or improper foods; overfeeding, and the presence of actual poisons of many different kinds.

Poisoning Gophers

Gust Bada, Marshall county, Ill., in poisoning pocket gophers, cuts sweet potatoes into cubes about an inch each way, slits them and puts in some strychnine. Then he runs a toothpick through to prevent the potato from coming apart. He makes sure that the poison is on the inside, as Mr. Gopher will detect anything bitter on the outside.

Discourage Foreign Seed

The federal seed staining laws, applying to clover and alfalfa seed, seek to discourage the use of foreign seed. They provide that imported seed not adapted for the United States shall be stained 10 per cent red. Imported seed of known origin, except Canada, but of unknown adaptability shall be stained 1 per cent green. Canadian seed, which is well adapted to this country, shall be stained 1 per cent violet. Some seed grown here is often not good in other parts of this country.

Agricultural Notes

A good rain is half the flock.

A good dairy ration is palatable, abundant, succulent and economical.

Co-operation in selling and co-operation in buying should go hand in hand.

The average annual cost of repairing farm machinery is halved if implements are stored as they should be.

Farming is enough of a gamble as it is. Testing seed corn for germination removes some of the chance for a good corn crop.

Cells which contain furnaces prove poor places for fruit unless the furnace room is tightly separated from the storage compartment.

A survey made in Ohio shows that farmers with an agricultural college education earn $5 for every $1 earned by farmers with a common-school education only.

Don't dig the sod away from the base of the trunk of fruit trees late in the season; the new wood may winter kill because it does not have time to season before cold weather.

Reduced Yields in New Regions

Average Pioneer Not Good Farmer Because of Lack of Experience.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

In American experience new farming regions are likely to be characterized for a generation or two by methods of agriculture which result in gradually reducing yields. The average pioneer is not a good farmer, not because he does not want to be, but partly because he has not the experience and knowledge of his farm and its potentialities in crops under the methods proved best by time and trial, and partly because the abundance and cheapness of land in newly developed regions is not favorable to intensive methods of utilization or careful husbanding of soil resources. Only after this period is past does agriculture in such regions attain a stage of development characterized by increasing yields per acre.

Crop Yields Decline.

This, substantially, is the conclusion reached by R. O. Weltz, of the bureau of agricultural economics, United States Department of Agriculture. He supports this with facts that fly in the face of the common belief that crop yields per acre have been declining as the virgin fertility of the fields has been exhausted. Department statistics show that in 40 years the combined acreage of corn, wheat, oats, and potatoes has been expanded about 52 per cent. The total production of these four crops has increased 77 per cent. This means that a third of the increased production is the result of a better yield per acre.

Eastern Farms Not Worn Out.

Again, contrary to common belief, he finds the figures show that "most of the increases in acre yields have occurred in the older farming regions east of the Mississippi river, thus disproving another erroneous impression that farms in the older areas of the United States in general have become worn out." In the case of corn, Virginia, Maryland, the New England states, Iowa and Minnesota are named as states recording gains of from 6 to 14 bushels in the average yields per acre. Mr. Weltz concludes that in the course of time, as the farming communities become accustomed to the possibilities of their fields, develop suitable strains of plants, learn profitable use of fertilizers and wise crop rotations, that acre yields in the humid northeastern portions of the United States may approach the present standards in northwestern Europe. In the dryer sections of the United States the acre yields will be limited necessarily by the moisture available to the crops.

Way to Control Insects Stored in Small Grains

Small amounts of grains, peas or beans to be kept in storage during the winter may be successfully treated for insect control by using an airtight barrel and pouring about one-half a cupful of carbon disulphid directly on the seeds.

"In using the barrel to treat a small amount of seeds, we must get one that is practically airtight and pour the insecticide directly on the seeds," says C. H. Brannon, extension entomologist at North Carolina State college. "The barrel is filled with grain to within a few inches of the top, and when the carbon disulphid has been poured on, the barrel is covered with a double thickness of heavy wrapping paper to keep in the fumes. If the insects are still to be found in the stored grains after one treatment, another should be given immediately. It is best to keep the paper over the barrel to prevent reinfestation."

This carbon disulphid works best at high temperatures and so the treatment should be given in the middle of the day. The same principle may be applied to large bins holding several bushels of stored grains. Twenty pounds of the carbon disulphid to each 1,000 cubic feet of space will give control. The seeds should be covered with sacks, in this case, to help hold the fumes in the bin.

Mr. Brannon states that this material is highly inflammable and lights should be kept away from treated bins or barrels.

Fall Care Big Factor in Wintering Pigs

Pig growers have found that if fall pigs are given proper care during the last of September, through October, and the early part of November, they are very likely to come through the bad winter weather in good condition and be ready for the early spring market.

Every effort is made to keep the young pigs growing rapidly, explains W. C. Skelley, assistant animal husbandman at the New Jersey Agricultural experiment station. As soon as the pigs begin to take an interest in food other than that provided by the sow a creep is built. This is a small enclosure which allows the pigs to feed by themselves, away from the sow. Corn and tankage is kept before the pigs at all times as this prevents any setback at weaning time. Good fall pasture also is a big help, or, if that is not available, the cuttings of any kind of green stuff are provided to help strengthen the pigs' constitutions.

Winter Protection of Bees Important

Best Windbreak Provided by Patch of Evergreens.

Protection of the hive is a two-sided job since it means not only protection against cold, but also against wind. Apiaries situated where there is a good windbreak will do well. The best windbreak is afforded by evergreens which allow the wind to sift gently through the apary. A slatted fence is good, but solid breaks are inefficient, often diverting the wind without checking its force.

In most localities, the hives should also be packed in some efficient way. Where warm days occur frequently enough to allow the bees to fly, a good packing is given by leaf or straw-filled chicken wire nets, cut to surround the hives on three sides. The packing material should be as thick as possible—at least six or eight inches—and come well up about the hives. A leaf-filled super placed over buttop covering the frame makes a snug top packing. The nets may be tied about the hives with baling wire, crossing the fronts, and attached to staks nailed at the edges of the nets. Hive entrances must be contracted to about two inches.

In colder regions, where long, closed winters are the rule, cellar wintering is preferable—almost necessary sometimes—although some beekeepers in such locations succeed in wintering out-of-doors.

Feed the syrup while still warm in feeders which may be inverted over the frames and surrounded by burlap or other material to keep the heat in. An empty super serves as a chamber for the feeders and allows the closing of the hive. The best all-purpose feeder is a five-pound, friction-top pail, with small nail holes punched in the cover.

HOSEA PREACHES GOD'S LOVE

LESSON TEXT—Hosea 11:1-4, 8, 9; 14:4, 5.

GOLDEN TEXT—I desire mercy and not sacrifice and the knowledge of God more than burnt offerings.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Wonderful Love.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Wonderful Love.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Unchanging Love of God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Loving-Kindness of God.

Hosea's message was primarily to Israel. The nation was outwardly prosperous, for its height of temporal glory was reached in the time of Jeroboam II. (See II Kings 14-20). With this prosperity came luxury, immorality and apostasy. Calf worship and Baal worship were substituted for the worship of God.

1. The Apostasy of Israel (chs. 1-3). Israel's covenant relationship with Jehovah is presented under the figure of a marriage. Their spiritual whoredom is symbolized by the example of an unfaithful wife.

1. The marriage (1:1, 2). Hosea was commanded by God to take an unchaste woman to be his wife. While this was a strange act, yet it was right, for it was commanded by God, and its motive was the elevation of the woman to the prophet's moral plane. It was designed to show God's wonderful condescension and love in entering into covenant relationship with a nation of such immorality. The nation had no more to commend it when God chose it than this unchaste woman when Hosea contracted marriage with her.

2. The unfaithful wife (ch. 2). Notwithstanding the wonderful condescension on the part of the prophet in contracting marriage with this woman, Gomer, the unfaithful wife, departs from him to consort with her former base lovers. This shows Israel's base ingratitude in their departure from God to go after idols. Sore chastisement fell upon her for her unfaithfulness.

3. Illustration of Gomer, the unfaithful wife (ch. 3). This illustrates God's undying love for Israel. The motive governing the prophet's act was love. God's love for Israel is just as real. His grace will not move Him to take back that nation to Himself.

11. God's Love for Israel (Hosea 11:1-4, 8, 9).

1. Its beginning (v. 1). It began when Israel as a nation was in its childhood. God loved the nation even while in Egypt.

2. "Called my son out of Egypt" (v. 1).

God called Israel out of the bondage of Egypt and brought them into Canaan, the land of freedom—flowing with milk and honey. Such love and favor placed Israel under peculiar obligation to God.

3. "Taught Ephraim to go" (v. 3). In spite of Israel's backsliding (v. 2), God is represented as teaching Israel how to walk, even as a father taking up his child in his arms. God watched over them as parents watch over their children by night.

4. "I drew with cords of a man" (v. 4).

Observe that His drawing was not with a stout rope as used with an unruly heifer (ch. 10:11), but a cord such as a man could bear. God's wonderful love in Christ should constrain us to obey and serve Him.

5. Took off the yoke from the jaws and placed food before them (v. 4). The figure is of a husbandman lifting the yoke from the oxen so that they could eat.

6. Unwillingness to give them up (vv. 8, 9). In spite of all Israel's sin, God was unwilling to destroy them.

111. God Pleads for Repentance (14:4-5).

Notwithstanding their awful sin, God urged Israel to turn unto Him. He is doing the same to backsliders today. He made promise unto them.

1. "I will heal their backslidings" (v. 4).

This on the condition of frank and full confession.

2. "I will love them freely" (v. 4). This is characteristic of God. Only God can express unmerited love.

3. "I will be as the dew to Israel" (v. 5). God will refresh the nation as dew does the parched grass.

4. Growth promised (v. 5).

5. Beauty assured (v. 6).

6. Pleasant fragrance (v. 7). While this is a picture of the restored nation, something similar may be seen in the fragrant, fruitful lives of men and women who have sinned and come back to God.

Slowing Up?

You Can't Feel Well When Kidneys Act Sluggishly.

OVERWORK, worry and lack of rest, put extra burdens on the kidneys. When the kidneys slow up, impurities remain in the blood and are apt to make one languid, tired and achy, with dull headaches, dizziness and often nagging backache. A common warning is scanty or burning secretions. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's, a stimulant diuretic, increase the secretion of the kidneys and aid in the elimination of waste impurities. Are endorsed by users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!
